The Mystery of Black Mountain

How the Perpetrator of a Murder Was Discovered.

By JOHN LOUIS BERRY.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

The lightning flashed, illuminating the dark forest vividly.

"This is the place," said Clare breathlessly after her long run, and she pointed to the ground.

At Jack's feet lay a sinister black heap with its face turned up toward the stormy sky. There was a wide gash in the head. Beside the body lay the brutal implement of the hideous deed—an ax.

"Phil!" cried Jack in horror stricken tones, bending down and feeling the heart. "My God, he is dead!"

"Dead," repeated Clare, "and you killed him."

"I? Why, Miss Fleming, you must be mad. I swear!"—

She held up her hand. "Not another word. Please see me to the edge of the wood."

Jack Lawrence was held for the murder.

One afternoon a week before the day of the trial Jack was surprised by a visit from Clare Fleming.

"I'm going away," she explained, "and I didn't want to leave without saying goodby."

"Thank you," he answered quietly. "Do you still believe me guilty?"

"Don't ask me, please."

He sighed heavily.

"Is there anything I can do for you?" she asked eagerly.

"Yes. Try to believe that I'm innocent. Will you try, Clare?"

"Yes, Jack; I'll try—with all my soul."

"Thank you. You didn't see me strike him with the ax, did you?"

"No." She was silent a moment, gazing at him steadily. "Tell me, are you innocent or guilty?"

"Innocent, so help me God."

She held out her hand. "I believe you," she said, then, ashamed of her tears, hurriedly left him.

"I'm on my way to reserve your berth, my dear," he said. "The train has changed time, and"—

"But I'm not going away—just yet," she interrupted.

"You don't say so! Well, if you're not the most notionate young lady"—and the portly old gentleman hastened past him.

Reaching Dizzy Lodge, the Hughes home, she ordered her pony saddled and soon was galloping up Black mountain. She did not draw rein until arriving at Piney Bill's cabin. The old man was hard at work chopping wood.

"Good afternoon," she said graciously. "I've heard that you're the only person in the county who believes Jack innocent of the murder."

Bill did not respond with much alacrity. Because of this handsome, dashing young woman one of his boys was dead and the other was virtually condemned to die.

Bill gave his ax a rest. "You?" he queried incredulously.

"Come, now," she said briskly, dismounting. "Let's go to the place where poor Phil met his death and talk it over. Maybe we can reach some conclusion."

"Do you remember the exact spot?" Bill asked doubtfully.

"Yes. The tree was struck by lightning."

She shook her head. "No; it was that horrible ax. Somebody killed him with that, and you and I must find out who it was."

In a few moments they were standing on the fatal spot. The tree had been struck by lightning, as Clare had said, and was now a partly burned and shriveled semblance of its former kingly self. The two friends of the accused examined the surroundings carefully, but found nothing that led to a clew. There seemed to be only hopelessness ahead.

The day of the trial came. The prosecution then called its first and only witness, Clare Fleming. She told a simple and straightforward story of how on the afternoon of the picnic she and the murdered man had met the accused and of how when she and Phil were hurrying home in the rain and darkness Phil had been struck on the head with an ax, thereby killing him.

The defense began the cross examination.

"You were with Mr. Hastings at the time he met his death?"

"Yes."

"Did he cry out?"

"He simply fell to the ground."

"Did you see the murderer do the deed?"

"No."

"Did you see the accused anywhere near?"

"No."

"Did you suspect him then of the murder?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"Because"—she hesitated—"of their quarrel in the afternoon."

"And you left the body and went to hunt for him?"

"Not for him—simply for help. I lost my way and happened to meet him, then returned with him to the corpse."

"You are excused."

The prosecuting attorney then began his argument.

Judge Hughes followed for Jack. But his eloquence was futile. Only two of his points made anything of an impression: the fact that no footprints had been discovered under the tree other than those of Miss Fleming and the dead man and the further fact that the ax was a very odd one of German manufacture, the duplicate of which could not be found for miles around; certainly no one had ever seen the ax in Jack's possession.

The prosecuting attorney quietly called attention to the decisive significance of the defense's two points. Then the court gave the charge to the jury. The twelve good men and true retired. They had been gone just half an hour when they filed in and the foreman handed in the verdict: "Guilty of murder in the first degree." It was the shortest murder trial ever held in the state.

The defense's motion for a new trial was not granted. Accordingly Jack was taken to the state penitentiary. The governor, a rather rigid man, saw no extenuating circumstances in the case, and the first week in October was set as the time for the execution. So Jack's fate was sealed. Two months and he would shiver an inconsiderable death on the gallows.

A cloud of gloom settled over the village, where Jack had always been a general favorite. Judge Hughes and his niece went to a watering place to spend the rest of the autumn. Clare wrote one letter to Jack—a long, long one. What was in it nobody but themselves ever knew.

Time flew. On the twenty-eighth day of September Clare received the following telegram:

Come at once. Big news. BILL.

Bright and early the next morning she galloped up Black mountain. As usual Bill was chopping wood.

"You mus' 'scuse me, miss," he apologized, "but as you an' me wuz the only ones wot didn't b'lieve him guilty I thought I'd hev ye come an' share the glor'us news. But we mus' be quick about it, as you'll hev to see the gov'nor."

He went into the cabin and brought out the ax which had been found on the ground beside the body. "It's a quar one, ain't it, miss? An' do ye recollect it didn't hev no handle? I wonder wot become of it?" He laughed slyly. "I guess Jack must ha' buried it. But, do you know, miss, I suspicion that this here ax be half as old as I am? Come, I wanter show you the tree. Ever since poor Phil's death I've cussed an' swore at that tree. Time an' ag'in I've gone out thar to chop the critter down, an' time an' ag'in I couldn't. Suthin' allus seemed to hold me back. I'm mighty glad now that suthin' did."

Bill showed Clare his "find." Fifteen minutes later the overjoyed young woman rode down to the village, secured a camera; then, returning to the forest, took a picture of the tree, or, rather, of one particular part of it.

That afternoon she stood in the presence of his excellency the governor of the state.

"Governor," she began quietly, "next week is the time set for John Lawrence's execution. I'm here to ask you for a pardon."

"You don't ask much," his excellency answered dryly.

"Governor," she continued, smiling, "you are familiar with the details of Mr. Hastings' death. I ask you to keep in mind now four points especially—there was a thunderstorm raging at the time, he was standing under a tree, the tree was struck by lightning, and he was struck with an ax."

She opened her satchel and took out the photograph plate and the ax. "There, sir, is the ax. As you see, it's a very fine steel one of an odd shape and size, and if you look down in this corner you'll find it was made in Germany as long ago as 1800. The ax, then, is thirty-nine years old. The tree is a number of years older. Now, this plate shows the part of the tree that was struck by lightning—the 'forks,' so called, or the point where the upper part of the trunk divides into two limbs. The lightning struck the forks, and they split open. Look closely at the plate and you'll see a depression in the wood where the lightning struck, a depression of the exact shape of this ax. And right here is the explanation of the mystery of Philip Hastings' death. This ax was stuck into the tree between twenty and twenty-five years ago by some woodman. He might have done it for several reasons—to mark the tree, to put the ax in a safe and convenient place, or it might have been merely an act of carelessness. At that time, woodmen often do such things. The ax was thrust into this tree, the handle loosening and coming off. The man who did it must have forgotten it or gone away unexpectedly, as it was left in the tree. How do I know that this happened between twenty and twenty-five years ago? I simply compare the age of the ax with the probable age of the tree. The ax was thrust into the tree, and it remained there. As the tree grew the bark gradually covered the ax, and the ax rose higher and higher with the tree." She looked at the governor with quiet assurance. "Now, sir, these facts speak for themselves. The lightning struck, the forks of the tree, the tree split open, and the ax fell out. Unfortunately Philip Hastings happened to be standing directly under it, and it struck him, crushing in his head. Your excellency, I ask at least a reprieve."

The reprieve was granted. The next day the governor went to Black mountain to make a personal investigation. There stood the split tree, and there in the forks was a distinct depression into which the ax fitted perfectly.

AFTER FOUR YEARS OF MISERY

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Baltimore, Md. — "For four years my life was a misery to me. I suffered from irregularities, terrible dragging sensations, extreme nervousness, and that all gone feeling in my stomach. I had given up hope of ever being well when I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Then I felt as though new life had been given me, and I am recommending it to all my friends."—Mrs. W. S. FORD, 1938 Lansdowne St., Baltimore, Md.

The most successful remedy in this country for the cure of all forms of female complaints is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has stood the test of years and to-day is more widely and successfully used than any other female remedy. It has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means had failed.

If you are suffering from any of these ailments, don't give up hope until you have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. She has guided thousands to health, free of charge.

HOW HOTEL LICENSES WILL BE REDUCED HERE

The reduction of the number of hotel licenses in Peterborough from from eighteen to thirteen will be done in the regular way by the commissioners. Those desiring licenses for the coming year will put in their applications the same as in past years, all applications to be in before the first of April. The License Board will then meet consider the requests and decide who will be given licenses.

The licenses in effect at the present time expire on May 1st. The commissioners may decide to give those whose licenses are cancelled a chance to sell out. In the past three months has usually been given in this connection.

"The commissioners will decide this point when they meet in April," said Dr. M. A. Morrison, chairman of the License Board, to the Review to-day.

REPORT OF MANAGING BOARD OF HOUSE OF REFUGE

The Board of management of the House of Refuge reported to the county council yesterday afternoon as follows:

Fourth annual report of the Board of management of the County House of Refuge.

To the Council of the County assembled:—

Gentlemen,—We, your Board of Management for the year 1909, respectfully beg to report as follows;

Up to and including December 31, 1909, there have been admitted to the House 50 inmates, of these 9 have been discharged or absconded, 12 have died, and on December 31, 29 remained in the house.

The twelve that died averaged 80 1-3 years of age.

During the year one inmate was removed to the provincial asylum, and we yet have one that is not, properly speaking a fit subject for a House of Refuge.

Outside of the removal by death of several of the old people, there was not the amount of illness that prevailed in 1908.

Your Board have made the requisite number of inspections provided by the rules and the results of our observations in the main, have been satisfactory. very little complaint having been made by the old people, and whenever made was generally the emanation of eccentricity.

Considerable permanent improvements appeared to be necessary and according to your provision in council, your board have had carried into effect that which they deemed necessary, namely;

Extending of one barn some twenty feet thereby making more adequate barn room and providing for hogs underneath the new extension.

Also the building of a poultry house, [illegible] the capability of the old men to look after the fowl, appeared to be and no doubt will be a paying investment.

Some other improvements were made, such as necessary grading and placing the electric light poles in back lane, thereby adding to the appearance of the front, by removing them from there.

We also had the outbuildings fitted out with electric lighting, deeming it safer than coal oil lanterns, with very little more current expense during 1910.

There has been up to Dec. 31, 1909, been paid out for permanent improvements, $778.68, and of course some accounts still not presented.

FARES ON AIRSHIP LINES.

Passengers Will Have to Pay $5 to $7.50 an Hour.

A committee formed in Germany of five aeronautical experts has worked out estimates on the cost of working aerial passenger lines. The figures reveal clearly enough that travel in the air will for some time to come be a luxury in which only wealthy persons can indulge. The well known inventor, Major von Parseval, is the chairman of the committee, and the members are Herr Rettif, Professor Flarm, Professor Romberg and Lieut Modebeck.

They find that the cost of constructing an airship of approximately 282,500 cubic feet capacity, together with a shed for its accommodation and other accessories, would be about $10,000. Major von Parseval undertakes to construct an airship of this size and at this price which would be capable of carrying eighteen passengers besides the crew.

Taking it that ascents could be made on 200 days in the year, the annual working expenses are estimated at $75,000, or $375 each working day. Even should the airship carry a full complement of passengers on each trip, which is highly improbable, it is clear that every passenger would have to pay more than $25 for a day's trip in order to cover the working expenses and yield a small margin of profit.

Assuming that, instead of undertaking all day trips, the airship were able to make half a dozen ascents a day, the fares would still have to be fixed at from $5 to $7.50 an hour.

A Shipping Magnate.

One of the foremost figures in the shipping world is Sir Alfred L. Jones, K.C.M.G., senior partner in the world-renowned firm which owns the Elder-Dempster liners. He stands for all that is most enterprising in connection with the great port on the Mersey, and for all that is most enlightened in British and colonial commerce. Born at Carmarthen in 1846, he has interested himself particularly in the development of trade between Liverpool and the Canaries, the West Indies, and the West Coast of Africa. It was his invaluable services to Jamaica and the British possessions in West Africa which earned for Sir Alfred his decoration of K.C.M.G. in 1901; and he laid the scientific world under a deep debt of obligation to him when he founded that splendid institution, the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine, which has done so much in the direction of combating malaria and the other maladies which render life in the "summer of the world" a peril to the white man who is called hither by fortune.

Sir Alfred has always had a strong leaning to the scientific side of things, and is a Honorary Fellow of Jesus College, Oxford. He has been for some years at the head of most of Liverpool's go-ahead activities, and is nothing if not a "hustler," to use a well-understood modern phrase.

Consul for the Congo Free State in the Mersey-side city, he is also president of the Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association, president of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, president of the British Cotton-Growing Association, and chairman of the Bank of British West Africa.

He Didn't Stay.

The Hostess—It's storming so hard that I guess you'd better stay all night, Mr. Scoresby. The Dinner Guest—I'm afraid I would put you to too much trouble, Mrs. Brown. The Hostess—Oh, not at all. Let me see. I can sleep on the library lounge, and Jane and Martha and Lilla and Aunt Mary can room together, and there's a mattress we can bring down from the attic for Willie, and Mr. Brown will do nicely with a blanket on the parlor rug. It's no trouble at all, Mr. Scoresby. The Guest—You're very kind, but I'm quite sure the rain is stopping, and I've an excellent umbrella. Just as much obliged. Good night.

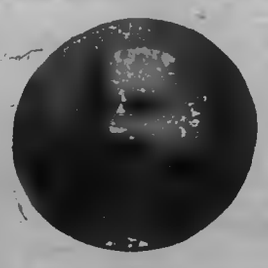
A Good Beginning



We have had good cause to say "thank you" for the patronage of 1909. This month so far has surpassed that of last year by 50%. We are sometimes so busy that we cannot wait upon all who come. To avoid this we advise that it is better to make appointments by phone or call, and this saves waiting your turn. Many do this and others will find it advantageous.

1910 has begun well with us. We are thankful, and promise to serve all to the best of our ability.

Belmont Club's Annual Dance

One of the most successful and delightful functions of the season was the Belmont Club's annual dance at the Conservatory Hall last night. The hall was beautifully adorned for the occasion, the decorations being very attractive and in superior taste. The stage presented a particularly pretty and effective picture, a large illuminated design of the club's crest effectively setting off the general dressing.

About two hundred were in attendance at the dance. The brilliant playing of Mr. J. Strathdee, of Toronto, was the source of much favorable comment. Supper was served by Messrs. Coleman Bros., who acted as caterers in their usually highly acceptable manner.

Mr. Walter T. Belleghem was the honorary secretary of the dance and the patrons and patronesses were: Mr. and Mrs. R. Denne, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roy, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schneider, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Stevens.

GREAT PARISIAN STRUCTURES THREATENED BY THE FLOODS

Huge Areas of the City Are Under Water and Streets Are Six Feet Deep in Some Places—Invalides and St. Lazare Stations May Collapse.

The walls of the Invalides Station are crumbling and both that structure and the wing of the Foreign Office opposite are in danger of collapse. Nevertheless, Mme. Pichon, wife of the Foreign Minister, held her regular reception last evening, oil lamps and grate fires being employed in the absence of steam heat and electricity.

The streets surrounding the St. Lazare Station have sunk three feet and the situation there is regarded as desperate. It is also feared that the foundations of the two big neighboring department stores are being undermined.

Soldiers are working desperately by the aid of torches, disentangling driftwood above the Solferino and Henry IV. bridges, while large forces of men are still engaged in constructing dams to divert the course of the swiftly-moving currents. There was a further shut-down of electric light plants yesterday, leaving the city in semi-darkness last night.

The relief work is proceeding bravely, none being refused food or shelter. Archbishop Amiette has ordered public prayers in the churches and a collection taken up for the victims.

In spite of the crippled water supply the authorities say that the reservoirs are intact and that there is no danger of a famine if the water is husbanded carefully and confined strictly to drinking purposes. At the same time a warning again is issued that the water should be boiled.

The situation below Paris is becoming appreciably worse. The strength of water, which engulfs Bologne, Neuilly, Puteaux, Asnieres, Maisons-Lafitte, Lepecq, and Poisy, is widening rapidly, while further below the swollen Oise is pouring in new torrents over the Poutoise section.

Paris, Jan. 28.—Another day has passed, but the inexorable yellow tide still creeps slowly higher, each inch of water widely extending the area of destruction, desolation and ruin.

Though the barometer is rising rapidly and bright sunshine yesterday succeeded the raging storms, a feeling of consternation, bordering on panic, prevailed last night when the authorities, who Wednesday promised the maximum of the flood for the day, announced that this would not be reached until to-day.

Official figures of the stage of the water are difficult to obtain, and the City Council, at a stormy session last night, charged M. Lepine, prefect of Paris, with withholding the true gravity of the situation. The prefect defends his attitude by saying that he was governed by the necessity of not unduly alarming the people.

Meantime the very crust of the city seems ready to sink into the flooded subterranean labyrinth beneath. Everywhere house drains are bursting in new localities, causing a subsidence of the streets, or bulging them feet above their normal level, while the overflow of surface water from the river is transforming the inundated districts into formidable lakes and the streets into canals.

In the Bercy quarter the water is six feet deep in the streets and the entire left bank of the Seine, from above the islands to Auteuil, comprising the law court institute, the fashionable St. Germaine districts, the Foreign Office, the Chamber of Deputies and the Champs de Mars, is submerged under from one to ten feet of water. Some of the Deputies left the Palaise Bourbon last night in rowboats, others on the backs of attendants.

SHORT YEAR EXPLAINS THE REDUCTION IN PROVINCIAL RECEIPTS

Income for 1909 Was $7,477,929.94 and Disbursements Were $7,545,040.47, Leaving a Shortage of About $67,000—Government Railway's Earnings.

Toronto, Jan. 28.—To have the public accounts laid on the table on the third day of the session is an achievement sufficiently unprecedented to cause old Parliamentarians to rub their eyes in wonder. That this was done in the Legislature yesterday is due to the change in the fiscal year, which ended on Oct. 31, 1909, giving time for their preparation before the commencement of the session. The innovation may thus become a permanent one. The accounts were laid before the House by Hon. W. J. Hanna, Provincial Secretary.

The total receipts were $7,477,920.94, and the expenditure $7,545,040.47. This is a deficit of between $67,000 and $68,000, but it must be borne in mind that this is sufficiently accounted for by the fact that the receipts were for only ten months, instead of the full year. November and December, which were thus omitted, are the largest revenue-producing months of the entire year. This is shown by a comparison with 1908, when the receipts for the full 12 months were $8,602,902.98, and the expenditures $8,557,283.60.

The amount of cash on deposit on Oct. 31, 1909, was $5,086,283.75.

The Temiskaming and Ontario Railway earnings poured into the Provincial Treasury the large sum of $550,000 against which should be placed the interest paid on three loans for construction of $313,036.25.

The new Canadian loan netted the Government $2,099,477.25 up to the end of October, 1909. Many more inquiries were received than could be filled. The loan was taken up largely by private investors.

The smallness of the amount ($14,362.34) received on deposit from the municipalities for the formation of sinking funds is due to the fact that most of the payments were not due until after the end of the short fiscal year. Many applications have been received from municipalities not now taking advantage of this means of enhancing their credit.

The Department of Lands, Forests and Mines, over the large revenue producing department, fairly surpassed itself, bring in $2,038,224.48, or practically the same in the eight months as in the previous full year. Of this sum $324,426.66 came from royalties and $115,411.71 from the provincial mines. Mining licenses and recording fees netted $219,473.95. The sale of crown lands brought in $364,092.16, while timber dues amounted to $529,422.50.

The amount received from succession dues was $618,049.02. In addition to this, funds deposited in lieu of bond for payment of succession duty amounted to $63,586.63. To the death duties the County of York was the largest contributor, with $229,190.23, Wentworth coming next with $97,823.87.

Other sources of revenue were from the Dominion of Canada, $2,128,072.08; interest paid by the Dominion and other interests on investments, $117,137.02; law stamps, $83,185.55; education, $36,653.84; Provincial Secretary, $210,357.15; game and fisheries, $83,047.35; agriculture, $104,956.42; supplementary revenue act, $719,146.68; public institutions, $217,387.89.

The amount expended on public institutions for maintenance was $954,795.28. As an evidence of the careful preparation of last year's estimate not a single appropriation under this head was exceeded. The large sum of $133,480.98 was expended on good roads.

The advance to the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway was $827,961.72. The amount expended on the road up to October 31, 1909, was $15,338,338.69.

The amount expended on the Hydro-Electric transmission line up to the same date was $466,893.73. This appears erroneously under current account, as will be pointed out by the Treasurer when he speaks on the budget.

The amount expended for administration of the Government was $5,330,562.35. Of this no less than $34,203.84 was for colonization and immigration.

DOMINION GOVERNMENT IS ACCUSED OF "WHITEWASHING"

Resuming the Debate on the Lumsden Charges, Member for North Grey Says That the Premier is Strangling the Investigation

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—In the House yesterday W. S. Middlebro (North Grey) resumed the adjourned debate on the Premier's resolution to appoint a special committee of five members of the House to investigate the charges laid by Hugh D. Lumsden, former chief engineer of the N.T.R., against a portion of the engineering staff.

He said he proposed to show what the object of the Premier should be in introducing his motion and what had seemed to be the object. Major Hodgins, one of the district engineers, had claimed in 1907 that the Transcontinental Railway commissioners had been pressing him to over-classify the work done by the contractors. Mr. Lumsden had charged that there was over-classification. Not one of the commissioners was a railway man, and owing to this fact the chief engineer was the most important official. He was the guardian of the treasury.

The object of the resolution, therefore, should be that the committee should be given power to see that Mr. Lumsden prove his charge, that because of over-classification he had lost confidence in his engineers. But what seemed to be the object of the Premier in introducing his motion was to strangle the enquiry, said Mr. Middlebro. If the Government did not give the committee full power to enquire into the question of over-classification it was because they were afraid.

Mr. Middlebro then asked the Premier to say if he meant to allow questions of over-classification to be dealt with by the proposed committee, sat down and waited for an answer.

Sir Wilfrid remained silent.

Thereupon Mr. Middlebro described the committee as a "whitewashing committee" and a "strangling committee." He said Major Hodgins had been dismissed because he was keeping the classification down too low to suit the contractors or the commissioners. His crime was that he was too honest. A man named Poulin was appointed in his place and he allowed over-classification to the extent of over two millions. Gordon Grant, after being appointed chief engineer, went west himself and cut the accounts still further by $360,000.

F. B. Carvell (Carleton, N.B.) said that as Major Hodgins had voluntarily withdrew his charges, these should not be resurrected. He believed with the Premier that the only thing to do was to bring before the committee Mr. Lumsden and a committee of engineers.

Shortly before one o'clock this morning, R. L. Borden rose to address the House. He said the motion of the Premier might properly be styled a motion for the prevention of an investigation. The case as originally presented by Mr. Lennox had not been answered. Estimates had been made by men which when results were actually seen, were so absolutely absurd and misleading as to justify the dismissal of each one of them.

Charges of the gravest character had been made against some of them by G. A. Wood, assistant chief engineer of the Grand Trunk Railway Co. Specifications had been ignored by the Government's own officers and the whole transaction reeked with corruption.

During the last Parliament in 1907 the Government had voted down the proposal to investigate these charges and it would be to the everlasting discredit of this Government that these charges had been allowed to go without any attempt to investigate them.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley informed Mr. Crocket that the total amount of the payments made through the Public Works Department to A. & R. Loggie of Fredericton, N.B., during the last fiscal year, was $44,053, and during the present fiscal year, to date, $16,366.

Mr. Crothers asked if Albert Allard, Liberal candidate in the Ottawa by-election, was, on Jan. 22 (nomination day), directly or indirectly undertaking any contract or agreement with or for the Government. The Premier replied that he was not aware of any such contract.

Hon. Mackenzie King stated that the resolution regarding the investigation of combines would come up to-day.

George Taylor (Leeds) asked if employes of the Public Works Department were absent from duty taking part in the present election campaign.

Mr. Pugsley replied: "The attention of the Government has not been called to the alleged fact."

A voice: "It is now."

James Conmee referred again to gross reports stating that Arthur Wilson, who gave evidence before the mines committee last week, was a representative of the British Government, and had declared that the nickel deposits of Ontario were in the hands of American capitalists. Reiterating his denial of these assertions, Mr. Conmee proceeded to condemn an editorial in The Ottawa Citizen, and was called to order by the Speaker, who refused to allow him to proceed beyond the confines of a question of privilege. Conmee sat down.

Murder Confession a Fake.

Rochester, N.Y., Jan. 28.—James Hall, who confessed to the murder of Anna Schumacher near this city last August, has now proved a perfect alibi. He will be prosecuted for confessing to the murder to fraudulently gain his dishonorable discharge from the U. S. navy.

Will Go to China.

Windsor, Jan. 28.—Misses Annie and Maud Sedgwick of this city will leave for China shortly, the former to become a missionary at Honan and the latter to become a teacher in the Chinese schools.

FIVE TORONTO MEN HELD UP

Toronto, Jan. 28.—Five men, drivers for Rutherford and Marshall, wholesale producers, East Front street, were held up at the company's stables on a lane in the rear of 97 Pembroke street between 6 and 7 o'clock yesterday morning by two men, masked and armed with revolvers and billies. Each man was taken and tied as he came to the stables and deprived of his money. He was then stood up in a stall and the robbers waited for the next to come. In all, the booty amounted to $223.

George Lee, 69 McCaul, was the first driver to reach the stable. As he stepped inside the door, two revolvers were thrust into his face and he was told to stand and deliver. There were two men masked by wearing stocking caps drawn down over their faces and with holes cut for eyes and mouth.

Lee jumped for a pitchfork but was struck on the head with a billy and felled. Then his assailants went through him and took $29, all he had on him. Then they trussed him up with ropes and put him away in a stall telling him that if he made any outcry he would be shot.

The next to come was Reginald Truesdale, 749 West Richmond street. As he entered the stable in the dim light of a single lamp, and that turned low, he was told to stand and deliver. Also Lee, who has been through the treatment, advised him that it would be useless to struggle, so he gave up. He had no money on him but was tied as the other man had been.

W. R. Gray, 134 Markham street, came next, and was treated in a like manner. They got no money from him.

Charles Brown, 43 Clinton street, came next and contributed $4 under similar circumstances. He was followed by George Sherbrooke, 36 1-2 Florence street. He was the largest contributor, chipping in $160. All were securely tied and left in the stall.

In the dim light it was difficult to get a good view of the men, but as one of them went out he lifted his mask and it was seen that he was dark with a dark moustache. The other was clean shaven, fair and tall.

When they were left alone the imprisoned ones set about their common release. Gray succeeded in undoing the bonds of one of his companions by working at the knots with his teeth. He finally succeeded and after that it was plain sailing.

The case was reported to the police and two detectives are at work upon it.

The robbery must have been committed by men who had a knowledge of the ways of these men. The drivers collect during the day, and do not make returns until the morning following.

CHILD LOVERS COMMIT SUICIDE

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 28.—Because of parental opposition to their marriage on account of their youth, Vernon Barr, aged 16, and Lina Ammer aged 14, killed themselves yesterday. They were found clasped in each other's arms, sitting upright in young Barr's buggy in which they were riding home from a dance. On the girl's lap rested a cup partly filled with strychnine and water. The horse had stopped at the gate of the girl's home.

LIQUOR IS BLAMED FOR THE CRIME

Cobourg, Jan. 28.—George Mancuro Italian, charged with the murder of two of his countrymen and wounding another, came before Magistrate Holland for preliminary hearing. F. D. Boggs defending.

James McCormack of Grafton, swore that on the morning of Jan. 25 he went to the construction camp and learned that work was suspended. He noticed a crowd before the shack where the Italians were. It dispersed and as he neared the gateway Mancuro came out. When he saw McCormack he raised his gun and fired. As McCormack got closer, he saw the Italian "break" the gun, then raise it saw his hand on the trigger, but the weapon did not go off. Mancuro motioned McCormack to go away. The latter stepped back a little way and Mancuro disappeared.

"Too bad, too bad; too much gin," was an expression of the prisoner's yesterday.

WINDSOR HAS A BLACK HAND CASE

Windsor, Jan. 28.—J. W. Drake, ex-mayor of Windsor, has received a black hand letter, in which the writer declares that he is desperate and demands $200 cash, and in the event of refusal the assassination of Mr Drake will follow, says the epistle. The letter was decorated with the customary skull and cross bones, and a rudely drawn coffin, and mailed from Windsor. The letter demands that $200 cash be placed in an envelope and mailed to J. Davis, Sandwich, Ont. A Windsor police officer is now stationed at the Sandwich postoffice.

THOMAS HAY WAS WRECK VICTIM

North Bay, Jan. 28.—Thomas Hay, C.P.R. claims agent, injured in the wreck near Webbwood on Friday, died yesterday morning at his residence in North Bay, blood-poisoning having set in.

Mr. Hay was in his sixty-fourth year, and had railroaded for forty-five years, joining the C.P.R. in 1883, after serving the Grand Trunk Railway for some years in Brockville. He was born near Kingston. Mr. Hay entered the C.P.R. service at Ottawa, then was assistant superintendent of the Schreiber division for fifteen years. For ten years he was claims agent.

HIGHER STANDARD FOR ENGINEERS

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—The Canadian Society of Civil Engineers yesterday appointed a committee to wait on the Premier respecting a higher standard for Government engineers and an advisory board on national engineering questions.

These officers were elected: President, H. N. Ruttan, Winnipeg; vice-presidents, W. F. Tye, C. H. Rust and R. W. Leonard; councillors, C. R. Coutlee, Phelps Johnson, H. J. Cambie, D. MacPherson, A. E. Doucet, L. A. Herut, C. E. W. Dodwell, C. N. Montserrat, J. G. Sullivan, A. W. Campbell, J. M. R. Fairburn, J. M. Shanley, H. H. Vaughan, W. J. Francis, H. E. Haultain, H. G. Kelley, R. J. Darley and R. S. Kelsch, auditor.

CRUEL ASSAULT NEAR NORWOOD THIS MORNING

Two Misses McPherson Living on the Havelock Road Attacked and Brutally, Perhaps Fatally, Beaten — Suspect Arrested at Havelock Said to Have Confessed the Crime.

Special to Review.

Norwood, Ont., Jan. 28.—About 11 o'clock this morning a young man entered the home of the Misses McPherson, two elderly ladies living about two miles east of here, and brutally assaulted them both. Reports are varying as to the extent of the injuries inflicted on one old lady, but the other is in a dying condition. Searching parties are leaving town in every direction to try and apprehend the brute.

Immediately upon receiving the above despatch the Review communicated with Norwood to get fuller particulars of the affair. The town is in a great state of excitement, and conflicting rumors are in circulation concerning the particulars of the assault. While details that can be vouched for as being absolutely accurate are not forthcoming, the version of the matter that seems to be most generally accepted is that the man entered the house in which the Misses McPherson live on the Havelock road, and demanded something to eat. Upon being refused, it is said, he committed the assault.

A passerby on his way to Norwood, said he saw the fellow leave the house and described him as about eighteen or twenty years of age, apparently, and dressed in black overcoat, with brown scarf and tan boots. He was clean shaven and presented a much more respectable appearance than the ordinary tramp.

Drs. Sutton, Pettigrew and Ford were early sent to the home of the injured women, and the authorities of the surrounding points were communicated with and asked to be on the lookout for a man of the description forwarded.

ARRESTED AT HAVELOCK.

Havelock, Jan. 28—A young man answering the description of the Norwood suspect, has been arrested and locked up here by Constable Bennett. He carried a revolver and some letters addressed to Mr. Robert Henderson, Toronto. He threatened the policemen who tried to take him, but when Bennett arrived on the scene the accused gave himself up.

Later—An unconfirmed despatch states that one of the women is dead and the other is in a precarious condition. It is also reported that the prisoner confessed he struck one of the women, and that his object was robbery.

FOUR O'CLOCK SPECIAL.

Norwood, Jan. 28.—Both women are still alive.

CONSTABLE COCHRANE GOING

Dr. Gray, coroner, was notified this afternoon that a man and woman had been murdered at Norwood. Apparently this is an exaggeration. County Constable Cochrane will leave for Havelock to-night on the C. P.-R. local, and Dr. Gray will go to Norwood to-morrow, if his services are required.

Havelock, Jan. 28.—4.10 Special—The prisoner has made a full confession of the assault.

HAMILTON DECIDES TO ADVERTISE

Hamilton, Jan. 28.—The Board of Control decided upon an aggressive policy in connection with industrial development and appointed William Mullins, city editor of The Spectator, as publicity commissioner at $1,500 a year. Controller Bailey thought the board should take some action to get the railways to build a union station. It was announced that the loss from the fires Saturday night were: City Hospital, $4,878; Central fire station tower, $180. Last year's surplus was announced as $59,130. The revenue was $39,370 greater than the estimate, the increase being largely due to the collection of taxes. A proposal to add to the penalty for arrears in taxes was laid over.

WHO SHOT WEIGAND?

Niagara Falls, Jan. 28.—Investigations conducted yesterday into the circumstances surrounding the shooting of George Weigand, the Niagara River fish dynamiter, in the river off Grand Island, Wednesday, tend to show that the dead man was possibly accidentally shot by Gus A. Enger, his companion in the launch, and not by Fisheries Inspector Thomas Briggs.

The local authorities place reliance in the story told by Briggs and corroborated by several other persons that the first shot was fired from the boat and that Weigand fell dead several minutes after the last shot was fired from the shore by the Canadian official. Witnesses say that Briggs did not fire on the boat with intent to kill the occupants, but aimed low in an effort to sink the craft, when the occupants refused to come ashore. The bullet from which Weigand died is in the back of his head.

Inspector Mains of the provincial police has informed District Attorney Dudley of Erie County, N.Y., that if the body of Weigand is turned over to the Canadian authorities, a searching enquiry will be conducted.

Bullets found in trees and in the ground, fired from a 44 Winchester prove Briggs' assertion that he was shot at.

U.S. POSTAL BANKS BILL

Washington, Jan. 28.—The postal saving bank bill drafted by Senators Carter, Dolliver and Owen, a subcommittee of the committee on postoffices and post roads, was perfected yesterday, and by Mr. Carter was introduced in the Senate.

The bill provides that there shall be established a system of postal savings banks, under the supervision and direction of a board of trustees, consisting of the Secretary of the Treasury, Postmaster-General and the Attorney-General acting ex-officio.

An account cannot be opened for less than one dollar, and no more than $100 can be deposited to any one calendar month. All deposits must be in multipiles of one dollar, but in order that smaller amounts may be accumulated for deposit, saving cards will be issued and ten postal savings stamps sold. When these cards and attached stamps show an investment of $1, or multiples thereof, they will be received as deposits.

Deposits will draw 2 per cent. interest.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

It is now stated in London that the Earl of Carrington will succeed Earl Grey as Governor-General of Canada.

Hon. P. S. G. MacKenzie, Quebec, new Provincial Treasurer, was yesterday re-elected in Richmond County, by acclamation.

The associated Boards of Trade of British Columbia have passed a resolution favoring Government ownership of telephones.

The retirement of Hon. Clifford Sifton from active politics will take place when the present Parliament runs its course, according to statements of his close personal friends at Ottawa.

Harry Steinberg, his wife and two young children of Hamilton were taken to the city hospital shortly after midnight in a serious condition from ptomaine poisoning. They had canned sardines for supper.

Mrs. M. A. Statlet, 70 years old, and Mrs. Bama Bailitts, mother and sister of E. M. Statler, the well-known Buffalo hotel man, captured a burglar yesterday afternoon after a struggle in which both women were injured. Mrs. Bailitts chased the man down the street and caught him.

CANNERY MERGER IS NOT COMPLETE

Hamilton, Jan. 28.—J. J. Nairn, manager of the Canadian Canners, says that while a merger of the can and canners' companies is under discussion, it had not been completed yet. The American Can Co. owns factories in Hamilton and Montreal, but has not been able to control the field on account of the fact that the Canadian Canners, Limited, has a large factory in Simcoe, where it manufactures cans for all its factories.

Norwegian Cabinet Resign.

Christiania, Jan. 28.—The elections to the Storthing having been averse to the Ministry, Premier Knudson yesterday submitted to the King the resignation of the Cabinet.

Praises Canadian Banking.

London, Jan. 28.—Sir F. Schuster, speaking at a bank meeting, said that the Canadian banking system was highly efficient as well as very useful to the country generally.

FURTHER REFORMS

Law reform might well continue to be a subject of reform by the Ontario Government. Much as that government has done in other directions it has done little in the direction of law reform. It is true the subject is a ticklish one, not on account of the lawyers, but on account of the law. This, however, should not prevent so strong and capable an administration from working out a better system than that now in vogue. Night schools we believe are to engage the attention of the government and to them and to technical schools as much attention should be given as to other means of education. Those who work by night or after hours to obtain an education are of the very best in the country and no expense should be spared in their behalf.

HOW TIMES HAVE CHANGED

A comet has been espied at our western window through which it is visible at present just at the time of sunset. As it progresses and the time of sunset becomes later it will probably change its apparent position so as to become brighter and more easily visible. Nowadays such an object represents to us not "an appalling wonder of the great void" not "a messenger of death," etc., but simply a manifestation of what we call "matter" in the course of its defined path through space. There is nothing "wonderful" about it except that it is on such a huge scale. The comet bears all the attributes of the usual. There is really nothing uncommon or unusual about it except that a comet is not an everyday matter like a newspaper. It has often been a matter of wonder to us that people could waste time and money on fireworks when the glory of the heavens was before them. Many people never look up. They are intimately acquainted with mudholes and other evidences of terrestial unrest, but they never seem to think of the time, space and distance involved in the planets and stars. That people do not as a rule appreciate these things, is due to the immensity of them. If it is hard to guage Niagara at first, how much harder to guage the light distance of Arcturus? Astronomy, thanks to the efforts of some unselfish people is becoming a popular pastime. To know a little of it is no longer a fact worth 'advertising' with. The name of astronomers, amateur and advanced are usually now left out as unnecessary to the enhancing of the glory of the heavens. On the other hand a true appreciation of the subject makes men humble and less inclined to swell with an "unconscious" pride. Napoleon is reported to have said that the study of astronomy might not knock vanity out of a man which is a constitutional weakness, but it would knock ambition, which is an intellectual longing. However, all things material are small in comparison with the scale of creation and all man's ideas of conduct are small except in so far as they harmonize with the great general principles of conduct. We are nearer to realizing also the unrealizability so to speak of the universe and its creation. It is this definite condition of our ignorance that has advanced our knowledge and breadth of view in every direction.

EDITORIAL NOTES

As a party the Unionists have beaten the Liberals, but side-issues will determine the immediate future.

It is asserted, we know not how truly, that the Irish as an entity at Quebec are not making progress.—Catholic Register.

Two to one Great Britain will yet be the victim of an American trust. Free trade is the open door to American and German aggression but when finally the British "give in" to necessity they will have discovered some "new reason" for so doing.

Fresh gall is added to the Radical cup by the boastings of Hearst's journals, as cabled from New York, that "America will run the government of England by the Irish vote. The Irish party is financed by America. The little band of Nationalists are in the driver's seat. John Redmond will be the unofficial Premier of England until another election."—Star's cable.

A British Columbia plebiscite on the prohibition issue has gone against the prohibitionists, but by a narrow majority. The criminal statistics indicate that the Pacific Province goes more to wetness than is to its credit. Perhaps the situation is moving the public conscience.—Montreal Gazette.

The Gazette's observation tallies with the experience of the East riding of Peterborough where crime and whiskey are largely absentees.

It is strange that some commercial men continue to ignore the fact that gold appreciates or depreciates according as it is plentiful or otherwise. This is what is meant by saying things fetch a high or low price that is are cheap or dear in comparison with what they used to be. In the west there are no "coppers." Goods, &c., are relatively higher-priced than in the "cent-belt." Where money is plentiful, comparatively speaking and cheap, cents are considered unnecessary and are ignored.

Private reports from Washington say it is probable that on April 1 next Canada will pass automatically into the list of countries whose exports to the United States will have to pay maximum tariff rates. These maximum rates, where they apply, will be 25 per cent. on the value of the exported articles. This, if it is imposed, will considerably heighten the wall that keeps Canadian products out of the United States, and lessen the market for some classes of goods. It is a good thing that Canadians have learned that the market of first importance to them is that which they themselves create at home.—The Montreal Gazette.

"Our friends of Grande Ligne," says the Canadian Baptist, "have learned to look at the parable of the mustard seed." This citation of parables reminds us of the Negro Baptist preacher who, on one occasion, got the Bible story somehow twisted, and represented our Lord as having performed the miracle of feeding five people with 7,000 loaves and 2,000 fishes. An incredulous listener broke in upon the moral with the enquiry: "Say, pa'son, where am de miracle? Any niggah could do dat." "De miracle, brudder," said the preacher, "is dat dese people didn't bust." With the sum of $1,000 expended for every French-Canadian brand saved from the burning, the miracle is that Grande Ligne has not "bust up" long ago.—Catholic Register.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

MANY WILL HEAR DR. MacDONALD

A large number of tickets have been sold for the Canadian Club dinner, to be held at the Hotel National on Saturday evening at 6.30 o'clock. The speaker will be Dr. Macdonald, editor of the Toronto Globe, and his subject will be, "Some Lessons to be Learned by Canada from Life in Britain." Dr. Macdonald is one of the Dominion's foremost men and is a speaker of international reputation.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Jan. 27.—The railways reported 27 carloads of live stock at the City Market for Wednesday and Thursday, consisting of 1748 cattle, 4014 hogs, 709 sheep and lambs, 103 calves and 1 horse.

Exporters.

A few export bulls were bought at $4.25 to $5 per cwt., but we heard of prices as high as these being paid for butcher bulls.

Butchers.

George Rowntree bought 410 butchers' cattle for the Harris Abattoir Co., at following quotations: Steers and heifers, $4.60 to $5.60; cows, $2 to $4.40; bulls, $4 to $5.25 per cwt.

Stocker and Feeders.

Harry Murby reports little doing in stockers and feeders, but owing to the fact that butchers are paying higher prices for all classes of steers with any flesh on them, than farmers and feeders are willing to pay. Mr. Murby bought 4 loads of butchers, 780 to 900 lbs. each, at $4 to $4.65 per cwt.

Milkers and Springers.

Buyers from Montreal and Quebec had the effect of stimulating the market for milkers and springers. Prices paid ranged from $35 to $55, with a very few going at $60 each.

Veal Calves.

The run of veal calves for the two days was light, which caused prices to be firm at $5 to $7.50, altho as high as $8.25 was paid for a few new milk fed veals.

Sheep and Lambs.

Ewes, $4.50 to $4.75, was the general price, but $5 per cwt. was paid for a few of choice quality; rams and culls, $3 to $3.75; lambs, prices ranged all the way from $6 to $7.35, and a few selected lots at $7.50.

Hogs.

Mr. Harris and the rest of the dealers reported the market weak at $6.50, fed and watered, and $6.25, f.o.b., cars, with prospects for lower prices next week.

"RACE" MADNESS IN MONTREAL CONTINUES IN ALL DIRECTIONS

(From the Montreal Gazette.)

The following news-item headed "A New Argument," is quoted in full from the Mnotreal Gazette of Jan. 27. The fanatical attitude taken by our French "friends" in Montreal shows to what extreme lengths they are prepared to go in their race for "race":—

"One new argument was advanced last night in St. Jean Baptiste ward, in College Hall, as to why Dr. Guerin should not be elected mayor of Montreal. It was that his compatriots in the United States had not given fair play to French Canadians in their desire to have their own clergy. Consequently, it was argued, the appeal to the generosity of French Canadians here came with bad grace.

Another curious statement made was that the Citizens' Committee had dictated what candidates were to be elected in French Canadian wards but had said nothing about the English wards.

Several speakers had been heard when Ald. Proulx arrived and there were cries for him at once. Ald. Proulx, addressing the gathering of some 400 electors, said he was once more a candidate among them. It was true he had suffered from the calumnies levelled at him. He had suffered in his family and in his profession, and the bitter part of it was he had no opportunity to reply to his adversaries. Now he was once more before the electors and if he had to lose he would lose in a manly way, and would not resort to the attacks which had been made against him. "I am the same man I was six years ago," said Ald. Proulx, amidst applause, "and I intend to remain the same. Next Sunday I have made arrangements for an excursion to No. 13 Station, that famous station you have heard so much about. The trip has been organized by my friends, and I invite you all to go, and do me the justice to see for yourselves what it is like. So next Sunday afternoon all of you come and give me fair play. Cars will leave Rachel street at 2 o'clock. Come in a crowd and you will be satisfied with what you see.

Among the statements made by Mr. Geoffrion, M.P. for Chambly, was that most of the funds for the Citizens' Committee had been supplied from English sources and it was that same committee which was telling French Canadians whom to vote for, but the speaker saw no right for giving such advice. "Vote for Senator Casgrain," he said, "we don't want to be dictated to."

ERRATIC STATEMENTS

Mr. Arthur Berement, M.P. for Berthier, made the statement that if the list of endorsed candidates were examined it would be found to be confined to French Canadian wards. There was no English ward among them, he declared, because the English people would not submit to that kind of treatment. Touching the question of race, Mr. Berement asked whether Dr. Guerin approved of what his compatriots did in the United States when they were trying to deprive French Canadians of bishops and priests and the language they had fought for. "Does he approve that?" said the speaker. "I ask him if that is the way he would act at the City Hall?"

Mr. Berement also gave his idea of the recent letters of Archbishop Bruchesi, interpreting it to the effect that an Irish mayor was no more desirable in Montreal than an Irish Bishop would be.

Mr. Berement went on to say that Montreal had been advertised all over the country as a corrupt city. If that were true, it was one good reason why the people wanted to elect a French-Canadian mayor to prove they knew how to look after their city.

Senator Casgrain reached the meeting late after having attended two other meetings at which he delivered addresses. He was given an excellent reception, and repeated in substance what he had said already, that he represents the people of Montreal, and that he was opposed by all the English press of the city. The Herald especially was raising the race cry against him, which he did not merit.

Senator Casgrain said he had no alliances and was independent of all organizations. He reviewed the number of times James McShane was mayor of Montreal, and the fact that Mr. W. E. Doran had been a candidate, and added that Mr. R. Wilson Smith was an Irishman, but was a Protestant, so that, after all, the Irish were not so badly off for representatives. The French-Canadians formed two-thirds of the population, and it was but two years since they had elected an English-speaking mayor.

Mr. Achille Bergevin, ex-M.L.A., made a violent attack on the Herald for the way it was conducting the campaign, and also repeated the statement that the English wards were left alone by the Citizens' Committee in the matter of the endorsation of candidates. Mr. Bergevin said, while he disliked to raise a race cry, he could not understand the Herald, which was pretending that Senator Casgrain was raising the race cry, because he had declared he was a good Canadian. The Herald was a Liberal paper, but it was edited by a man from Ontario. Mr. Bergevin declared he respected adverse opinions, but in the face of the kind of campaign the Herald was making he could only ask the French-Canadians to vote for Senator Casgrain. It was the same paper which had fought the late Raymond Prefontaine, but he had succeeded all the same. "We won the day for him," said the speaker, "and we will elect Casgrain mayor of Montreal."

Mr. Bergevin closed by saying that Dr. Guerin was a friend of his, and an honest man, and it was far from him to attack his race, but under the circumstances he supported Senator Casgrain.

Mayor Payette made a short speech of practically the same sense as his other speeches. His Worship criticized the Citizens' Committee for the way they had made their nominations without consulting the people. He went over the question of the Royal Commission, and said the people would be wrong if they concluded that the council of Montreal was composed of bandits. It would have been his duty, if he found one there, to have said so, but he had found none. After all, those accusations made in the report were rather value.

Mr. Achille Latreille and Mr. Louis Coderre were among the other speakers. While ther awas no tremendous outburst of applause at any time during the evening, there was good applause on several occasions for Senator Casgrain and Mayor Payette, as well as for others."

AT HEALEY FALLS

Healey Falls seems now no nearer development than it did five years ago. The big brass band noise seems to have died away. Let it be revived. Remember everytime the second-hand of your watch makes one revolution 100,000 cubic feet of water goes over Healey Falls. 14,000 horse-power is ready for development.

Here, there is a place of beauty,
Rocky ledge on either side,
In between the dazzling river,
One great rushing, bursting tide.

Up above the foaming rapids,
Here, the mist in splendor shines,
As the soft rays from the sun
Streaks its face with color lines.

Here you see old nature's beauty
As you stand as in a dream,
If heaven is a place of beauty,
Of beauteous heaven, it is a gleam.

Do you hear the mighty falls
Rushing o'er the rocks below,
Do you hear the chiming music
As the waters onward flow?

Do you hear the river's message?
It is singing one to you;
Listen to the water talking,
Every word it says is true.

Years ago the great Nebomis,
Indian chief of great renown,
Stood upon this lofty summit,
Saw the waters dancing down.

Heard the river singing also
In its plunging downward dash,
Knew there was a message for him
In each plunge and every dash.

He had travelled far and wide,
Seen all tribes of men, he thought,
But he never heard a language
That the water there did talk.

This must be the god he honored,
Speaking to him in this way,
Wondered he, "What is the message;
What does our great father say."

Forth he went unto his tepee,
Sat there, silent, bund in thought;
Yes, he knew, there was a message.
Tried to solve it, but could not.

So, like many other people,
Gave it up, and thought no more,
Was contented with its music,
And its beauty, as before.

Many years have passed and gone,
(White men, now this place has found,
Still remains the falls of beauty,
With its sweet and climing sound.

Now you stand as did Nebomis,
In his very footsteps there,
Hear the rushing dancing waters
And the message in the air.

It is giving out a message
Indirectly unto you,
Spread it out among the people,
See the good that it will do.

Gifts of nature, there are many,
Given to man, for his good;
Some of these he utilizes,
Some he does not, as he should.

Thus the falls with all its beauty
Should not this way ever stand,
We should use what God has given us,
That it may do good to man

It is not, was not intended,
That man should a slavage stay,
It is only right, his knowledge
Should increase more every day.

Let us not, as did Nebomis
See just beauty and no more;
Let us probe into the matter,
See what God meant each thing for

A SPLENDID NEW SERIAL

Starts in the Review on Monday —Synopsis of "The Man From Brodney's"

A handsome young soldier of fortune, a princess of enchanting beauty, two eccentric adventurers who leave wills disposing of the island of Japat and its ruby mines, two heirs who must marry within a year to inherit the property despite the fact that they are already married, a shrewd American lawyer, a scheming British solicitor, a pretty stenographer, a prince who is musical and profligate and a horde of fanatical Moslems who will inherit the riches of Japat provided the heirs do not marry each other—these are the leading characters in a romance which for genuine novelty, thrilling and unusual situations, live American humor and the pathos of a great but apparently hopeless love has rarely been equaled and never surpassed.

MA GOT DONE BROWN.

And Pa Got Mad and Also Got Something to Look At.

Last summer something went up, and pa made a lot of money. As soon as ma found it out she said she was going to be done in oil.

"All right," said pa, "how much of you are you going to have done?"

"A full length," said ma.

"Gracious! You'll ruin me!" said pa. "Think of the frame!"

You see, ma is what I call fat, but she says she is in the prime of life and that it is fitting for a woman of her age to be portly.

"If you're going to be done," pa told her, "be done brown. So don't go to a department store and be done by the yard with a halo around you."

Ma grinned like she always does when she gets her own way and went to a real artist—one of those fellows that lives in an attic with a big skylight and armor and pieces of people hanging around. This was last September, and since then ma has been going about once a week to sit to the artist.

The first time ma came home from her sit pa asked her how much of Venus had risen from the sea. Ma got mad and told him to wait until he saw his wife hanging from the line at the academy.

Well, ma is done now, and the other night we three went around to the academy to see ma hanging. Pa said he would like to see her as others saw her. The picture looked just like ma, only her cheeks were red, and she didn't have any funny little lines around her eyes. Pa said she looked like a duchess and patted her on the arm, and she got all red and her eyes shiny, and she looked real pretty. Then ma wanted to go home, but pa wanted to stay and hear what people said about the picture.

While they were settling their differences, as pa calls it, two ladies came along and began to talk about ma's picture. One of them said: "Isn't it hideous? I don't mean the picture, but the subject. Why is it artists always choose such ugly subjects?"

Pa said "Blast the women!" real loud, and they looked around and saw ma dressed like she was in the picture. "Merciful heavens!" one squealed. "There's the subject now!" And ma said, "James, if you had gone home when I wanted to you would have spared your wife this humiliation."

Pa never said a word, and we went home without stopping to get anything to eat, like we do when we go to the show, and ma went right to bed.

The next morning pa asked ma where she was going to hang her picture. "Where am I going to hang it?" screamed ma. "In a place where neither you or Thomas (that's me) or any one else will see it." And ma made the artist take the picture out of the academy.

When it came home she had it tied up in sheets and put up in the garret and locked the door. Pa said if she wouldn't let him see the picture he was going to have something to look at, so he pasted the bill up on the wall of his den.

Geep! It makes me sick. Pa and ma are always preaching about "willful waste making woeful want." That's what that picture was. They might have bought an automobile.

The Old Familiar Faces.

"Hello, there!" exclaimed the cheerful man. "Glad to see you! Howdy do?"

"Why—er—howdy do? Howdy do?" returned the absentminded man, somewhat dubiously.

"How are you?"

"Pretty well, pretty well. Er"—

"You don't seem to remember me."

"Why—er—your face is familiar, but—er"—

"Don't remember my name, eh?"

"Well—er—I hope you'll pardon me, but I must confess I don't," said the absentminded man.

"You'll find it on the handle of that umbrella you are carrying," remarked the cheerful man. "You borrowed it from me six months ago."

Monument to a Pig.

No stranger monument ever existed than that which was erected at the Hotel de Ville by the inhabitants of Luneburg, in Hanover, in honor of a pig. This, which took the form of a kind of mausoleum, contained a large glass case in which was hermetically inclosed a fine ham cut from the animal whose memory was to be handed down to posterity. Above was a handsome slab of marble on which, engraved in letters of gold, was the following inscription in Latin: "Passers-by, contemplate here the mortal remains of the pig which acquired for itself imperishable glory by the discovery of the salt springs of Luneburg."

When Time Didn't Fly.

Little Helen during the three years of her life had never been separated from her elder sister night or day for more than a few minutes at a time, but at last the time came when the sister went away for a whole day. The child tried every game and occupation that she knew of and a new one or two suggested by her mother, but they all palled.

Finally she gave up and stood and looked sadly out of the window. Then she sighed deeply and said:

"It's still the same old day, isn't it, mother?"

Pigs in Portugal.

Pigs in Portugal are more docile [illegible] in the world, said G. E. Thompson, F.R.P.S., in a lecture at the Royal Photographic Society's exhibition. Instead of prodding and pushing the animals along the market, the women carry panniers filled with savory things that pigs enjoy and the drove trots behind them without any trouble.—London Standard.

Pinches All Round.

She—My new gown is just lovely. It's a perfect fit. He—Satisfied on that point, eh? She—Yes; I know it's a good fit because it pinches me so. He—Well, it doesn't pinch you half as much as it does my pocket-book.

Winnipeg is arranging for a permanent annual exhibition.

PARLOR SOCIAL HELD AT ST. LUKE'S

A large number of people attended the parlor social last night at the Rectory, under the auspices of the Girls' Auxiliary of St. Luke's church. Every room downstairs was thrown open to accommodate the many guests. A feature of the event was a gipsy camp, where the tea cups were read, which gave much enjoyment to those who availed themselves of the reading. Mrs. P. Laing and Miss Florence Butcher had charge of the camp. The candy table was presided over by Miss Maude Stewart and Miss May Moore. Miss Hazel Hickey, assisted by several other young ladies, had charge of the refreshment table, where coffee, bread, butter and cake was served. A programme of great merit was also given. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt acted as chairman.

APPRECIATIVE ADDRESS TENDERED MR. J. COYLE BROWN

Who Has Retired as County School Inspector—Report of Good Roads Committee and Other Business of County Council.

At the afternoon session of the County Council yesterday, Mr. J. Coyl Brown, who recently retired from his position of School Inspector, was the recipient of an appreciative address from the Council. Mr. Brown, who received his appointment in 1871, has given faithful service to the county during the many years since that time.

THE ADDRESS.

J. C. Brown, Esq., Public School Inspector;

Dear Sir,—We the members of the County Council for the year 1909, to whom you have tendered your resignation as inspector, desire to express to you our feelings of regret that you should have seen fit to take this step a feeling of regret entertained not only by ourselves, but by our predecessors in office, and by the ratepayers of the county. Although compelled to accept your resignation in accordance with your expressed wishes, we would ask you to look back over the long period of time spent by you in the interests of the county, and to recall the expression of appreciation which have from time to time been voiced by other County Councils in the excellence of the work you have performed.

Your advice, not only in school matters, but on other matters of public importance, has been at all times readily offered and cheerfully received, and in many cases acted upon, and thereby much assistance has been rendered by you in the conduct of our county affairs.

Owing to your long tenor of office, covering a period of thirty-eight and a half years, the majority of those composed the County Council and the municipal councils of the county were pupils at county schools under your inspectorate, and we realize that you will still retain the interests of your pupils at heart and will respond to their solicitation for advice when approached for that purpose.

We trust that for many years to come, yourself and Mrs. Brown will enjoy health and happiness, and that you will still continue to favor future County Councils when in session, with a visit from you.

Dated Dec. 4th, 1909.

Signed in accordance with resolution of the Council.

R. N. SCOTT, Warden. ED. M. ELLIOTT, Clerk.

Mr. Brown, in reply, thanked the council for the kind sentiments toward him, embodied in the address. Going back to the time of his appointment, he compared the then existing conditions with those of today, and referred to several matters that might be remedied in the schools of the county. In conclusion he assured the members of the council that he would ever remain faithful to the interests of Peterborough, and any assistance or advice he might be called upon for would be cheerfully given.

GOOD ROADS COMMITTEE.

A report from the special committee appointed to attend the meeting of the Good Roads Association in Toronto on Wednesday, December 22, 1909, was presented as follows:—

In accordance with a resolution of the County Council, passed on Dec. 2nd, 1909, we attended a meeting held in the city of Toronto, on Wednesday, with the object of placing before the Provincial Government the advisability of increasing the present grant to roads under the county roads system, from 33 1-3 per cent., as it stands at present, to 50 per cent. of the entire cost.

After the meeting the deputation, which was a large one, waited on the honorable the Minister of Public Works, and placed the matter as strongly as possible before him, and while he manifested a strong desire to improve the road system throughout the province, yet he did not give us any assurance that the increase asked for would be made as he considered that it would be a very heavy burden to place upon the finances of the province at present, but led us to believe that in the near future the conditions would be complied with.

R. N. SCOTT,
F. HOBER,
M. PERDUE.
Committee.

THIS MORNING.

On motion, the new Peterborough County Inspector, Mr. Broderick, was asked to address the council. After being welcomed by the Warden, who set out the relations between himself and the county from his viewpoint, which was received by the Council with applause.

Moved by E. A. Tanner, seconded by J. Young, that Mr. Broderick's expenses be paid upon the presenting of an itemized statement at the close of the year.

Amendment:

Moved by W. Russell, seconded by W. Howden, that Mr. Broderick be paid $3.00 per school.—Withdrawn.

Amendment:

Moved by Mr. Shaw, seconded by Mr. Coben, that Mr. Broderick be paid the sum of $1.00 to cover expenses in connection with his duties re inspectorate.—Amendment carried.

Upon motion Messrs. Campbell, Cochrane and Henry addressed the council, asking for assistance to the Children's Aid Society.

The report was referred to the Finance Committee.

The communication re boundary bridge from Hastings County was read by the clerk.

Referred to Roads and Bridges Committee.

Musical "At Home" under auspices of Ladies' Auxiliary at Y. M. C. A. to-night at eight o'clock. The Ladies' Quartette of George Street Church. Mrs. Bissell will also take part, and Judge Huyoke will preside. Refreshments served. Admission 25 cents. 1d

JUST A PICTURE ON THE COVER

And the Song's Success is Assured if Lew Dockstader Has Been Singing it

"Lew Dockstader's Minstrels" occupies an unique position. Of course this celebrated aggregation is universally conceded the palm as the superior minstrel organization in America, but outside of that fact altogether it shares a place in public favor in all the large cities of the continent on a plane with the most widely known and pretentious musical plays.

The audience at a production of Dockstader's minstrels is invariably a representative one, not alone on account of the show's wonderfully original and very entertaining qualities, but also because the performance is always refined above criticism in every respect.

Lew Dockstader, the inimitable, has, by acclamation, an office of preeminence in the laugh trust which is quite as prominent as John D. Rockfeller's in the Standard Oil Syndicate, and there is a saying to the effect that if Dockstader's picture is on a song cover the writer and publisher are assured of a big harvest from the number, so generally and favorably known is the genial pioneer of the burnt cork art.

Dockstader always makes it a special point to carry the finest vocalists with [illegible] extended tour of Canada, has been particularly fortunate in the selection of his soloists, who are spoken of as exceptionally gifted, even for a Dockstader show. He also carries a specially selected orchestra of sixteen, and its playing of the accompaniments and overtures is a delight, both to the connoisseur of orchestral music and to the average auditor as well.

Dockstader's minstrels will be at the Grand on Thursday, February 3rd, and Peterborough is the smallest town being played in Canada, the only other one-night stands in the Dominion fortunate enough to secure this famous minstrel attraction being Kingston, Hamilton and London.

A DOG BY-LAW

Ald. Turner is getting busy in the preparation of a by-law to limit the privileges at present enjoyed by the dog population. We do not wish to create or originate a scare, but the condition of Western Ontario should be a warning to us here. A truly fearful state of affairs exists there. Rabies is rampant and the consequent damage and suffering inflicted upon man and beast deplorable. There are too many "wandering" dogs in this city. Irresponsible curs have too long held dangerous sway and Ald. Turner deserves the thanks of every mother in Peterborough for his vigilance and forethought and for his timely observance of conditions existing elsewhere.

THE COST OF LIVING

People talk more about the weather and things to eat than almost any other subject. There is reason for it. Atmospherical conditions and the menu for our three daily meals, or as many more as we can afford, have a great deal to do with the affairs of mortals. He is a lucky man in the days in which we are living, who can afford more than the regular or irregular three. Every day we hear about the increased cost of living. It is not a myth. It is something real. Everybody who eats is affected and the person who does not eat is in a condition where the cost of living or anything else does not concern him.

Here in Peterborough we have heard much lately about the increased cost of running a house, especially as regards the supplying of the "daily bread." Increased wages are demanded on every hand because the purchasing power of a dollar is constantly growing less. The effect is far-reaching. The situation is becoming more acute every day. People are asking when and where it is going to stop. The cause of the increase in the price of food-stuffs, like Alexander of old, seems to be seeking new fields to conquer. It is a question that demands not only immediate attention, but immediate action. That an inquiry into the situation is to be made by the Dominion Government will be good news to those who are affected in the wrong way—and they are the major portion of the population.

What is causing the higher prices? The condition is not local by any means. All Canada is affected and the United States has been wrestling with the problem for a longer time than Canada. Across the border the trusts and combines are blamed for the existing state of affairs, but in Canada little is heard about the creation of monopolies. At the present time a bill is before the House at Ottawa to provide legislation to keep the combines in check. It is regarded as a good measure as far as principle is concerned, although the details may be open to criticism.

As far as Ontario is concerned, it would appear that one of the reasons why the prices of food-stuffs have advanced is the failure of the farmers of Ontario to keep pace with the increased demand from the consuming public. While the blue books show that the farmers are making more money now than at any time in the past, they are not producing any more than they were ten years ago. For some reason or other farmers are unable to secure laborers and as a result they find great difficulty in working the land. Despite the cry of "Back to the land," the young men are flocking to the cities and to the towns. Then there is the great Canadian west where the land is fertile and cheap, and the opportunities appear to be greater than in the more conservative east. Deserted homesteads are not a rarity in many parts of this province. The young people are scattered wide and the parents have passed away. During the past ten years there has been a rapid increase in the class in the province that might be referred to as non-producers. The work of this class, while legitimate and in nearly every case necessary, does not add to the material output of the country. They are not producers. The farmer is a producer first, last and all the time, but at present he is not producing enough. Nearly every village, town and city in the province is growing, some of them slowly, but on the whole the tendency is in the line of advancement. Every man who leaves the country and settles in a village, town or city is putting the proportion that much more out of gear. The producing population is decreased by one of the non-producing population, in nearly every case, increased by that amount. Does this not make plain the reason why the prices of food-stuffs are constantly becoming higher? It will continue as long as the ratio of population in connection with the production of things to eat is being knocked out of proportion.

PETERBOROUGH DRAWN IN SECOND ROUND WITH KEENE

Winner Will Play Lindsay for the Possession of the District Cup—The Rinks and Scores.

As a result of yesterday's curling in the district cup competition Peterborough, Keene and Lindsay won from Port Hope, Cannington and Fenelon Falls, respectively and Peterborough is now drawn with Keene. The winner will meet Lindsay for the cup, they having drawn a bye. The locals and Lindsay won by substantial scores, but the Keene-Cannington teams were well matched and the scores correspondingly closer. The soft ice, which the players had to contend with, was a handicap, but better conditions prevail to-day, and the second round may be played.

The rinks and scores of yesterday were as follows:—

CHURCH LEAGUE GAMES WON BY ST. ANDREW'S AND ALL SAINTS'

Soft ice again prevailed at the Auditorium Rink last night, and the class of hockey put up by the church league teams was not of the best. Both contests were won by a single tally. St. Andrew's defeated Knox by 4—3 and All Saints' carried off the honors from George street by 2—1.

The two Presbyterian teams took the ice for the first game and at the end of the half each had counted twice. Sills, for St. Andrew's took the winning score towards the close of the game.

The teams were:—

St. Andrew's—4—Goal, Richardson; point, Clark; cover, Thompson; rover, Currie; centre, Rae; left Sills; right, Leitch.

The great defence work of All Saints and especially that of Staunton at point beat the Methodists in the second fixture. The George St. seven had a mortgage on the puck but couldn't connect with the Anglican net. The defence saved what appeared to be sure scores on several occasions. Campbell took the first tally on a long lift that rolled over the stick of Wade at point and passed the sleeping George St. goal minder. Number two came seven minutes before time was called, and with three minutes to play Sanderson beat Adamson for the Methodists' only score.

The teams were;

Amos McWilliams refereed both games with general satisfaction.

LINDSAY AND THE PETERS TO FIGHT IT OUT TO-NIGHT

Lindsay and Peterborough intermediates meet to-night at Brock street rink in the second O.H.A. game of the district, and as the result of the match will have a marked effect on the championship aspirations of the teams, the fur is likely to fly. This does not mean that rough house will prevail. On the contrary, both teams are playing clean hockey, as every player has been warned to stay on the ice all the time. If Lindsay wins to-night the team will be right in the running for the district championship, and a victory for the home team will give Peterborough a substantial lead. The Lindsay team will be stronger than the team the Peters beat in the Sougog town last Friday night. Burgess, of Fenelon Falls, has been secured to play cover point, and he is reputed to be a wonder. He is fast and a great check and the Lindsay fans expect that he will bolster up the defence in great shape. "Pacer" McDougall may be found at left wing, and if he is a better man than Cain the Peterborough defence will have a busy night. The Peterborough team should be able to go the pace all the time, as they have had plenty of practice. The forward line is working together nicely and the presence of Glover on the defence should steady that part of the team.

The game is called for 8.15 sharp, and judging from the interest in the game the rink will be packed. There will be a fine sheet of ice. The Lindsay players are confident that they can swamp Peterborough on hard ice, as they have one of the fastest forward lines in this part of the province. Blomfield and Stoddard can travel at a terrific pace.

The teams will line up as follows:—

PETERBOROUGH.

Derocher.
Glover.
McDougall.
Ray.
Campbell.

Dusty. —O— McMillan.

Cote. Cain or McDougall
Blomfield.
Stoddart.
Burgess.
Taylor or Gray.
Gamble.

LINDSAY.

The Lindsay team will arrive on a special train about 7.30 with three hundred noise-making Lindsay rooters.

LINDSAY TANKARD RINKS DEFEATED PETERBOROUGH

The Lindsay Warder says:—Joy reigned supreme in the hearts of every member of the Lindsay Curling Club last evening, when Lindsay's two tankard rinks won the championship of District No. 2 by defeating their old rivals, Peterborough, in the final game by 21 shots. The stuck Lindsay rinks are now in the finals of the Ontario Tankard competition (the blue ribbon of the curling world in Ontario), and will go to Toronto early next month to battle for the mug they have brought to Lindsay on five previous occasions. Yesterday's game was looked forward to with much interest by the members of the club and citizens of the town, for the simple reason that Lindsay and Peterborough were to battle once more for the honor of playing in the finals. These two clubs have battled for supremacy for almost a quarter of a century, Lindsay being successful almost every year. Strange to say, no matter how the draw was made Lindsay and Peterborough always appeared in the finals, each club easily defeating their opponents in the first and second rounds.

The Peterborough rinks took their defeat like true sports and congratulated the Lindsay players at the conclusion of the game, wishing them every success in the finals for the silver mug in Toronto. Too much praise cannot be given the Electric City players for the gentlemanly manner in which they played the game yesterday afternoon, every player on both sides being on the very best of terms during the entire game.

At the conclusion of the game three hearty cheers were given by the Peterborough players for the Lindsay club and the curling season of 1910 as far as Peterborough and Lindsay tankard rinks are concerned, was brought to a close.

THE GAME.

Peterborough presented two of their strongest rinks, skipped by George Giroux and "Jimmie" Connal, two of the best skips playing the game. Their rinks were just as strong as any rinks the Lindsay club will meet in the finals in Toronto, and if Lindsay outlook play the same game they did yesterday afternoon a sixth tankard will surely come to the banner curling town in Ontario.

The game commenced promptly at 2.30 o'clock, with Skip Flavelle playing Giroux and Skip Little playing Connal. It was one of the most sensational games ever played in Lindsay, and for the first half of the game things looked blue for the Lindsay rinks.

Lindsay rinks are noted for being great finishers, which they proved yesterday. They at all times get a poor start, but never quit, and the further they are down the better they seem to play. They have proved to be great finishers on several occasions and have won many games when they appeared to be hopelessly beaten.

It will be remembered that two years ago when playing the Rennies, of Toronto, in the finals for the tankard they were 18 shots down and only nine ends to play, but they curled that "never quit" game and won by four shots.

On the fifth end in yesterday's game Skips Flavelle and Little were three shots down. On the eighth end things were looking blue for Lindsay, for at this stage of the game they were eight shots down, and a few anxious moments were put in by the many spectators. On the ninth end matters took a change. Skip Little scored a four that looked as big as a house and from this on Skip Little scored every end, counting five twos, one three and two ones, winning by fourteen shots. From the ninth to the sixteenth end Lindsay scored 21 shots, while Peterborough did not touch the chalk.

While Skip Little and his men were running up a large score Skip Flavelle changed the game on Skip Giroux by playing on the outside of the rings and scoring 11 shots in seven ends, defeating the Peterborough skip by seven shots. After the ninth end the Lindsay rinks simply outplayed their opponents, and won on their merits, the final score being Lindsay 43, Peterborough 22.

The players on both Lindsay rinks played the best game of their lives, every man playing almost perfect, while Skips Flavelle and Little could draw to a quarter of an inch, take out a stone, or guard perfectly. The two skips were ably assisted by their third players, "Tim" Burke and "Larry" O'Connor, while second stones "Heck" Cuthbert and Mat Sisson were always on the job, outplaying their Peterborough friends. The leaders, Walter Reesor and Dick Butler, also played star games.

The Peterborough rinks curled well, especially Skips Giroux and Connal, who made several sensational shots that brought forth from the crowd rounds of applause.

Mr. J. M. Knowlson was the umpire, but he had nothing to do only look on, and during the first half of the game he spent an hour of unhappiness. The rinks:

HOCKEY

Lindsay Post:—To encourage the locals in wiping out the defeat sustained here on Friday evening last a special G.T.R. train will convey the Lindsay O.H.A. intermediate team to Peterborough to-morrow evening. The train will leave the Grand Trunk station at 6.45, returning the same evening. The tickets for the trip are being secured rapidly by the hockey fans, there being left out of five stores only three centres where the tickets can be purchased.—Benson House, Fobert's shoe store, and Gregory drug store.

A permit has been received by Sec. Burgess for "Bettie" Burgess of Penelon Falls, who will play cover point for the locals to-morrow evening.

The game will be a fast one and whoever wins will have to travel some. The locals are out to do the trick, even if it is on the Quakers' ice.

QUAKERS LOST TO ELECTRIC TEAM

Play Was Fast and Clean—C.G.E. Lead at Half Time and Were Ahead 6-4 at Finish

A big improvement was noticeable in the class of hockey and the conduct of the players in the C.G.E.-Quakers Mercantile League fixture at the Brock street rink last night. Bill Rose handled the bell, and kept the play clean and fast throughout. C. G.E. led at half time, 3—2, and won out 6—4.

The teams were;

C. G. E.		QUAKERS
Latimer	Goal	Callaghan
Ried	Point	Brown
Caniff	Cover	Moore
Clancy	Rover	Pratt
Elliott	Centre	Rightmeyer

LONGBOAT WON FROM SMALLWOOD

Pittsburg, Jan. 27.—Tom Longboat, sensational Canadian Indian runner, to night made the Welsh middle distance title holder, Percy Smallwood, look like a dirty duce in a clean deck, whom he defeated by more than three minutes in a 12-mile race, and lapped him four times on a seven-mile track. Smallwood beat Longboat a year ago in Philadelphia. Longboat's time was 1.8.37 1-2. Smallwood trailed along, crossing the finish in one hour and twelve minutes. It was Longboat from start to finish, the Indian sized up his competitor for the first six miles, trailing and dogging his footsteps. After the first half of the race had been run the Indian forged ahead and Smallwood peacefully slowed up, but showed his gameness by staying to the finish, evidently hoping for some unforseen circumstance that would put Longboat out of the running. In the last six miles Longboat lapped Smallwood at will, and could have cut minutes off the time had he been pressed. The race was for a $500 purse and a percentage of the gate receipts.

KEENE MAN IS PRIZE WINNER

In Standing Field Crop Competitions Exhibited at Ottawa Winter Fair

The grain from the Standing Field Crop Competition exhibited at the the Ottawa Winter Fair was of a high standard, and created favorable comment among the many farmers from different sections of Eastern Ontario who visited the exhibition. A portion of the grain which won prizes was retained by the Ontario Department of Agriculture to be used for experimental purposes by the agricultural specialists in different sections of the province. The balance is being shipped to the office of the Ontario Government in London, England, to be used for exhibition purposes. The grain which did not receive prizes was sold by public auction in the Howick Pavilion, Ottawa. Not since the inauguration of these Field Crop Competitions, three years ago, were such crowds in attendance, the bidding so spirited, or such splendid prices realized. The money received for this grain is being forwarded promptly to exhibitors. Mr. Eddy, of Ottawa, acted as judge, and appeared to give excellent satisfaction. The following is a list of the prize winners:—

1—Melville Trowin, Beckstock, oats.
2—T. Cossins, Whitby, oats.
3—John White, Beachburg, oats.
4—Peter Drummond, Keene, oats.
5—Andrew McKay, Woodville, oats.
6—W. J. Barber, Amelinsburg, oats.
7—Wm. Lewis, Dunsford, oats.
8—Jas. Leask, Taunton, oats.
9—Garfield Kennedy, Bobcaygeon, oats.
10—Thos. Cash, Bobcaygeon, oats.
1—David Malcolm, Newtleton, barley.

London must improve its jail or lose provincial grants.

There will be a recount of the local option vote in Dunwich.

CLAIM HAROLD ARMSTRONG NEVER RECEIVED MONEY

Ottawa Journal—With regard to the reported trouble in the Pontiac Hockey League, the Journal has written to Mr. W. H. Kenny, secretary of the Fort Coulonge Club, for a statement as to his side of the matter. In reply Mr. Kenny states that there is no professionalism in the Pontiac Hockey League, and the fact that there was a protest lodged against one of the Fort Coulonge players because he is an alleged pro. does not mean that the entire league is run on a money basis. Harold Armstrong, the player in question, has never received a cent for his services as a hockeyist, and while it is true that he competed with and against professionals, the offence took place over four years ago, Mr. Armstrong dropping out of hockey at the time.

Insurance Companies Lose About $125,000.00 by the Wreck at Spanish River

Double Liability for About Twenty-five Persons

A loss of somewhere in the neighbourhood of $125,000 is what the Accident Insurance Companies estimate the wreck at Spanish River bridge means to them.

They figure that about 25 of those who met death carried Accident Insurance, and the average insurance, according to the tables, is $5,000. In case of death in a railway disaster there is a double liability, making the figure $6,000, or $5,000 to be more conservative.

Their loss may total more than that, for the commercial travellers, a number of whom were killed, usually carry very heavy insurance. In addition, some of the companies make the policies payable on the death of the wife while travelling, though the policy is taken out in the husband's name. In such cases they pay the husband the same amount as they would have paid the wife were the husband killed.

We issue the BEST Accident and Sickness policy offered to the public.

NOTHING IS TOO GOOD FOR IRISH

Only Complete Home Rule Will Satisfy Them—Noted Author Tells of Emerald Isle's Troubles

New York, Jan. 26.—Only complete home rule will satisfy the Irish, according to Seumas MacManus, the noted Irish author, and he declares that if Premier Asquith proposes half-way measures they will be turned down by the new Irish representatives in the British Parliament.

Discussing "What's the Matter With Ireland?" in the February number of The Travel Magazine, MacManus will declare that the real trouble is maladministration by the English officials which can only be remedied by permitting the island to rule itself.

"The lord lieutenant draws twenty thousand pounds, or $100,000, annually for crossing the channel with his carpet bag and spending some tiresome days in Dublin Castle, signing his name to decrees doing Ireland to death," declares the noted author. And the tens of thousands of officials who spend their time putting these decrees into execution are salaried by the dying Irish nation with incomes that would make American grafters green with envy.

"The Irish taxation at the time of the union with England was less than ten shillings a head. Today, after forty years of parliamentary fighting for home rule, it is forty-four shillings a head. If we compare Ireland's taxation to-day with that of the other little nations of Europe, we find that the country, the poorest of them all, pays per head almost double as much as most of them.

"A shirt-making industry started in the north of Ireland was forced out of business because it would not pay tribute to the railways. Is it little wonder that the short-sighted policy leaves most Irish railways in the plight of paying their dividends in postage stamps?"

MacManus declares that instead of supporting 4,450,000, as at present, Ireland, if properly governed, and its industries given a chance to expand, is capable of supporting in comfort, 20,000,000 people.

DANGER IN DELAY

Kidney Diseases are Too Dangerous for Peterboro People to Neglect

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remdy, Booth's Kidney Pills, which have cured people right here in Petrborough.

Mrs. M. J. Cook, of 494 Aylmer street, Peterborough, Ont., says:—"I always find quick relief in Booth's Kidney Pills. They strengthen and relieve my back of a dull, heavy pain that settles in the small of it and extends into my shoulders. For years I had suffered with these symptoms of kidney trouble and could find no relief. I had frequent spells of dizziness and headaches. I was restless and weak and would often awake more tired than on going to bed. I never found relief for these painful and weakening symptoms of kidney trouble until I used Booth's Kidney Pills obtained at Wm. Madill's pharmacy. I have had little trouble since as I use Booth's Kidney Pills occasionally and they keep me in the best of health." Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The R. T. GRATIFYING PROGRESS AT KNOX CHTRCH

Reports Show Flourishing State of Finances—The Annual Meeting

The people of Knox church have every reason to congratulate themselves upon the splendid progress they made last year. The annual meeting Wednesday night brought out reports from all departments showing big advancements. A large number were present and took a keen interest in the proceedings. After devotional exercises Rev. Mr. Keith took the chair, and one of the most important things the congregation did was to increase his salary $100 a year.

Reports were presented by the following organizations:—

The three mission circles.

Mission Band, showing receipts of $8.29.

Boys' Club, with a membership of 90, raised $47.34, and have on hand $26.84.

The Young People's Guild raised $155.02, and have on hand $12.85.

The W.F.M.S. raised $52.72

Ladies' Aid raised $235.

The Building Committee presented a statement of the finances in connection with the work done on the new church last year.

The Board of Managers showed total receipts of $2,102, and they have a balance on hand of $342.27.

The missionary treasurer showed receipts of $305.68. This sum is distributed among the various societies of the church.

The Board of Managers reported as follows:—

This, the third annual report of the Board, is one of prosperity, progress and encouragement. The year has been characteristic of activity in connection with the management, twenty-eight meetings being held for various purposes, not including those of the Building Department.

The auditors' and treasurer's report shows the finances in a satisfactory condition, with a surplus balance. The majority of the members and adherents have now adopted the duplex envelopes for contributing, and this system has proved very satisfactory. One new manager has been added to the Board during the year, namely, Mr. R. F. McWilliams. Three of the managers retire at this time, namely, Mr. D. Hamilton, Mr. W. Galley and W. Menzies, being eligible for re-election.

The various organizations of the church have been working in harmony throughout the year, and the managers wish to express their appreciation and gratitude for their assistance and hearty co-operation.

J. W. Byers, secretary of the Board of Managers.

The report of the Sunday school was presented as follows:—

On behalf of your Sunday school I beg to report that there has been another year of marked success and growth. The attendance is now so large as to overcrowd the available space, and additional accommodation in one way will be necessary before the present year is ended. The number of classes has increased from nineteen to twenty-five and the number on roll is now over three hundred. The average attendance for the respective quarters of 1909 was 210, 174, 141 and 211, while during the last three Sundays it averaged 248. There has also been a marked increase in the givings. During the past year the school has undertaken the maintenance of a scholar at Point aux Trembles school, and although this meant an increase of $50.00 it has been successfully met and the year closed without any debt.

A particularly noteworthy feature at the school is the interest and attendance of the teachers, which has averaged eighteen out of nineteen. The year has been marked by the retirement of Sheriff Hall, who has been superintendent from the organization of the school. The Sheriff's resignation was most unwillingly accepted, after having been tendered several times, and we desire to put on record our high appreciation of the valuable services which he has rendered to this school. As a mark of our appreciation the teachers and officers have asked him to accept the position of honorary superintendent and to retain his association with the school. The vacancy caused by the resignation of Sheriff Hall was filled by the appointment of R. F. McWilliams as superintendent, and Mr. A. S. Sandelson as assistant superintendent.

The report of the session was presented by Mr. Kennedy and he called attention to the cause for rejoicing in the increased givings to the missions and to the other schemes of the church. The use of the Duplex envelopes for contributing purposes was urged upon the members.

He referred to the benefits of the special services held during the year. 76 additions were made on the roll, 36 by certificate and 40 on profession of faith, 34 of which are connected with the Sabbath school.

The increase in the attendance at the public services was commented on and the progress of the choir noted. The congregation was urged to be more faithful in attendance at the mid-week services.

OFFICERS.

Managers—B. Hamilton, W. Menzie and K. Denoon.
Chairman and treasurer to be elected by the Board.
Missionary Treasurer—Wm. Watt.
Charity Board—F. D. Armstrong.
Hospital Board—Dr. McCulloch.
Auditors—Wm. Watt, W. J. Byers.

Police Spoil Cock-fight.

London, Jan. 28.—One of the biggest cock-fights ever held in Ontario was arranged to come off in Stratford Wednesday night between Brantford and Toronto owners for championship. The police, however, got wind of the affair and prevented it. Many crates of birds are at the express office in Stratford. A big crowd of sports from London, Hamilton and Toronto were in the city.

Police Didn't Give a Warning.

Montreal, Jan. 28.—Householders to the number of 130 were up before Recorder Dupuis yesterday for having slippery sidewalks. They complained that they had not been notified, and the police said they had orders from the chief to take action without notifying offenders. The recorder says this was not just and dismissed the cases, scoring the police for their course.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

The Need of the Hour

To the Editor of the Review:

Dear Sir,—The recent campaign for bar-room abolition in this city while not resulting in all that was hoped for by the temperance people, has disclosed to them nevertheless some encouraging facts that should be kept clearly in mind, as they very greatly improve the fighting ground for succeeding struggles. One thing made clear is the existence in Peterborough of a preponderating sentiment in favor of the total suppression of the drink traffic; a sentiment, which if properly encouraged, will unquestionably crystalize sufficiently in the near future, to put an end wholly to the traffic. The freely expressed thought of our most discerning citizens is—"the bar is bound to go." Even opponents of the reform, many of them, reluctantly admit that this is inevitable. Scores of men are more fully alive to the situation than our worthy city councillors, as may be readily seen by reading just a little between the lines of their discussions. And many think they could have in justice to the majority, gone farther than they have in the way of license reduction. Still, there is little use in complaining, since the viewpoints of men are bound to differ, rather let their action be commended as being in the right direction, and the best possible encouragement be given to further action upon the same lines.

Now, sir, my object in writing this letter is to urge what appears to me to be the duty of the hour, namely, to stimulate the sentiment which has so unmistakeably expressed itself at the polls and to keep that sentiment or conviction (it may more properly be called) awakened and roused, so that whenever the need and opportunity arise, it may easily and quickly crystallize itself in definite action. I feel sure that every interested person will admit the importance of this, and to my certain knowledge, many leading citizens are anxiously expressing the hope that the most effective means possible may be employed to this end. The question is, how may it best be done?

Let it be assumed that there is no other thought concerning the City Temperance and Reform League, than that it will continue to exist and do its well begun work. But apart from its executive body, there does not appear much probability of the League existing as a continuously effective organization, unless there be an actually enrolled membership, definitely pledged to a purpose, and held together by meetings more or less regularly held.

The W.C.T.U. is a valuable adjunct to the organized temperance work of any place. And the noble women of the union, encouraged by recent events, should vigorously campaign among their sisters with a view to adding still greater strength and effectiveness to their organization.

The T.A.S. will continue to flourish. And Protestant people will, I am sure, wish devoutly that it may as a temperance society, grow in both stature and character, and sir, I think I can foresee the time when the T.A.S. will so alter its face towards the question of a licensed liquor traffic in the city that in the next local option campaign it will present an unbroken front in favor of the measure.

There is another temperance organization in Peterborough to which the eyes of many are beginning to turn, as one possessed of certain inherent qualities that might make it a much greater force than it has been hitherto. I refer to the Royal Templars of Temperance, a society which in many places of lesser size than this, enrolls men and women by hundreds, upon a basis at once tangible and commendable, and which has, in not a few villages and towns, proven itself the greatest factor in successful local option contests.

The popular thought of the R.T. of T. has not done it justice. It has been thought of as either one of the many fraternal insurance societies, bidding for its share of this particular class of business in the community, or as a society characterized by a plethora of ritual and paraphrenalia, when it is neither the one nor the other necessarily. It is just a sensible temperance organization, with a creed which demands in the "interests of humanity and righteousness, the home and the nation," the "destruction of the traffic in strong drink."

It has insurance for such as may wish it. It has a ritual also, but so exceedingly simple and elastic that any tedium which might be experienced therefrom, can be reduced to a minimum. Prominent business men have since January 3rd made inquiries of the undersigned and other members of the local "Council" concerning the possibilities of this organization as a basis on which the temperance people of the city might be gathered, and some have expressed their intention of enrolling among the membership and urge that a general movement of this sort be encouraged at once.

I understand that speaking at the T.A.S. anniversary the other day a leading Protestant of the city expressed the hope that he might someday have an opportunity of addressing a Protestant temperance organization in Peterborough of at least equal strength to that society. Now, I am asking, Mr. Editor, through your valued paper, why may this thought not realized? And I am suggesting that unless the city league be put into some more tangible form, the existing Royal Templar organization be taken hold of in a way suitable to the object had in view. In doing this I do not suggest that the City League shall be supplanted, for it is the best, and most representative body to lead the attack in any civic campaign such as we have recently had. Let the League exist by all means, and let all other organizations rally upon its common platform when the fighting time comes.

What is here written, is not with a view to booming a pet society, but rather to indicate a method of realizing what many citizens feel would be a most desirable condition in the history of temperance work in Peterborough.

Apologizing for the space I have taken, and thanking you, sir, I remain

Yours very sincerely,
CHARLES H. COON,
S. C. of T. T. of T.

APPOINTMENT OF ASSESSORS

Will Come up Before City Council at An Early Date

The appointment of the assessors for 1910 is a matter that will come up befor ethe City Council at an early date. Judging from the sentiment of the council last year the appointments will be of a permanent nature, but whether the same men will be appointed as were named last year is a matter over which there is some speculating. The name of a well known citizen was mentioned to the Review to-day as a likely man for one of the positions. "He can have it if he wants it," was the way the Review's informant put it.

GIVEN HIS LIBERTY

(Special to the Review.

Toronto, Jan. 28.—R. S. Perry, who has been in Peterborough jail on a supposition that he was about to abscond, leaving unpaid some alimony due to his wife in Lacombe, Alberta, was ordered this morning by Mr. Justice Clute to be set at liberty.

Perry, the man mentioned in the above despatch, was apprehended by Deputy-Sheriff Hall the early part of this month at his boarding house. He had come to the city from the west on a visit, and his family, it is said, refused to allow him in their home. His intention was to return to the west, when arrested on complaint of his wife. Deputy-Sheriff Hall received the official order for Perry's release at noon, and he will be released to-day. He is well advanced in years.

Mr. J. W. Bennett, of Bennett and Goodwill, has been acting for Perry.

ANNIVERSARY AT MILLBROOK

Rev. Mr. Pogue Preached and Mr. Mulligan Led the Singing

The Presbyterians were unfortunate in having a stormy day for their anniversary, which thinned the congregation in the morning very much, but the church was filled to its capacity at the evening service. Rev. Mr. Pogue, of St. Paul's church, Peterborough, was the special preacher for the day, and his sermons were very appropriate and delivered with much earnestness and force. His preaching is evangelical and exceedingly well reasoned out, and strikes at the root of the matter he presents. He is undoubtedly a preacher who expects and gets results from his message.

Mr. Mulligan, the soloist, also from Peterborough, delighted the congregation with his selections. Mr. Mulligan gave an interesting address to the Sunday school and contributed a solo in connection with his address, entitled "My Mother's Bible," and by request sang the "Ninety and Nine," which were very much appreciated.—Millbrook Reporter.

W. K. Mackenzie, of Chippewa, is warden of Welland.

EXCELLENT ISSUE OF "THE ECHOES"

January Number of Collegiate Organ Contains Many Interesting Articles

The Collegiate Echoes for January is a highly creditable and interesting issue. The various articles in the number are timely and attractively written and excellent editorial judgment is shown in the arrangement of the matter generally.

Besides being of special interest to the present pupils and the old boys and old girls of the Collegiate—if the latter term may be used with propriety—the issue should be of considerable general interest.

The opening article is a splendidly written valedictory address by Gertrude Tenney. Mr. Cecil Arnott has contributed an interesting review of the cadet's life and the routine at R. M.C. and Miss Maynie Armstrong gives a bright account of the second annual commencement exercises of the school. The subjects of boys' athletics and girls' athletics are ably dealt with by Mabel Patterson and Garnet Rankin, respectively. Margaret Edwards very capably sums up current events. Jas. Eyres has a lengthy and very readable article on woman suffrage, and Wilbel Blewett gives a concise but comprehensive report of the Philomathean Society's meeting of December 6th.

The humorous clippings have been judiciously selected and the editorials are timely and well written.

NEGRO WHO HAD SMALLPOX CLEARED COURT

Washington, Ga., Jan. 28.—Noting the unusual appearance of the face of C. Y. Bullard, a negro, arraigned before him yesterday on a misdemeanor charge, Judge Wm. Wynne of this county, asked the county physician to examine him. "Smallpox," said the physician. Judge, court officer and spectators made for doors and windows, leaving the negro in complete possession of the court-room. An immune officer later took him to jail, where he is now the sole prisoner.

PRESBYTERIANS OF NORWOOD WILL EXTEND A CALL

Norwood, Jan. 27.—At a largely attended meeting of the congregation of the Presbyterian church in this village, held on Tuesday evening, it was decided to extend a call to Mr. M. Cree, B.A., of Knox College, Toronto, to the pastorate of the church, which was rendered vacant by the removal of the Rev. G. A. MacLennan, B.A., to Chateauguay, Quebec, in October last. The Rev. D. A. Thompson, of Hastings, interim moderator, presided.

The call, which was most unanimous, will be formally presented to him on his graduation in March. In the meantime the pulpit will be supplied by the moderator, Rev. Mr. Thompson, Mr. Cree, who is an ex-high school master, was for some time in charge of the Chalmer's Church mission in the city of Hamilton, and later was assistant pastor of Chalmer's Church, Toronto.

BANQUETTERS TO ASSEMBLE EARLY

The secretary of the Canadian Club, Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, announces that members of the club are requested to assemble at the National Hotel to-morrow evening, on the occasion of the banquet, and of the address by Dr. Macdonald, not later than 8.15 as it is probable that many who are not members will apply for tickets after that hour. A very large number of tickets has been sold and Dr. Macdonald's visit will be the event of the season. The subject of his address is "Some lessons to be learned by Canada from Britain," and the major part of it has not yet appeared in print.

BY-LAW TO REDUCE LICENSES WILL BE PASSED TO-NIGHT

The by-law to reduce the number of hotel licenses in Peterborough to thirteen will likely be passed by the city council to-night. A special meeting will be held and several important matters are to come up. The Quaker Oats Company's proposition in regard to their new warehouse will also be considered and will likely be settled.

OBITUARY

IRENE SHEPHERD

Irene Shepherd, the three-year-old, and eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Shepherd, 153 Hart avenue, passed away this afternoon. The many friends of the bereaved parents will sympathize with them in the great loss they have sustained.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock to Little Lake cemetery.

M'PHERSON WOMAN TELLS THE REVIEW OF ASSAULT

BOTH LADIES STRUCK ON HEAD WITH AN AXE

"The Man Rushed Into House Like a Flash and Hit my Sister With Axe, Swinging it With Both Hands."

ONE WOMAN'S CONDITION CRITICAL

"Then He Hit Me on Head and the Blood Spouted as I Ran for Help"---Younger Sister Thus Describes the Assault---Story of the Capture.

From Staff Correspondent.

Norwood, Ont., Jan. 29.—In an exclusive full statement to the Review's staff correspondent, who is in Norwood this afternoon, Miss Susanna McPherson, who, with her sister, was a victim of the vicious assault yesterday morning, two miles and a half from Norwood on the Belmont or Havelock road, Miss McPherson said the following, which is given verbatim in her own language:—

"He, the assailant, called here yesterday morning about eleven o'clock and asked me if I knew a man working around here by the name of Thompson. I told him to go up to Mr. Burgess' or Mr. Elliott's, they live near here, and they would tell him if the man, who he said was his brother, was working among the farmers. He went a piece of the way and came back a little later and said he met a man chopping wood, and gave a description of the man, and from the description I thought it would be Mr. John Burgess, but I found out later he was not in the woods at all. It was ten minutes after eleven when he came back, and he asked for his dinner. I said I was not in the habit of giving dinners. He said he wanted to find his brother to take him back to Scotland. He said he was from Glasgow. He said his brother had been out from Glasgow two years and a half, and the last place he was working was forty miles from here. His brother left there last September, he said. He said his brother had been working at that place. He did not mention the name of it, and he said when he went there Brown told him his brother had gone to Havelock district. I got him a dinner. This was a few minutes after he came, at ten minutes after eleven, exactly. After dinner he said to my sister and me, 'If you like I will stop and cut your wood.' I said 'No, I have plenty of stove wood and other wood too.' He asked me the charge for the dinner, and I said "Whatever you like.' He said 'Whatever you like,' and I said 'ten cents,' and he laid it on the table. He stood there a minute or two and asked me the way to Havelock by road, saying he came up from Havelock on the train and did not know the way back by the country road. I told him to follow the wires to Havelock. About five minutes or so after he left he came in again. The axe was just outside the door, by the stove-wood pile, in front of the house. He came running in like a flash. My sister was sitting at the head of the table, right by the door. He struck her from behind on the head with the axe. I can't say whether it was the front or back of the axe he hit her with. He just struck her full might, and had hold of the axe with both hands. He did not speak a word. Right after he struck her he struck at me. I was sitting at the table too. I threw up my arms to defend myself."

"I warded the blow with my arm," she continued, "but the axe hit me on the top and front of the head. The blood spurted out of my head and I ran for help. My sister did not fall off the chair, but she sat there senseless by the blow she received, and couldn't move head nor foot. He threw the axe out of the door, and ran as hard as he could go towards Norwood. I don't think he went very far on that road. I ran out to go to my sister's, Mrs. Graham, who lives behind me on the Belmont road, and Mrs. Graham's daughter heard me yelling."

Here Mr. Graham's daughter, Mrs. Hague, volunteered an explanation. She said that her aunt came towards their place, which is only a couple of hundred yards away. The old lady had gone about half the distance when Mrs. Hague met her. The old lady said that a man had come into the house and murdered them both. Mrs. Hague told her father of the assault and ran to a neighbor's, Mr. Joe Fleming, at whose place a wood-sawing bee was being held, and one of the men there, Douglas Baker, ran to his own home, about half a mile from Fleming's, and drove to Norwood for medical aid. Drs. Pettigrew and Button answered the summons and dressed the wounds of the two ladies. The wounds had bled copiously, and there was much blood on the floor of the house. In the meantime, the neighbors gathered in large numbers, but were unable to render any assistance whatever. The injuries were so serious that they were nonplussed as to what to do to render effective assistance. Mrs. Hague ran to Mr. John Rorabeck's farm, the next place to the McPherson's and in the direction of Norwood. Mr. Rorabeck ran over to the railroad track and towards Havelock on the track. He got Messrs. Tom Stark and Richard Levey, who drove along the track to join him in the chase. They went on to where the section men were eating. They had not noticed the man pass, but the section men and the other three men took a hand-car and sailed along the track at full speed in the direction of Havelock, which is six miles from Norwood. The fugitive was soon overtaken, and when he sighted his pursuers he jumped into the woods at the side of the track. After he did this a section of the posse kept guard at the woods and another division of the party went on to Havelock to get the constable. The hunted youth came out of the woods and was chased again at close quarters, pulling a revolver and threatened to shoot his pursuers. About a quarter of a mile from Havelock Constable Bennett, of Havelock, appeared on the scene, and after he threatened to use his own revolver, the culprit submitted to arrest.

Last night about eleven o'clock last night County Constable Cochrane and Constable Bennett, of Havelock, accompanied by Mr. W. Matheson, J. to the little home of the Miss McPhersons for the home of having him identified. He was confronted by Miss Susanna McPherson, the less seriously injured of the two, and gave every evident signs of disquietude, his gaze being shifting and his manner indicating that he realized his cowardly position.

"How could you do it?" said Miss McPherson, "after me being so good to you?"

The prisoner volunteered no answer. Miss McPherson had not the slightest difficulty in identifying the accused as her assailant. Mr. Mathewson took down Miss McPherson's statement in connection with the attack.

The assault, which was one of the most despicable in the history of criminal annals of the Dominion, was apparently entirely unprovoked.

"We lived here forty years this fall," said Miss McPherson to the Review reporter. The residents of Norwood and vicinity say the two sisters are most estimable old ladies, who have made their living on their little plot about one acre, probably, by knitting and raising fowl. The whole country is incensed beyond expression at the dastardly and inhuman outrage and when the criminal brute, who gives his name as Henderson, was arrested he was fortunate to escape summary maltreatment from the angry capters. If the crime had been committed in the Southern States, where the people are so impulsive as to make out short order punishment, a charred body or a dangling bullet-riddled body would probably have told about the end of Henderson. Henderson came to Norwood Tuesday night and registered at the Norwood Hotel as Charles Henderson, Booga Kari, West Brisbane, Australia, and spoke with an English accent. To the Review this morning Mr. Killoran and others said he acted in a rational matter, but talked somewhat bradadociously of Australia and flourished a 32 calibre revolver with the cool carelessness of a cowboy. He said he had a license for the revolver and stated it was a small matter to shoot a man in Australia. At the residence of Mr. Albert Cole on Thursday evening he offered to throw a coin up in the air and hit it with a bullet as it spun, but Mr. Cole assured him that the skilful demonstration could be left for a more suitable place. At 10.30 on Friday morning he left the hotel without settling his bill of $2.50 and is also suspected of the theft of $1.50 from the room of Mr. James Ross.

CITY OF PARIS IS NEARLY CUT OFF

Wires Are Down, Telephone is Useless, and Mails Are Uncertain—Sick in Hospitals Are Taken to Places of Safety in Boats.

Paris, Jan. 29.—An agonizing cry goes up from the people of Paris today, "Will the end ever come?" they are asking.

After a slow but steady rise of the flood waters throughout the day, the situation greatly improved between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning. This, in part, is attributed to the change in the weather. Suddenly the skies cleared and a full moon burst out. The temperature dropped, and the wind veered to the eastward. The officials are convinced that the waters will soon begin to recede.

The water has begun to fall in all the affluents of the Seine above Paris, but the passage through the city is clogged by bridges and an immense accumulation of drift, and the seething waters hourly are spreading over new acres. Choked underground rivers and sewers are bursting their confines and playing havoc with the streets, swamping more cellars and threatening more foundations of buildings.

Several hospitals are in a dreadful plight, water having reached their cellars and quenched the fires in the furnaces. Four hundred patients were hurriedly removed in ambulances from the Hospital de la Salpetriere to the Hospital Boucicault. Their rescue was dramatic. Some were dying and aid came to them in the nick of time. The hospital already was isolated, and a new rush of water threatened to level it.

At this moment the tireless prefect of police, M. Lepine, arrived and sent out a score of policemen on bicycles to summon ambulances and boats and additional police and soldiers.

While some of the soldiers were laying pontoons, others lifted out patients from the hospital. Two hundred were saved in boats while the other two hundred were carried across the pontoons on the backs of the soldiers.

A story of the details of the greatest flood that has swept Paris in years would simply be a repetition of what has gone before. To-day the city presents a weird spectacle, the soldiers, sailors, firemen and police hastily constructing temporary walls in an endeavor to keep out the invading floods, while pickets patrol those sections of the city which were lunged in darkness last night by the wasting of the gas mains and the stoppage of the electric lighting plants.

The situation in the Place de l'Opera to-day is grave. The entire territory has been roped off as unsafe. It is said also that the new Equitable Life Assurance building is in danger of collapse.

French stocks averaged a loss of thirty franc the last week. The subway shares dropped 60 francs, and all industrials were off, but considering the extent of the disaster, the drops are hardly as great as were anticipated.

A touching evidence of the conditions above the city came yesterday in the shape of an urgent appeal from Charenton for food and fresh clothing for two thousand babies, rescued at Alfortville and Ivry, and who have been without clothing for four days.

Yesterday's papers are filled with pages of pitiful and terrifying details. War would hardly play such havoc. The City of Light has become a City of Slime, filled with muddy waters. Business is almost at a standstill, and the hotels are crowded with persons who have fled from inundated houses.

The prices of necessities are advancing by leaps and bounds as the paralysis of transportation facilities entering the city extends. Within the city there is practically no means of transportation, except by cabs and taxicabs, the owners of which charge fabulous prices.

Disaster followed disaster during the day. A gaping chasm opened in the lower Champs Elysees, engulfing a cart and two men. One of the men was rescued but the other with the horse was swept away to his death.

The devastation has now penetrated the very heart of Paris, the gorged rivers and sewers underneath literally blowing up the streets and the area of the surface overflowed by the water of the Seine had been doubled yesterday. Twelve of the twenty-five bridges over the river have been closed, and the quays on either side from one end of the city to the other, are either inundated or have been roped off as unsafe.

The Esplanade Des Invalides is a sheet of water. The Turgid flood has crept back almost to the Jardin du Luxembourg on its left bank, and invaded the Place de la Concord which was closed and guarded by soldiers, and the lower Champs Elysees on the right bank.

The Palais de Glace and other pleasure resorts and restaurants are surrounded, even the Place de l'Opera at the core of the city threatens to sink to the subway beneath.

The sewers with which the foundation of Paris is honeycombed have complicated and added to recent flood disasters. The main sewers are eighteen feet in diameter and the total length of this network of drains is 900 miles. Under flood pressure these vast tunnels burst and frequently undermined the foundations of the buildings. As these tubes also contain water conduits, gas pipes, telegraph, telephone and power wires as well as the pneumatic postal tubes the effects of a bursting sewer are widespread and serious.

The subways opened in 1900 furnish further underground avenues for the flood. The main subway line runs east and west through the centre of the city from the Porte de Vincennes to Porte Maillot, a distance of seven miles.

London Fund For French Sufferers

London, Jan. 29.—Sir John Knill Lord Mayor of London, yesterday opened a Mansion House fund for the relief of the flood sufferers in France.

MEAT PRICES GOING DOWN IN BOSTON

Boston, Jan. 29.—The agitation against the high cost of food has begun to show results in Boston, a general decline in the prices of meat occurring in the markets. Retail prices have fallen from 2 to 4 cents a pound on the higher grades of meat.

More beef is being shipped to Europe on account of the boycott. Two cattle boats, which sailed from this port for England Thursday, each had steers aboard considerably in excess of the number originally booked. Another steamer sailed yesterday also with a great herd under the decks.

Wives Are to Blame.

New York, Jan. 29.—James J. Hill, one of the first persons to issue a warning against national extravagance and its reflection in the advanced cost of living, said yesterday that half the problem lies in the discretion of the housewife.

"If a housekeeper," said Mr. Hill. "Instead of standing in front of a telephone to order the family supplies, would go to the market and learn what foods are cheap, and what are dear, there would be less of this kind of talk. The high cost of living is the cost of living high."

BRITISH TORPEDO BOAT IS ASHORE

Dover, Eng., Jan. 29.—Fifty-three officers and men were saved from the British torpedo boat destroyer Eden yesterday by means of the breeches buoy.

The Eden broke her moorings during a gale in the channel Wednesday night and was driven ashore off this place.

SACRIFICE OF A HUSBAND

New York, Jan. 29.—In a written statement, witnessed by the German consul here, Karl Jorn, the German tenor, made public last night the terms of his separation from his wife. Like Ruskin, he surrenders his wife to the man she loves.

"I have agreed," said Jorn, "that she get a divorce so that she can marry the man of her choice. Furthermore, I have bound myself to pay her $25,000 in cash and $1,000 a year until she is married again. To our three children I give $1,000 a year for the rest of their lives. I gave my wife all the money I had before she sailed and I did not even have 50 cents to buy her a bunch of violets at the pier."

Jorn kissed his wife affectionately before she sailed last week for Germany. He met her when a young man struggling for success and their life until recently has been very happy together.

HAMILTON WOMAN ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Hamilton, Jan. 29.—Because of ill-health Mrs. Stewart, 23 Chestnut avenue, wife of Robert Stewart, caretaker of the Barton street school, tried to end her life yesterday. While alone in the house she slashed her throat with a razor and then set fire to her clothing. When a neighbor called, the wounded woman opened the door, though her throat was gashed and she was suffering from horrible burns.

Fatal Fire.

Amherst, N.S., Jan. 29.—Fire in the Black Printing Co. building yesterday morning caused a loss of $30,000, with $20,000 insurance. Mrs. W. Oulson, 90 years of age, perished before assistance reached her.

BUDGET IN THE PROVINCIAL HOUSE ON THURSDAY NEXT

Hon. Col. Matheson Promises That Statement—Offi cia Bodies all Over the World Have Come to the Rescue of Ontario's Legislative Library.

Toronto, Jan. 29. Hon. Col. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, announced at the close of yesterday's session of the Legislature that he hoped to be able to bring down the budget on Thursday, if all the estimates were ready by that time.

In bringing forward a motion expressing grateful satisfaction at the donations which have been made to the province towards the reconstruction of the library, the treasurer mentioned that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had generously given instructions to all the departments of the Dominion Government to do all in their power to assist the province. The Dominion had contributed 700 volumes. Sir Lomer Gouin had also been most kind. Books had also been contributed by the Government of the United States and quite a number of the State Governments, by the Government of Victoria, Australia, and by many private persons. Only a few days ago he had received a generous offer from a former member of the House, Hon. Richard Harcourt. The Imperial Government was also prepared to assist. He expressed his conviction that in a few years the House would have a better library than ever before. About 1,500 volumes in all had been presented up to date.

A message was received from the Lieutenant-Governor asking that supplementary estimates be passed to cover $450,000 for capital account on the construction of the Hydro-Electric power transmission line from Niagara Falls, and $28,000 for the construction of colonization roads, for both of which warrants had already been issued. The House went into committee on these and the committees reported progress.

The second statute revision bills, introduced Thursday, received their second reading and will go to committee Tuesday.

The House went into committee on a number of other revision bills. In the consideration of a bill of Hon. J. J. Foy "respecting limited partnerships," W. F. Nickle thought that companies should be required to specify the location of their "head office" rather than their "principal place of business." The latter term might allow them to specify one place one year and another the next. The Attorney-General held to the opinion that no question could arise as to the synonymity of the terms.

The House ratified the contracts with Wm. Briggs of the Methodist Book Room for printing and binding, and with E. Harcourt Co., Ltd., for binding for the Legislature.

The special committee to strike the standing committees was appointed by the House.

Bills which got their first reading were: "An act respecting limitations of actions."—Sir James Whitney.

CONMEE'S BILL IS TALKED OUT OF HOUSE OF COMMONS

On the second reading of the bill to incorporate the International Waterways Canal & Construction Co. Hon. Wm. Pugsley protested strongly against this bill, which is promoted by Conmee. He said he had received a communication from the City of Edmonton urging that the bill be not allowed to pass, as it gave exclusive rights and control over the Saskatchewan River.

Mr. Pugsley argued that it would be a grave mistake to give to a private company such extensive powers as those sought by the bill. It would give the company control of the waters of Rainy Lake, Rainy River, Lake Winnipeg, Lake Manitoba and up to the Saskatchewan.

Mr. Conmee said there was nothing in the bill beyond the usual powers sought.

Dr. Sproule: "Yes, always sought by you."

Mr. Emmerson: "Is there anything you have left out?"

Mr. Conmee explained that the object of the bill was to make a navigable waterway from Rainy River to the Saskatchewan. It was not proposed to have special control over navigable streams.

Dr. Sproule said that, having regard to the policy, Federal and Provincial regarding water powers, it was contrary to the public interest to hand over these national assets to private individuals.

W. S. Middlebro, and A. C. Boyce declared that the bill sought to acquire the powers struck out of the Ontario and Michigan power bill last session. Mr. Pugsley again spoke against the bill and the proposed measure was talked out.

On the motion to go into supply in the House yesterday afternoon, Hugh Guthrie (South Wellington) asked what attitude the Government proposed to take regarding the question of technical education, his resolution for the appointment of a commission of enquiry being still on the order paper.

Hon. Mackenzie King had begun to discuss the question, when the leader of the Opposition rose to a point of order, reminding the House that the information apparently about to be given might provoke discussion which would be very much out of order.

Hon. Sydney Fisher said the Government proposed to give an early opportunity to discuss the question.

Mr. King began to say that he had sent a letter to each of the Premiers of the provinces regarding the matter of technical education, and the advisability of the appointment of a royal commission to enquire into it when A. C. Boyce (West Algoma) objected, and the Speaker ruled Mr King out of order.

George H. Bradbury (Selkirk), in the House last night, reviewed the report of the Manitoba Fisheries Commission, declaring that it had born out statements he had previously made on the floor. It was absolutely necessary to take action this summer in order to preserve the fish of Lake Du Bonnet, the breeding ground of sturgeon. In the last year two and a half million pounds of white fish were taken out of Lake Winnipeg. If the catch was restricted to two and a half millions this year, no great harm would have been accomplished before the commission had finished its work, but the great danger was that if there was no restriction, the great plant now being got ready would treble the catch, and great harm would be done.

A great American combination was destroying the fisheries of the Canadian west, and all the Canadian fish caught in American nets were allowed to go into the United States free of duty, but Canadian fish caught in Canadian nets had to pay one-quarter of a cent per pound duty. This gave the market into the hands of the Booth Fish Packing Co. of Chicago, operating in Canada as the Dominion Fish Co.

The general plans of the Government regarding the naval policy which were to be explained on Tuesday next, will not be laid before the House until about a fortnight hence.

Hon. Mr. Graham will make his Intercolonial Railway statement on Tuesday and the discussion will probably occupy the two other Government days, Thursday and Friday. The Intercolonial statement is being hastened in order to relieve Mr. Butler, the Deputy Minister, of his official duties, so that he will be free to join the Dominion Coal Co.

FLOORS FALL IN TORONTO BUILDING

Toronto, Jan. 29.—With a tremendous roar, three floors of the old Savoy building at the northwest corner of Adelaide and Yonge streets, deprived of the support of the inner walls while being remodelled, collapsed shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon. The great timbers and part of the heavy brick outer walls fell inward upon the fifty workmen engaged in the basement of the building.

Fortunately the noise of the breaking away was heard before the mass dropped, and the men were able to seek safety close to the walls. Only one was hurt, and he so slightly that he was able to continue at work.

SOCIETY WOMEN ACT AS NURSES

New York, Jan. 29.—While defending an aged and helpless man from three tormentors yesterday, Thomas Graham, a partially paralyzed newsboy was stabbed three times by one of the men in Herald Square.

An ambulance failing to respond promptly, two women in an automobile, who had paused at sight of the crowd, took the wounded newsboy into the machine.

While the car sped to Bellevue Hospital, they held him on their laps and their rich dresses became saturated with his blood. Doctors said that the crippled lad would probably die. Two arrests were made.

A STRONG COMPANY

The Toronto Savings and Loan Company is celebrating its silver anniversary. Twenty-five years is a good while to be in business, but the gratifying feature of it is that every year has shown advancement, and the twelve months just gone by were the best of all. Having splendid management, and based on sound business principles, the company is meeting with marked success. A statement of its financial condition appears in the Review to-day, and is well worth perusing. The net earnings of the company during 1909 were $124,120.31, and the regular dividend of six per cent. was paid, along with a bonus of two per cent., so that the dividend for the year was practically eight per cent. Thirty thousand dollars was added to the reserve fund, bringing it up to a total of $680,000, which represents sixty-eight per cent. of the paid-up capital of the company. A balance of $36,429.30 was added to the profit and loss account. During the year the total assets of the company were increased by $330,028.78. It will be seen from these figures that money placed to one's credit in the Toronto Savings and Loan Company is in good hands, and where it will earn for the depositor a very satisfactory dividend.

Much credit is due Mr. W. G. Morrow, the local manager, and his capable assistants, for the success that has attended the company during the past year.

THE LAURIER NAVY POLICY

The Examiner of Jan. 27 in an impossible attempt to prove the loyalty of our French Prime Minister to the idea of a united empire commits the irredeemable blunder of "burning its boats" behind it. It is true that the attack on the Laurier navy bill has brought on a crisis in Canadian national affairs and, in so far, a political organ may be excused for ardent partizanship but the weakness of its case as disclosed in the following extracts from its 3-column editorial, shows that the Examiner's idea of imperial defence consists chiefly in a defence of the Laurier navy bill.

What excuse, however, can be given for such an observation as that contained in the following?:—

"On January 18, Mr. Boyce, Conservative, of Algoma, said in the House:

'You will see that what the Admiralty suggested was a fleet unit from the Colonies.'

A careful perusal of the blue book dealing with the proceedings of the defence conference fails to disclose anything approximating such a view; on the contrary a direct negative to such a proposition is given, accompanied by the reasons therefor—upon page 23 of the report are found these words:

"As regards Canada, it was considered that our double seaboard rendered the provision of a fleet unit of the same kind unsuitable for the present."—The Examiner.

Whereas the real truth as contained in the Blue Book is:—

"5. In the opinion of the Admiralty a Dominion government desirous of creating a navy should aim at forming a distriot fleet-unit. * * * *"

What can have induced the Examiner to so misuse the facts? The allusion made in the Examiner's second quotation appears in the Blue Book as applying after separate conferences had been held at the Admiralty office with Canada's representatives during which it became quite clear what Sir Wilfrid intended and that a rupture was only to be avoided by the Imperial authorities' acquiescing in his contention regarding Canada.

All through it is plain that Canada's position is due to Sir Wilfrid's bulkiness.

The Examiner having drawn its primary conclusion upon such entirely erroneous premises, restates the Liberal navy case in the following words:—

"Thus it is abundantly clear that the Admiralty at no time expressed the wish that Canada establish a fleet unit, including a Dreadnought, and it is also clear that the suggestion which was made has been faithfully concurred in by the Dominion Government, and that the proposals brought down by Sir Wilfrid Laurier are upon the exact lines prescribed by the Admiralty."

The reply to the first part of this statement from the Blue Book we quoted above and with reference to the second part of it the following from the Blue Book is sufficient:—

On page 25 of the Blue Book appear these words of the Admiralty: "Further as it is a sine qua non that successful action in time of war depends upon unity of command and direction, the general discipline must be the same throughout the whole Imperial service and without this it would not be possible to arrange for that mutual co-operation and assistance which would be indispensable in the building up and establishing of a LOCAL NAVAL FORCE in close connection with the Royal navy. It has been recognized by the Colonial governments that in time of war the local naval forces should come under the general directions of the Admiralty."

Has Canada through Sir Wilfrid recognized this necessity as the Examiner contends?

An extract from the Blue Book report of the 1907 Conference shows just how far Sir Wilfrid was prepared to go in the way of this suggested co-operation. Mr. Smartt of S. Africa having moved "That this Conference recognizing the vast importance of the services rendered by the navy to the defence of the Empire and the protection of its trade and the paramount importance of continuing to maintain the navy in the highest possible state of efficiency considers it to be the duty of the dominions beyond the seas to make such contributions towards the upkeep of the navy as may be determined by their local legislatures. * *"

Sir Wilfrid Laurier there and then replied as follows; (Blue Book report) * * * And we could not contribute or undertake to do more than we are doing in that way. For my part, if the motion were pressed to a conclusion, I should have to vote against it," and, again, "I have said all I have to say on the subject."

What more need be said by anybody as to his attitude?

And here is what Sir Wilfrid Laurier said in introducing his navy bill, Jan. 12, 1909, (Hansard, p. 1780); "The act provides also that at any time when the Governor-in-Council deems it advisable in case of war, invasion or insurrection the force may be called into active service. There is also an important provision to which I at once call the attention of the House, that while the naval force is to be under the control of the Canadian government and more directly under the control of the Department of marine. Yet in case of emergency the Governor-in-Council MAY (Review capitals) place at the disposal of His Majesty for general service in the Royal navy the naval service or any part thereof and any ships or vessels of the naval service. * * * There is a subsequent provision that if SUCH ACTION (Review capitals) is taken by the Governor-in-Council at a time when parliament is not sitting parliament SHALL immediately be called."

Parliament is to be called together by a subsequent provision of the bill on 15 days' notice. This then is the Laurier contribution to the defence of empire! What would have happened by the time parliament decided to give its consent if indeed it ever reached a conclusion? Manifestly this act or bill is expressly framed to block the possibility of any co-operation such as suggested by the Admiralty, worth the name, for imperial defence. And thus French-Canadian prejudices are appeased and the original blocking policy of Sir Wilfrid carried out.

Having made, as it well knows, a lame and halting defence of Sir Wilfrid's policy, the Examiner further reveals 'the cloven hoof' in a peculiarly maladroit way. The revelation reads as follows:—

"Just here it cannot be overlooked that Canadian history differs from the history of some of the other colonies—Canada fought for her independence in many ways. The full measure of autonomy we have and the responsible government we enjoy were not secured without a struggle. Therefore, Canada is of necessity sensitive with respect to paying any fixed sum of the people's money for any object whatever, when the people have no voice in saying how it shall be expended."

Then our contemporary quotes and comments as follows, and we ask our readers to note the words "varying political conditions." It will be noticed that the varying "conditions" of South Africa, Australia, &c., constitute no objection to the contribution of fleet-units by them, but in the case of Canada these conditions "seem to be" so serious as to preclude the possibility, so to speak, of a fleet-unit, especially, it might be added in view of the rabid hostility of the French-Canadians, almost without exception or distinction of party. The Examiner continues:—

"The conference laid this down lucidly on page 24, as follows:—

"The main duty of the Conference as regards naval defence would be to determine the form in which the various Dominion governments can best participate in the burden of Imperial defence with due regard to varying political and geographical conditions.

In the case of Canada it was determined that the form in which Canada could best assist in Imperial determine, would find expression in building precisely the fleet which Sir Wilfrid intimated to the House Canada would provide."

There is not one word of truth in this conclusion, as the reader has already seen.

But the climax of the Examiner's hilarious attempt to do the impossible is portrayed in the following terse but intensely ridiculous "axiom" of parliamentary procedure:—

"This suggests one other criticism on the part of the Opposition, which is Parliamentary authority to engage in war. Great Britain cannot go to war without the consent of Parliament. Neither can Canada go to war without the consent of the Canadian Parliament, because the power of both in this regard is co-equal."—The Examiner.

The assumption here is, clearly, that when Sir Wilfrid Laurier interposed the provision that the Canadian Parliament must be called together on 15 days' notice to consent to Canada's possible participation in any Imperial strife, he did so in imitation of the example of the British Parliament on the arising of a similar contingency. This might be called going to war at leisure. Any nation that went to war in this style would be smashed before the alleged necessary consent of its parliament could possibly be given. The fact is, of course, that in an emergency the British Minister-of-War has immediate control and full power, that he takes such measures as he may think necessary in the nation's interest, and then when opportunity offers, consults his colleagues, and when Parliament assembles, if it is called together at all, the Government's plans and proceedings may be laid before it, and may NOT, as the exigences of the case and proper precautions against providing the enemy with information may suggest. Any such nonsensical policy as that suggested by the Examiner exists only in its own mind or in that of a first minister, whose chief aim is to sidetrack the whole theory of a united British empire. The Examiner then concludes its remarks as follows:—

"The whole case may be summed up in this manner.

That the Canadian navy proposals have the approval of the British authorities.

That the bill submitted to the House is framed with a due regard to our constitutional rights and privileges.

That our representatives in Parliament, upon the Liberal side of the House, while indicating their loyalty to the crown and devotion to the Empire, are maintaining and protecting the constitution."

The first paragraph is true only in so far as it is recognised that when the conference found how hostile Sir Wilfrid was to the united defence scheme it let it go at that. But how can anybody honestly affirm that what Sir Wilfrid has said and done has the full "approval" of the Home authorities? The Examiner's other paragraphs are mere generalities utilised to cover an ignominious retreat.

While Sir Wilfrid Laurier "backs up" and finds excuses for arguing Canada out of her position as a true and loyal member of the empire, Australia talks infinitely less, but does much more, as the following despatch discloses:—

Special to the Montreal Star.

London, January 28.—Orders for two Dreadnought cruisers, to be paid for by Australia and New Zealand respectively, will be given out almost immediately.

These two vessels are to be completed by March 31, 1912. The result of this will be that this country will have twenty-two Dreadnoughts complete when Germany will have eleven.

The Ersatz-Heimdal and Ersatz-Hildebrand, the first turbine-driven battleships for Germany, cannot be completed before the summer of that year.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The butchers tell us of cuts of beef, but not of prices.

A bill now going through the Legislature prohibits municipal councils from reducing magistrates' salaries without Legislative sanction.

The price of bread was first double at Montreal what it was at London, Eng., in November. Wheat was the same price. How is this? It can't be the farmer who is doing the deadly work.

NINETEEN CALLS FOR AMBULANCE

Last week was a record one for the Dan Spence Ambulance. No less than nineteen calls were responded to, and these came from all parts of the city, and at early and late hours. Nineteen calls mean much inconvenience, and a lot of work, and it would appear that the ambulance man has no cinch.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

MR. CHARLES KITNEY RETURNS FROM VISIT TO KENT, ENGLAND

Great Number of Unemployed—Wages Low—Agriculture Dying Out—Tariff Reform the Issue.

Mr. Charles Kitney, the well-known market gardener, who resides near the Locks, returned on Wednesday morning from a two months' trip to his native county of Kent, England, which he has not visited since coming to Canada 27 years ago. He found things considerably changed in the hop county, many who were boys having become men and entered into business on their own account. Kent that was formerly noted for its hops has been driven out of that business by foreign importations. Fruit-raising has taken its place. The competition in this line has become so keen as to greatly reduce prices and remuneration. The German scare has its devotees and the people of Canterbury were especially fearful of their prospects in case of invasion. Mr. Kitney was much impressed with the number of buildings that had been erected during the 27 years of his absence especially in Sittingbourne his native town. There is no agitation concerning the high price of living over there for mutton is 8 cents per lb. and meat 12 cents. Cheese and bread are the same price as here. Hay is $15.00 a ton and of poor quality. The leading apple is now the Cox pippin, a medium-sized yellow apple, very luscious and juicy. It brings about $5.00 a bushel, being as yet a rarity. The wages of the farm labourer is 80 cents per day. 27 years ago it was 95 cents a day. The labourer's rent, however, is not high, cottages renting at $1.25 a week. Mr. Kitney sailed on the Corsican of the Allan Line on Nov. 19, 1909. There were 500 Canadian farmers aboard from all parts of Canada going on a tour of inspection. They all returned and express themselves as well pleased with their Canadian homes. Mr. Kitney could always tell Canadian apples in the English shops by their pretty colour due to plenty of sun.

Tariff reform seemed to be the hope of the vast number of unemployed. Business is very dull and employment very scarce. The ordinary labourer gets 75 cents per day and those on the corporation $5.00 per week. Bricklayers get 96 cents per day. Last year was the wettest since 1860. Mr. Kitney returned by the Hesperian and both at Liverpool and Halifax found fine, mild weather. 200 Russians and Norwegians came out on the Hesperian for the Canadian west. Mr. Kitney gave the Review a large supply of English campaign literature. Evidently nothing is left undone to "educate" the electors.

THE ANNIVERSARY OF EMANUEL SWEDENBORG

Members of the religious denomination known as "Swedenborgians" are to-day celebrating all over the world where they are organised the 222nd anniversary of the birth of Emanuel Swedenborg, upon whose writings they have founded their system of doctrines.

Opinions among theologians of all denominations to-day differ very widely as to the value of Swedenborg's writings. By some he is placed on a par with John Wesley, of whom he was a contemporary, while others speak of his works as the product of a fanatical dreamer, or even of an insane person. The latter opinion is probably due to the claim made by the noted Swede that for thirty years he was permitted to converse freely with angels and observe many of the wonders of both heaven and the lower world. His followers claim that these "experiences" were permitted in order to give mankind a true idea of the life after death, but his critics brand them as idle dreams.

The theory being advanced by some schools of thought at the present day, calling into question the truth of the literal sense of some parts of the Bible was held by Swedenborg too regarded the Bible as in the strictest sense a divine revelation, though he did not accept all its histories or statements of fact as literally true. On the contrary, he tells us that the early chapters of Genesis are purely allegorical in character and do not describe the creation of the universe and the early history of mankind, as has been commonly supposed. In thus ascribing an occult meaning to the Scriptures Swedenborg did not mean to detract from the value of the literal sense; rather did he intend to raise it to a much higher degree of esteem than is bestowed upon it by those who regard the literal sense as containing the sum total of divine revelation. He teaches that the books of the Bible are not mere human compositions, but a veritable embodiment of the wisdom of God, adapted, however, to the comprehension of the simplest minds. Everything needful for salvation, he tells us, is contained in the literal sense. What need, then, to supplement this with a spiritual sense? He answers: Because the spiritual sense amplifies and emphasizes the mysteries and apparent contradictions of the same.

Among many of the foremost writers of recent years, Swedenborg was held in very high esteem. Balgar, novelist, makes one of his characters say: "Beyond a doubt Swedenborg gathers to himself all religions, or rather all the young religions of humanity. His books contain the elements of a vast social conception. His religion is the only one a superior mind can accept. He alone enables men to touch God; he creates a thirst for Him; he rescues the majesty of God from the swaddling clothes in which other human faiths have muffled it." Emerson, while rejecting the theological writings, says of Swedenborg: "He was one of the monsters and mastodons of literature. * * * not to be measured by whole colleges of ordinary scholars. He was a colossal soul that requires a long focal distance to be seen." Elsewhere Emerson has stated his conviction that "the most remarkable step in the religious history of recent ages is that made by the genius of Swedenborg! * * * These truths, passing out of his system into general circulation, are now met with every day, qualifying the views and creeds of all churches and men of no church." Once more: "Most of our books are false by being fragmentary. Swedenborg, on the other hand, is systematic and respective of the world in every sentence; all the means are orderly given; his faculties work with astronomic punctuality, and his admirable writings are pure from all pettiness and egotism. His religion thinks for him and is of universal application. He turns it on every side; it fits every part of life, interprets and dignifies every circumstance."

Charming Social Event

The Toronto Star of Wednesday, has the following social note that will be of interest to many in this city:—

Mrs. R. P. Gough, Crescent road, was the hostess of a large at-home yesterday afternoon, when her pretty rooms were thronged with guests between the hours of four and six o'clock. Mrs. Gough was wearing a becoming gown of orchard mauve charmeuse and lace, and was assisted by her sister, Mrs. LeBrun, of Peterborough, wearing black velvet embroidered in jet; Mrs. Hudley Gough, in black satin with an overdress of lace, and Mrs. William Lee, in cream marquesette mounted over silk.

The floral decorations were carried out in the drawing-room with quantities of pink roses, and the dining-room with deep red Richmond roses. The table was centred with lace, on which stood a silver vase filled with roses and lily of the valley. Daffodils and palms were used in the library and hall, where an orchestra played throughout the afternoon. Mrs. Fred. Tilson presided in the tea room, assisted by a bevy of girls in dainty frocks, including Miss Helen and Miss M. Gough, Miss Beatrice and Miss Kathleen Cosgrave, Miss Phelan, Miss Dwyer and Miss Hackett.

LIFE'S OUTLOOK FOR YOUNG GIRLS

Nature Makes Demands Upon Them Which Only Such a Tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Can Supply

The girl of to-day is the woman of to-morrow, and until that to-morrow oft-times she suffers a weariness and loss of strength and brightness. These woes, with pallid cheeks, shortness of breath and persistent headaches, tell plainer than words that she needs assistance in the form of new, rich, red blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are just the medicine growing girls need. Every dose helps to make new, rich blood, thus helping languid, despondent girls on to the full bloom of womanhood, making them robust, cheerful and attractive. Mrs. Albert Putman, Port Robinson, Ont., says: "A couple of years ago my daughter Hattie, now fifteen, was in declining health. She complained of severe headaches, had no appetite, was very pale and exhausted at the least exertion. As time passed on she was hardly able to drag herself about, notwithstanding that she was under medical treatment and continuously taking medicine. At this juncture a neighbor strongly advised me to give Hattie Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to do so. After she had taken three boxes some improvement was noticed; the headaches were not so frequent, nor so severe, and her appetite was much improved. This was indeed cheering, and she continued taking the Pills until she had used some eight boxes, when she was as well as ever she had been in her life, and since that time she has been as robust as any girl could wish to be. I would strongly urge all mothers of growing girls to keep their health fortified through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be had from any medicine dealer or by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

A SPLENDID NEW SERIAL

A handsome young soldier of fortune, a princess of enchanting beauty, two eccentric adventurers who leave wills disposing of the island of Japat and its ruby mines, two heirs who must marry within a year to inherit the property despite the fact that they are already married, a shrewd American lawyer, a scheming British solicitor, a pretty stenographer, a prince who is musical and profligate and a horde of fanatical Moslems who will inherit the riches of Japat provided the heirs do not marry each other—these are the leading characters in a romance which for genuine novelty, thrilling and unusual situations, live American humor and the pathos of a great but apparently hopeless love has rarely been equaled and never surpassed.

AT QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

Special Correspondence of The Review

A few weeks ago Dr. James Douglas, of New York, one of Queen's graduates, offered to endow a chair in Canadian and Colonial History, on the condition that a certain change is made in the constitution of the University. Meantime provision is made for the payment of the first year's salary, so that work may begin next session. Queen's has been most fortunate in securing as professor for this department Mr. Wm. L. Grant, son of the late Principal Grant, and at present the Beit Foundation Lecturer on Colonial History in the University of Oxford, where he has made for himself a distinct reputation. It may be noted that this is the first chair in Canadian and Colonial History to be established in any Canadian University. Our history staff will thus become a most efficient one, as Professor Morrison is already rendering splendid service in that department.

On Saturday evening, January 22, a most interesting address was given in Convocation Hall by Mr. Wheeler, F.R.G.S., president of the Canadian Alpine Club. The subject of the lecture was "Our Mountain Heritage" and by means of excellent stereoptican views Mr. Wheeler succeeded in forcibly impressing on his audience, the beauty and grandeur of our Canadian Rockies.

The meeting of the University Missionary Association, on Saturday morning last was addressed by Mr. D. G. Cock, returned Presbyterian missionary from India.

In the hockey match with Toronto University, played here Friday night, Queen's team was defeated by a score of 6—2. The ice was in very poor condition, and it is said that Queen's team has much better material than the score indicates. In the basketball match also played here Queen's won from Totonto by a score of 36—29.

Sunday afternoon a sermon was delivered in Convocation Hall by Rev. D. McLaren, of Toronto, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions. Dr. McLaren presented a strong appeal for workers in our Canadian West, and showed very clearly how great is the need for earnest work among our growing population in the newer parts of the country.

Professor Anderson gave an instructive and thoughtful address before the Philosophical Society Monday afternoon, on "The Philosophy of Vergil." Professor Anderson dealt with his subject in his usual interesting and scholarly manner. This lecture is one of a series on the Philosophies of the great writers, the Philosophy of Shakespeare having been treated some time ago by Professor Dyde, and that of Ibsen by Rev. Professor Scott. Many of the students have shown deep interest in these lectures.

The Mock Parliament was opened Saturday evening. The speech from the throne was delivered by Dr. Third, Hon. President of the society, and speeches were also delivered by Mr. G. D. Wallace, leader of the Government, and Mr. A. D. Cornett, leader of the Opposition.

Best's Station, Jan. 28.—Mr. J. Kinnee has returned from a visit with his son, Harmy, of Cannington.

Mr. Fry and daughters, Margaret and Stella, and son Everett, have returned after a pleasant visit with Balieboro friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Peacock, from the west, have been visiting Mr. Peacock's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Peacock.

Mrs. Frank Fowler's brother, Mr. F. Maggee, who has been ill, is recovering.

Mrs. B. W. Fillies and son, Nield, of Moose Jew, Sask., is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. T. Fry.

Misses Hattie and Maude Henry were the guests of Mrs. Elsworth Kinnee Tuesday.

A number of young people of this vicinity attended the basket social at Bethel Wednesday night and report a pleasant time.

Mrs. W. J. McCarroll and son, Everett, were the guests of her daughter, Mrs. Sam. Fry.

Mr. Lewis Ferguson was the guest of Mr. T. McBride last Wednesday evening.

Mr. Bruce Scott attended a party Friday evening at Mr. J. Fee's, Mount Pleasant.

HE FOUND THEM THE BEST OF ALL

What Rufus Harris Says of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Hurdville, Ont., Jan. 28.—(Special)—"After trying five doctors for Kidney Trouble, from which I had suffered for three years, I find that Dodd's Kidney Pills relieve me best of all. I began taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I shall be well pleased, and I am hoping they will cure me."

So says Rufus Harris, well known in this village. "I had stiffness in the joints," he continues, "cramps in the muscles, backache and was heavy and sleepy after meals. I was depressed and low-spirited, perspired freely, was often dizzy and always thirsty, but since taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I am feeling very good."

If you have any of the symptoms Mr. Harris tells of, it is time for you to beware. They are the symptoms of Kidney Disease and may be the forerunners of Rheumatism, Dropsy, Lumbago, Heart Disease, or even the dread Bright's Disease itself. Take warning and guard against suffering or even death itself by putting the Kidneys in good working order with Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ask Her This Question

"Do you know of any woman who ever received any benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

If any woman who is suffering with any ailment peculiar to her sex will ask her neighbors this question, she will be surprised at the result. There is hardly a community in this country where women cannot be found who have been restored to health by this famous old remedy, made exclusively from a simple formula of roots and herbs.

During the past 30 years we have published thousands of letters from these grateful women who have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and never in all that time have we published a testimonial without the writer's special permission. Never have we knowingly published a testimonial that was not truthful and genuine. Here is one just received a few days ago. If anyone doubts that this is a true and honest statement of a woman's experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound write and ask her.

Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. Letitia Blair, Canifton, Ontario.

Any woman who is sick and suffering is foolish surely not to give such a medicine as this a trial. Why should it not do her as much good as it did Mrs. Blair.

ONE OR TWO HITCHES IN CONNECTION WITH QUAKER OATS CO. AGREEMENT

In Connection With New Warehouse—High Level Bridge Discussed—Reduction of Licenses By-law Passed by Council—Several New Matters.

The city council held a special meeting last night and had a busy two-hour session. Mayor Morrow presided and all the aldermen were present.

C. H. Hill, president of the Orillia Board of Trade, wrote asking the city to join with them in petitioning the Dominion government to complete with all speed possible the northern portion of the Trent Canal. A resolution to this effect was passed on motion of Ald. Gillespie and Ald. Turner. Nothing was contained in the resolution as to which route should be followed in the outlet. Orillia favors the Severn river route.

W. H. Ruse wrote the council offering some suggestions in connection with the appointment of an industrial commissioner.

O'Connell and Gordon wrote on behalf of Mrs. Cadgan regarding a well on her property which it is claimed is polluted by sewage. Referred to the Board of Works.

The National Sanitarium for Consumptives asked for financial assistance. Referred to Finance committee.

W. G. McKee applied for the position of caretaker of the new public library. It was referred to the Property committee.

The Union of Canadian Municipalities wrote the city in regard to membership. Referred to Finance committee.

W. H. Gould, proprietor of a pool room on Water street, asked that the license fee on pool rooms be reduced. In his letter he referred to the popularity of the game, which was one of skill. There was no profit in the business with the license fee as it is at present. The Finance committee will deal with the question. The license fee at present is $40 per table per year.

B. C. Yelland applied for the position of janitor of the new public library. The application was referred to the Property committee.

The Single Tax Association asked the city to become a member. Referred to Finance committee.

REPORTS READ.

The report of the Fire, Water and Light committee by Ald. Duffus, Power committee by Ald. Turner, and the report of the committee of the whole council by Ald. Gillespie.

On the suggestion of Ald. Buller the clause in the latter report referring to the appointment of an industrial commissioner was changed to read as follows; "that the committee approve of the appointment of a commissioner and that an appropriation be made in the estimated for the year in this connection." The clause first read "that an industrial commissioner be appointed."

When the report of the Fire, Water and Light committee was presented, Ald. Turner suggested that the Medical Health Officer should attend to the firemen when they require medical treatment resulting from their work for the city. Mayor Morrow said the Property committee was going to look into this matter.

In connection withe the clause in the report that the firemen do some painting at the fire hall, Ald. Duncan asked if they were going to be made members of the Painters' Union.

In reply to a question from Ald. Turner, Ald. Morgan said that the supplies for the fire department would be purchased in the city.

City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall read the agreement as prepared by him between the city and the Quaker Oats Co., for the closing of Quaker street, and other minor requests to enable the company to erect a large warehouse. There were one of two points that Mr. Denham did not like. One, and the main one, was that the company waive all rights for damages to their property in case the city builds a high level bridge at Hunter street.

Mr. Denham and Mr. E. A. Peck addressed the council in connection with the matter and pointed out that the building of the bridge was far from being a definite proposition and it was not fair that the company should now enter an agreement. Waive their rights for something that was away in the future when the conditions might be greatly changed.

Ald. Hicks, Bradburn, Buller, Duffus, Graham and others took part in the discussion on the matter.

The agreement provided for the selling of Quaker street to the Quaker Oats Co. for $500 and the transfer to the company of a narrow strip on the north side of Hunter street for a piece of ground on the south side of the street to provide for the diversion of the thoroughfare. The city appears to be well protected in the agreement that has been drawn up.

Ald. Phelan moved that the part of the agreement objected to by Mr. Denham be referred back to the committee to report on again at the regular meeting in February.—Carried.

It was moved by Ald. Hicks and Ald. Duncan, that the city clerk be authorized to advertise the closing of Quaker street and conveying it to the Quaker Oats Company.—Carried. Take two City Council

DICKSON'S CO'S PROPERTY.

E. L. Goodwill appeared on behalf of the Dickson Company in reference to sewer connection for their property north of McDonnel street. All that block of land has been cut into building lots. Some of those lots have been sold and they ask the Council to establish a septic tank for the reception of sewage.

The matter was referred to the Board of Works.

BY-LAWS.

Ald. Hicks moved the first reading of a by-law limiting the number of tavern licenses in the city. The by-law was read a first and second time and carried.

Ald. Hicks and Ald. Duffus moved the first reading of the by-law limiting the number of shop licenses in the city to four. The by-law was carried.

Ald. Duncan and Ald. Morgan moved a by-law authorizing the City Trust to sell the property on Simcoe street given to the city for public library purposes by the Nicholls estate to J. R. Stratton for $11,000.

DAN SPENCE AMBULANCE.

Mr. John Comstock was present in reference to the Dan Spence ambulance. He claimed that if the city wished to operate an ambulance they should do so themselves and not give it to a person in opposition to them. He was satisfied if it were placed in the fire hall and operated from there.

The matter was referred to the Property Committee.

It was then moved by Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Phelan that the Mayor have authority to send deputations out of the city when he found it necessary, and that their expenses be paid on the Mayor's certificate.

THE ASSESSORS.

The Mayor stated that the appointment of assessors had to be made at the regular meeting of the Council in February.

Ald. Graham and Ald. Metheral moved that the city advertise for assessors.

Ald. Duncan and Ald. Phelan moved in amendment that the matter be left with the Committee of the Whole Council.

The amendment was put first and it was lost on a vote of 3 to 8. The motion was then carried.

Yeas and nays on the amendment were asked by Ald. Duffus.

HEATING MARKET HALL.

Ald. Turner said he thought it was time the market building be heated from a central system and thus do away with the stoves in the market hall and also to have it properly heated.

He moved that it be referred to the Property Committee to take it up with the City Trust Commissioners.

Ald. Morgan moved that the same committee take up the matter of a public lavatory under the market arcade. Ald. Buller seconded the motion and it carried.

SCAVENGER SYSTEEM.

Ald. Turner brought up the matter of a scavenger system and urged upon the Council the necessity of it.

He moved that the matter of a garbage by-law be referred to the Property and Health Committee.—Lost.

BY-LAW NOT ENFORCED.

Ald. Duffus gave notice of motion that he would introduce a by-law regulating the safety of buildings in which any number of people are congregated.

Ald. Bradburn stated that three years ago a by-law was passed covering all those matters, but that it did not appear to be enforced properly.

The Quaker Oats Company require the services of a number of girls. Apply at Office.

REV. MR. PECK CANNOT COME

A telegram was received from Rev. E. J. Peck, Barrie, last night, stating that owing to the sudden and serious illness of his son he would be unable to be in Peterborough to-morrow. He will, therefore, not be at St. John's church at the evening service as was expected. On account of this change, Rev. Canon Davidson will continue his course of Sunday evening sermons on "Some Spheres of Practical Religion." His subject to-morrow evening will be "Service and Sunshine of Home Life."

RECOMMENDATIONS ABOUT MARKET

County Wants it Continued Under System in Vogue at Present

A joint meeting of the Legal committee and the county council was held last evening to discuss several matters that are of interest to both the city and county. The County council has recommended that the Peterborough market be conducted on the same system as it has during the past two years. The recommendation has been referred to the Property committee.

The county has also requested the city to pay a portion of a claim for damages on account of a horse being drowned at the Gannon's Narrows bridge. This matter has been referred to a committee consisting of Ald. Duffus and the mayor.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

The Annual General meeting of the Shareholders of The Toronto Savings and Loan Company was held at the Head Office of the Company, No. 437 George street, Peterborough, on Friday, the 28th day of January, 1910 at two o'clock p.m.

DIRECTORS' REPORT

The Directors submit herewith their Twenty-Fifth Annual Report, showing the result of the business for the past year, accompanied by the Balance Sheet to the 31st December, 1909.

The gross earnings for the year amounted to $213,954.59, and after the payment of interest on deposits and debentures, and all expenses of management, there remained a net profit of $124,120.31. To this amount has been added $22,308.99, the balance carried forward from last year, which makes a total sum for distribution of $146,429.30.

This amount has been disposed of in the following manner:

(1) By Payment of four Quarterly Dividends of 1½%, each, equal to 6% for the year, amounting to	$60,000.00
(2) By Bonus of 2%, for the year on $1,000,000. Paid Up Capital	20,000.00
(3) By Addition to Reserve Fund	30,000.00
(4) By Amount carried forward to Profit and Loss Account	36,429.30

The above addition to the reserve fund increases that account to $680,000, making it now, 68 per cent. of the present paid-up capital of $1,000,000.

AUDITORS' CERTIFICATE

All payments maturing during the year on the company's investments have been satisfactorily met, and the rentals from the property owned by the company have also been promptly paid. The books, accounts and securities of the company have been carefully examined by the auditors and their report is attached to the financial statement.

HAD PROSPEROUS BUSINESS YEAR

Excellent Showing Made by the Traders Bank During the Year's Operations.

In the statement presented to the shareholders at the annual meeting of the Traders Bank yesterday increases are shown in all departments and the year will go down as undoubtedly one of the most successful in the history of the institution. The net profits for the year reached a grand total of $457,082.39, and, after the payment of dividends at the rate of 7 per cent. for the first three quarters of the year and 8 per cent. for the fourth quarter, was disposed of as follows;— The sum of $200,000 was added to the rest fund and the balance of $102,443.40 was carried forward to the credit of profit and loss. The rest account now stands at $2,200,000. One of the outstanding features was the large increase in deposits, being 17.44 per cent. in excess of last year, or in rough figures a gain of $4,426,000. At the end of the year the deposits had reached a total of $29,813,194. This is a splendid evidence of the confidence the public repose in this well managed and enterprising institution. A further testimony to the fine standing of the bank is to be found in the assets, which now amount to $39,963,996.11, or an increase over the previous year of $5,104,000, which in turn showed an increase over the preceding year of $1,139,000. A large increase in the circulation, the high figure of $3,543,000 being reached during the course of the year with a general average of $2,500,000, attests eloquently to the bank's contribution to the business activity. During the year the bank opened twenty new branches, including such important centres as Montreal and Vancouver, B.C., and in other ways the business connections of the institution were much improved and extended. The large volume of business transacted is a splendid barometer of the place the Traders Bank occupies in the confidence of the public and the prospects for continued expansion are excellent.

DOCKSTADER'S FIRST VISIT

The Montreal Gazette of Tuesday says:—

"For the first time in years there is a first rate minstrel show in Montreal and Montreal showed its appreciation by turning out in strong force to the first production at the Princess last night. Lew Dockstader had come with a big reputation as his herald and he was in no sense a disappointment. He is himself an excellent comedian, with a good voice, and his large company of deeply colored gentlemen gives him good support. The vocal numbers are by far the best part of the programme. The music was of the good old minstrel kind, rousing and rollicking or soft and dreamy to suit occasions.

Mr. Dockstader has among his repertoire of jokes a new line prepared especially for Montreal and dealing with Montreal, her badly lighted streets, her policemen and particularly with the peculiarities of the powers that be at the City Hall. His up-to-dateness roused admiration among the audience who laughed so heartily at the "roasts" as to make the laboriousness of their production much less noticeable, than it might have been. The piece de resistance, however, is a trip around the theatre in an aeroplane, one of the best mechanical arrangements Montreal theatres have seen in many a day. There are also other special features of high order, including a troupe of Arabian acrobats. Sharing the honors with Lew Dockstader as a comedian and vocalist was Eddie Mazier, whose Glide song made an especial hit. Then there was Neil O'Brien, in "Smile, Simply Smile," and Master Naulty, a small boy with a big voice."

Manitoba's legislature meets on February 10th.

Hamilton's M. H. O. is to receive $2,500 per year and the privilege to practice.

WAS EJECTED FROM HOTEL

That she was forcibly ejected from a local hotel last night was the complaint of a woman at the police station this morning. She occupied the position of second cook at the hotel, and was roughly handled, without any just cause, according to her version of the affair.

The case will be heard on Monday morning.

ANOTHER FINE PERFORMANCE

By Young People of St. Andrew Sunday School—Presentations Made

St. Andrew's young people presented the beautiful cantata, representing the holiday season of the year, again last evening before an appreciative audience in the lecture hall. It was put on by special request and as on the previous occasion those taking part, did so with credit to themselves and Miss Bella King and Mrs. P. A. Kerr, who had charge. At the the conclusion of the programme, the services of the two ladies were recognized. Miss King being presented by Miss Edith Kerr with a group photo of those taking part in the cantata, and Mrs. Kerr received a beautiful bouquet of pink roses from Miss Marjorie Read. On behalf of the Sunday school association Miss Joan Potter presented Miss King with a hand satchel.

The pastor, Rev. J. G. Potter, who presided, made a few remarks in which he expressed his pleasure at the success of the cantata, and the appreciation of the Sunday school association which Miss King and Mrs. Kerr had earned.

PETERBORO SEVEN FELL DOWN BEFORE AGRESSIVE WORK OF LINDSAY TEAM

Visitors Doubled the Figures in Each Half, and Took Exciting Game From Locals by 6-3—Lindsay Forward Line Was Noticeably Faster and the Team Deserved the Victory.

And the blow almost killed father, and the rest of us. Lindsay beat us, and, by way of rubbing it in, doubled the score. The figures were 6—3, and while Bill Stoddard's aggregation did not exactly use a tent, they got sweet revenge for the terrible calamity that struck their burg a week ago when Captain Ray's sup ette paid a visit and left with a 3—2 victory. The ice was soft on that date, but last night it was just as ordered, and it would appear to be a case of pray for rain for the next struggle.

The game last night was not altogether pleasing, either in the way it ended or the manner in which it was played. There was room for considerable improvement. It was not classy hockey, although in spots the players of both teams contributed brilliant stunts, and these, with the excitement prevailing, made the contest interesting throughout. Peterborough scored first and Lindsay came along with the next two, which, however, should have been about six, had the visitors been able to take the opportunity before them. The locals, at the latter part of the half, were playing with but four men, but the blue and white team was all in, with barely enough steam to lift the puck, let alone score. Peterborough also let several fine chances to find the nets go by. The forwards did not work well together, and their passing did not find favor with the big crowd by any means.

In the second half Lindsay had an advantage in the play and cinched the Peterboroughs by two goals. In this period each scored a disputed goal, but got away with it. The Lindsay forwards had it on the local line, but heroic work by the defence saved the situation. Roy McDougall appeared to be the only man of his team to go the route, and his great rushing was prominent. With a little assistance he would have been more effective.

Lindsay won the game on their merits, and although Referee Livingstone made mistakes, he did not deserve the abuse which came from that part of the rink where the spectators think so little of the welfare of their team that they will fill the rink with smoke, which plays such havoc with the players.

It would be hard to pick the star of the game. For Lindsay, every man on the forward line played great hockey. Captain Stoddard was the most effective. He handled his stick in a dazzling manner, and always played the puck. Pacer McDougall, at centre, showed speed, and Blomfield and Cain had it on their checks. Both were very fast, but neither was watched close enough. Green and Cote on the defence refused to leave their respective positions, and were always on the job when wanted. Their work, with that of Gamble, was steady and reliable.

The trouble with the local line was that they refused to stay with their checks. McMillan and Dusty attempted to do too much work, and in many cases Ray and Campbell had to work overtime to relieve the dangerous situations caused by Blomfield or Cain getting away. Captain Ray's work was conspicuous, and the same may be said of Campbell, who, however, did not stay with his check. McDougall's work was prominent at all times. He broke up fast plays and rushed nicely. Glover assisted his goal minder by getting in front of some well-directed shots. Derocher had to contend with shots from close in, and the ones which [illegible]

THE PLAY.

The puck travelled up to Lindsay territory from the face-off, and was returned. Glover got away, passed to Ray and Gamble had a close shave. Green rushed and missed the nets, and in return Derocher warded off a low one directly after Blomfield had lifted over the net. McMillan stopped Stoddard. Ray went down the boards, but there was no one to take the pass. Green joined the penalty men. McMillan's scoop missed by inches. After five minutes' of play, and after Glover had rushed, Campbell beat Gamble for the first score of the evening, and everybody was happy.

Peterborough missed a couple of nice chances. McDougall got Blomfield as he rushed, and was sentenced to the box. Stoddard took a shot, but missed. Gamble blocked one from Dusty. Derocher got in the way of a wicked one from Pacer McDougall. Ray and McDougall combined, but the latter shot wild. The play was even. Cain took the puck up the boards, but got lost in the Petes' defence. Roy McDougall was chased for getting his namesake. A scoop shot by McMillan went to the bad, and for the next few minutes the puck was played up and down the ice, with both defences working effectively. McMillan missed a bad pass; Glover rushed and shot, but Gamble was on the job. Ray was penalized for the first of the season. McDougall stopped Stoddard on a dangerous jaunt, but that player, who was delivering the goods in O K style, was not to be denied, and a minute later he received a pass from McDougall from the corner, and put the disc past Derocher. Time, 14 minutes.

Derocher stopped a shot from Blomfield and Cain drew the first penalty for the visitors. Glover used his cheek to good advantage on a shot from Stoddard. Ray rushed, but was tripped by Stoddard, and he was benched. Dusty shot on a pass from McMillan and Gamble blocked. The Lindsay goaltender got in front of another from Dusty, who took advantage of the pass from McDougall. Blomfield rushed and was shoved into the corner by Glover. McMillan was called back on an off-side. In eight minutes Pacer McDougall broke the tie and put his team ahead with a lift.

Ray zig-zagged and missed Gamble by a close margin. Campbell journeyed to the fence and looked on. McDougall broke up a combined play of Stoddard and his centre man. Ray went down and ran into a check from Cote. Pacer was seen sprawling by the Petes' point, who took his second penalty from the referee. Dusty and Ray combined, but the shot was spoiled. Glover took a loner as far as cover, and went off for tripping Cain. Ray stopped Stoddard, and the crowd hissed the referee when he sent Sam Jr. off, and by the way, the crowd showed [illegible] spirit. Derocher blocked nicely a shot from McDougall, who had skated in close. Peterborough was playing five men to seven. Derocher stopped a roller from Blomfield. Stoddard got away, but his shot went wild. He repeated. McMillan missed a nice chance to even up, but redeemed himself two seconds later by tripping McDougall, who had broken away. The play was providing all kinds of excitement, and although Peterborough was short two men Lindsay could not score, and the half ended with the Mudville aggregation on the long end of the 2—1 score.

SECOND HALF.

Both teams started after the breathing spell with one man short, Ray and Cain finishing out a penalty. Campbell broke up a two-man combination play, and a minute later Stoddard was side-tracked into the corner, after receiving a pass from Green, who rushed. Ray was treated likewise. Pacer McDougall sent a hot one at Derocher from a few feet out, after Ray had brought the puck from behind the nets, but Derocher stopped. After six minutes Stoddard broke through for his second tally of the game, and put his team two goals ahead.

Shortly after the face-off the Lindsay captain paid a visit to the box and Cote prevented a likely looking score when Dusty rushed from centre ice. Roy McDougall felt the displeasure of the referee to the extent of two minutes for tripping Stoddard, and Glover went the same route a minute later. Blomfield scored the next goal, which, while disputed, was allowed. Time, 4 minutes.

Lindsay kept the Petes on the defensive, Glover and McDougall being off. Gamble stopped a hot one from McMillan, but Ray got busy and placed the puck behind Gamble in three minutes.

Blomfield spoiled another shot by Ray after he had taken the pass from Dusty, who was, at this period of the contest, playing a hard game. The return o fhockey bein gput up was the feature of the night. McDougall was doing some fine rushing, but couldn't get in on the nets. For using his stick the wrong way he was presented with a rest. McMillan rammed the next score in, and it was disputed, but the umpire had raised his mitt. Time, 3 minutes.

From the face-off the Lindsay goal was assaulted, and Dusty scored from a combination play of Ray and McDougall, but it was an an off-side pass. Derocher took care of Stoddard's shot and Gamble blocked after McDougall had rushed. The crowd was yelling for a score by Peterborough, but there was nothing doing in this line. Blomfield tripped Ray and drew a penalty. Green stopped McDougall and on a pass from Stoddard beat Derocher in 7 minutes.

McDougall was doing a lot of rushing but couldn't connect. Gamble stopped a shot from a scrimmage and again warded off one from Campbell. Pacer McDougall missed a great chance in front of Derocher, with no one to bother him, and on the puck being returned Gamble took care of a lone shot from Ray. The Petes' rover was warned for hugging Stoddard along the boards, but Glover did not get off so easy when he bodied Bill. He was penalised, and with only half a minute to play Stoddard broke away from centre ice and netted his third goal, and the last score of the game.

THE FINEST EMBROCATOIN

Opinions of Champion Sports

Hockey players, football players and athletes in general are interested in Zam-Buk because it has achieved so many successes, and is regarded by the leading athletes as the finest balm and embrocation.

A bad sprain, a cut, a nasty bruise—all heal quickly when Zam-Buk is applied. Mr. Jos. Kelley, the famous Toronto baseball "pro," is a great user of Zam-Buk. Mr. H. Lannon, the ex-champion lightweight wrestler, never travels without it. Tom Longboat, Sherring, of Hamilton; Ashley, of the West End Y.M.C.A., and other prominent authorities on sport and athletics have from time to time expressed the same opinion.

If you have a cut, ulcer or wound which is always troubling you, try Zam-Buk. Follow the instructions carefully, persevere for a proper length of time, and you will join the army who praise this great balm. It is equally good for skin diseases, blood poison, abscesses, rashes on face, chest, or other parts of the body, fistula, piles, etc. All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box.

Ambulance Class

All who intend to take the examination in connection with the ladies' division of St. John's Ambulance Class, will have to register before Monday evening, as the hour for registration will close at that time. The examination will be held on Wednesday evening next at eight o'clock, in the Guild room of St. John's church. If you intend to take examination, kindly hand names, if you have not already done so, to Miss C. B. Moore, the secretary, before Monday night.

POWER FROM THE NEW DAM

Commissioners Will Find Out How Much Power Will be Available for City

The special Power Committee, of which Ald. Turner is chairman, held a meeting yesterday afternoon and discussed the power situation. The Water Commissioners were present, and the discussion centred on the development of power at the new waterworks dam.

At the meeting of the Council last night, Ald. Turner presented the following report from the committee, and it was adopted.

Gentlemen,—Your Special Power Committee beg leave to report and recommend that the Peterborough Water Commissioners be requested to procure plans and all data necessary to ascertain the cost of developing the electrical power at the waterworks dam that can be developed after the water required for waterworks purposes is reserved.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the aches; the stitches and pe ns in the back, the growing remele weakness, spo s before the eyes, yellow skin, sluggish bowels, swollen eyelids or ankles, leg cramps; unnatural short breath, sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, E. 301, Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

Kidney Disease For Years

JAMES DINGWALL, Esq.

"I have much pleasure in testifying to the almost marvellous benefit I have derived from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I was a lifelong sufferer from Chronic Constipation, and the only medicine I ever secured to do me any real good was "Fruit-a-tives." This medicine cured me when everything else failed. Also, last spring I had a severe ATTACK OF BLADDER TROUBLE WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE, and "Fruit-a-tives" cured these complaints for me, when the physician attending me had practically given me up.

I am now over eighty years of age and I can strongly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" for chronic constipation and bladder and kidney trouble. This medicine is very mild like fruit, is easy to take, but most effective in action."

CITIZENS OF PETERBORO'

Peterborough people were afforded an excellent view of Berake's comet last evening. Right here let it be said that this is not Halley's comet. It might be described as a celestial hobo. It has flashed into view when no one was expecting it, and in a few days will be gone from sight. The astronomers are puzzled, as they have no data concerning this comet, and do not know from whence it came, whither it is going, or when it will return. Just after the sun had gone down last evening the sky was clear in the west, and in the gathering twilight the comet came into view. It was visible to the naked eye for about half an hour, and a large number of citizens noticed it without having their attention called. It has no apparent motion, but it must be travelling very rapidly, for it soon sank below the horizon, following in the path of the sun. It looks like a bright star, only it has a well defined tail. Astronomers state that the appendage is twenty degrees in length, which represents about twenty-five million miles.

This comet was first discovered in Johannesberg, South Africa, on Jan. 17th, by a man named Berake—and hence by some will be known as "Berake's Comet." Two days later it was seen at Winnipeg, and since then astronomers everywhere have been on the lookout for it.

Astronomers estimate that it is approximately 100,000,000 miles from the earth.

The comet should be visible this evening between six and seven o'clock, if the sky is clear.

DELICATE LITTLE BABIES

Every delicate baby starts life with a serious handicap. Even a trivial illness may end fatally and the mother is kept in a state of constant dread. Baby's Own Tablets have done more than any other medicine to make sickly babies well and strong. They give mothers a feeling of security as through their use she sees her delicate child developing healthily. Mrs. Theodore Mordon, Bala, Ont., says:—"I can say with confidence that Baby's Own Tablets saved my Baby's life. I did not know what it was to have a good night's rest until we started using the Tablets, but they have made him a strong, healthy child." STUART STRATHY,
General Manager.

Toronto, 31st December, 1909.

During the year the following branches were opened: Bruce Mines, Camrose, Castor, Chapleau, Didsbury, Dryden, Embrun, Forget, Gadsby, Gerrard and Main streets (Toronto), Gerrard and Jones (Toronto), Gleichen, Holden, Lynden, Market Branch (Hamilton), Montreal, Vancouver, Vars, West Fort William, Yonge and Richmond streets (Toronto), and Zealandia. One branch, Hepworth, was closed.

The General Manager's Address.

The General Manager, having read the foregoing report, made the following comments:

You can see by the foregoing statement that the Bank has made substantial increase in every department during the past year. The deposits now amount to $29,800,000, as compared with $25,300,000 a year ago, while, during the same period, the circulation of the Bank has risen from $2,600,000 to over $3,000,000. These additional funds have been used to the extent of over $3,800,000 to further the commercial needs of the country by an increase in loans to the public to that extent.

Out of the profits of the year we have been able to pay dividends amounting to $315,671.48, and together with the amount carried over from last year, after making the usual appropriations to Guarantee and Pension Funds of $10,000, and writing off $20,000 on account of Bank Premises, etc., we have added to Rest Account the sum of $200,000, making that fund a little over 50 per cent. of the paid-up capital stock of the Bank, while the sum of $102,443.40 has been carried to the credit of Profit and Loss "New Account."

Cash Reserve.

You will notice by the statement the strong position which the Bank maintains as regards Cash Reserves. It is the fixed policy of the Bank to maintain a large proportion of its assets in a readily convertible form. This policy necessitates a large amount of funds at its disposal, to be employed at low rates. The Management of the Bank, however, considers it the first essential that the Bank shall be at all times in a position to take care of its rapidly increasing clientele in all varying conditions of trade. That this policy is in the best interests of the Bank has been amply justified, the Bank being able during the recent times of an exceptionally tight money market to take care of all the legitimate wants of its borrowers. Our ability to do this has given the Bank a connection which is of inestimable value, not only in cementing old clients to the Bank, but in attracting new business towards us.

Canada's Resources Attracting Good Settlers.

We have been blessed with a bountiful harvest during the period under review, not only in one section of this vast Dominion, but in all sections, the field crops alone yielding in money value about $533,000,000, not to mention all the other natural resources of this vast country. True it is, our population is very limited, considering the immense territory belonging to us; but a large tide of immigration has commenced to be attracted towards us. It is estimated that in the neighborhood of 90,000 American settlers alone, with perhaps $90,000,000 in cash, have settled in the North-west Territories within the last year, besides settlers from Europe, amounting roughly to another $2,000 souls.

It is a platitude to say that the potentialities of this country are not to be conceived of, and the prospects of the country are identical with the prospects of its financial institutions, and that your property will increase in value with the growth of the Country it is only reasonable to assume. The rapid settlement which will ensue by the completion of three Transcontinental Railroads will increase our population at an enormous rate, and who is bold enough to predict what proportions its commerce will assume say within the next ten years? The money markets of the world are open to us, investors abroad realizing the intrinsic value of our securities and the increasing value which will naturally accrue to the same as the Country is developed. I sincerely trust we may so fulfill our obligations, private and corporate, to merit this confidence.

The Bank's Progress.

This Bank's ramifications have been extended during the past year by the opening of several new Branches. Amongst the most important, I mention Montreal and Vancouver. Our growing business demanded our occupation of these important points, and the growth of the Provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta has induced us to increase our sphere of influence in those Provinces.

The Capital of the Bank now amounts to $4,354,500, and the Rest Account to $2,200,000. It is interesting to note the growth of your property as compared with ten years ago:

Capital paid up	$ 700,000	$ 4,354,500
Rest Account	70,000	2,200,000
Deposits	5,461,000	29,813,000
Circulation	681,000	3,060,000
Total Assets	7,688,000	39,963,000

The revival in all lines of business on this Continent is more or less apparent. It is natural that we should feel the mighty impetus which follows from a favorable state of affairs in our agricultural and other resources. We must not forget, however, that it is during good times we are apt to overshoot the mark of prudence in the matter of extensions. The inevitable cycle of bad times is bound to recur, and it behooves us to keep our commitments well in hand to prepare for other conditions when a policy of retrenchment will be necessary.

It will afford me much pleasure to answer any questions in connection with the statement which any of our Shareholders may see fit to ask.

The Vice-President's Address.

The bank has been more than prosperous during the past year. Benefiting by the general advancement of all branches of business and receiving its full share of the advantages resulting from greatly improved conditions in the trade of the country, the Bank has been able to present to you a report which is as highly creditable to the management as it must be gratifying to the shareholders. At no time in its history has it presented more satisfactory results, nor has it ever been in as strong a position as it occupies to-day. Its reserves have been strengthened and its business largely extended. The deposits have greatly increased and the assets are readily available. The field of its operations has been extended and several new and highly important branches have been organised. A thorough revision of the working of the staff, and the management of the various agencies has been exercised, and your directors are in close relation to the business transactions and affairs of the Bank from the Head Office down to the smallest Branch. We have endeavored to bring the numerous details and many dealings of the various offices directly before the Board by means of systematic arrangement, in order that we may have an actual knowledge of what is going on in all the offices.

The Auditor to the Board.

The services of the Auditor to the Board have been devoted largely to this important work, and by his efforts we are enabled to pass upon the whole records of the Bank's business in an intelligent and effective manner. To illustrate I might mention the matter of credits. By systematic and exact reports which we receive every week your Board is informed of how credits are being dealt with, how far accounts are being paid off as they mature, to what extent credits may be affected by over-draft or change in securities, and how each Branch is progressing. By this method, no material move can be made without the sanction of the Board. The actual condition of important accounts is investigated from time to time and special reports concerning them are prepared and presented for such action as may be deemed advisable. Except in cases of small advances, every credit must be approved of by the Board on the fullest statement of the available facts. This method involves a large amount of work, but your Directors feel that they could not fully perform their duty to you and to themselves in any other way.

Economical Management.

Economy in every Branch of the business is insisted upon, and I am glad to say that in this we are assited by whole staff. Saving has been affected in the matter of supplies by placing this class of expenditure in the hands of a competent and careful official. In transferring and appointing Local Managers and clerks, in opening of new offices and in the division of the work there has been a decrease of expenditure wherever possible. In no case however, has this desire for economy been allowed to impair the efficiency of the working of the Bank.

Branch System Extended.

During the year, owing to the largely increased business of the Bank, we found it advisable to open some important branches. In Vancouver, an Agency has been established in a central and highly desirable location. A property was purchased which has already considerably increased in value, and the Bank has opened there with every prospect of success. An office has been opened in Montreal under favorable circumstances, and several desirable points between these two large cities have been selected for our Branches. The results from the Western field thus opened up have been very gratifying, and have fully justified the action taken by our Directors. It will also be necessary to consider in the near future what steps should be taken to connect our system with the Maritime Provinces, thereby extending our financial relations and still further increasing our facilities for doing business in all parts of Canada.

The astonishing growth and extension of Toronto, and its business, demanded serious consideration. The most important move made here was the opening within the past few weeks of a Branch at the corner of Yonge and Richmond streets in the office lately occupied by the Bank of Montreal. Already business of a most material character is coming to us at this Branch, and being in the centre of the commercial, financial, and trade locality of Toronto, this point will always be an important Agency.

Assets Sound.

I need not go into the details of the Annual Statement, which has just been read to you, and which you have had for some time past in your hands. I would like to point out to you, however, that we are able to add $200,000 to Rest Account, to contribute $20,000 in reduction of building and furniture account, to give $5,000 to Pension Fund for the benefit of disabled or old retiring officers, to add $5,000 to a Guarantee Fund to protect the Bank against loss by personal defalcation or losses through any member of its staff, and to carry something over $102,000 to Profit and Loss account.

In preparing this statement we have dealt with the value of the Assets in a vigorous manner. There has been no hesitation in allowing most liberally reasonable provision for bad and doubtful debts, and I believe that no item has been knowingly placed amongst the assets at one dollar more than its actual and available value. We felt that the solidity and vital character of the Bank's business justified us in using more than ordinary criticism of what might be treated as doubtful, and I believe that had we applied the ordinary test to the valuation of our assets, the net gains would appear much in excess of what the statement shows.

Gratifying Increase in Business.

At the last Annual Meeting the statement was made that for 1909 great progress might be looked for. I am delighted to say that this statement has been fully verified. We have made, so far as I am aware, absolutely no bad debts during the year, except in a few small accounts which may yet be realized. The whole twelve months present a record of credits well observed, debts promptly paid, and no losses. Our deposits have increased at an astonishing rate, and this, after all, is one of the great tests of public confidence and of stability in a Bank's affairs. Look for one moment at the facts. The increase alone in our deposits for the past year is nearly as great as the total deposits were ten years ago, then representing nearly fourteen years' accumulation. This year's addition to Rest Account is three times more than the total Rest of the Bank ten years ago. We have added to our Total Assets in 1909 a sum almost equal to the whole assets of the Bank at that period, and the increase in circulation for 1909 is equal to two-thirds the whole circulation of the Bank at the same period of comparison. In addition to all this you are now receiving an increase in dividend of 1 per cent. as promised, with ample provision against all contingencies. The promises held out a year ago have therefore been fully met, and we have no doubt that the future will bring equally good if not better results in every branch of the Bank's business. Notwithstanding the low rate of interest during the earlier part of the year and the abundance of available money, the earnings of the Bank have not suffered. We are able to increase the Dividend and maintain at the same time a strong position with regard to all other obligations and contingencies. The increase in Dividend is warranted by the condition of the Bank's affairs, and we felt that the interests of the shareholders should be kept in view, as the Bank has reached the stage when it can well afford to recognise these interests without impairing its ability to perform all its other obligations.

It is also a source of pleasure to know that the relations between the Bank and its Customers are so satisfactory that litigation is almost unknown to the Bank's record for 1909. The absence of legal proceedings shows the accounts to be in a healthy condition, for it is only in cases of bad or doubtful credits that the law has to be invoked. Prompt payment and good security are the chief reasons why the Bank has not required the aid of the Courts, and when you consider that nearly $40,000,000 are under the control and management of the Bank with tens of thousands of accounts in all parts of the Dominion outstanding and current, and that only a few suits have been entered during a whole year, you will readily conclude that the financial condition is safe and strong.

The Building.

One of the best investments of the Bank continues to be the Head Office Building. Every foot of rentable space is occupied, and the rents are promptly paid. After paying all outgoings the Bank receives nearly 5½ per cent. net profit on the investment, or to be exact, 5.40 per cent. Rents appear to be increasing, notwithstanding the many new office buildings, and with our equipment and accommodation for tenants, there need be no fear as to the future revenue from this source. The other buildings also yield a good return and promise well for the future.

The staff, from the chief of the Executive to the messengers, are enthusiastic in their work, attentive to their duty, and efficient, in every detail. Every office has been thoroughly inspected and full reports made to the Board thereon.

I now move that the Report for the year 1909 be adopted.

Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., seconded the motion. He pointed out that the Bank had risen from small beginnings to be one of the most important financial institutions in the Dominion. It had all the elements of sound progress and stability. The large deposits during the past year showed the confidence of the public. The absence of litigation proved that the debts were being promptly paid, or well secured, and the increase in the dividend, justified as it was, is the strongest evidence of the good earning power of the Bank. The Directors scrutinize every credit, except in very small accounts, and exercise their best discretion in determining the policy and conduct of the Bank's affairs.

The motion for the adoption of the report was carried unanimously.

It was moved by Mr. Geo. Le Riche and seconded by Mr. Geo. Watson that the thanks of the shareholders are due, and are hereby tendered, to the President, Vice-President, and Directors of the Bank for their attention to the interests of the Bank during the past year. Carried.

It was moved by Rev. J. S. Williamson and seconded by Mr. J. F. McKichan that the thanks of the Directors and Shareholders are due, and are hereby tendered, to the General Manager, the Assistant General Manager, and the staff of the Bank for their diligent attention to the interests of the Bank during the past year. Carried.

It was moved by Mr. Ed. Dickenson and seconded by Mr. J. J. Gibson that the ballot be now open for the election of Directors, and to be kept open until three o'clock, unless five minutes elapse without a vote being cast, when it shall be closed, and until that time, and for that purpose only, this meeting be continued.

The scrutineers reported the following gentlemen duly elected to act as Directors for the ensuing year, viz., C. D. Warren, Hon. J. R. Stratton, C. Kloepfer (Guelph), W. J. Sheppard (Waubaushene), C. S. Wilcox (Hamilton), E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., H. M. Strathy.

The meeting then adjourned.

At a subsequent meeting of the newly-elected Directors, Mr. C. D. Warren was re-elected President, and Hon. J. R. Stratton Vice-President, by a unanimous vote.

STUART STRATHY,
General Manager.

McPHERSON WOMAN TELLS OF ASSAULT

from Peterborough. To several in the village he said he was looking for his brother, Robert Henderson, aged 30, who he claimed, was an heir with himself and two other brothers, to an estate left them by an aunt in Australia, of over 500 acres and 10,000 sheep and a herd of wild horses. He was well dressed and gave his age as twenty. Robert Henderson was the name on the envelopes of some letters found on the prisoner when he was arrested. Credence was given to his story which as will be seen directly conflicted with the one told the Miss McPhersons. A man named Robt. Henderson had worked at Burketon Junction a year ago, it is said. The general opinion expressed around Norwood now is that the fellow must be criminally insane.

Dr. Pettigrew stated that both Martha McPherson, who is 77 years of age, and her sister, who is 67 years old, were injured in the upper part and to one side of the head. The loss of blood in both cases had been serious. In the case of the elder woman the outer table of the skull was cut through and under table affected by the blow. The blood came down from her head and congested around the left eye leaving a large purple swelling around the eye. Her condition is critical. She is conscious, however, and this morning when the Review reporter went to her bedside she held out her hand and asked feebly, "Who is that?"

Newfoundland's herring catch is 20,000 barrels more than last year, the total being 84,000 barrels.

WORKED FOR IDA FARMER

Henderson Came Out From England Last May—Confesses at Norwood

Is the Man Peterborough Police Were After for Soliciting Money Under False Pretences

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Jan. 28.—Robert Henderson, who is under arrest at this place charged with the assault of the two McPherson women, near Norwood, gave out some information about himself to the officers here to-night. He stated that he was a native of England and seventeen years of age. He came to Canada last May, arriving in this country on the twenty-first of the month. For a while after arriving he worked on the farm of Louis Winslow, at Ida, Cavan township, Durham county. Leaving there he went to Toronto and worked in the gas works for several months. While there he boarded at 56 McArthur street. From Toronto Henderson went to Peterborough and while there boarded at 282 Sherbrooke street. He is the man the Peterborough police were looking for on account of him soliciting subscriptions for a charitable institution under false pretences. The police were getting too hot on his trail in Peterborough, so a few days ago he left there and went to Norwood. He states that the reason he attacked the old ladies was because he needed the money and intended ransacking the house. After he had struck one of the women and rendered her unconscious he realized the terrible thing he was doing and fled from the premises.

Henderson was taken to Norwood last night and was identified by the younger of the McPherson women as the man who had committed the assault. He will come up here before Magistrate Edmison this afternoon.

In connection with the above despatch it may be stated that according to the Peterborough directory there is no such a number as 282 Sherbrooke street.

STOLE MONEY AT TORONTO.

Toronto, Jan. 29.—Robert Henderson, accused of murderous attack on two aged women at Norwood, is well known in Toronto. He came here in September. A warrant is out for him on a charge of stealing fifteen dollars from a fellow boarder on Degrassie street. He is a steamfitter assistant by trade and left one week ago Monday. Henderson bought a revolver shortly before he left. He lived near Peterborough several months before coming to Toronto.

"NOT-OUTS" HAVE A JOLLY DANCE

The Conservatory Music Hall was the scene of a very enjoyable dance last evening when the "Not-Outs" were the hosts at a fancy dress ball. There was a large number of guests present whose ages and sizes were varied from the little tots of eight or ten to their grown up sisters and brothers. A majority of the smaller ones were in costume and looked very pretty.

The chaperons of the dance were Mrs. T. F. Matthews, Mrs. A. H. Stratton, Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mrs. H. D. Burnett, Mrs. J. A. Aylmer and Mrs. Rupert Gliddon.

LADIES AUXILIARY SCORES A SUCCESS

The large parlors of the Y. M. C. A. were filled to the doors last evening when the musicale given under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary was given. There was a very large crowd present who thoroughly enjoyed the splendid programme that had been arranged for them.

Amongst those who contributed to the success of the affair were Miss McCaw, Miss Pringle, Miss Sanderson, Miss Reesor, Miss Foy, Miss Hope Miller, Miss Gumpricht, Miss Laura Logan, Miss Sisson, Mrs. Hopwood, Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Downey. The Ladies' Quartette and also the Male Quartette of George street church were also contributors.

The chair was occupied by Judge Huyeke most effectively. Refreshments were served at the close of the programme. The proceeds of the musicale were quite gratifying to the ladies who had the affair in hand and they are to be congratulated on its success.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Montreal has an organized suffrage society, though not of a militant nature.

James Leahy, arrested in Toronto, was yesterday convicted of burglary at Orangeville and sentenced to one year.

C. D. McPherson, editor of The Portage la Prairie Graphic, has been nominated by the Liberals for the Manitoba Legislature.

Hamilton & Gay's woodworking factory at St. John, N.B., with 300,000 feet of lumber, was burned yesterday. Loss, $50,000; insurance, $10,000.

It is stated in London that Lord Crewe is likely to become Viceroy of India, and that the Duke of Connaught has been asked to open Toronto's Exposition.

Ambrose J. Small, theatrical magnate of Toronto, has completed arrangements for a circuit in Eastern Canada and the Maritime Provinces taking in most of the large towns.

J. T. Thorson, an Icelandic student at Manitoba College, was nominated by the Rhodes' scholarship committee yesterday. This is the second Icelandic student to receive the honor.

The labor men of Ottawa decided at a meeting last night that they would not advocate a boycott of meat owing to the high price movement. It was held that the idea would hurt the small butcher, while it would be easy for the large firms to put their meat in storage.

THE HOOK

There will be no admission fee and as the lecture will be interesting and illustrated there should be a large attendance.

Cable Messages Delayed.

New York, Jan. 29.—The Commercial Cable Co. yesterday afternoon issued the following statement relative to the delivery of cable messages to European points:

"Owing to storm there will be delay to the north of England and Ireland We are advised of delay to France Italy and Switzerland. Also delay to Denmark, Sweden, Norway and Russia."

Children's Marvelous Escape.

Andover, Ohio, Jan. 29.—A bob sled carrying twenty school children was struck by a fast passenger train on North Main street yesterday and carried upwards of 200 feet upon the pilot of the locomotive, until brushed off by an engine standing upon a side track.

Not one child is killed and none is thought to be seriously hurt.

Bars Closed Until 7 A. M.

Quebec, Jan. 29.—A bylaw was unanimously adopted by the City Council last night prohibiting saloons or retail groceries selling liquor before seven o'clock in the morning.

Libel Suits Against Le Devoir.

Montreal, Jan. 29.—Le Devoir Henri Bourassa's publication, which has been taking a hand in the municipal fight, has, as the result of knocks it has been handing out, libel suits on hand aggregating $32,000, all taken this week, four in number.

The one entered yesterday is by Gaston Maillet, a candidate for civic honors, and it is stated that a well known contractor intends suing the paper for $50,000 libel in the course of a few days.

Mayor Payette is also out for $10,000 of Le Devoir's money.

Battle In Nicaragua.

Washington, Jan. 29.—An official telegram to the State Department from Managua says it is rumored there that a battle has been fought between the Madriz and the Estrada forces near La Libertad with heavy losses.

Rehearsals will begin next week and most of the principals have been selected.

PERUNA A WONDERFUL BOON IN MY OLD AGE.

MRS. MAHALA REID.

Heartily Approves of Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin for Kidney and Bowel Trouble

MRS. MAHALA REID, Corbyville, Ont., Canada, writes:

"Your celebrated remedies have been a wonderful boon to me in my old age.

"I have not been in so good health for several years as now. I was troubled with constipation, rheumatism and kidney trouble.

"A little over two years ago, I completely lost my health, becoming almost helpless, when a dear friend sent me your remedies, Peruna and Manalin. I began to take them, following the directions on the bottle. I very soon began to feel benefited by their use and continued to take them.

"I am now completely recovered from the above ailments, in fact, better than I have been for years past. I cannot praise the remedies too highly and will always recommend them to others."

Constipation is almost sure to set up other derangements.

The blood being surcharged with acids, which ordinarily find their escape through the bowels when they are regular, rheumatism is the result.

Acid blood forms crystals, which accumulate about the ligaments, cartilages and sometimes the bones in the joints.

Such morbid accumulations of blood throw extra work upon the kidneys. The kidneys being unable to perform the unusual labor of excreting these poisons, often give way and kidney trouble is the result.

Regular bowels are a great safeguard to health. Peruna and Manalin are unexcelled the world over for chronic diseases affecting the bowels and kidneys.

Mrs. W. W. Lamaster, 3127 McAtee, Ave., Louisville, Ky., writes:

"I suffered for twenty-six years with bladder and kidney trouble, and being advised to give Peruna a trial, I did so. Eight bottles of Peruna and three bottles of Manalin entirely cured me."

TRAIN-WRECK IN ENGLAND

London, Jan. 31.—One of the most serious railway accidents in England since the disaster to the steamer train at Salisbury in July, 1906, occurred at Stoats Nest Station, near London, on the London and Brighton Railway Saturday afternoon.

Eight dead and about thirty injured were taken from the wreck.

Two third-class cars and a Pullman of a train from Brighton, traveling at a speed of forty miles an hour, crashed into the station. The third-class cars were completely wrecked, and a part of the building was demolished. The Pullman was thrown violently into the air, but was comparatively little damaged. Its passengers escaped with minor injuries.

Accounts of the cause of the accident differ. One says that it was due to the derailment of a portion of the train, which jumped the points where the branch joins the line just outside the station. Another account attributes the cause to the breaking of the coupling between the first and second cars.

The two third-class cars reared almost on their ends and toppled over on the platform, bringing down a mass of iron girders and timbers from the station.

Robert J. Wynne, the former U. S. consul-general at London, who was in the Pullman, escaped uninjured. In describing the accident he said:

"We were passing through Stoats Nest at a rapid pace when suddenly a part of the train jumped the rails and began to tear along the track on its side. The car in which I was seated rocked so violently that many things were smashed. The passengers were preparing to escape when the car stopped with a crash.

"I looked ont of the window and saw a man lying dead near the wheels. I got out and helped to pull another man from a ditch. He died before a doctor arrived. We found two more dead and a woman breathing her last. The third-class cars were lying on their sides, having been thrown against the stone embankments, and were smashed to tinder."

FONDLING BABIES NOT THEIR OWN

Chicago, Jan. 31.—"There are in Chicago to-day fully three thousand men fondling infants that are not their own, but babies adopted by their wives—and the 'fathers' are none the wiser."

This was the statement made yesterday by Lyman W. Rogers, treasurer of the National Maternity Hospital, from which institution he says some two hundred and fifty infants are adopted into good homes every year.

Of these two hundred and fifty infants, more than one-half are believed by the "fathers" to be their own, he declared. A majority of the babies he said, enter homes in stations high above those which they would otherwise occupy.

"It is rare," said Mr. Rogers, "that a husband wants a child that is not his own blood. If some husbands who are bringing up children knew the truth about them, I tremble to think what the consequences would be."

JURY ACCEPTED THE JOKE PLEA

Saskatoon, Sask., Jan. 31.—A peculiar verdict in the Supreme Court has caused Judge Prendergast to dilate on the question of incapable juries and the advisability of doing away with the jury system.

A woman known as "Babe" Belanger was on trial for attempting to bribe a Northwest Mounted Policeman. It was proved that she wrote the letter offering $100 for immunity in keeping a house of ill-fame.

She admitted the letter, but stated it was a joke, and the jury, after five and a half hours' consideration brought in a verdict of not guilty, to the amazement of the court.

PREPARING TO RECOVER BODIES

Cherry, Ill., Jan. 31.—This little town is steeling itself for the ordeal of exhumation that is expected this week, following the promised unsealing to-morrow of the St. Paul mine, in which the bodies of more than 200 coal miners have been entombed since Nov. 13, when fire caused the death of some 350 men.

A snowstorm is blowing up and the oxygen helmet men have not arrived from the University of Illinois, so the prospects are that the lid which has kept the mine closed for two months will not be pried off the shaft mouth before Tuesday. As it is not certain that the fire in the mine is extinguished, nothing definite towards the recovery of the bodies will be planned until experts, protected with oxygen helmets, have explored the shaft.

Starts Huge Morse Petition.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Agents on Saturday began a house-to-house canvass in this city seeking signatures to a monster petition to be presented to President Taft for the pardon of Banker Morse, who has begun to serve a fifteen-year sentence in the Atlanta penitentiary.

BRITISH PARTIES AGREE THAT LORDS MUST BE CHANGED

Liberals Are Anxious to Put in Force Their Plans and Unionists Declare That Moderate Alterations Are Required—Cabinet Changes.

London, Jan. 31.—With Premier Asquith on the continent and Chancellor Lloyd-George closely following him, the politicians are all resting on their arms, discussing what lines of battle will be taken up in the new Parliament.

The moral generally drawn from the elections is that the country does not want radical conditions in the House of Lords or in the Government policies. The spirit of conciliation, therefore, is abroad, and schemes for a compromise are being debated.

The Conservative papers propose the most interesting plan—that a joint Cabinet be chosen from the most moderate men of both parties to carry on the Government for about two years, and that a truce be declared on party questions in the meantime.

The newspaper scheme of coalition Government is not taken seriously by the Liberals, who, having won a victory, even if a very narrow one, object to having their opponents dictate the program. Lord Rosebery's name is put forward for the Premiership in the compromise Cabinet, but Rosebery has for a long time refused office, and his popularity now is at a low mark because of his course on the budget issues.

The reform of the House of Lords seems to be the one thing assured. Both parties support it now. The Conservatives and the Lords themselves are willing to adopt a moderate change immediately, lest reforms which would knock the foundations from the Upper House be carried.

The result is likely to be the abolition of the hereditary principle, and no longer shall these and succeeding generations be given a vote except those who shall prove their fitness to legislate by service in the House of Commons, in civil office, or in the army or navy.

The Conservatives are willing that the Lords shall be deprived of the power to hold up taxation bills; provided nothing which could be considered new legislation shall be included in those bills.

The Liberals want to deprive the House of Lords of the power to veto any bill whatsoever. They would compel the Lords to adopt any bill sent to them for the third time by the House of Commons, which, while making the House of Commons consider a rejected bill carefully, would give that body the power to pass in one session any legislation on which it had determined.

It is taken for granted that the House of Lords will pass the budget, but the Cabinet may be obliged to erase the whisky taxes in order to get the votes of the Irish members.

Beyond the reform of the House of Lords and the passing of the budget, Parliament is not likely to get far with anything. The Irish members probably will obtain the introduction of a home rule measure, but the Conservatives will oppose that solidly, and a number of Liberals are against home rule also.

Several Cabinet changes are probable when the new Government is formed. Reginald McKenna, who has been unpopular as First Lord of the Admiralty, will likely be dropped. He may be given a peerage. Richard B. Haldane, Secretary of State for War, may become head of the navy.

John Burns, President of the Local Government Board, will probably succeed Herbert J. Gladstone as Home Secretary. Winston Spencer Churchill will take the place vacanted by John Burns, and they will each receive $25,000, instead of $12,000, as salaries, the latter post having been raised by the last Parliament.

ENGINEER IS KILLED AND TWO INJURED IN WRECK ON T.H. & B.

Hamilton, Jan. 31.—Henry Rumpie, 195 Homewood avenue, an engineer, was killed, and James Hurdman, 207 South Locke street, a fireman, and George Beamsley, brakeman, were injured in a wreck in the T., H. & B. freight belt line, near the Jockey Club, yesterday morning about eight o'clock. The dead man had been married only seven weeks.

The crew had been engaged all night in gathering up the freight in the spur line, and were making their last trip when the accident occurred. The engine had just passed under the bridge of the main line of the G.T.R., some forty feet, when it jumped the rails and plunged into an embankment. It was thrown across the track, and two cars, loaded with pig iron, piled up on top of it. Some of the pig iron was shot into the cab of the engine, and a piece struck the engineer, killing him almost instantly. Fireman Hurdman was not seriously injured.

Brakeman Beamsley, who was lying flat on the top of the third car from the engine while the train was passing under the bridge, was shot along the car and into the pig iron, but was not badly hurt. The conductor, Thomas Kelly, 83 East Ferrie street, was on the back of the train and escaped uninjured.

The engine was a total wreck, and the cars caught fire from it, but the flames were extinguished by a bucket brigade from Crown Point.

Coroner Hoskins will hold an inquest. The funeral of Engineer Rumple will take place Wednesday afternoon.

MAYORALTY CONTEST AT MONTREAL

"The French-Canadians cannot and should not forget the unjust manner in which her fellow-countrymen are treated by the Irish in the New England states. They should, in fact, make their protestations known whenever an occasion offers. The Franco-Americans to whom the Irish bishops refuse to render justice are right in counting upon the spirit of solidarity. The French-Canadians of New England, whom the Irish bishops and priests compel to pray to God in English, look to us for assistance in the combat they are carrying on. And again, those valiant Acadians who have patiently and patriotically prepared their resurrection as a people are likewise under the yoke of the Irish episcopacy, who refuse them their rightful share of authority and prestige in the church to which they belong.

"In order, therefore, to avenge the wrongs of these people let us vote against Dr. Guerin. Compatriots remember!"

$2,000,000 LOST IN HEN FRUIT

New York, Jan. 31.—Speculators in storage eggs in this city have lost from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 this season. Wholesale dealers say that the profits made last year in eggs had lured many to invest heavily last summer, but this year, although fresh eggs have been unusually high in price, the stored product has been a burden to the owners.

Murdered by Fire.

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 31.—Her clothes saturated with oil, pieces of a lace curtain tied tightly about her neck, another piece binding her feet the dead and scorched body of Mrs Alice Vanrandt was found lying across a gas stove in the kitchen at her home.

Every indication points to murder the police say.

Fourteen Sicilians, convicted at Toledo, Ohio, of Black Hand crimes, were sentenced to terms ranging from two to sixteen years in prison.

Police searched the St. Petersburg apartment of Col. Manuiloff yesterday, formerly chief of the Russian secret police in Paris, and confiscated a large number of documents.

Prof. A. P. Coleman of Toronto University has been awarded the Murchison medal by the Royal Geological Society of London, Eng., distinguished geological investig... The Murchison medal was found by Sir Frederick Murchison.

John Raycroft, 20 Milton avenue, Hamilton, was caught in a shafting at the International Harvester Co.'s works Saturday night, and was whirled about, his head striking against the wall. He was taken in an unconscious condition to the City Hospital.

Lloyd Dixon, M.A., has been appointed Rhodes' scholar for New Brunswick for 1910. The appointment was made by Mount Allison University, Dixon being the choice from six candidates. The senate of Dalhousie College on Saturday selected John Erskine Read, B.A., ('09), son of Dr. H. H. Read of Halifax, for the Nova Scotia Rhodes' scholarship.

WHAT IS THIS ALL ABOUT?

Regarding the annual meeting of the East Riding Liberal Association a Globe despatch says:

"The meeting adopted the proposal to hold a series of meetings in different parts of the riding at early dates during the present session to be addressed by prominent Liberal members of Parliament."

THE FLOODS ARE RECEDING AND PARISIANS ARE HAPPY

The Rate of the Fall of Water, However, Shows That at at its Present Speed the Flood Will Not Have Withdrawn for Two Weeks.

Paris, Jan. 31.—While the most imminent peril is over, the fall of the Seine since Saturday morning has only measured 15 1-2 inches.

At this rate it would require a fortnight for the river to reach its normal level. Fortunately, tidings from the flooded sections above Paris give hope of a more rapid subsidence after today.

In the meantime, the situation in Paris, and in many places throughout the country, shows little improvement. Indeed, the ravages of the flood within the city seemed actually to increase yesterday. The water was higher in some parts, while the situation at the inundated towns between Paris and St. Germain was distinctly graver.

A stream of water 12 feet deep was rushing through Gennevilliers and Colombes, making the work of rescue more difficult even than on Saturday. Several of the houses collapsed, and many persons were taken off the roofs of their homes, where they had been clinging for days.

Hundreds are reported without food or shelter, and all day an army of troops and civilians worked in the flooded territory distributing provisions by boats to the thousands of victims who refused to quit their homes.

Last night the city was plunged in darkness, relieved only by the campfires of the soldiers at the water edges, or the flickering torch of some floating sentinel, reflected wierdly in the water-covered areas that once were streets and avenues. The Champ Elysees, the pathway of brilliant light, last night had hand lanterns strung along the curbs. The usually gay boulevards are wrapped in silence and darkness.

The restaurants and cafes are reduced to dim candles and Venetian lamps. Most of the theatres are closed, but the Comedie Francaise, with both its electricity and heat gone, was open, Jules Claretie, the manager, explaining to the meagre audience before the curtain rose, that he considered that the national theatre of France should not close its doors.

"We will give a performance," he said, "with candles, as in the days of Moliere, and show the world that Paris can be as heroic as in the time of revolution."

Although there is no intention on the part of the Government to declare martial law, the completely submerged districts, such as Javel, are in the hands of the military, to prevent pillaging. The soldiers have orders to give short shrift to criminals caught looting. Thus far there have been no such cases within the city, but the danger is great, as the French usually keep their money and valuables in their homes.

Outside of Paris, however, many deplorable instances of looting have been reported. A regular band of thieves have been at work in the vicinity of Charenton, but the soldiers have been shooting them at sight. The Zouaves Saturday night killed two of the pillagers at Ivry and two at Brie. These ghouls have now transferred their operations to the devastated parts below Paris, pillaging the deserted villas and homes.

News comes from the suburbs that there the apaches, despite the threat that no quarter will be given them by the soldiers, are trying to loot where there are signs of the greatest desolation.

At St. Maurice a band of apaches invaded a first aid post where several rescued persons were lying injured. After doing all possible damage to the articles in the place, apparently out of pure deviltry, they left, taking with them the clothing of the refugees. As soon as this was known at Vincennes a crowd hanged the first apache they could catch.

A serious incident occurred at the commissariat of police, which has been removed to the Quai de l'Horloge. Saturday night a legion of rats invaded the premises. The superintendent believing the offices were attacked by hooligans, rushed to the rescue armed with a revolver. He had a terrible time saving himself from the hungry horde. After emptying his revolver he fought desperately with a stick and with his fists. He was badly bitten.

Everywhere special kiosks have been erected for the sale of picture postcards, since all France is anxious to see pictures of the condition of Paris.

BOGUS MASONS CAUSE OF A SENSATION AT WINDSOR

Windsor, Jan 31.—A daring attempt by a small party of imposters to secure admission to a prominent Masonic lodge in this city was frustrated Friday night by the vigilance of the lodge officers, who had been notified in advance of the probable attempt to gain admission.

Information was received that a man known as Dr. Goodrich would apply at the Windsor Masonic temple and after registering in the usual manner, try to make his way into the lodge room without undergoing the usual preliminaries required of all strangers who claim Masonic affiliations.

The man made his appearance, and with him were two young men who gave their names as Milkins. All claimed to belong to Acacia Lodge of Wyandotte, Mich.

The two young men who accompanied Goodrich were astonished by their reception in Windsor. Both claimed to have paid Goodrich a sum of money, in return for which he agreed to administer the first three regular Masonic degrees.

These degrees, the young men asserted, had been given them by Goodrich in a small room in Wyandotte, which Goodrich had rented, and when he had informed them he would shortly organize a regular lodge of Free Masons to operate under the Grand Lodge of Scotland.

When informed that they had been duped and that their Masonic knowledge was "faked," the young men asked to be permitted to depart for home at once.

FOURTEEN YEARS FOR A SMUGGLER

Portland, Maine, Jan. 31.—Fourteen years in the federal prison at Atlanta was the sentence imposed Saturday upon William J. Kelley of Richmond, N.B., an alleged notorious smuggler, who for ten years defied the revenue officers. Kelley was captured last fall after a fight with deputy sheriffs and was convicted of shooting an officer in 1903.

Kelley is the man whose alleged "abduction" by U. S. officials from New Brunswick was brought up in the Dominion Parliament, and concerning whom F. B. Carvell, M.P., interviewed the state attorney. It was argued that Kelley had been lured close to the border and then seized and rushed into Uncle Sam's territory.

THE LITTLE CZAREWITCH REPORTED ILL

St. Petersburg, Jan. 31.—The little Czarewitch is in the hands of the court physician, Dr. Botkin. He suffered an injury to his leg just above the ankle more than three months ago when playing with Grand Duke Nicholas in the garden of the Livadia Palace.

The slowness of his progress is the first sign the Czarewitch has given of any tendency to constitutional weakness.

Wed on a "Dare"; Can't Pay Board.

New York, Jan. 31.—Lieut. Arthur Barton, of the 60th Rifles, Nottingham, is in the care of the police for not paying a board bill of $173 due a local hotel for accommodation for himself and wife. Barton told the judge he had married his wife, formerly of Springfield, Mass., a few weeks ago on a "dare."

OHIO TO HAVE MEAT INQUIRY

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 31.—Cleveland was Saturday selected as the centre of the state-wide probe into the cost of living to be instituted early next week by the legislative investigating committee.

The Summit County grand jury, after a two-week session, adjourned, declaring that "A part at least of the increased prices is due to unlawful and artificial means caused by way of combinations and agreements to control prices. We refer to the large meat packers, to the railroad and the transportation companies, cold storage concerns and wholesale dealers in large distributing centres."

ALLEGE BREACH OF ALIEN LABOR LAW

Guelph, Jan. 31.—As the result of a mass meeting held in the Trades and Labor Hall, the attention of the Ottawa Government is to be called to the alleged violation of Canada's immigration laws in the importation of ten British weavers to take the places of striking weavers, who were employed by the Guelph Carpet Mills.

Will Prosecute Harriman Lines.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The petition of Maxwell Evarts and ex-Senator John C. Spooner for dismissal of the suit against the Harriman lines for alleged violation of the Sherman law was considered at the Cabinet meeting Saturday, and it was decided that the prosecution by the Government should be continued.

Finds "a Fish With Legs."

Pittsburg, Jan. 31.—A tin box marked "Handle with care" arrived at the Carnegie Institute yesterday containing a specimen of scaleless aquatic life, called popularly "a fish with legs," found by Dr. John Haseman at Manoas, Brazil. The discovery is most important to zoologists.

ALLARD WINS IN OTTAWA

Liberal Candidate Defeats Dr. Chabot by 728—Secured the French Vote.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—Robert Allard (Lib.) is the new member of Parliament for Ottawa, having been successful in Saturday's bye-election. His majority over Dr. Chabot (Con.) was 728, an increase, in a total vote of about 12,000. He won out in the French-Canadian section of the city.

The vacancy was caused by the resignation of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who in the general elections was elected for two seats, and who not long since decided to stay with his Quebec constituents.

The big civil service vote here rendered the Conservative candidate's prospects gloomy from the start.

MANUFACTURERS HAVE DINNER IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 31.—Six hundred representative manufacturers, mostly men of wealth, ate a dinner Saturday at the Machinery Club, of nothing but vegetables and fruit. Wholesalers are agitating for a repeal of the duty on Canadian, Argentine and Mexican beef.

"Look at the London market," said one of them. "Free competition with the beef of Canada, the Argentines and even Russia rules the market, with the result that an Englishman can eat Canadian beef grown just across the border from us, cheaper than Americans can eat their own western steers."

"Eat no meat," in large letters, was pasted all over the west side Saturday on shop windows and in many private houses. Twelve of the posters are in butcher shops.

BEET SUGAR PLAN FAILED

London, Jan. 31.—Another attempt to establish the beet sugar industry in England has failed. Land owners, farmers and business men had co-operated extensively in an effort to raise capital for the erection of the first factory of that kind in this country at Sleaford, in Lincolnshire. Agriculturists in the district had bound themselves to grow certain quantities of sugar beets, but the plan finally has fallen through because but $100,000 of the estimated $630,000 wanted could be obtained by public subscription.

LONDON WILL NOT BOYCOTT BUTCHERS

London, Ont., Jan 31.—An effort to start a boycott in London against the price of meats has met with little success. The people here feel the high prices, but in comparison with other cities of any size butchers' charges are reasonable.

The police statistics of London for 1909 show that 2,435 people appeared before the beak. Of these, 1,600 were charged with drunkenness.

GAS EXPLOSION INJURES MANY

Special to the Review.

Leroy, N. Y., Jan. 31.—An explosion of natural gas in the house occupied by James Derider and family immediately following the total destruction of the Genesee Hotel about 3 o'clock this morning caused injuries to twenty-one persons, some of them being injured more or less seriously. A large crowd of people had followed an injured man into the Derider home when an explosion of gas occurred. Two sides of the house were blown out and the people were blown through doors and windows.

COULD NOT CROSS BEFORE MARRIAGE WAS SOLEMNIZED

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 31.—Before Geo. E. Smith, 24 years old, and Evelyn Davidson, 26 years old, of Guelph, Ont., were permitted to enter the United States Saturday night, the immigration department compelled them to return to Canada and get married. This was done, the immigration officers say, in order that the couple would not be inconvenienced by the matrimonial laws of New York state.

The couple returned to this side, where they were married. On showing marriage certificate yesterday morning they were allowed to proceed to New York.

Shot at Five Times.

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 31.—Because he refused to contribute to a Black Hand fund, T. Brunp, a young member of the local Italian colony, was shot Saturday at midnight. Five bullets were fired at him by Dominic Marsten, a fellow countryman, who emptied his revolver at Bruns as the latter rushed up the stairway of the Klondike Hotel. Bruno was not seriously wounded.

RURAL SCHOOLS

Inspector Lees, county Inspector of Public Schools, reports that the condition of rural education in the county of Peterborough is not by any means what it ought to be. The frequent change of teachers and the failure to compel a rigid observance or even a reasonable observance of the Truancy Act, are the two chief causes of this unfortunate state of affairs.

A school system is not to be judged by its best productions, but by its worst. If a number of schools and school sections are in the condition pointed out, then the state of education in Peterborough County must be described as below the condition necessary to the future welfare of the children. In the near future the men and women whose early education has been neglected will not be by any means of the requisite grade of citizenship. A very grave responsibility rests upon trustees who allow this lax state of affairs to continue. Mr. Lees has done his duty in a firm and fearless way. It is for the authorities and people of this county to take this message of his strictly to heart. The present age is one pre-eminently of "efficiency," and a neglected school section will become a centre of present and future inefficiency which it will take years to reform. In the meantime it will be a black spot on the reputation of the rural population, which that population does not deserve.

An uneducated and undisciplined scholar is an unequipped and undesirable representative in any capacity in the future, and what is more, not being able to take his place amongst his fellows in the community, he sinks into a lower grade of humanity, which should be the last thing any board of trustees should be so careless as to permit.

In cities, towns, &c., the education of the young is being very carefully looked to, and the Ontario Government is doing everything it can to help out the same good work in the country districts. Why, then, are there school sections in which such laxity prevails as that described by Inspector Lees? A duty plainly rests upon the County Council to see that the inspector is backed up and the reforms suggested, made, so far as lies in their power, both collectively and as individuals.

The commissioners have refused to renew the licenses to two restaurateurs on the ground that there was no need of their places in the neighborhood in which they were seeking to do business. The law contemplates that where there is no need of a hotel or a restaurant none shall be established. The idea has not always been observed, and it is possible that something akin to individual hardship may in cases follow its application now. It is better, though, that the spirit of the statute should be adhered to, not only for the local community but for the trade. Much of the opposition that from time to time bothers the licensed victuallers arises from the feeling that there is no need for so many of them.—The Montreal Gazette.

Military Man in Trouble.

Halifax, N.S., Jan. 29.—There is a sensation in military circles owing to awkward predicament of an officer, well up in the artillery, who is at present confined to the barracks, and will be tried by a military tribunal.

For a short time back bailiffs and collectors have been after the officer referred to, and some personal belongings went to satisfy the creditors. When on furlough, he was embassed in the belief that he was leaving the city. He seemed to have contracted accounts which he was unable to pay and judgments against him were registered.

But his latest trouble seems to be from military sources, and it is claimed indebtedness to some branch or department with which he was connected is a serious matter from a military standpoint.

The officer referred to, who is a man of family, came from Quebec and is well connected there.

Unionists Lead by One.

London, Jan. 29.—The position of the parties last night is as follows:
Unionists, 264.
Liberals, 263.
Laborites, 40.
Nationalists, 77.

Now that the electoral struggle is on the point of closing, the curious effect is seen of both parties claiming victory and both supporting their claim with plausible argument, broadly speaking, on the question of free trade against protection.

It cannot be said that the elections have decided anything, and it is difficult to judge whether the country as a whole is tending one way or the other.

There were five Unionists gains in the few returns reported yesterday, including Buteshire, in Scotland.

Unable to Secure Work.

This was the end that faced Thos. Miller, a boilermaker, with a wife and nine children to support, who has been out of work for several months and who hanged himself in the cellar of his home at 103 Cherry street yesterday morning. After he had been turned down on a position that he had hoped to get.

Miller returned home after the refusal and went to his room. There he threw himself upon his bed and wept. In a short time he went downstairs and seemed resigned. He went into the cellar. About 15 minutes later his son followed and found him swinging from a beam by a piece of clothesline. He was quite dead.

In the cold house where they lived in abject poverty for months the family of nine children and the mother who is sick sit alone with their misery in hopeless despair.

Chinese Laundryman Shot.

Walkerton, Jan. 31.—Some unknown party fired a shot through the back window of a Chinese laundry Friday night and struck the proprietor, Harry Wing, in the arm. He bled considerably and was taken to the hospital. The wound is not dangerous.

Fee in Mining Deal of $500,000.

Denver, Jan. 31.—John Hays Hammond, the noted mining engineer, and highest-salaried man in the world, has received a $500,000 fee for negotiating the sale of San Gertrudis mine, in Mexico, to the Camp Bird, Limited, for something over $7,000,000.

Request Government Ownership.

Ottawa, Jan. 29.—Renewing the request that the Government take over the grain elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur, a deputation of the Manitoba Grain Growers' Association and the Millers' Association conferred with Sir Richard Cartwright yesterday. It was argued that better inspection, closer supervision, prevention of fraud and improved conditions to the farmer generally would result from Government ownership. The cost would be around $8,000,000.

The Forty-Third Victim.

Sudbury, Jan. 29.—The body of Charles Duff, has been recovered from the Spanish River. A sister lives in St. John, N.B. He was en route to Oregon.

George A. Tees, of Cochrane, whose seven-year-old daughter and father-in-law perished in the wreck, is further bereaved yesterday by the death of his wife, who had been critically ill for sometime, and who died without knowing of the tragedy.

Lawyer Patrick Disbarred.

New York, Jan. 29.—Albert T. Patrick, who has been a prisoner for nearly ten years, and who is now serving a life sentence in Sing Sing Prison for the murder of Millionaire Wm. Marsh Rice, was yesterday formally disbarred as a practicing lawyer by the appellate division of the Supreme Court. Taking advantage of his position as a member of the Bar, Patrick has been able to fight his case for years.

Comet Has Two Tails.

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 29.—Professor A. E. Douglas, observer at the University of Arizona, reports that comet A. 1910, is double tailed. Wednesday night the second tail was noted, branching off due south with the other pointing straight upward. Prof. Douglas estimated the length of the double tail at 25 degrees, the longest since the comet of 1882.

Smuggled Furs as Furniture.

New York, Jan. 31.—Customs agents Saturday seized fifty pieces of fur from Canada, valued in all at $1,000. According to Collector Loeb, they were shipped from London, Ont., to a Brooklyn address as household goods, free of duty, and were so entered at Suspension Bridge, Niagara Falls.

"When the officers examined the car," said Mr. Loeb, "they found a large quantity of skins and manufactured furs concealed under kitchen utensils and other household effects."

Flying Machine Pirates.

CHAPTER I.

THE LATE MR. SKAGGS.

THE death of Taswell Skaggs was stimulating, to say the least, inapplicable though the expression may seem. He attained the end of a hale old age by tumbling aimlessly into the mouth of a crater on the island of Japat, somewhere in the mysterious south seas. The world had quite thoroughly forgotten him during the twenty odd years immediately preceding his death. It was, however, noticeably worth while to remember him at this particular time. He left a last will and testament that bade fair to distress as well as startle a great many people on both sides of the Atlantic.

In Boston the law firm of Bowen & Hare was puzzling itself beyond reason in the effort to anticipate and circumvent the plans of the firm of Bosworth, Newnes & Grapewin, London, E. C., while on the other side of the Atlantic Messrs. Bosworth, Newnes & Grapewin were blindly struggling to do precisely the same thing in relation to Messrs. Bowen & Hare.

Without seeking to further involve myself I shall at once conduct the reader to the nearest of these law offices.

"Pretty badly tangled, I declare," said Mr. Hare, staring helplessly at his senior partner.

"Hopelessly," agreed Mr. Bowen, very much as if he had at first intended to groan.

Before them on the table lay the contents of a bulky envelope, a long and stupendous letter from their London correspondents and with it a copy of Taswell Skaggs' will. Mr. Bowen recently had been named as joint executor of the will, together with Sir John Allencrombie of London, W. C., one time neighbor of the late Mr. Skaggs. A long and exasperating cablegram had touched somewhat irresolutely upon the terms of the will, besides notifying him that one of the heirs resided in Boston. He was instructed to apprise this young man of his good fortune.

There was one very important, perhaps imposing, feature in connection with the old gentleman's will—he was decidedly sound of mind and body when it was uttered.

When such astute lawyers as Bowen & Hare give up to amazement, the usual forerunner of consternation, it is high time to regard the case as startling.

"Read it again, Bowen."

"The will?"

"No; the letter."

Whereupon Mr. Bowen again read aloud the letter from Bosworth, Newnes & Grapewin, this time slowly and speculatively.

"They seem as much upset by the situation as we," he observed reflectively.

"Extraordinary state of affairs, I must say."

"And I don't know what to do about it. I don't even know how to begin. They're both married."

"And not to each other."

"She's the wife of a Lord knows what of a lord, and he's married to an uncommonly fine girl, they say, notwithstanding the fact that she has larger social aspirations than he has means."

"And if that all important clause in the will is not carried out to the letter the whole fortune goes to the bowwows."

"Practically the same thing. He calls them 'natives;' that's all. It looks to me as though the bowwows will get the old man's millions. I don't see how anything short of Providence can alter the situation."

"Thank heaven, Bowen, he names you as executor, not me."

"I shall decline to serve. It's an impossible situation, Hare. In the first place, Skaggs was not an intimate friend of mine. I met him in Constantinople five years ago and afterward handled some business for him in New York. He had no right to impose upon me as if"—

"But why should you hesitate? You have only to wait for the year to roll by and then turn your troubles over to the natives. Young Browne can't marry Miss Ruthven inside of a year simply because there is no Miss Ruthven. She's Lady—Lady—what's the name?"

"Deppingham."

"And Browne already has one Mrs. Browne to his credit, don't you see. Well, that settles it, I'd say. It's hardly probable that Browne will murder or divorce his wife, nor is it likely that her ladyship would have the courage to dispose of her incumbrance in either way on such short notice."

"But it means millions to them, Hare."

"That's their unfortunate lookout. You are to act as an executor, not as a matrimonial agent."

"But, man, it's an outrage to give all of it to those wretched islanders. Bosworth says that rubies and sapphires grow there like mushrooms."

"Bosworth also says that the islanders are thrifty, intelligent and will fight for their rights. There are lawyers among them, he says, as well as jewel diggers and fishermen."

"Skaggs and Lady Deppingham's grandfather were the only white men who ever lived there long enough to find out what the island had stored up for civilization. That's why they bought it outright, but I'm hanged if I can see why he wants to give it back to the natives."

"Perhaps he owes it to them. He doubtless bought it for a song, and, contrary to all human belief, he may have resurrected a conscience. Anyhow, there remains a chance for the heirs to break the will."

"It can't be done, Hare; it can't be done. It's as clean an instrument as ever survived a man."

It is by this time safe for the reader to assume that Mr. Taswell Skaggs had been a rich man and therefore privileged to be eccentric. He came of a sound old country family in upper England, but seems to have married a bit above his station. His wife was serving as governess in the home of a certain earl when Taswell won her heart and dragged her from the exalted position of minding other people's children into the less conspicuous one of caring for her own.

Their only son was killed by a runaway horse when he was twenty, and their daughter became the wife of an American named Browne when she was scarcely out of her teens. It was then that Mr. Skaggs, practically childless, determined to make himself wifeless as well.

He magnanimously deeded the unentailed farm to his wife, turned his securities into cash and then set forth upon a voyage of exploration. It is common history that upon one dark, still night in December he said goodby forever to the farm and its mistress, but it is doubtful if either of them heard him.

To be "jolly well even" with him Mrs. Skaggs did a most priggish thing. She died six months later, but before doing so she made a will in which she left the entire estate to her daughter, effectually depriving the absent husband of any chance to reclaim his own.

Taswell Skaggs was in Shanghai when he heard the news. It was on a Friday. His informant was that erstwhile friend Jack Wyckholme. Naturally Skaggs felt deeply aggrieved with the fate which permitted him to capitulate when unconditional surrender was so close at hand. His language for one brief quarter of an hour did more to upset the progress of Christian endeavor in the far east than all the idols in the Chinese empire.

"There's nawthin' in England for me, Jackie. My gal's a bloomin' foreigner by this time, and she'll sell the bleedin farm, of course. She's an American. God bless 'er 'eart. I dare say if I'd go to 'er and say I'd like my farm back again she'd want to fork hover, but 'er husband wouldn't be for that sort of hextravagance. 'E'd boot me off the 'sland."

"The United States isn't an island, Tazzy," explained Mr. Wyckholme gulping his brandy and soda.

Mr. Wyckholme was the second son of Sir Somebody-or-other and had married the vicar's daughter. This put him into such bad odor with his family that he hurried off to the dogs—and a goodly sized menagerie besides if the records of the inebriate's asylum at to be credited. His wife, after enduring him for sixteen years, secured a divorce. Accepting the world as his home, he ventured forth to visit every nook and cranny of it. In course of time he came upon his old time neighbor and boyhood friend, Taswell Skaggs, in the city of Shanghai. Neither of them had seen the British isles in two years or more.

"There remains a chance for the heirs to break the will."

"Haven't I been there, old chap? A year or more? It's a rotten big place where gentlemen aspire to sell gloves and handkerchiefs and needlework over the shop counters. You know, Tazzy, I could well afford to starve, and I wouldn't sell things, so I came away. But it's no island."

"Well, that's neither here nor there, Jackie. I 'aven't a 'ome, and you 'aven't a 'ome, and we're wanderers on the face of the earth. My wife played me a beastly trick, dyin' like that. I say marriage is a bloomin' nuisance."

"Marriage, my boy, is the convalescence from a love affair. One wants to get out the worst way, but has to stay in till he's jolly well cured. For my part, I'm never going back to England."

"Nor I. It would be just like me, Jackie, to 'ave a relapse and never get out again."

The old friends took an inventory. Jack Wyckholme, gentleman's son and ne'er-do-well, possessed £9 and a fraction, an appetite and excellent spirits, while Taswell Skaggs exhibited a balance of £1,000 in a Shanghai bank, a fairly successful trade in Celestial necessities and an unbounded eagerness to change his luck.

"I have a proposition to make to you, Tazzy," said Mr. Wyckholme late in the night.

"I think I'll listen to it, Jackie," replied Mr. Skaggs, quite soberly.

As the outcome of this midnight proposition Taswell Skaggs and John Wyckholme arrived two months later at the tiny island of Japat, somewhere south of the Arabian sea, there to remain until their dying days and there to accumulate the wealth which gave the first named a chance to make an extraordinary will. For thirty years they lived on the island of Japat. Wyckholme preceded Skaggs to the grave by two winters, and he willed his share of everything to his partner of thirty years' standing. But there was a proviso in Wyckholme's bequest, just as there was in that of Skaggs. Each had made his will some fifteen years or more before death, and each had bequeathed his fortune to the survivor. At the death of the survivor the entire property was to go to the grandchild of each testator, with certain reservations to be mentioned later on, each having by investigation discovered that he possessed a single grandchild.

The island of Japat had been the home of a Mohammedan race, the outgrowth of Arabian adventurers who had fared far from home many years before Wyckholme happened upon the island by accident. It was a British possession, and there were two or three thousand inhabitants, all Mohammedans. Skaggs and Wyckholme purchased the land from the natives, protected and eased their rights with the government and proceeded to realize on what the natives had unwittingly prepared for them. In course of time the natives repented of the deal which gave the Englishmen the right to pick and sell the rubies and other precious stones that they had been trading away for such trifles as silks, gewgaws and women. A revolution was imminent, whereupon the owners organized the entire population into a great stock company, retaining four-fifths of the property themselves. This seemed to be a satisfactory arrangement, despite the fact that some of the more warlike leaders were difficult to appease. It is only necessary to add that the beautiful island of Japat, standing like an emerald in the sapphire waters of the orient, brought millions in money to the two men who had been unlucky in love.

And now, after more than thirty years of voluntary exile, both of them were dead, and both of them were buried in the heart of an island of rubies, their deed and their deeds remaining to posterity—with reservations.

CHAPTER II.

AN EXTRAORDINARY DOCUMENT.

IT appears that the Messrs. Skaggs and Wyckholme as their dual career drew to a close set about to learn what had become of their daughters. Investigation proved that Wyckholme's daughter had married a London artist named Ruthven. The Ruthvens in turn had one child, a daughter. Wyckholme's wife and his daughter died when this grandchild was eight or ten years old. By last report the grandchild was living with her father in London. She was a pretty young woman, with scores of admirers on her hands and a very level head on her shoulders.

Wyckholme held to his agreement with Skaggs by bequeathing his share of the property to him, but it was definitely set forth that at the death of his partner it was to go to Agnes Ruthven, the grandchild—with reservations.

Skaggs found that his daughter, who married Browne, the American, likewise had died, but that she had left behind a son and heir. This son, Robert Browne, was in school when the joint will was designed, and he was to have Skaggs' fortune at the death of Wyckholme in case that worthy survived.

In order to keep the business and the property intact and under the perpetual control of one partnership the granddaughter of Wyckholme was to marry the grandson of Skaggs within the year after the death of the surviving partner. The penalty to be imposed upon them if the conditions were not complied with, neither to be excusable for the defection of the other, lay in the provision that the whole industry and its accumulated fortune, including the land (and they owned practically the entire island), were to go to the islanders. Wyckholme named Sir John Allencrombie as one executor, and Skaggs selected Alfred Bowen of Boston as the other.

As Wyckholme was the first to die, Skaggs became sole owner of the island and its treasures, and it was he who made the final will in accordance with the original plans.

The island of Japat, with its jewels and its ancient chateau, of modern construction, represented several million pounds sterling. Wyckholme's dream of erecting an exact replica of a famous old chateau found response in the equally whimsical Skaggs, who constantly bemoaned the fact that it was impossible to spend money. For five years after its completion the two old men, with an army of Arabian retainers and Nubian slaves, lived like oriental potentates in the huge structure on the highlands overlooking the sea.

Skaggs seldom went from one part of his home to another without a guide. It was so vast and so labyrinthine that he feared he might become lost forever. The dungeon below the chateau and the moat with its bridges were the especial delight of these lonely, romantic old chaps. One of the builders of this rare pile was now sleeping peacefully in the sarcophagus beneath the chapel; the other was lying dead and undiscovered in the very heart of his possessions.

The magnificent plans of the partners would have been a glorious tribute to romance had it not been for one fatal obstacle. The trouble was that young Miss Ruthven and young Mr. Browne did not know that their grandfathers lived, much less that they owned an island in the south seas. Therefore it is quite natural that they could not have known they were expected to marry each other.

Miss Ruthven, from motives peculiar to the head and not to the heart, set about to earn a title for herself. Three months before the death of Mr. Skaggs she was married to Lord Deppingham, who possessed a title and a country place that rightfully belonged to his creditors. Mr. Browne, just out of college, hung out his shingle as a physician and surgeon and forthwith, with all the confidence his profession is supposed to inspire, proceeded to marry the daughter of a brokerage banker in Boston and at once found himself struggling with the difficulties of Back Bay society.

A clause in the will, letter of instruction attached, demanded that the two grandchildren should take up their residence in the chateau within six months after the death of the testator, there to remain through the compulsory days of courtship, up to and including the wedding day. Four months had already passed. It was also stipulated that the executors should receive £10,000 each at the expiration of their year of servitude, provided it was shown in court that they had carried out the wishes of the testator or in failing had made the most diligent effort within human power.

"It is very explicit," murmured Mr. Hare for the third time. "I suppose the first step is to notify young Mr. Browne of his misfortune. His lordship has the task of breaking the news to Lady Deppingham."

"You are assuming that I intend to act under this ridiculous will."

"Certainly. It means about $50,000 to you at the end of the year, with nothing to do but to notify two persons of the terms in the will. If they're not divorced and married again at the end of the year you and Sir John simply turn everything over to the Malays, or whatever they are. I think it's easy sledding for you."

Young Mr. Browne hastened downtown in response to a message from the American executor and was told of the will which had been filed in England, the home land of the testator. To say that this debonair, good looking young gentleman was flabbergasted would be putting it more than mildly.

"What shall I do—what can I do, Mr. Bowen?" he gasped, bewildered.

ANNUAL CONCERT HELD AT CHEMONG

Successful Function on Thursday Evening — Peterborough Gentleman Was Chairman

The forty-third annual tea and concert of the Chemong Indian Reserve was held on Thursday evening last, and proved to be one of the most successful in the history of the band. The attendance was exceptionally large, and the proceeds amounted to between $75 and $80.

The chair was occupied by A. S. Clarry, of Peterborough, and the programme consisted of songs, dialogues, speeches, selections by the choir, etc. Amongst those who assisted in the programme were Miss Levina Whetung, Miss Hunter, Lakefield; Miss Johnson and Messrs. Gillott, Dan Whetung, Jr., Bowman, and others.

Tea was served in the hall from four o'clock to seven, and the tea room was well patronized.

Altogether the affair was most successful, and the committee should feel highly satisfied.

"THE LAND FOR THE PEOPLE" ONE OF THE LESSONS FOR CANADIAN LIFE FROM BRITAIN

Dr. J. A. MacDonald, Editor of the Globe, Points Out Where We Can Benefit From the Old Land—Slums Must Not be Allowed—Honor Needed in Business Commercial, and Public Life.

PRESERVE THE LAND AND THE WATER FOR THE PEOPLE.

AVOID CONDITIONS THAT WILL LEAD TO SLUMS AND DEGENERACY.

CANADIANS SHOULD SEE THAT HONOR RULES IN THE COMMERCIAL AND PUBLIC LIFE OF THE DOMINION.

These were the three principal points pressed home by Dr. J. A. Macdonald, editor of the Toronto Globe, in his address to the Peterborough Canadian Club Saturday night on "Some Lessons from Britain for Life in Canada."

The function took place at the Hotel National, and the attendance was the largest in the history of the club, nearly two hundred being present. It was a representative audience, and the masterly address of the speaker of the evening was followed with the deepest interest. The officers of the club had made most complete arrangements, and there was not a hitch of any kind. An excellent repast was served by the management of the National, and it was a well-satisfied audience that settled back to listen to Dr. Macdonald.

The editor of the Globe is so well known to Peterborough audiences, that it is unnecessary to dwell upon his ability as a speaker. It is sufficient to say that his address on Saturday night was one of the best that has ever been given in this city.

Mr. D. O'Connell, past president of the club, opened the proceedings by introducing Mr. H. B. H. Kenner, the new president of the club, Mr. Kenner thanked the members of the club for the honor they had done him in electing him president. He was proud to be a member of the Canadian Club and to be a citizen of Canada, a country of wonderful resources, and the figure of whose destiny loomed splendid before us. Canadians had for their background the glorious traditions of England, Scotland, Ireland and France, of whose heirs we are, and the seeds of whose virtues are sown in our blood. The Canadian Club of Peterborough was fortunate in having for its first meeting such an excellent speaker as Dr. J. A. Macdonald.

Mr. Kenner then introduced Dr. Macdonald, who was greeted with loud applause on arising to speak. He spoke in part as follows:

The subject on which I am to speak has the advantage of being quite within the scope and purpose of the Canadian Club. To improve the quality and the conditions of "Life in Canada" is the main objective of this club. Affairs in Britain at this moment are full of interest for Canadians, and if we but read the signs aright we shall find in the British elections both warning and encouragement for our life in Canada.

I do not pretend to any authority in speaking on things in Britain. The problem is too complex, the situation is too critical for me or any other visitor from Canada to be dogmatic in discussing it. One needs to know not only the facts, but the history and the background of the facts, before one speaks with confident assurance. Not even the exceptional opportunities enjoyed in connection with the Imperial Press Conference warrants one in disposing of the vexed questions of life in Britain with an easy wave of the hand.

I am reminded of an incident told me by Mr. Hamar Greenwood at the banquet of the Eighty Club to Mr. Asquith on the evening before I left London. There had been a bye-election in the Peak District that day. Mr. Greenwood had taken part in the campaign. He was speaking in one town when the ubiquitous "heckler," the interesting figure in English political campaigns, persisted in interrupting him. The fellow was partially intoxicated and his questions were inconvenient. Another man rose up in the audience and called out in dialect, "Mister Greenwood, don't you pye any attention to 'im, 'e's no good; 'e's let his wife go to the wuk'us to-dye." The half drunken heckler pulled himself up and said, "Mister Greenwood, Mister Greenwood, don't you. don't you blame me—till you—see—the missments it is important that we see "the measus". We should know the necessary facts.

But, sir, while the native-born has advantage over the visitor in close personal knowledge of the situation here or there in Britain, familiarity may dull our senses to the significance of facts which strike and impress the stranger who comes with fresh eyes and had other experiences and conditions in mind. In what I have to say I shall speak of things as I saw them. I shall try to present some points of instruction and of warning as they impressed me. I select only those that seem to yield lessons for Life in Canada.

THE LESSON OF THE LAND

First, I set the Lesson of the Land. The land situation in Britain is full of instruction and warning for the people of Canada. Broadly, the land is the main source of the nation's wealth. The land is the basis of the people's prosperity. All our great institutions of civilization have their roots either directly or indirectly in the soil. More than on any other one thing the comfort and prosperity of the people depend on the uses they make of the land. Land is limited in area and fixed in location. It cannot be increased. It cannot be transplanted. You can buy a half-dozen motor cars but your abundance does not prevent your neighbor from having his supply. New motor cars can be procured. But if you own or control all the land other people must go without, for more land cannot be made to meet the demand.

In Britain the land situation is made acute by reason of the very large population on a very small area. Nothing but the utmost wisdom could handle the land in Britain so as to deal justly with all the people. But instead of economic wisdom we have the utmost of economic folly. I need not tell you the history of the British land situation. You know how a century or more ago when men accumulated great wealth through investmen t in India, or in America or elsewhere they found it necessary, in order to gain a social standing at home to acquire great estates. The aristocracy of Great Britain was a landed aristocracy. You know too, how great grants of land were made to favorites of the king in return for services in war. It was needful that these landed proprietors should have a class of retainers who could be pressed into service when the king went to war. Men of wealth bought the small farms and the farmers became tenants of the large estates. These tenant farmers were able to pay their land rent, partly out of the farms, and partly out of the small home industries which they conducted. In parts of Scotland the land situation was affected by the Clans System. When that system broke down after Culloden the chiefs of the clans became the landlords of the estates. We now have great Scottish landlords like the Duke of Sutherland, who owns more than a million and a quarter acres of land. The Duke of Buccleuch and the Marquis of Bute with their vast domains, and old clan chiefs like Argyle, the head of the Campbells, and Lochiel, the head of the Camerons. In some cases the men who followed their chiefs to the fields were, after the clan system broke down, compelled to leave the estates and make new homes for themselves beyond the seas. The landlords in England and Scotland, as well as in Ireland, when they got control of great estates, and when they were no longer required to provide hundreds of men for war, found it to their advantage to clear the glens and the moors from their human tenants and to stock them with deer and rabbits and grouse. It has been shown that eighty per cent. of all the land of Britain is held by three per cent. of the people. Is it any wonder the land problem is fixed and will not down? One quarter of all the land of Scotland is held by twelve persons. Is it any wonder, in view of the action of the Lords in throwing out the Scottish Land Bills that the people of Scotland should be keen for the reform of the Lords?

But another influence was at work bearing on the land question. There came a time when the small tenant farmers were unable to pay their rents because of the failure of their home industries. The great industrial revolution, with its establishment of large factories with their industrial machinery, killed the hand weaving, the cobbling and other small industries. The people were compelled to leave their farms and follow other industries in the towns.

Then came the days of the sporting aristocracy. The great landed proprietor found it more profitable to rent his land for shooting privileges than for agricultural purposes. As the leases fell due deer forests were created and grouse moors and rabbit warrens. To-day great areas of Britain are without human habitation. Within a period of five years, including the year 1900, 7,000,000 acres of moor and bogland in Germany were reclaimed for agriculture. During the same five years more than two million acres in Britain were withdrawn from agriculture and given over to grouse and to deer. Again, I ask, is it any wonder that the land problem in Britain is acute?

One of the campaign songs in Britain is "God Made the Land for the People." The sentiment of that refrain needs to be brought home to the people of Canada. Our country is too young to feel the pressure and the pain of the landless people of Britain. But a century of history will make as great a difference in Canada as it has made in England and Scotland. If we squander the resources of land with which this young nation is so richly dowered a generation will arise whose curses on our lands will be as bitter as those that now fall on the Kings and nobles who alienated from the people the lands in Britain a century or two ago.

And not the land only but all the great natural resources of the country. God made them for the people too. He who put fertility into the soil put electric energy in the waterfalls, and ore into the rocks, and timber in the woods, and fish in the waters. He made all these for the people. No King, no Parliament, no one generation has a right to alienate from the people's uses for all time these natural resources which God made for the people's good. I am not talking government ownership or municipal ownership. I am asserting the principle that, whoever may be given control and the right to operate, the objective of it all must be the interests of the many and not of the few. We in Canada to-day are on the eve of unexampled developments. If great corporations or syndicates are allowed to control our resources of land, or water, or mine, or wood, our children and our children's children will have to bear the curse of monopoly and absentee landlordism that has vexed Britain for many generations. It is for this reason I press home my first point that the land situation in Britain is full of instruction and warning for the people of Canada.

BEWARE OF THE SLUMS

My second point is this, and it grows out of my first, that the social situation in British cities is a warning to Canada against allowing slum conditions in our Canadian cities. If the same conditions are allowed the same results will be inevitable. In Britain the slum is the outgrowth of the land situation. Just because the people were driven from the land, just because they were compelled to follow their industries in the towns, there were created those conditions which made the slum inevitable. The crowding of people into industrial centres produced unemployment, and unemployment produced degeneracy. That farming of industries in Britain resulted in over-production, for which there was no market, because the people were not on the land. The depopulation of rural Britain destroyed the home market for the British mills and factories. In the United States thirty-seven per cent of those reported as unemployed in occupation are on the land, producing wealth from the land, and consuming the output of the factories. In Germany thirty-nine per cent. of those employed are on the land, in France forty-four per cent., but in Britain only ten per cent. of those employed in occupations are on the land. No wonder there is no home market; no wonder over-production in the factories produces congestion at home. No wonder congestion produces unemployment, and by the law of life unemployment leads to degeneracy and to the slums.

That law holds for Canada as well as for Britain. We have the beginnings of slum conditions in every one of our large Canadian cities; all that is required is time. Time and the downgrade tendency of life will produce in our midst the results deplored in the old land. For this reason the utmost official care should be taken in the planting of towns, in their surveys, the width of their streets, allotments for parks and gardens, and all those considerations for public health and happiness which reason and experience have approved. It will not do to allow the commercial enterprise of land speculators, or the cupidity of great corporations, to determine the physical conditions under which coming generations shall be born and shall live. Some of the large commercial centres like Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Fort William and Winnipeg, are not without their social perils. Have you read Ralph Connor's new book, "The Foreigner?" The situation in the foreign settlement of Winnipeg there described with all its disgusting animalism and vice is true in fact. Change the names and the language of the people and you have what is essential of other communities. And not in foreign settlements alone, but some in which is spoken the English tongue.

Congestion, unemployment, drink and vice,—these four will convert any district into a slum in two generations. They say in Britain it is not more than three, or at the most, four generations, from the health and vigor of the moor and the glens, to the feckleness and despair of the city slum. And this is a question for you members of the Canadian Club. It concerns everyone of you. No man is safe. No class of the community is safe if there is allowed a festering and a fevered slum within the radius of your city. The down-town tenement is in touch with the up-town villa. Every man of you who cares for the good name and the good life of your city is under obligation to have concern for everything that makes for industrial efficiency, social happiness, and a high standard of life. Democracy means that we are all members one of another, and that if one member suffers degeneracy and decay, all the other members suffer with him.

My third point is this, that the decay of life in rural Britain is a warning to us to have special care for life in rural Canada. No nation is strong that has not strength in its rural communities. From the day that the murderous Cain builded the first city until now, great centres of population have been artificial and have tended to social and moral decay. Life in the city is being constantly renewed and restocked by the incoming from the country of new blood, new brains, new nerves, new muscles and new morals. For many generations the great cities of Britain, London, Liverpool, Manchester, Glasgow, and the rest have been hungry devourers of human life. They have been kept back from self destruction only by the annual recruitments from the moors and the glens. To a surprising degree the management of great enterprises and the leadership of great movements are in the hands of men born in the country homes and educated in country schools. I put it to the great captains of British industry. What would you do if your supply of workmen and clerks, and managers from the country was cut off? I put it to the heads of the great universities. What would you do if you no longer received into your classes the 'lad o' pairts from the country parish? I put it to men responsible for the army, like General Sir Horrace Smith Dorrien at Aldershot: What would you do if there were no more recruits from Devon, or from Yorkshire, or from the Border hills? The answer was the same. The nerve of all their enterprises would be cut; the pride of their achievements would be destroyed; the strength of their might would be gone forever. All the great callings of the nation will suffer irreparable loss if the human breeding places in the country are destroyed and made to give place to the pheasants and the deer. The question for the army was put correctly by Kipling:—

"Will the rabbit war with your foemen; the red deer horn them for hire?
Your kept cock-pheasant keep you?—he is master of many a shire?"

I know quite well that it will be said that rural Britain cannot sustain a large population. A large population may not be needed. What is needed is a good population—good of heart, good of brain, good of blood—and enough for seed. Once there was such a population, but from millions of acres it was swept away. What was left behind too often was the weaklings of the flock, enough only for shillies and caddies and beaters for the sports.

I give one instance of a breeding place of men. It is a glen in the north of Scotland opening into Loch Ness. One side of that glen is a human habitation; the other is wholly given over to game. From the homes of that one side has come generations of men during more than four hundred years, who have given lustre and distinction to British Arts and to British armies all over the world. When I visited the glen in July last the innkeeper gave voice to the pride of the parish. Not in its wealth or its popularity with the aristocrats of the south country, but in its school. "We have 140 children in the school," he said. "We have three M.A.'s on the staff; we prepare the scholars for the university examinations; we are never without our representatives in the great universities of Scotland and England; we had seven firsts in one year." There's a record for you; there's the glory of the Highlands; 140 children in the school and seven firsts in the universities in one year, and ask you about the spending of so much money on the schooling of the children of the glen. This is what the inkeeper said: "Of course they leave us; they go to the cities and they go to Canada, and we are proud of them; the only thing we have to export is educated people." Tell me, is not the maintenance of such an industry worth while? You men who are proud of Canada's exports of bacon and barley, and you who demand higher protection for your infant industries, you who insist in State favours for woollens and breakfast foods, tell me, ought not the rearing of real infants into great men to be encouraged and guarded for the nation's great sake?

And if indeed you would guard and cherish what is kept in the country we must join hands all of us, in the country and town alike, to promote those conditions of life which will make country homes and country life attractive and satisfying. Hence transportation, hence education, hence all those goodels of social life which enrich the mind and encourage the heart. Not only great transcontinental railways and network of electric lines, but also that still more important feature, good roads on all the concessions of all the countries. Every encouragement should be given to country schools and to country school teachers. Rural telephone lines and the supply of electric energy wherever it can be advantageously used should be within the scope of Dominion, Provincial and Municipal governments. The Church, too, as well as the school, must be made a centre of light and leading, not only in the towns, but in the country districts as well. It is a duty incumbent on every good citizen, upon every man who cares for the nation's weal that he take warning from experiences in Britain to do his share in promoting the vitality and happiness of the country life in Canada.

One point more and I have done. Certain qualities and characteristics of life in Britain need emphasis in Canada. One of these is the pluck of an Englishman. I have no Saxon blood in my veins, but no one who admires independence of character and determination to succeed can fail to do honor to the qualities or pluck in the typical Englishman. I do not mean pluck on the bridge of a man of war or in the front line of battle, but in all stations of life where confidence and independence are required. Take one instance in trade. A few months ago Lord Charles Beresford, in an address to the Canadian Club, of Toronto, made great complaint that the shoe industry of England had been destroyed by the competition from American shoe factories. It is true that a half dozen years ago the great shoe factories in Leicester were threatened with foreign competition. The surplus output of the United States was dumped on the English market. Englishmen by the thousand bought American shoes; they preferred the American style. A great wail went up that the English industry had been killed. Now what did the Englishmen do? Did he go to the government and ask that this American competition be excluded from Britain by Parliament? Had he been

To Dr. Macdonald, editor-in-chief of the Toronto Globe, is due the heartfelt thanks of the people of Peterborough for the fine impression he left upon his hearers last Saturday evening. It is a matter of personal sacrifice for so "big" a man to come to a small place, but it was worth it. He has helped us amazingly.

If we were asked to say in a word or two what the lecturer aimed at, we would say that he wished to impress upon Canadians two things, the necessity of withstanding monopoly, and the necessity of practising the simple virtues of the simple people. The simplicity of our ancestors has become the vulgar complexity of today, to use no harsher term. People do not trust each other as they used to do. It seems a very astonishing thing that we should be open to reproach upon points of common honesty, but alas! it is so.

Men who discuss the lecture and other things arising out of it, may feel annoyed by such references as Dr. Macdonald made to "honour." Some may cry, "We are living in an age of hypocrisy!" And yet such men who sneer at the "good" people and their good intentions go to church. They and their intimates make it a point of attending church in state, sit high in the synagogue, accept office there, and yet these people say that we are living in an age of hypocrites!

But after all who are the hypocrites? Those who strive though they falter and sometimes fall in a good cause, or those whose steady set purpose is to use "the best means" to conceal the real direction in which they are going, and the real end for which they are striving?

No, Dr. Macdonald and those who think and strive with him are those who save the world from a relapse into barbarism, for the minute they dropped their "hypocrisy" that minute the inrush of lawlessness would change the face of the world.

Such then is part of our daily life, and it was this that Dr. Macdonald came to correct in us, using as examples the simple folk of the Scottish glens. They find "sermons in stones and good in everything" these simple people, because they look for it, and Dr. Macdonald would impress this fact upon us.

Mr. Kenner, the chairman, in introducing the guest of the evening in a very graceful speech, took occasion to thank Mr. O'Connell and Mr. J. H. Burnham for "securing" Dr. Macdonald. This was unnecessary. He did not come on their account. He came that he might be of service to his country, in the best and truest way.

It is, then, not that we shall not eat, drink and be merry and live as the children of nature while living as the creatures of nature's God, but it is that when we do so we shall express respect for our word, for our honour and for ourselves. Drunk or sober, let us at least be straight.

MISSIONARY DAY AT ST. ANDREW'S

At St. Andrew's church yesterday missionary services were held. The pastor referred particularly to the great strides that missionary efforts had made. He gave a rapid survey of the great expansion of the work in various continents, and made a strong appeal for the loyal interest of his congregation.

The musical service was in keeping with the day. In the morning Miss Winslow, of Toronto, very acceptably sang an appropriate solo, and the choir rendered an anthem. At the evening service Miss Olive Howell sang "Angel Land," and the quartette gave a selection at the close of the service.

A CHARMING PROGRAMME

Gifted Duo of Young Artistes an Interesting Feature at the Crystal

The audiences at the Crystal were delightfully entertained this afternoon by the supplementary musical programme, which is being given there for the first half of this week. The artistes are the Misses Mabel and Louie Shepperley, the popular and gifted young musicians from Toronto, who give a repertoire which is sure to please the critical music lover and the general public as well, their attractive programme including the most pretentious classical numbers as well as the tuneful selections of the popular order.

In their brilliant sketch, which occupies about twenty minutes, they play solos and in concert, employing military bugles, post horns, cornets, violins and mandolins to remarkably effective advantage. The critics of the Toronto and provincial dailies speak in the most cordial terms of the musicianly attainments and highly entertaining efforts of the two talented and very interesting little ladies.

DOCKSTADER AND HIS AIRSHIP

At the Grand on Thursday Evening—Seat Sale Opens To-morrow Morning

To-morrow morning at nine o'clock the seat sale opens for Lew Dockstader's minstrels. Peterborough is particularly fortunate in having an opportunity of seeing the leading exponents of the black-face art. Ottawa, Kingston, London and Hamilton are the only other one-night stands to enjoy the same privilege. Mr. Dockstader is surrounded by a company of artists numbering nearly one hundred people, including an orchestra of sixteen pieces. One of the newest contrivances yet introduced into theatricals is Lew's airship, in which he soars over the heads of the audience, discoursing to his hearers in an irresistibly funny manner, matters of local interest. A comical sketch headed by Ed. Mazier, comedian supporting Lew Dockstader, entitled "Fighting the Flames," furnishes one of the biggest laughs seen with any performance.

Uncle Dave Holcomb

A play throbbing with human interest and the finest of noble sentiments, "Uncle Dave Holcomb," was presented at the Grand on Saturday night to a much impressed and very appreciative audience. The company was an excellent one, the players filling their roles in a most acceptable manner and the story of the drama is a highly interesting, natural and well written one.

A strong lesson is given in this play, which may be classed with "The Old Homestead," "Way Down East," and other beautiful rural dramas. A temperance sermon of the most realistic kind is one of the benefits of the production which had a high moral tone throughout and cannot have any other effect than one of unadulterated good. The characters were effectively drawn and there was not the slightest suggestion of exaggeration in the acting.

William Lawrence was splendid as Dave Holcomb and George Warrington did an excellent bit of character acting as Hiram Holcomb, the drunken brother. Eileen O'Malley as Dave Holcomb's daughter and Grace Hanes as her mother were both equally capable and pleasing. All the rest of the company gave consistently able support.

Poultry Meeting

A meeting of the executive committee of the Poultry Association will be held to-night at 8 o'clock in Lang & Maher's store.

BIG ROUND-UP OF SUPICIOUS ONES

Five Vags. Brought to Peterborough Gaol on Saturday—Henderson Also in Party — All Prisoners Were Remanded.

Havelock, Ont., Jan. 30.—Robert Henderson, the Englishman who is charged with entering the home of Susanna and Margaret McPherson, near Norwood, on Friday, and inflicting serious injuries on them with an axe, was arraigned here yesterday and pleaded guilty. On the request of Provincial Detective Reburn, he was remanded until the condition of Margaret McPherson, the elder of the two victims, is more definitely ascertained. At first the doctors held out little hope for her recovery, but she has rallied considerably since the attempt on her life, and if complications do not set in she may yet recover, in spite of her advanced years. Henderson was taken to Peterborough and lodged in the county jail.

The county police made a big clean-up in this vicinity on Saturday. The countryside has been terrified by the assault on the two McPherson women and the police determined to gather in all the vagrants they could find in the locality. The result was the arresting of five tramps, who were taken to the Peterborough jail on Saturday.

When Henderson and the five vags, all of whom were handcuffed, were brought to the city on Saturday afternoon on the 4.38 C.P.R., a big sensation was created, the people on the platform and along the streets thinking they were all taken into custody in connection with the assault charge. However, the vags were corralled on general principles, the residents of East Peterborough being thrown into a state of alarm as a result of the murderous assault on the two old ladies. The handcuffed party were chaperoned by Provincial Detective Reburn, High County Constable Cochrane, the Havelock chief of police, and an assistant.

All the prisoners were lodged in the county gaol, and were followed there by a big crowd of curious spectators.

Henderson was remanded till Friday by County Magistrate Edmison, and the five gentlemen of the road will come up on Wednesday.

SPORTING NEWS

A CHANGED LINE-UP FOR TO-NIGHT'S GAME IN LINDSAY

The local intermediates will go to to Lindsay this evening and make a big effort to land to-night's game with Bill Stoddard's outfit. A special train will leave the Grand Trunk station at seven o'clock, and it looks as though a big crowd of rooters will take in the trip. The return fare is $1.05. The Peterborough line-up will be changed from that of Friday night. McMillan will watch Cain, and Jack Seymour will take the right boards to look after the elusive Bomfield. Len Dobson will work with Ray in the middle positions against Pacer McDougall and Stoddard. It is either Campbell or Glover for point.

The team looks to be a good one. McMillan can stop Cain, and if Seymour can control Ells shot the counters are bound to come. Ray and Dobson should work well together, and McDougall, by his previous performance on the smaller ice space, showed that he is more at home, and, therefore, should be more effective.

The new sweaters of the Peterborough Club have arrived, and will be worn to-night.

The lineup of the two teams will be:—

Peterborough.		Lindsays.
	Goal
Delcoobar		Gamble
	Point
Glover or Campbell		Cote
	Cover
McDougall		Green
	Rover
Ray		Stoddard
	Centre
Dobson		McDougall
	Right wing
Seymour		Cain
	Left wing
McMillan		Bomfield

EIGHT TEAMS TO COMPETE IN INDOOR BASEBALL LEAGUE

The following schedule for the Indoor Baseball League, was drawn up at a meeting of the Garrison Athletic Committee and will run for the month of February.

The teams are requested to carry this schedule and to be on hand promptly for all games.

Only properly enlisted members of the Garrison, who are members of the Athletic Association, will be allowed to participate in these games and tickets for membership may be obtained from Capt. R. F. McWilliams.

Feb. 3.—B. Band vs. No. 8, No. 3 vs. No. 2.

Feb. 8.—Artillery vs. No. 6, No. 1 vs. No. 7.

Feb. 10.—No. 2 vs. No. 8, No. 6 vs. No. 7.

Feb. 15—No. 3 vs. B. Band, No. 1 vs. Artillery.

Feb. 17—No. 8 vs. No. 1, No. 3 vs. Artillery.

Feb. 22—No. 2 vs B. Band, No. 6 vs. No. 7.

The teams have been divided into two groups "A" group being composed of Nos. 1, 2, 3, 6; "B" group being composed of Nos. 7 and 8, Bugle Band and Artillery.

Game to start at 7.45 o'clock.

Teams mentioned first in schedule will play in first game and games shall consist of seven innings unless otherwise ordered by committee.

GOLF

SHAREHOLDERS MEET.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club was held in the Bank of Montreal chambers on Saturday evening. It was decided that the receiving of the annual statement and reports of the captain and various committees would be left over to a meeting to be held during March, on a date to be decided upon by the president.

Officials—Referee, H. A. McLaughlin; scorer, H. A. Harper; timer, G. Martin.

Of course the game was one-sided, as may be noticed by the score above, but that does not indicate that the game was not interesting. The game was fast and the Collegiate boys played a good game. In the first half the boys were somewhat afraid of the big fellows but in the second half they gained a little courage and did score a few good baskets, and played a good game.

EMPLOYED BOYS CONTEST.

On each Tuesday night of the week there will be three athletic events run off in the gymnasium. The contest will last six weeks, and the boy scoring the largest number of points will take first prize, which is a triangle set with 15 pearls upon a gold triangle, and the second prize is a gold triangle with (P) in the centre.

SENIOR SCHOOL BOYS' CONTEST.

Will soon be run off and things will be done up in the proper style, and the prizes will be of good quality. List of events will be posted on the bulletin board at the entrance of the gymnasium.

CURLING

Three rinks of local curlers went down to Keene this afternoon to play the curlers of that place.

Peterborough and Lindsay are playing afternoon in the district cup competition, and the Charlotte street stone jugglers are looking for the honors. Mr. T. F. Matthews is empire.

SHOTS ON GOAL

The Collegiates will journey to Markham for their game with the juniors of that place on Friday. The return game will be played here on the following Monday.

Auburns and Canoe Builders meet at Brock street rink to-night in a Mercantile League fixture.

There will be no Junior O. H. A. game to-night. Everybody is going to Lindsay.

Ben Dusty has packed up his dry-goods, and has beat it for Brantford, where he will finish out the season with the professional team of that place.

It is up to Bill Rose to say whether or not he will take a position on the official board of the O.H.A.

According to a statement made by Blomfield, of the Lindsay team, his penalty of Friday night was the third in seven years.

The Anomalies of Taste.

A weak, delicate woman was wheeled in an invalid's chair to the book department.

"The latest big, burly novel for men with red blood in their veins, please!" quoth she in a voice that was scarce above a whisper.

"I want a story in the lavender and lace style, with a tender love thread—in short, something sweet!" he roared.

But neither need have spoken. At sight of them the clerks knew what they were after.

An Anecdote of Genius.

The following anecdote of Leigh Hunt was once related by "Orion" Horne. Horne on a bitterly cold day in winter went to see Hunt and found him in a large room with a wide, old fashioned fireplace. He had dragged his piano on the hearth, close to a large fire, leaving only room for himself and his chair, and was playing with the greatest enjoyment.

"My dear fellow," cried Horne, "are you aware that you are ruining your piano forever and ever in that heat?"

"I know, I know," murmured Hunt, "but it is delicious."

A Follower.

Caller—The minister's son is following in the footsteps of that spendthrift young Jinks.

Miss Prim—Isn't that scandalous?

Caller—Hardly as bad as that. You see, he's a tailor and is just trying to collect his bill.

Forks.

Two-pronged forks were introduced into England in 1608. They were first made in Sheffield. Three-pronged forks came into use in 1750.

A One-Sided Argument.

"He wants to marry Mary."

"Well?"

"What do you think of him?"

"Oh, he's all right, I guess!"

"But doesn't it strike you that he is a little bit foolish?"

"Of course, dearest, I cannot argue that with you, because the fact that he wants to get married would give you the strangle hold."

A Celtic Vase Found.

Workmen have discovered a Celtic vase, probably dating back to B.C. 1000, during excavations at the rear of the Bath Guildhall. The vase was broken after being unearthed owing to a fall of timber, but is being repaired.

APPOINTED REGISTRAR

W. J. Spence Formerly of This City Gets Important Position at Winnipeg

The committee of the Manitoba University council, appointed to consider applications for the registrarship, decided unanimously to nominate W. J. Spence, assistant general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. The vavancy was caused by the resignation of D. M. Duncan, who has accepted the principalship of the La Verandrye Collegiate. This recommendation will be placed before the University council at its next regular meeting, February 10.

Mr. Spence was borne in Peterborough, Ont., where he attended the public schools and Collegiate Institute. He is a graduate of Toronto University, taking honors as bachelor of arts. About nine years ago he came to Winnipeg as a lecturer in French, German and English in Wesley College and for about three years was a member of the faculty of that college, three years afterwards taking up Y. M. C. A. work as educational director and assistant secretary.—Winnipeg Telegram, Jan 27.

HON. MR. BUCHANAN REACHES LETHBRIDGE

Hon. W. A. Buchanan returned this morning from a five weeks' trip to different points in the east.

"One particular thing I noticed," said Mr. Buchanan, "was that the people in the east know and talk of Lethbridge much more than they did. They are realizing that it is to be one of the great cities of the west, and are aware of its great growth during the last few years."

Mrs. Buchanan and Master Donald returned with Mr. Buchanan after several months' visit in the east.—Lethbridge Herald, Jan. 26.

PERSONAL

Mr. J. W. Garvin is in the city today.

In a letter to Mr. J. H. Burnham to-day, Mr. R. M. Denniston, of Winnipeg, says the che so severely injured a muscle in his foot while taking exercise at squash tennis, that he is probably out of the game for good, and is laid up with his injury.

Miss Jean Robson, is in Toronto this week. While in the city she will attend the Mendelssohn choir concert.

At "Hillcrest," the residence of the bride's father, Millbrook, the marriage took place of Dr. Frederick Glynn Ellis, of the State Hospital, Mount Pleasant, Iowa, to Miss Edna Kathleen Given, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Given. The Rev. Canon Allen of the parish of Cavan officiated, only the immediate relatives being present. The bride's gown was of white liberty silk, with a full panel of silk point lace, her travelling dress being of amethyst broadcloth, with black hat and furs. After dejeuner Dr. and Mrs. Ellis left for New York and then to their home in Mount Pleasant, Iowa.

"Shooters" Wanted

To the Sporting Editor of the Review.

What happened to the Peterborough hockey team last night? To those that were there and saw for themselves the answer is simple. Not one of the home septet, after taking the puck down the whole length of the ice, could shoot. There does not seem to be a genuine good shooter on the team. Who is responsible in the organization for placing Glover on the team? This player has seen his day some time ago and it is now making a farce of the game to allow him to continue any longer. I can name a dozen at least that have him beaten forty ways in this game, but it looks as though the good players had not the "pull" with those choosing the team—of whom I understand Glover is one. Now gentlemen of the Peterborough Hockey Club take advice and put some young blood on the team, boys that can handle the stick to perfection, skate, and in particular can do some shooting. We have them and the public who go to see those games want to see them on the ice and not on the bleachers.

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTERS

The Times this morning says:

Messrs. Yokome and Craig, of the Examiner, and Yokome of the Review, Hon. J. R. Stratton and County Constable Geo. Cochrane arrived in the city from the east on the 4.38 train Saturday afternoon. They were not, however, the five vags arrested in the east riding on suspicion of knowing something of the assault upon the Misses McPherson, near Norwood, a couple of days ago. The gentlemen mentioned were attending a Liberal convention in Norwood, and no doubt a lot of the Conservatives think they should have been arrested.

PETERBOROUGH, January 29th, 1910

W. H. HILL, ESQ.,
Manager Sun Life Assurance Co., of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—About five years ago my late husband took out $1,000 00 insurance in The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, on which he only paid the first three premiums. Shortly after his death, which occurred on the 6th inst., although I was under the impression that his policy had lapsed, I called at your office to inquire if anything could be done whereby we might get something out of it. You can imagine my surprise and genuine gratitude to learn that, owing to your non-forfeiture privilege, the policy was still in force at his death and that I was entitled to the full thousand dollars, less only the two unpaid premiums and interest.

This seems to me such extraordinary and generous treatment that I wish to add my expression of most sincere thanks and appreciation to the many others your company must receive.

I also wish to acknowledge and thank you for your courtesy and promptness in procuring for me a cheque to-day covering the policy, and to state that if my endorsation of the already mentioned feature of your policies is of value you are quite at liberty to use it.

Gratefully yours,
MARGARET LONG,

A GENEROUS OFFER

Wm. Madill Will Refund Your Money if Parisian Sage Does Not Banish Dandruff

Pretty strong talk, perhaps you'll say, but its honest talk, every word of it, because if Wm. Madill was not absolutely certain, if he did not know from actual results obtained, he could not make such a generous offer.

Parisian Sage, which can not be obtained in every town in Canada, is also guaranteed to stop falling hair and itching scalp.

It is the ideal, delightful, rejuvenating hair dressing that makes hair grow in abundance. Parisian Sage is a prime favorite with women, because it keeps the hair brilliant and fascinating, is daintily perfumed and is not sticky or greasy.

The price for a large bottle is only 50 cents at Wm. Madill's, who guarantees it. Sold everywhere, or direct, all charges prepaid, by the Canadian makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

A FLOURISHING INDUSTRY RECALLED BY REPORTED SALE OF BLAIRTON MINES

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Jan. 29.—It has been reported on what should be reliable authority that the Blairton iron mines, situated six miles east of Havelock, have been sold to a syndicate composed of the Hamilton Steel Range Co, and other interests.

If this is true, those who own property in and around Blairton will be rejoiced.

Blairton, at one time, was a very busy little town, gradually forging its way forward to greater things. When the mines were in operation before, there was a large and growing population, but of late years it has been reduced to only a few inhabitants. But now those who reside in that small, yet picturesque village, wear a smile on their face, and the hearts of the property owners in the place are filled with joy, for in all probability the iron mines there will be opened in the spring.

The Blairton iron mines are situated about six miles from Havelock, and the same distance from Marmora, about a half a mile north of the main road running between these two towns. It is about three miles north of the C. P. R. tracks. The mines cover an area of about twenty-five acres.

When the mines were in operation before Blairton was one of the most prosperous and gayest towns to be seen. At that time there was a large population, and although men and their families were continually flocking in, still there was a demand for more laborers.

The village soon grew from a few houses to thirty, some of them very large and of the latest design. Stores, blacksmith shops, harness shops and other buildings sprang up as if by magic. Saw-mills were scarce in the district, and although there was plenty of timber, lumber couldn't be cut fast enough to supply the demand.

A railway connected Blairton with the docks at Trent Bridge. This railway was kept in continual action for when there was no ore to ship there was something else to carry. Machinery for the mines came in in large quantities, and supplies of provisions and groceries could not be got, in fast enough. On the whole, it was as hard to get goods to Blairton as it was to Gowganda when it first opened.

Nor was it all work for nearly every week during the summer there were excursions of some kind to Trent Bridge, and from there to other points by steamboat. Every evening after working hours the lake near by was crowded with boats filled with the happiest people that ever drew breath in this free land of ours.

Although the school and church were of a fair size, they were not large enough to accommodate the large number who attended. The salary of the minister was large and easily raised.

Blairton was most skilfully laid out on high ground of sandy soil; the streets descending in all directions. The supply of water is abundant, and the quality excellent. The scenery of Crow Lake, with its many islands covered with foliage jutting up in the dark, cool water, is very picturesque. Mrs. Sweeney, the wife of the late manager of the Deloro mines, during her stay in Marmora, found in Blairton, with its many beautiful spots, some fine subjects for sketching and painting, which she supplied to one of the leading papers in London.

The Pittsburg Company, under which the mine was last operated, left not a cent of any just claim unpaid. The company's taxes for Blairton property alone, not including private property, amounted to $500. Blairton mines, unlike some mines of less value at the present time, had no staff officers. The rate of wages was: Superintendent $100 per month, foreman $65, and bookkeeper $60 per month; miners $1.25 and laborers $1.10 per day. Enough men at one time could not be got to run the mine, and 40 men were brought from Switzerland and 35 others from the Cornwall mines in England.

Mining was first begun at that place in October, 1820, by a Mr. Hays, for the supply of a blast furnace at Marmora. Hay was granted many thousand acres of land at ten cents per acre. This land lay in the townships of Belmont and Methuen.

The average of all analysis of the ore now obtainable places the yield at from 60 to 65 per cent. of metallic iron. The ore taken out from the time the mine was opened until the present, amounts to about 5,000,000 cubic feet.

Fatalities in the mine during its operation, were not numerous. Two Englishmen, Arthur Jones and Wm. Fetcher, were killed instantly in the derrick-pit by iron ore falling on them from the hoisting baskets over one hundred feet above their heads. Another man named Samuel Bray was drowned at the docks at Trent Bridge when five cars were put over the outer pier. At low water the five cars can still be seen, having never been raised.

So much for the greatness of Blairton 40 years ago. There is a fall to all greatness. The end must come, and so it was with Blairton when operations at the mine were discontinued. There was a general exodus of people, and although quite a number remained, hoping the mines would start again they kept gradually dwindling away until now there are only a few left. There are no weekly excursions; no crowded church or school; no great demand for laborers, and, to tell the truth, a person might say it is dead.

But now it is stated that development work in stripping the ore, building a spur line to Blairton station on the C.P.R., and the erection of suitable buildings will be commenced in the spring.

HAVELOCK HAPPENINGS

Havelock, Jan. 29—Miss Mary Dineen, was in Peterborough on Saturday last.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams, of Peterborough, was in town on Tuesday.

Miss Robson, of Norwood, was in town on Wednesday.

Misses A. Bryans, T. S. Armstrong returned home from Toronto on Sunday.

Mr. W. Richardson, of Norwood, was in town on Wednesday.

Miss McWilliams, of Marmora, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. D. Carmichael, former taxidermist there, was in town on Wednesday.

Mr. Jas. H. Taylor, of Everett, Wash., an old resident of Madoc, died on Jan. 10th. Deceased was a brother of Mrs. Thos. Keene, of town.

The funeral of James Burgess, of Belmont, who passed away on Sunday last in his eighty-second year, took place on Tuesday from the residence of his son, Mr. D. Burgess, to the Norwood cemetery and was very largely attended.

After a struggle of over a year against the ravages of the great white plague, Mrs. Angus Carmichael passed out of this life at her home, early on Monday morning in her fortieth year. Her death has cast a sad gloom over the village and among her many friends. The deep sympathy of the whole village goes out to the husband and six little children, who are left behind. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon, services being held in St. John's church at 2 o'clock, and interment took place at the Maple Grove cemetery. The large number of sorrowing friends and the many beautiful floral tributes shows the esteem in which the departed one was held.

RICH RED BLOOD

You Will Never Have it as Long as You Have Dyspepsia

Just as long as you have dyspepsia your food will not properly digest, and the nutritious elements in the food will not be extracted or absorbed, and impoverished or watery blood will follow.

This condition may not be apparent at first, but it will come just as sure as the sun will rise again.

Any stomach ailment, including all forms of indigestion, can be promptly cured by using Mi-o-na tablets, a scientific treatment unsurpassed.

It stops fermentation, belching of gas and taste of sour food almost at once.

The mighty power of Mi-o-na to invigorate and restore the stomach to perfect condition is known everywhere.

Mi-o-na cures by building up, by banishing the cause. For thin people it is a great flesh builder, because it causes the stomach to give more and purer nutrition to the blood. It cures sea and car sickness and vomiting of pregnancy almost immediately. Wm. Madill, the druggist, sells Mi-o-na for 50 cents a large box, and guarantees to cure or money back.

What does the bee do when some foreigner in the animal world, as, for instance, a heavy slug, invades its hive? Stings it to death, of course. But what then? All the bees in the hive may not be able to drag out the carcass, and yet they must do something with it to keep it from infecting the colony. Move into a new house? Scarcely, for they would abandon their store of honey. No, the workers cease gathering honey and start out after propolis, the red resinous substance with which bees line and fence their hives. This bee glue they spread all over the foreign substance in little fillets until the foreigner is completely embalmed.

So also, if a snail invades the hive and evades being stung to death they glue him fast in his shell and when he starves to death embalm him with propolis.

But the bee is not the only insect that exhibits a nearly defined intelligence. The maternal nature shows up in some of the meanest insects to a wonderful degree. The pine silkworm moth tears all the hair and down from its own body in order to make a soft nest for its young and expires soon after. This is to a greater extent than the rabbit, which tears only the fur from its belly for its nest.

Some gall insects even immolate themselves to protect their offspring. As the insect, full to great distension with eggs, expels them gradually till all have been laid and nothing but a hollow shell remains of the mother, she sees that her task has been accomplished and gathers the eggs into a pile, spreads herself over them, fastens the sides of her own body down over them, and thus dies. This, of course, forms an impermeable covering for the eggs till they are hatched. The mother has here paid for the childbirth with her life, and the children are born in the shelter of her corpse.

He Popped.

A gentleman who had been in Chicago only three days, but who had been paying attention to a prominent Chicago belle, wanted to propose, but was afraid he would be thought too nasty. He delicately broached the subject as follows:

"If I were to speak to you of marriage, after having only made your acquaintance three days ago, what would you say of it?"

"Well, I should say never put off till to-morrow that which should have been done the day before yesterday."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

The Hippopotamus.

Next to the elephant the largest beast in point of bulk and weight is the hippopotamus. One White Nile specimen measured fourteen feet three inches from snout to tip of tail. The crocodile never ventures to attack the hippopotamus, which for its part disdains to attack the crocodile. Although, like the rhinoceros, this monarch of mid-African rivers is not carnivorous, it is very formidable to man, being easily provoked and assaulting the object of its resentment with reckless fury. It can upset the largest boat and in one instance perforated with its tusks the iron bottom of a steamer, causing a dangerous leak. The flesh of the hippopotamus is always palatable, and when the animal is young it is delicious. The skin makes excellent turtle soup. The tusks were formerly more valuable than those of the elephant, being in request by dentists because they never turn yellow.

Dexterous Eating.

In the island of Jamaica, the land of hurricanes and earthquakes, the native women do almost all the work, even to plowing in the fields and working on the Government roads, and this keeps them more or less busy. They also have a peculiar custom when eating. In order not to waste valuable time these dark members of the gentler sex have adopted an ingenious method. They place a plate containing their food, be it hot boiled rice or rabbit stew, on their heads, and thus balancing the dish, they walk about the yards of their homes, reaching up a hand when they wish to take food from the plate and going about their regular work. Yet they never spill anything.

For London Gourmets.

After feasting on frozen pig from China and chilled beef from New Zealand, London gourmets are now being treated to frozen turtles from Queensland.

The turtles are killed soon after capture, frozen and shipped to England by mail steamer. There are about 400 of them in England at present. They weigh from 160 pounds to 300 pounds.

One extra large turtle of 385 pounds would be worth $100 alive, but in a frozen state only fetched 15 cents a pound. They seem to give satisfaction at hotels and clubs, and the future development of the Queensland frozen turtle trade is assured.

Having suffered for months from nervous prostration, Mrs. R. W. Wood, of Cornwall, strangled herself to death with a cord.

"THE LAND FOR THE PEOPLE"

a German he would have done that, or a Frenchman or an American, or even a Canadian, but being an Englishman, he said, "By Jove, I'll do it myself," and he took that American shoe which found favour in London. He examined its style and quality. He judged his own shoe to be better quality and more comfortable in style, "but," he said, "it is their feet, and it is their money, and I'll make a shoe to fit their taste." He made that shoe on the American last and he imported from the United States the machinery required for the making of that shoe. That machinery he bought at 50 per cent. less than his American competitors had to pay for it. With that machinery and with his own skill and the manufacturing advantage he had in England, he has not only held his own, but has beaten his American competitors in the markets of Britain and of the world. That is what I mean by the pluck of an Englishman, and that is the quality which Canada would do well to emulate.

THE NEED OF HONOR.

One other feature of English life deserving of imitation is what I might call honor in business and in public relations. There is in Britain a fine sense of honor in public life. I do not mean that their election campaigns are devoid of excesses and absurdities equal to our own. I do not mean that among their public men there are no tricksters. What I do mean is that, taken for all in all, public life in Britain has a standard of honor and integrity, which, so far as I know, is not equalled elsewhere in the world.

The same is true in matters of trade. Not that there is no shoddy turned out by their factories. There is abundance of shoddy, and it is called shoddy and paid for at shoddy prices. I have in mind one instance of honor ruling the market, which I have told elsewhere and purpose telling again; it was at the great annual wool fair in Inverness. For nearly 100 years that wool fair has been an event in the north of Scotland. Farmers and wool-growers of all the shires and islands gather at Inverness during the second week of July. They meet there with the buyers and brokers of wool from Glasgow and Alloa, and Hawick and Carlisle and other great centres of the wool industry in England. The Highlanders' English may be for you as hard to understand as the Englishman's English, but between them they strike their bargains for the season's output of wool. These transactions are made, and no documents or signed contracts bind the bargains. After having watched that market for a day and a night I asked a man from Dumfries if it was quite safe for him to depend on the Highlanders observing the contract and delivering the wool on time and up to the standard. "Absolutely safe," he said. I can make all our arrangements with our mills and our customers. The wool will be delivered on time." A man from Badenoch, one of the MacPherson clan, overhearing my question, asked, partly in dignified disdain, "What would you be signing for? Have you not the word of the man who sold you the wool? What signed contract would hold if the word of a Highlander would 'break?' For nearly a century that market has been maintained on the foundations of personal honor as between man and man. A man whose word would require a bond was deemed unworthy of a place where honor rules the market.

And now, sir, there is conjoined with that experience one other that came to me on my return to Canada. Almost the first editorial I wrote after returning to Toronto was on "Dishonesty in the Canadian Apple Trade." That article was based on a report from Britain that the largest fruit merchant in the north of Scotland, with headquarters in Inverness, reported that it was found necessary to empty out completely all barrels of Canadian apples. While there was good fruit at the top and at the bottom, windfalls and low grade were in the middle. I know quite well the good work that is being done by the officials of the government in enforcing the Fruit Marks Act. I know quite well the educational world that is being carried on by the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association. But something more, something that goes far deeper, is needed. There needs to be engrained, not in government officials alone, but in the minds and hearts of all the people, such a sense of honor that would make a man ashamed to look himself in the glass if he were conscious of dishonorable conduct on the market or in trade.

One of the perils of a new country, one of the special perils of Democracy, is the decay of the moral fibre. Britain's marvellous prestige on all the continents and among all the nations is in no small degree due to the fidelity to trust and sensitiveness of honor which has been such a characteristic of the race. If we would make Canada worthy of her place in the Empire and worthy of her position in the world, we must see to it that all our relations of life, in business, in politics, in our social institutions, honor is made an obligation and an authority from which there is no appeal. The best men in Britain to-day are looking eagerly, almost hopefully, to this young Dominion. They know that for them and for their descendants in the old land the doors of opportunity and of achievement are neither as many nor as large as in those overseas Dominions of the Empire. Among all the nations under the Crown there is none that has such a chance as Canada, there is none that holds a position so strategic, there is none from whom so much is expected. If Canada would measure up to her opportunity and would meet her responsibility, then this generation of Canadians would do well to be warned by the history of Britain, and to be encouraged to imitate those things by which Britain was made great and free.

VOTE OF THANKS.

In moving a vote of thanks to Dr. Macdonald, Mr. D. O'Connell bespoke the delight of the members of the club at the powerful and instructive address given by the speaker of the evening. He congratulated the officers of the club on securing such a gifted speaker. Canada would be a great nation if she could possess the love of the Scottish race for learning, strict honor, integrity and self esteem, and of the English race for pluck and determination. Mr. O'Connell referred to some of the characteristics of the Irish. They were the men who dreamed great dreams and who gave to the world the beautiful things in poetry, art and literature. He regretted that Mr. Macdonald had not said something about the Irish. He took pleasure in telling Dr. Macdonald that the majority of those in the fine audience before him were Irish.

If things were to be achieved in Canada Mr. O'Connell said we must make the conditions right. We must set up a standard of ethics and principles of honor that will make a deep impression on the life of the nation.

Dr. M. A. Morrison, in seconding the motion, complimented the officers of the Canadian Club on the success of their first meeting in 1910. It was a good thing that Canada had men of the ability, moral character and physical stature of Dr. Macdonald. He was delighted with the address and felt that great good would result from it.

The resolution was put by President Kenner and carried with applause.

Dr. Macdonald thanked the members for their appreciation. He felt it a privilege to have the opportunity of addressing a Canadian Club. This moulding of public opinion, which the Canadian clubs were doing was a great work. Public opinion was the life of the nation. In regard to his not speaking about the Irish, Dr. Macdonald said he did not draw on his imagination. He had not been in Ireland on his visit to the old land and was therefore not in a position to tell of what was happening there.

The meeting closed with the National anthem.

NOTES OF THE BANQUEET.

When Mr. J. P. Downey comes, then it will be Irish night. Hurrah! for Ireland.

Mr. Kenner referred to the good work done by Mr. D. O'Connell and Mr. J. H. Burnham in securing Dr. Macdonald to lecture.

Former Peterborough Man Loses Suit Against City of Vancouver

Special to the Review.

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 30.—Mr. Justice Morrison yesterday gave judgment in the Deadman's Island case of Ludgate v. the city. He decided that the city owned Deadman's Island under an order-in-council of 1887, which was irrevocable. He added that Ludgate had no right to the lease given by the Dominion Government.

This decision in favor of the city in the famous case has caused a great sensation here.

CLAIMS FOR DAMAGES CAUSE COUNCIL TO MAKE CHARGES OF NEGLIGENCE

Charges that there is negligence somewhere on the part of the officials of the city in charge of the outside work were made at the meeting of the council Friday night. When the report of the Legal Committee was presented, recommending that the city pay $500 in settlement of the claim of the Cranley estate against the city, Ald. Turner drew attention to the fact that this was the third time since the beginning of 1909 that the city was put to expense in settling claims which grew out of accidents that resulted from the carelessness of some of the city officials. In connection with the death of Patrick Cranley it was pointed out the railing along the sidewalk on Rogers street where Cranley fell off, had been removed last winter, as there was not enough space to allow the snow-plough to pass through. It had not been replaced until a few hours after Cranley fell off and received severe injuries. Another accident on one of the streets last year cost $90 and another one $120.

Ald. Duffus expressed himself similarly to Ald. Turner, and Ald. Phelan said there was a lot of carelessness somewhere in connection with the management of the streets. There was no reason why these matters should not be well looked after in the winter months, when the Street Commissioner and the street inspector didn't have a great deal to do.

Ald. Morgan objected to Alex. Fitzgerald, the street inspector, being censured. He was one of the busiest men in the employ of the city, and some of the aldermen apparently wanted to hold him responsible for the welfare of the whole city. Last year he had not been able to do anything without getting an order from Ald. Phelan.

Ald. Phelan said that such was not the case.

"I feel very strongly like moving a vote of censure on somebody," said Ald. Turner.

Mayor Morrow said he had visited the spot on Rogers street where Cranley was injured, and found that it was in a dangerous condition at the present time. The railing had been placed farther out to permit the plough going through, but it was not properly protected at the ends.

The suggestion was made that the Legal Committee should hold an inquiry and find out who was to blame.

After some discussion it was decided to have Ald. Hicks, chairman of the Board of Works, take the matter up with the officials responsible for the condition of the streets and sidewalks.

The title of Charles Miner Thompson's stories often cover a multitude of surprises. The name of his new serial story, "An Army Mule," which is to begin in The Youth's Companion in February, calls up visions of soldier life on the Western plains. It is really a simple tale of village life, and the opening chapter promises the most diverting succession of extraordinary predicaments since the author entertained Companion readers two years ago with the adventures of "The Calico Cat." "Many of the characters of the earlier story reappear in "An Army Mule."

SOME RAYS IN THE SERVICE AND SUNSHINE OF HOME LIFE

The Effect of Practical Religion in Inspiring Love and a Sense of Duty in the Home—"First Learn to Show Piety at Home," Text of Timely Sermon by Rev. Canon Davidson.

In his course of special sermons on home life Rev. Canon Davidson's subject at St. John's last night was "The Service and Sunshine of Home Life." He took as his text, "First learn to show piety at home," from I. Timothy 5:4.

The speaker first showed that the home was one of the most natural and important spheres for the exercise of practical religion, the human family being intended to be an earthly reproduction of the divine family.

The main point of the text was that piety or practical religion found its exercise in doing our duty in the home circle, especially to parents and elders. It was a radical duty that just workers should be lovingly supported when their working powers were diminished.

The speaker went on to show the great effect of practical religion in inspiring love shown in a God-like way as a duty, and independent of the actions of others. Our homes should be pre-eminently abodes of love, into which we could pass from the hardness and coldness of the world, cheered and refreshed. Whatever was our inclination it was our duty to think loving thoughts, to say loving words, and to do loving acts to those around us, in opposition of the tendencies which incline men to be sharp and smart, and to hide natural feelings of affection. Love was to be received and cultivated and given forth as the sunshine of home life.

On the Lord's Day there should be a complete change of occupation and reading, and restful, quiet, family enjoyment, home life reaching its highest and best of the great home day. This Divine connection should be cultivated during the week by family prayer, which might be renewed to the very simplest form. The home was brightened by games and recreations and more especially by the cultivation of the art of music, a most valuable adjunct. Each member should realize the duty to do something for the general welfare and brightness of the home. Neither should dress be disregarded. In this country we only dress attractively when going outside the home, but in older lands people dress each evening for the home circle.

The greatest services of home life were undoubtedly rendered by housekeepers. On their work the physical well being and temper and happiness of the home largely depended. Not only that, but the social brightness of home life was largely connected with eating and drinking, and it was most important that meals should be prettily, skilfully and tastefully served. Far more appreciation should be given to those who excelled in these most useful services. Good housekeeping was one of the most useful arts of life and should be recognized as such. Artistic ability had no necessary connection with the paint brush or piano. It might be as reasonably connected with a ladle and stove. The principles of practical religion required that attractive tables should not be prepared for ourselves and family alone, but that a Christian hospitality should be exercised also.

Such were some of the practical ways in which religion inspired the services and produced the sunshine of home life.

The prayers and hymns were appropriate to the sermon, and Mr. Devey played "Home Sweet Home" devotionally at the conclusion of the service.

The course of special sermons on home life will be resumed in Lent.

PUGSLEY GOES BACK ON CAUSE OF MARITIME RIGHTS

When Resolution is Introduced to Make Representation of Eastern Provinces Permanent, Minister of Works Blandly Suggests a Conference.

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—There is no denying the capacity of Hon. William Pugsley when he has to wriggle to save himself. In other days he was a great fighter for the rights of the Maritime Provinces to better representation in Parliament; to-day he is a Minister of the crown, and Mr. Kyte and others who participated in the annual debate looked hopefully towards him for aid in their efforts to have further reduction of the number of men from the east. Mr. Pugsley smiled so pleasantly that their faith grew. Picture their fallen countenances when he cheerfully suggested that an inter-provincial conference might settle the question. Once more he had failed them, but it was well done.

J. W. Kyte (Richmond, N.S.) proposed this resolution: "That in the opinion of this House the Maritime Provinces of Canada should have preserved to them the representation in the House of Commons that they now enjoy; that in the redistribution of constituencies, to be made after the next decennial census, the number of representatives to be returned for the said provinces should not in any case be reduced."

Mr. Kyte said that the claim of the Maritime Provinces was based on considerations of equity and moral right. At the time of Confederation it was believed that the Maritime Provinces would keep pace with the other provinces in growth of population, and consequently there would be no decrease in representatives. As it turned out, immigration had gone to the western provinces. According to the population of Quebec, Mr. Kyte estimated that after the next census the unit of representation would be about 33,000. This would mean a further reduction of three members in the representation of the Maritime Provinces.

J. G. Turriff, as a western representative, objected to the proposal contained in the resolution to make a discrimination in favor of the provinces down by the sea. It would be a mistake, he argued, to make any alteration in the present system of representation according to population. If such resolution were carried, it would meet with the vigorous opposition of the people of western Canada, and would mark the beginning of the dismembership of the Dominion. He would be prepared to resign his seat if the resolution received the endorsation of Parliament.

Dr. Daniel urged that the Maritime Provinces had been discriminated against. While they of the east represented old settlers, Mr. Turriff represented a portion of the flotsam and jetsam of Europe.

Mr. McCreaney (Saskatoon) declared himself against the resolution.

Dr. Pugsley suggested that the question might be settled by the holding of an inter-provincial conference. If all the provinces would agree that the smaller provinces should receive more generous treatment, it would then be a reasonable thing to ask the Federal Parliament to assent to the wishes of the provinces.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier pointed out that the Maritime Provinces had no remedy in law, and that the only remedy was to apply to the other provinces, which would deal with this question as they dealt with British Columbia regarding the subsidy at the last provincial conference. However, he doubted if the provinces in conference would agree to any basis of representation other than by population. In his own view no principle could be fairer. He, therefore, moved the adjournment of the debate.

F. D. Monk requested that opportunity be given the House to send his bill respecting co-operative societies, and a similar bill by Lloyd Harris, respecting co-operation, to committees. Last year a similar bill of his, when it went to the Senate, was defeated by only one vote. Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that if the request were granted the House could not refuse to extend the same privilege to other bills, but it might be possible to reach the bills without suspending the rules.

Col. Hughes read a newspaper despatch dated from New York, in which Capt. Bernier was reported as having requested the Canadian Government to ask representatives of other nations, including Great Britain, to accompany him on his next polar expedition to delimit boundaries. Bernier was stated to have used the term "Canadian nation." Sir Wilfrid Laurier replied that Bernier would go north to assert the sovereignty of Canada in northern waters, adding: "If Capt. Bernier has spoken as he is reported to have done, he had better keep to his deck."

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth made an explanation of a recent statement of his in reference to Government responsibility. The effect of it was that in capital cases the responsibility rests on the whole Government and the Governor-General, whereas in non-capital cases, the responsibility rests, not on the whole Government, but on the Minister concerned, almost invariably the Minister of Justice, and the Governor-General.

A. S. Goodeve (Kootenay) asked the Postmaster-General if he was prepared to have the postoffice at Campbell, B.C., removed from an hotel, where it is now located between the barroom and the cardroom. Mr. Lemieux said he would take the matter up at once.

R. L. Borden asked when the terms of the waterways treaty would be made public. The Premier said that some negotiations were still going on as to a subsidiary article.

Mr. Foster enquired when papers would be brought down relative to American vessels of war now on the great lakes, and with reference to the question of the Canadian flag, discussed at the naval defence conference. Sir Wilfrid promised to enquire.

Mr. Foster was informed that 234 applications had been received for positions in the proposed navy, including 59 from officers and six from ex-officers of the royal navy, 37 from officers of the royal navy reserve and 115 from Canadians.

Dr. Edwards was told that one of the conditions of the lease of Government lands occupied by Sir Richard Cartwright, near Kingston, was that timber could not be cut down except for improving the same.

The following bills were given a second reading: Respecting the royal guardian; to incorporate the Saskatchewan Central Railway Co.; respecting the Central Canada Manufacturers Mutual Fire Insurance Co.; respecting the G.T.P. Branch Lines Co.

ENERGIES OF PARIS TURNED TOWARDS HELPING HOMELESS

Whole City is Rejoicing at the Subsidence of the Waters and Innumerable Philanthropic Schemes are Afoot—Tax Collectors Ordered to be Lenient and Pawn Tickets are Extended.

Paris, Feb. 1.—The improvement in the general situation continues, and the spirits of the Parisians are rising as the waters fall. Street hawkers are selling postcard pictures of the flood and the boulevards are once more gay with rejoicing thousands.

The papers are already sounding a note of warning that the lesson must not be forgotten; that measures must be taken to avoid a repetition of the disaster. This can be done by the construction of a cut-off, either in the way of a canal or a large underground conduit around Paris.

The prefect of the department of the Seine has issued instructions to the owners of flooded houses to clean and disinfect their premises within 24 hours after the subsidence of the waters. Otherwise the work will be done at the cost and risk of the owners. The Government has ordered the tax collectors to show the greatest leniency to delinquents, and the Monte de Piete is extending pawn tickets for three months.

Public and private benevolents continue to respond to the call of the sufferers. All the theatres and musical societies are organizing benefits, while the various racecourses are arranging a big meeting for the spring, the receipts of which will go to the poor.

A resolution has been introduced in the Chamber of Deputies, asking the Government to award special crosses of the Legion of Honor to those who have been conspicuous in the rescue work.

Many corpses have been swept down the river, and occasionally a coffin in a boat, which had probably broken away from a funeral procession.

Scores of half-famished families have been rescued from their homes, and hundreds still occupy their half submerged houses, waiting for the water to recede. A source of danger has been the starving dogs roaming around Alfortville and Ivry, and many of these have been shot in the fear that they might develop rabies.

The Government has arranged to loan money to the ruined house and shop owners, to enable them to rebuild immediately. These loans may be refunded in instalments

TRACKMAN SAYS THAT SPANISH RIVER WAS DANGEROUS SPOT

The Approach to the Bridge Was Laid Over a Muskeg, Declares Discharged Section Boss Prue, and Always Needed Special Attention as the Rails Were Given to Spreading.

Sudbury, Feb. 1.—Although the immediate cause of the Spanish River wreck was not brought to light in yesterday afternoon's session of Coroner Bowie's inquest, it perhaps never will be. It developed, though, that the stretch of track nearing the bridge has always been regarded as more or less bad and that the rails at this point were given to spreading.

Jerry Prue, a Frenchman who had been foreman on the section for six years, prior to being discharged early this month, swore to Crown Inquisitor H. L. Drayton, K.C., of Toronto, that between mileage 36 and 38 it was very difficult to keep the rails from spreading. The ballast was laid over a muskeg and rocked-liked cradle. He had always given this strip special attention. Very often, too, he had found broken rails. In fact, this occurred so frequently that he found it necessary to take a man along with him on his Sunday walks over the beat. On one Sunday they located a broken rail a short time before No. 7 (the train that was wrecked) was due, and they hustled a new rail into place to avert an accident. Returning shortly after No. 7 had passed, they found she had broken two more rails, which they replaced. That was in the spring of the year.

Asked as to the general condition of the rails, Prue said they were fairly good; at least, he did not consider them very bad; but there had been no relaying of rails, except to replace broken ones, as long as he could recall.

"How long was your section?" asked Mr. Drayton.

"Eight miles."

"Three, the foreman and two men," was the reply.

In the summer the staff was augmented somewhat, because most of the permanent work was done in summer. In the winter it was merely a matter of "shining up."

As he was leaving the stand, witness imparted the information that "the wreck he come 19 days after I got fired and come alright when I left."

The new foreman was one of his former helpers, and he had always told his men to watch that place.

Divisional Supt. George Spencer was questioned regarding the inspection of the under parts of the cars. Two men looked after this at North Bay, he said, and were allowed twenty minutes. If it was deemed necessary, they could hold the train.

"We are glad if they can get through sooner than 20 minutes," he said. "Generally it takes only ten."

Mr. Drayton asked if Roadmaster Connelly had ever sent in a requisition for 1,200 ties and had received only 300.

"I cannot say whether that is the case or not; the office records must be consulted to find out," said Mr. Spencer.

Contiuing, he said that neither rail was destroyed at the point of derailment, but that farther along two rails were injured and the north rails had been put out of line.

Answering a juror's question, Mr. Spencer said a portion of a brake had been found near the place of derailment.

Touching the debated question as to whether any bodies had been burned, Mail Clerk Dundas told of assisting in the rescue at this point, and he was almost positive that everyone had been taken out of the car that was burned.

Evidence of indifferent import was given by Engineer Henry Telford, Geo. W. Hutchinson, train despatcher at North Bay; Herbert Clark, fireman; Thomas Holbrook, trainman, Hamilton Miller, brakeman; Joseph Tartel and Frank Scovil, car inspectors of North Bay; George Leech, a relief engineer on this run, and the expressman.

Engineer Telford said No. 7 had started out of North Bay ten minutes late, but had made up time before reaching Sudbury. There was a curve to the right before striking the Spanish River bridge, but they always took the bridge at a speed of about 35 or 40 miles an hour. There was a little snow, but the rails were free on the fatal trip.

Yesterday's witnesses were all from the operating department of the railway. Adjournment was made until to-day, in order that Mr. Drayton may visit the scene of the wreck before resuming. General Superintendent Gutelius has placed a special train at his disposal. W. H. Williams, K.C., of Pembroke, is attending for the C.P.R.

A MINE EXPLOSION IN COLORADO MAY RESULT IN DEATH OF ONE HUNDRED

Primero, Col., Feb. 1.—More than a hundred men are believed to have been killed by a terrific explosion in the Primero mine of the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. at 4.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Eight bodies have been recovered and rescue parties are making desperate efforts to reach the interior workings out off from the outside by the caving of the main shaft. Three men were killed at the mouth of the mine dope by the force of the explosion.

Both fans with which the mine is equipped were shattered and it was impossible to enter the mine until they were repaired at 7.30 o'clock last night.

As soon as the fans were repaired General Superintendent J. F. Thompson and a rescue party entered the mine by the main air shaft, but were unable to reach the main shaft, which is completely blocked. The party returned to the surface after securing five bodies, which were badly burned.

A party equipped with oxygen helmets replaced this party, the workings were reached through the air-shaft and are now being searched for bodies.

Miners were rushed to Primero from Trinidad, Segundo, Starkville, Sopris and Cokeville and are laboring frantically to clear the main shaft, relieving each other every few minutes. It is impossible to determine how far the shaft has caved, and it may be days before the shaft is cleared and the total death list known.

There is little hope that any of the men in the mine are alive. The company clerk reports that 79 safety lamps are missing, and it is sure that that number of men are entombed. Many of the miners, however, say that 150 men are missing.

Most of the victims are Slavs and Hungarians.

TWENTY CENTS A DAY ENOUGH

Boston, Feb. 1.—Dr. Franklin A. White, Harvard's expert in dietetics, advocating the use of corn meal, oleomargerine, cheap syrup and especially herring and potatoes as substitutes for meat, said yesterday:

"There is no reason why any working man or woman could not live on twenty cents a day. The very best outcome of the present no-meat movement will be the discovery by many persons that they can get along on little or no meat, and feel in better health than ever before."

THE PROGRAMME OF COMMANDER PEARY

New York, Feb. y.—If Commander Peary resumes his duties in the Navy Department, as he has been ordered to do, it will seriously interfere with his arrangements. A national testimonial is to be held here on Feb. 8 and many other states have arranged similar benefits.

In going to Europe in April, one of his chief desires was to attend the annual dinner of the Royal Geographical Society in London and to address geographical societies in Paris, Berlin, Rome, Vienna, St. Petersburg Antwerp and Edinburgh.

MUST HAVE $2,000 OR STAY UNMARRIED

Pittsburg, Feb. 1.—Rev. Wright Gibson, pastor of the McKees Rocks Presbyterian Church, has notified engaged couples among his parishioners that he did not purpose to unite any couples unless the intended bridegroom could prove that his income was at least $2,000 a year.

The minister declares that with the present price of commodities this income is necessary to live. "Poverty leads to divorce," he said, "and I do not purpose to assist the divorce cause."

CHINAMAN AT KINGSTON ENDS LIFE

Kingston, Feb. 1.—Because he was poor and afraid of the laundry tax of $50, recently imposed by the City Council, Hing Chong, proprietor of a laundry at 248 Montreal street, hanged himself some time during Sunday night. The body was not found until last night, when a grocer, who lives next door, noticed that the gas was burning in the laundry and made an investigation. His cousin was with him till about midnight Sunday. Many prominent citizens have been protesting against the high tax, claiming it was unjust, and there is a movement on foot to have it reduced.

WOMAN GIVES IMMENSE SUM TO A CHURCH

New York, Feb. 1.—Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, pastor of the Old First Presbyterian Church, at Fifth avenue and 11th street, startled his congregation Sunday morning by the announcement that the endowment fund of the church had been increased by a gift of $180,000 received from Mrs. D. Willis James.

For several years Dr. Duffield has been struggling to prevent the destruction of the historic old church and the erection of a modern skyscraper on its site.

CARVEL M.P. GETS AFTER AN EDITOR

St. John, N.B., Feb. 1.—F. B. Carvell, M.P., has issued a writ for criminal libel against John P. Maloney, former editor of the Woodstock, N.B., Press. The Press contained an article charging that Carvell was a member of the Willard-Kitchen contracting firm and had sold out his constituents in the matter of the route of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Carvell demanded an apology and Maloney promised to publish it, but a majority of the directors of The Press refused to agree.

Maloney has since resigned as editor of The Press.

LEGISLATURE IN SESSION FOR ELEVEN MINS.

Toronto, Feb. 1.—For just eleven minutes did the Legislature sit yesterday afternoon. In the course of that time, in addition to the routine of receiving petitions, four new bills were introduced.

Another, "The Fair Wages and Hours of Labor Regulations Act, 1910," Allan Studholme (East Hamilton), declared out of order, makes provision for an eight-hour day for all employes, with the exception of farm labor, and places the regulation wages at not less than 20 cents an hour. Special provision is made that any employe under the age of 18, male or female, is not allowed to work longer than eight hours.

The other new bills are: "An act respecting the Queen Victoria and Niagara Falls Park," Sir James Whitney.

"An Act Respecting Horticultural Societies," Hon. James Duff.

"An Act Respecting Agricultural Societies," Hon. James Duff.

"An Act Respecting the Right of Property in Swarms of Bees," Hon. James Duff.

MYSTERIOUS OF GAS EXPLOSION

St. Thomas, Feb. 1.—The residence of Henry Hall, Highgate, was completely blown from its foundations on Sunday night by an explosion. Geo. Hall, the son, had gone to the cellar for some apples, and lighting a match, an explosion followed. Hall was seriously burned.

There is no gas service in the house, but it is thought there must be a leakage from the mains, 25 feet distant.

SHOT CHILDREN AHD HIMSELF

New York, Feb. 1. Ill, out of work and despondent, Daniel Ryan, 35 years old, a former city employe, yesterday sent a bullet through the head of his three-year-old daughter, Emily, killing her instantly, and probably fatally wounded his two-year-old boy, Willie. Ryan then shot himself in the head and will die.

After he had shot the two children and wounded himself. Ryan had sufficient strength left to gather up the two little ones in his arms and press them to him as he sat down in a chair to await the end.

THEY WOULD SHARE ANCESTOR'S MILLIONS

Kingston, Feb. 1.—George and Robert Robinson of Toronto, Mrs. John Coldback, Kingston, and Wm. Robinson of Montreal, are among the heirs to the wealth of their great-great-grandfather, the late Col. Wm. Baker, who owned valuable property in New York, Philadelphia, Poughkeepsie, and elsewhere, and now valued at $190,000,000. An attorney of Philadelphia is working on the case.

Hackettstown, N.J., Feb. 1.—Alonzo Wire, who was for twelve years head of the police department here, says that for the last twenty years he has not closed his eyes in sleep. Sometimes he gets drowsy, but that's the nearest to breaking a case of insomnia that the doctors can't puzzle out.

Strong Help For Weak Kidneys

If people only realized the danger of Weak Kidneys, and the value of "Fruit-a-tives", there would be practically no Kidney Disease in Canada.

When the kidneys become congested (too full of blood) or strained from overwork, they can quickly be made well and strong again by taking a box or two of "Fruit-a-tives".

Pain in the back, frequent headaches, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, coated tongue, constant desire to urinate—these are the common symptoms of congestion of the kidneys.

The only possible way to relieve this congestion, is to force the bowels and skin to rid the system of more waste matter and thus allow the inflamed kidneys to rest and grow strong again.

"Fruit-a-tives", being fruit juices, intensified, soothes and stimulates the kidneys, and at the same time rouses the bowels and skin to healthy action.

"Fruit-a-tives", by their prompt action on bowels and skin, almost instantly relieves the intense pain in back and promptly takes away every trace of Kidney Disease.

If you are suffering with your kidneys, begin at once to take "Fruit-a-tives" and you will quickly realize the value of these tablets.

At dealers—50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c—or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

IMPERIAL WASTE & METAL CO
6-12 QUEEN ST. MONTREAL

The Daily Review

TUESDAY, FEB. 1. 1910.

NOT YET—BUT SOON ?

It is said that astute leaders of the Canada-for-the-French movement consider the present mayoralty fight on "race" lines, in Montreal, a mistake. It is not good policy to bring these movements to a head, for a head may get a rap. If that is so, Casgrain may get beaten, though he be a Senator. The "racers" still continue their "good" work, as these extracts show:

The Montreal Star says—

"The substance of Senator Casgrain's appeal was that he was a French-Canadian. Because of this fact, he considered he should be supported by his compatriots in the city. He also emphasized his independence of any civic cliques or parties, and in support of this contention appeared at the two meetings unsupported by other civic candidates. . . .

"Mr. A. Bergevin accompanied the Senator and spoke briefly along the line followed by the mayoralty candidate. He called on all good French-Canadians to support their compatriot in the present fight and condemned the methods of the Citizens' Committee."

A SIGNIFICANT ADMISSION

French-Canadian journals have been of late getting more "discreet" in publishing French-Canadian views of the empire's defence policy. They regard this question as now approaching the danger-point. In fact Le Canada says that a plebiscite upon the question would be a bad thing for Canada. The reader will at once ask 'How could that be?" Le Canada, however, says that "Precisely because the two wings of the Conservative party MAKE APPEAL TO SENTIMENT, (Review capita's) and not to reason, an appeal to the people could at this juncture have only a disastrous effect upon the peace and harmony which Sir Wilfrid Laurier has worked so hard to establish."

We would like to call Le Canada's attention to the real significance of this admission. In the first place it is clear that the objectors are all French or chiefly so. It is true a few insignificant English-speaking representatives have as usual followed the scent of possible plunder and acquiesced in what they knew to be a wrong put upon Canada as a part of the British empire. But the movement culminating in the diplomatic triumph of Laurier"s do-nothing, wholly independent-Canadian-navy policy has allayed the irritation with the French with the exception of those who out-Herod Herod in their anti-imperial efforts. However, Sir Wilfrid so far has steered Canada in many directions with a skilful hand. Some day this admirable man will be found out when the harmony of which so much is now preached, may break out in still more serious discord. French arrogance is manifesting itself in many ways. Municipal, religious and national politics are all chosen fields for the play of French-Canadian racial ambition. We shall next be having an English Alliance to offset the Alliance Francaise and why not?

French journals are really preaching a new crusade. In spite of repeated challenges not one of them has given utterance to the faintest pretence of endorsing the unity of the British empire, with Canada a member of it. One could conceive of variety in the plans for reaching the desired end, but where the end itself is not desired, English and French Canada divide and are straightway a quarrel. We should not seek to quarrel with Sir Wilfrid Laurier regarding his plans, if we thought his heart was true, but his fealty to his race alone forbids our faith in him, as indeed his conduct on one memorable occasion does also. Mr. Willison, astute as he is, was fooled once and English-speaking Canada is a bit shy for the same reason. Let it be understood that we do not impugn Sir Wilfrid's sense of honor, but we do maintain that political statecraft may be as legitimate as deceiving an opponent in the ring is, and equally dangerous to the deceived. Generalship is at its best when the enemy is misled. That is not dishonor. It is worthy of the highest praise. It is the science of war. The same thing applies to statecraft. We are getting our share of it in Canada.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The bye-election at Ottawa was fought out on the navy question and the French again triumphed.

Captain Bernier seems to be making some serious blunders. Better put him in cold storage if he likes the cold so much.

The piece-de resistance of the Montreal Carnival is the turning of a somersault by a man on skis. Wouldn't a little thing like that look well off the top of Armour's hill?

Mr. Sexsmith, M.P., voted for the abolition of the Senate. If Mr. Sexsmith is in favour of a single chamber only we do not agree with him, also think the Senate should be elective.

It is said that after all there are no canals on Mars, and now Mr. Aylesworth's boasted reason for going on with the Newmarket ditch exists no more. Isn't that awful?

(Lushing and lewdness both begin with L, and both will end in it if persisted in. The following choice description of a Bartender's Ball in Montreal ought to show how much the temperance people are missing by not being "sensible." After all it is not these poor people who are to blame, but the Tammanyites, who encourage and make use of them there as elsewhere.—

"Ladies with abbreviated skirts, and ladies with no skirts at all; Apache dances, fist-cuffs, and a light collation of the calome variety; these were features of the Bartenders' Ball, or more grandiloquently, the "Bal de Comms de Bar," at the Auditorium this morning. It was supposed to be a masked ball. But on a general understanding the ladies shed the light of their countenances without hindrance.

A real calome dance was booked to be given at 5 a.m. John Mee The Bartenders' Organizer, however, told the company that the police didn't regard the item as necessary on the programme. But to fill the vacancy of disappointment a girl clad in long dreamy robes delighted the chosen.

The exclusive affair was held under police protection and supervision. Big Sergeant Beauclair, in plain clothes stood at the ball room entrance and rebuked the girls when they went too far. They all knew him. In the event of trouble the sergeant had two stalwarts guarding the outside doors.

The "piece de resistance" in the way of attire, was furnished by about six females; it consisted of tights, high-heeled shoes, and a jacket. It was a becoming costume, and those lucky enough to be wearing so little were the belles. One of the skirted, grieved by the preference shown the girls in tights, tucked up her clothes to facilitate her dancing.

The establishment included a bar. Between the dances there were intervals for refreshments thereat, and when the waltz music died down there was always a rush below stairs. The fault of not having the bar actually in the ball room was borne out when a stout-legged cage-girl saw her young man fall down the flight of stairs. The ball nearly ended in riot when the music ceased. The conductor declares that he and his mates wanted some fresh air, and they were going down stairs to get it. Afterwards the fresh air was brought up to them and delay was not necessary.

The Apache dance was performed by a raunchy bartender, and a slip of a girl on the ground floor, before an admiring audience. In general outline it resembled a wrestling match with certain distinctive features of its own. In emulation half the company present essayed the movements. It ended in the overturning of four tables, the crash of broken glass, and general excitement. The police looked on and enjoyed.

The Salome was given before a picked few. The lady was evidently a remarkably fine performer, and she risked cold draughts with a fine disregard and candor. In the end somebody left her an overcoat. With incidents of the sort excitement was maintained from the time of starting at 1 a.m., until shortly after 3. Then the gold-hued [illegible] descended, and the bar was no more patronized. Matter of acquaintance with a girl clad like "Madame Gauthier," led two men to fight, and the quarrel was taken up by all present. Thus ended the annual ball of the bartenders.'—Montreal Star.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Higher — Hogs Steady to Strong at U.S. Points.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—London and Liverpool cables quote live cattle (American) higher, at 14½c to 14¾c, dressed weight; refrigerator beef higher, at 10½c to 10¾c per lb.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—There were 70 carloads of live stock at the Union Stock Yards, consisting of 1522 cattle, 28 hogs, 173 sheep and lambs and 28 calves.

Exporters.

Whaley-Coughlin reported a picked lot of export steers, 1230 lbs. each, at $6.25, which was a reflection of the high prices on the English market. Export bulls sold at $4.25 to $4.75.

Butchers.

Prime picked lots of cattle, butchers' weights, sold at $5.65 to $5.90, the latter price being made by A. W. Maybee for five selected steers, 1100 lbs. each; loads of good sold at $5.25 to $5.50; medium, $4.85 to $5.15; common at $4.50 to $4.75; cows, $3 to $4.25; canners at $1.75 to $2.25.

Milkers and Springers.

Veal Calves.

Receipts of veal calves were limited, and prices were firm, at $3 to $7.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts amounted to about 173, all told. Prices ranged as follows: Sheep, ewes, at $4.60 to $5; culls, $3.50 to $4 per cwt.; lambs, $6 to $7 per cwt.

Hogs.

Hogs were quoted lower, at $8.40 for selects, fed and watered, and $8.15 f.o.b. cars at country points, which means about $8 per cwt. to the farmer, and that is no mean price, even if grain is costly feeding.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—(Special.)—At Montreal Stock Yards West End Market offerings amounted to 1200 cattle, 300 sheep and lambs, 600 hogs and 150 calves. Owing to more liberal supplies of cattle, and that butchers have been holding off, trade was rather slow. Some of the largest buyers stated that prices had seen the top, as supplies were now in excess of requirements. Strong cable advices are coming forward from Liverpool, noting an advance of ¼c to 1¼c per lb., with sales of choice Canadian steers at 14¾c to 15c, the highest for some time past, consequently Canadian shippers who take advantage of the low rates of ocean freight now offering will, no doubt, make some money. Sales of some picked steers were made to-day at 5¼c, but the price for choice steers was 5¼c to 5c; good at 5¼c to 5½c; fair at 4¾c to 5c; common at 4¼c to 4½c, and inferior at 3½c to 4c.

For hogs the feeling was about steady, and sales of selected lots were made at $9, weighed off cars. A firm feeling holds for sheep and lambs on account of continued limited supplies and good demand. Sales of lambs were made at 6¾c to 7c, and sheep at 4½c. Demand for calves was good, and offerings not large, and sales were made at from $3 to $10 each.

At the Canadian Pacific live stock market receipts last week were 417 cattle for export account, and 1580 cattle, 550 sheep and lambs, 905 hogs and 195 calves for local consumption. The supply this morning consisted of 100 cattle, 125 sheep and lambs, 250 hogs and 75 calves.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Jan. 31.—Cattle—Receipts, 2300 head, fairly active and steady; prime steers, $6.25 to $6.50; shipping, $5.50 to $6; butchers, $4.50 to $6; heifers, $4 to $5.75; cows, $3 to $5.25; bulls, $3.50 to $5.25; stockers and feeders, $3.75 to $5; stock heifers, $3 to $3.75; fresh cows and springers strong to $2 higher, $35 to $65.

Veals—Receipts, 1200 head, active and steady; $6 to $10.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 12,000 head; active; steady on heavy; 10c to 20c lower; heavy, $8.65 to $8.70, mixed, $8.60 to $8.65; yorkers, $8.35 to $8.60, pigs, $8.25 to $8.35; roughs, $7.90 to $8.10, stags, $7 to $7.50; dairies, $8.25 to $8.50.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 9000 head; active and 25c to 50c higher; lambs, $5.25 to $8.75; a few, $8.80; yearlings, $7.50 to $8; wethers, $6.25 to $6.50, ewes, $5.75 to $6; sheep, mixed, $3.50 to $6.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Beeves—Receipts, 4154, market irregular; steers, $4.65 to $6.75; oxen and stags, $3.50 to $5.40; bulls, $4.35 to $4.80; cows, $2.50 to $4.25; tail-ends, $3.25, dressed beef firm, at 9c to 10c; extra do., 10½c to 11c.

Calves—Receipts, 2052; veals generally lower; barnyard and western calves unchanged, veals, $8 to $10.50; few at $11, culls, $5 to $6.50; barnyard and fed calves, $3 to $6.50; dressed calves steady.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 14,100; sheep and lambs firm; sheep, $4 to $6, culls, $3.50; lambs, $7.50 to $8.75; few, $8.85; yearlings, $7.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 11,200; firm, at $8.60 to $8.80.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Cattle—Receipts, 18,000; market steady to strong; steers, $4.75 to $8; cows, $3.50 to $5.35; heifers, $3.65 to $6; bulls, $4 to $5.35; calves, $3 to $8.75; stockers and feeders, $3.75 to $5.40.

Hogs—Receipts, 34,000; market strong to 5c higher; choice, heavy, $8.60 to $8.65; butchers, $8.45 to $8.55; light, mixed, $8.20 to $8.30; choice, light, $8.30 to $8.40; packing, $8.40 to $8.45; pigs, $7.40 to $7.90; bulk of sales, $8.35 to $8.45.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 12,000; market [illegible] steady; sheep, $4.65 to $6; lambs, $7 to $8.40; yearlings, $6.25 to $8.

"I'll do it," shouted Bobby in some time halfback on his college eleven. "Break the will for me, Mr. Bowen, and I'll give"—

"I can't break it, Bobby. I'm its executor."

"Good Lord! Well, then, who is the best will breaker you know, please? Something has to be done right away."

"I'm afraid you don't grasp the situation. Now, if you were not married it would"—

"I wouldn't give up my wife for all the islands in the universe. That's settled. You don't know how happy we are. She's the"—

"Yes, yes, I know," interrupted the wily Mr. Bowen. "Don't tell me about it. Go and see Judge Garrett, over in the K. building. They say he expects to come back from the grave to break his own will."

Ten minutes later an excited young man rushed into an office in the K. building.

"You will have to fight it jointly," said Judge Garrett after extracting the wheat from the chaff of Browne's remarks. "You can't take hers away from her, and she can't get yours. We must combine against the natives. Come back tomorrow at 2."

Promptly at 2 Browne appeared, eager eyed and nervous. He had left behind him at home a miserable young woman with red eyes and choking breath who bemoaned the cruel conviction that she stood between him and fortune.

"But, hang it all, dearest, I wouldn't marry that girl if I had the chance. I'd marry you all over again today if I could," he had cried out to her, but she wondered all afternoon if he really meant it. It never entered her head to wonder if Lady Deppingham was old or young, pretty or ugly, bright or dull.

Judge Garrett had a copy of the will in his hand. He looked dubious, even dismayed.

"It's as sound as the rock of Gibraltar," he announced dolefully.

"You don't mean it!" gasped poor Bobby, mopping his fine Harvard brow, his six feet of manhood shrinking perceptibly as he looked about for a chair in which to collapse. "C-can't it be smashed?"

"It might be an easy matter to prove either of these old gentlemen to have been insane, but the two of them together make it out of the question."

"Darned unreasonable!"

"What do you mean, sir?" indignantly.

"I mean—oh, you know what I mean—the conditions and all that. Why, the old chumps must have been trying to prove their grandchildren insane when they made that will. Nobody but imbeciles would marry people they'd never seen. I"—

"But the will provides for a six months' courtship, Mr. Browne. I'm sorry to say. You might learn to love a person in less time and still retain your mental balance, you know, especially if she were pretty and an heiress to half your own fortune. I dare say that is what they were thinking about."

"Thinking? They weren't thinking of anything at all. They weren't capable. Why didn't they consider the possibility that things might turn out just as they have?"

"Possibly they did consider it, my boy. It looks to me as if they did not care a rap whether it went to their blood relatives or to the islanders. I fancy of the two they loved the islanders more. At any rate, they left a beautiful opening for the very complications which now conspire to give the natives their own, after all. It's necessary for both of you to be on the ground according to schedule. You must go to the island, wife or no wife, and there's not much time to be lost. Lady Deppingham won't let the grass grow under her feet if I know anything about the needs of English nobility, and I'll bet my hat she's packing her trunks now for a long stay in Japat. You have farther to go than she, but you must get over there inside of sixty days. You can't tell what may happen in the next six months."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, it's possible that you may become a widower and she a wid"—

"Good heaven, Judge Garrett! Impossible!" gasped Bobby Browne, clinching the arms of his chair.

"Nothing is impossible, my boy."

"Well, if that's what you're counting on you can count me out. I won't speculate on my wife's death."

"But, man, suppose that it did hap-

"It's as sound as the rock of Gibraltar," pen!" roared the judge irascibly. "You should be prepared for the best—I mean the worst. Don't look like a sick dog. You go to the island at once. Take your wife along if you like. You'll find her ladyship there, and she'll need a woman to tell her troubles to. I don't think we'll have any trouble getting the British heirs to join in the suit to overthrow the will. The only point is this—the islanders must not have the advantage that your absence from Japat will give to them. Now, I'll"—

"But I don't like the suggestion that my wife will be obliged to die in order"—

"Please leave all the details to me, Mr. Browne. It may not be necessary for her to die. There are other alternatives in law. Give the lawyers a chance. All you have to do is to plant yourself on that island and stay there until we tell you to get off."

"Or the islanders push me off," lugubriously.

Young Mr. Browne went away at dusk, half reeling under the responsibility of existence, and eventually reached the side of the anxious young woman uptown. He bared the facts and awaited the wail of dismay.

"I think it will be perfectly jolly!" she cried instead and kissed him rapturously.

Over the opposite side of the Atlantic the excitement in certain circles was even more intense than that produced in Boston. Lord Deppingham needed the money, but he was a whole day in grasping the fact that his wife could not have it and him at the same time. The beautiful and fashionable Lady Deppingham, once little Agnes Ruthven, came as near to having hysteria as Englishwomen ever do, but she called in a lawyer instead of a doctor. For three days she neglected her social duties (and they were many), ignored her gallant admirers (and they were many) and hurried back and forth between home and chambers so vigorously that his lordship was seldom closer than a day behind in anything she did.

There was a great rattling of trunks, a jangling of keys, a thousand goodbys, a castoff season, and the Deppinghams were racing away for the island of Japat, somewhere in the far south seas.

CHAPTER III.

INTRODUCING HOLLINGSWORTH CHASE.

THE excitement attending the Skaggs-Wyckholme revelations had not yet spread to the grand duchy of Rapp-Thorberg, apparently lost as it was in the cluster of small units which went to make up a certain empire, one of the world powers. The Grand Duke Michael disdained the world at large. He had but little in common with anything that moved beyond the confines of his narrow domain. His court was sleepy, lackadaisical, unemotional, impregnable to the taunts of progression. His people were thrifty, stolid and absolutely stationary in their loyalty to the ancient traditions of the duchy. His army was a mere matter of taxation and not a thing of pomp or necessity.

The precise location of the grand duchy in the map of the world has little or nothing to do with this narrative. Indeed, were it not for the fact that the grand duke possessed a charming and most desirable daughter the Thorberg dynasty would not be mentioned at all. The grand duke's peace of mind had been severely disturbed—so severely, in fact, that he was transferring his troubles to the emperor, who, in turn, felt obliged to communicate with the United States ambassador, who, in his turn, had no other alternative than to take summary action in respect to the indiscretions of a fellow countryman. Chase's conscience was even and serene, and he was resigning his post with the confidence that he had performed his obligations as an American gentleman should, even though the performance had created an extraordinary commotion. Chase was new to the old world and its customs, especially those rigorous ones which surrounded royalty and denied it the right to venture into the commonplace.

Chase had been the representative of the American government at Thorberg for six months. The American flag floated above his doorway in the Friedrichstrasse, but in all his six months of occupation not ten Americans had crossed the threshold. He was a vigorous, healthy young man, and it may well be presumed that the situation bored him. He was not a politician; no more was he an office seeker. He was a real soldier of fortune in search of affairs—in peace or in war, on land or at sea. Possessed of a small income sufficiently adequate to sustain life if he managed to advance it to the purple age, but wholly incapable of supporting him as a thriftless diplomat, he was compelled to make the best of his talents, no matter to what test they were put. He left college at twenty-two, possessed of the praiseworthy design to earn his own way without recourse to the $4,500 income from a certain trust fund. His plan also incorporated the hope to save every penny of that income for the possible "rainy day." He was now thirty. In each of several New York banks he had something like $1,000 drawing 3 per cent interest, while he picked his blithe way through the world on $2,500 a year, more or less, as chance ordained.

"When I'm forty," Chase was wont to remark to envious spendthrifts who couldn't understand his philosophy, "I'll have over a hundred thousand there, and if I live to be ninety just think what I'll have. Moreover, I may get married and have to maintain a poor wife with rich relatives, which is a terrible strain, you know. You have to live up to your wife's relatives if you don't do anything else."

He did not refer to the chance that he was quite sure to come in for a large legacy at the death of his maternal grandfather, a millionaire ranch owner in the far west.

After leaving college he drifted pretty much over the world, taking pot luck with fortune and clasping the hand of circumstance. There had been hard roads to travel as well as easy ones, but he never complained. He swung on through life with the heart of a soldier and the confidence of a pagan. He loathed business, and he abhorred trade.

He was an orphan and bounden to no man. No one had the right to question his actions after his twenty-first anniversary. He went in for law at Yale and then practiced restlessly, vaguely, for two years in Baltimore under the patronage of his father's oldest friend, a lawyer of distinction.

Tiring of the law books and reports in the old judge's office, he suddenly abandoned his calling and set forth to see the world. Almost before his friends knew that he had left he was heard of in Turkestan. In course of time he served as a war correspondent for one of the great newspapers, acted as agent for great hemp dealers in the Philippines, carried a rifle with the Boers in South Africa, hunted wild beasts in Asia and in Hottentot land, took snapshots in St. Petersburg and almost got to the north pole with one of the expeditions. Not in a month's journey would you meet a truer thoroughbred, a more agreeable chap, a more polished vagabond, than Hollingsworth Chase, first lieutenant in Dame Fortune's army. Tall, good looking, rawboned, cheerful, gallant, he was the true comrade of those merry, reckless volunteers from all lands who find commissions in Fortune's army and serve her faithfully.

He was nearly thirty when the diplomatic service began to appeal to him as a pleasing variation from the rigorous occupations he had followed heretofore. One of his uncles was a congressman, and another was in some way connected with railroads. He first sought the influence of the latter and then the recommendation of the former. In less than six weeks after his arrival in Washington he was off for the city of Thorberg, in the grand duchy of Rapp-Thorberg, carrying with him an appointment as consul and supplied with the proper stamps and seal of office.

At the end of five months he loathed Thorberg; he hated the inhabitants; he smarted under the sting of royal disdain; he had no real friends, no boon companions, and he was obliged to be good! What wonder, then, that the bored, suffering, vivacious Mr. Chase seized the first opportunity to leap headforemost into the very thick of a most appalling indiscretion!

When he first arrived in Thorberg to assume his sluggish duties he was not aware of the fact that the grand duke had an unmarried daughter, the Princess Genevra.

She was visiting in St. Petersburg or Berlin or some other place when he reached his post of duty, and it was toward the end of his fifth month before she returned to her father's palace in Thorberg. He awoke to the importance of the occasion and took some slight interest in the return of the royal young lady, even going so far as to follow the crowd to the railway station on the sunny June afternoon.

He saw the princess for the first time that afternoon, and he was bowled over, to use the expression of his English friends with whom he dined that night. She was the first woman that he had ever looked upon that he could describe, for she was the only one who had impressed him to that extent. This is how he pictured her at the American legation in Paris a few weeks later:

"Ever see her? Well, you've something to live for, gentlemen. I've seen her but three times, and I don't seem able to shake off the spell. You've never seen such hair. Gad, it's as near like the kind that Henner painted as anything human could be, except that it's more like old gold, if you can understand what I mean by that. Not bronze, mind you, nor the raw red, but—oh, well, I'm not a novelist, so I can't halfway describe it. She's rather tall—not too tall, mind you—five feet five, I'd say—whatever that is in the metric system. Slender and well dressed—oh, that's the strangest thing of all! Well dressed! Think of a princess being well dressed! I'd say she's twenty-two or twenty-three years of age—not a minute older. I think her eyes are a very dark gray, almost blue. Her skin is like a—a—oh, let me see! What is there that's as pure and soft as her skin? Something warm, and pink, and white, d'ye see? Well, never mind. And her smile! And her frown!

Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Columbus, Ohio.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during change of life. My doctor told me it was good, and since taking it I feel so much better that I can do all my work again. I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fine remedy for all woman's troubles, and I never forget to tell my friends what it has done for me."—Mrs. R. HANSON, 304 East Long St., Columbus, Ohio.

Another Woman Helped.

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored my health and strength, and proved worth mountains of gold to me. For the sake of other suffering women I am willing you should publish my letter."—Mrs. CHARLES BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

Women who are passing through this critical period or who are suffering from any of those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of the fact that for thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills. In almost every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THE CHILDREN'S AID

The Children's Aid Society's annual meeting takes place on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The general public is cordially invited. The work done this year has been more than usually difficult and onerous and it is the duty of every well-wisher of our little waifs that he or she attend this meeting by way of encouragement to the officers and committees who have so much upon their hands. It is lack of attendance that paralyzes all societies that go under and there is no reason why a children's aid society should be an exception. Sometimes the attendance at the annual meeting has been most discouraging. It is therefore hoped that a full attendance at the Council Chamber to-morrow will show that interest in the welfare of the little ones is not lagging.

QUEBEC'S REPRESENTATION

La Presse brings up for discussion a subject of supreme importance, that of federal representation. By the British North America Act Quebec is entitled to sixty-five federal members, no more and no less, and whatever the unit of population represented thereby, is, whether one member for twenty, thirty or forty thousand people, the same must be the unit of representation of all the other provinces. In this way, no advantage accrues to any province that does not gain it by increase of population. But those provinces, such as New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, which have not gone ahead in population, must still maintain the Quebec unit, hence their number of federal representatives decrease in number. It is actually doing so. Quebec's population has increased amazingly and Ontario, who lost from the same cause six representatives up to 1905, may continue to lose, so that the preponderance in numbers and power will go to Quebec or elsewhere in time.

This is a serious matter.

Ontario is even now playing second fiddle in the Dominion's affairs, and it won't be long at this rate until it sinks into comparative insignificance.

LIFE UNDERWRITERS' ANNUAL BANQUET

Enjoyable Time at Hoopers—New Members Secured—Officers Elected

Peace and good will reigned at the annual meeting and banquet of the Life Underwriters' Association of Central Ontario, held last night at Hooper's Cafe. The gathering was the largest in the history of the organization, eleven new members affiliating.

Before repairing to the festal board the election of officers for the ensuing year was held and the results follows:—

D. H. Moore, Peterborough, president; 1st vice-president, J. L. Allen, Peterborough; 2nd vice-president, Capt. W. J. Robertson, Port Hope; secretary-treasurer, T. Marks, Peterborough; executive committee, W. R. Weddes, S. E. Sills, F. H. Rogers, B. Madill, C. E. Barnett and J. H. Acheson.

Marshalled by the genial president, D. H. Moore, the members of the association and their guests gathered around the well-spread board and satisfied the demands of the inner man, after which the president introduced the speakers of the evening.

E. R. Machum, of St. John, N.B., the president of the Dominion Association gave a stirring address, referring to the great future before Canada and the inevitable growth of life insurance with the expansion of the population.

A telegram regretting his inability to be present was read from J. A. Tory, secretary of the National Association.

Mr. T. B. Parkinson, of London, Ont., vice-president of the Life Underwriters of Canada, followed with a strong exposition of the many benefits of the association to its individual members, urging the Central Ontario Association to do its share towards doubling the membership of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada before the annual convention to be held in Toronto in September next.

Short addresses were also delivered by Mr. D. H. Moore, the popular and able president; ex-president Weddes, of Lindsay, and Messrs. Allen, Lindsay; Gage and several others.

A fine musical programme, rendered by Messrs. Leadbetter, Sherry and Halpenny, was very much appreciated by the members and their guests.

After tendering a hearty vote of thanks to the speakers of the evening and the retiring officers, the national anthem was sung and the gathering dispersed.

BOARD OF WORKS WILL ASK FOR $18,000 FOR THIS YEAR

The Board of Works will make application to the Finance Committee for $18,000 as the appropriation for 1910. This was decided on at the meeting of the committee last night. Last year the Board of Works appropriation was $12,500, but this was an unusually small amount as the estimates were pared to the bone last year.

"We kept within the estimate," said Ald. Phelan, "but you will never get along on such a small sum again."

It is the intention of the Board to do considerable permanent work this year. Over four thousand dollars of the appropriation is taken up by the salaries of the permanent officials.

WHICH UNDERTAKER IS GOING TO HAVE CHARGE OF DAN SPENCE AMBULANCE?

Who is going to have charge of the Dan Spence Ambulance?

The ambulance is to be taken out of service for six weeks to have it repaired and reprinted, and the question as to who will have charge of it after that will be settled by tender. This was decided on at the meeting of the Property Committee last night, when the question was pretty thoroughly discussed. D. Bellegheem has had the ambulance since it was put into commission, eight years ago. A Comstock has requested several times that he be given in for a while, and four years ago the council passed a resolution that Bellegheem and Comstock be given it year about. For some reason or other this was never done. At the last meeting of the council the Comstock firm requested that they have charge of the ambulance. It is in need of a coat of paint and some minor repairs, and it will take about six weeks to do this work. Another ambulance will have to be got in its place while the improvements are being made, and in this connection Mr. Bellegheem was asked to be present at the meeting of the committee last night.

Ald. Morgan was of the opinion that one man should not have charge of the ambulance all the time. While the sum paid by the city to Mr. Bellegheem, ($200 per year) was not enough to give him a profit, it was plain that the possession of the ambulance resulted in considerable business for the undertaker who had it—business that perhaps he would not get otherwise. Another undertaker had asked to have the ambulance, and it was only fair that he should have it for a while.

Ald. Batten said he was chairman of the Property Committee when the city secured the ambulance, and at that time Mr. Bellegheem was the only man who would take it. The other undertakers would not give it room on their premises. While he had no desire to keep the ambulance from going to Mr. Comstock, he pointed out that the public was now aware that the ambulance was at Bellegheem's, and knew where to telephone to get it. It would take the public a year to become acquainted with the change. Mr. Bellegheem was also convenient to two livieries, where a team could be secured to answer a call when his own horses were in use at a funeral. Mr. Comstock was not so well situated in this respect. These points should be considered.

In reference as to what was going to be done for an ambulance while the Dan Spence was out of service, Mr. Bellegheem told the committee that he would give the city the use of his own ambulance, and would leave it to the committee to say what he should get for doing this. He would be satisfied with whatever the committee decided to do. If his own ambulance was to used in place of the Dan Spence he would not be able to answer calls from the country, as it would be necessary to have the ambulance in the city all the time. Asked to name a figure for doing this, Mr. Bellegheem mentioned fifty cents per day, of $3.50 per week. While addressing the committee, he pointed out that the Dan Spence had been used to convey thirty-one small-pox patients last summer. The clothing equipment of it had to be changed after each trip. He supplied the pillows, sheets, blankets, etc., and they had to be washed and disinfected each time, making a large amount of extra work and expense.

Ald. Duncan said Mr. Comstock would give his own ambulance free of cost if he were given the Dan Spence after it had been reprinted.

Ald. Bradburn thought the ambulance should be given out by tender. There were four undertakers in the city and one had as much right to it as the other.

Ald. Morgan thought the fire hall was the proper place for the city's ambulance. The number of men on the fire brigade could be increased and they could look after it.

It was pointed out that it would cost probably a thousand dollars to put the ambulance at the fire hall. Another team of horses, harness and other equipment would have to be purchased.

Mayor Morrow considered it strange that the decision of the council four years ago, to have the ambulance alternate between Bellegheem and Comstock, had not been carried out.

Ald. Morgan moved that the city advertise for tenders for the looking after of the ambulance. Ald. Bradburn seconded this, and it was carried.

Ald. Graham moved, seconded by Ald. Batten, that Mr. Bellegheem be paid fifty cents per day for the use of the ambulance while the Dan Spence is being repainted. This was carried.

In connection with the painting of the ambulance Mr. Bellegheem suggested that it be painted a light drab. The majority of ambulances were now painted this color, as it was felt that a dark shade made the ambulance look too much like a coffin waggon.

It was decided to raise the front gearing of the ambulance, as it is now too low.

On motion of Ald. Morgan and Ald. Graham, it was decided to take no action on the request of the Dickson Company to transfer to the city some land on Dublin street, in return for a portion of the river reserve.

THE AMITY CLUB OF HAVELOCK

are having a grand military concert on Monday evening next, Feb. 7th, which promises to be a decided treat. The 57th Regimental Band, of Peterborough, under the direction of Mr. Gliddon, and assisted by Miss Choate, Miss Reesor, Miss Hallihan and Mr. Halpeny will provide the programme. After the concert the club will hold a dance in the Opera House, and the members are working hard to make the event a most successful one.

The Amity Club have made arrangements to run a special train west immediately after the events of the evening are over, in order to accommodate those from Peterborough and other places west that attend.

KNOX CHURCH YOUNG PEOPLE

Mr. Roy Laing occupied the chair at the meeting last night. An interesting paper on the late Dr. Horatio Brown was read by Mr. Andrew Robertson. The life and work of this great hymn writer, was greatly enjoyed. His many characteristics were referred to, he being an ardent worker and prayerful man. Hymns composed by Brown were sung during the evening. A quartette, Misses Williamson, Manson, Messrs. Dickson, Reid, sang one of his hymns, which was enjoyed.

POSSIBLE EFFECT OF COLLISION WILL BE TALKED ABOUT

The meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society this evening in the Collegiate will be particularly beneficial to the newest members as the whole evening will be devoted to the elementary phases of the study.

Dr. Marsh will deliver the main address of the evening and illustrate it throughout with lantern slides. A number of these have been obtained during the past week. The aim of the lecture will be to show the means by which we earth-dwellers obtain information regarding other worlds and the great universe about us.

An interesting feature of the evening will be the consideration of the possible effect of the probable collision of the earth and the tail of Halley's comet on May 18th.

These meetings are always free and the public are cordially invited to take advantage of the privilege.

THREE APPLICATIONS FOR THE FOREMANSHIP

The city has three applications for the foremanship on the construction of sewers for 1910. They are from Martin Neary who was foreman last year, William Maxwell and J. Gibson. They will be considered by the Board of Works in the near future when the petitions for new sidewalks will also be taken up. Several petitions have already been sent in and there are some left over from last year. Mr. D. W. Dumble has petitioned for a sidewalk on the west side of Downie street, between London and McDonnel streets. He owns all the property that will front on the walk.

DOCTORS FEAR THE WORST

Don't Think That Martha McPherson Will Recover—Murder Charge in Case of Death

High County Constable Cochrane has received word from the Toronto police that the prisoner, Henderson, who is in the county jail here on the charge of attempted murder in connection with the assault on the old Misses Henderson near Norwood is wanted in Toronto on the charge of theft.

He has also been notified that the condition of the older of the two women Miss Martha McPherson, is regarded as very serious. She has taken a turn for the worse and her temperature is very high. Drs. Sutton and Pettigrew don't think that she will recover, and say she is not likely to live long. In the event of her death the charge of murder will be preferred against Henderson.

CEMENT WILL COST CITY MORE THAN LAST YEAR

The price of cement is causing some concern to the City Council at the present time. Ald. Hicks, chairman of the Board of Works, stated at the meeting last night that imported cement was now quoted at $1.75 per barrel and the price given by the merger is $1.62. This is a good deal more than the city paid last season. Mayor Morrow stated that the City of Toronto had purchased their supply for 1910 last fall at $1.28.

Ald. Hicks said that it was not likely that prices would go higher for some time and the Board decided to leave off the purchasing of the city's cement for a month or so.

It was stated at the meeting that there is now no competition of any account in the cement business in Canada.

INCREASE IN CUSTOM RETURNS

The receipts at the local Custom House for the month of January, show a substantial increase over the same month last year. The figures are as follows;

	Receipts
Jan. 1910	$34,192.15
Jan. 1909	15,997.55
Increase	$18,194.60

WEDDING BELLS

CRIMMONS—MULLEN

A very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized this morning at St. Mary's church when Miss Annie Mullen daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mullen, Duke Street, was united in marriage to Mr. John Crimmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Drimmons, St. Patrick street. The ceremony was performed by Archdeacon Casey in the presence of a few intimate friends and relatives. The bride was assisted by the groom's sister, Miss Mary Crimmons, and the groom by Mr. James O'Leary. After the ceremony Mr and Mrs. Crimmons returned to the bride's home, where a sumptuous repast was served. They leave to-morrow morning for Peterborough and points east, and on their return will reside on Caroline street.—Lindsay Warder.

WAKE UP AND SEE THE BEAR TO-MORROW

To-morrow is Candlemas Day, and according to an old superstition, the bear will come out, look around for his shadow, inquire what are the prospects for Peterborough meeting Lindsay, when the isolation hospital will be built, and some other things. If the sun is shining he will exclaim, "O you shadow!" and go back to his nest for six weeks during which time winter will be allowed to cut loose and send up the price of coal. If there is no shadow he will remain out and spring will soon be here.

The moral of the whole business is to wake up and see the bear.

TRIED TO BLOW UP THE STATION AT COBALT

Special to Review

Toronto, Feb. 1.—An attempt was made early this morning to blow up the T. & N. O. station at Cobalt with dynamite. The job was, however, an amateur one and little damage was done. The explosive was packed against the wall with snow, which used up most of its force.

LINDSAY SWAMPED THE LOCALS IN SECOND HALF

Great Work of Both Goalminders Featured First Half Which Ended 3-2, Against Peterborough—Lindsay Had Much the Better of Play in Second Half and Won Out 13-3.

After holding the Lindsay team for the first half of last night's game to a 3—2 score, and taking the ice again with all kinds of confidence in their ability to come out ahead at the finish, the local intermediates were walloped by 10 goals to 1, making the final figures for the game stand, Lindsay 13, Peterborough 3.

It is hard to figure out just what was the matter with the Peterborough outfit. They performed brilliantly in the first half, and for a few minutes after the resting period looked good to continue so, but the counters began to slide in, despite the great work of Derocher, and after the teams had been playing for ten minutes, it was not a difficult proposition to pick the winner. After the second half was well under way, Lindsay outskated and outplayed their visitors to a very noticeable degree. It was not a case of hard luck. The fact of there being only six men on each lineup had something to do with the reverse in the situation, for Stoddard and Blomfield had a better chance to get in their effective rushing, and their work was an outstanding feature of the battle.

The first half was great hockey with the goal tenders sharing the honors for their brilliant work between the nets. Both Derocher and Gamble were right on and stopped shot after shot in a manner that made the large number of fans present forget they had to pay 50 cents to pass the doorkeeper. Lindsay took the first, third and fifth scores in this half, and Peterborough secured the second and fourth. The locals were superior to Lindsay in combination work, and their performance in this respect took well with the crowd. At the shooting and checking game they were equal to their opponents. The Stoddard outfit were faster skaters and showed their superiority in this department time and again, and especially so in the second chapter.

Referee Cook caught everything in the first half, but allowed a lot of loafing on the part of Stoddard in the second half, and in several cases scores were secured that did not look good even to the Lindsay rooters. However, that is all we have to fall back on.

Every man on the Lindsay team played sterling hockey, and each shared in the honors of the night. Stoddard and Blomfield were the main attraction, but to the latter is due the credit of not taking any advantage by floating or scoring on off-side passes. Cain did not get away so easily as in the game here on Friday night, but was prominent at times. McDougall was conspicuous throughout the contest and assisted materially in the scoring. Green and Cote on the defence were steady and broke up combination plays and individual work, and got away in the most approved style. The rushing of both in the second half helped a whole lot, and it looked on several occasions as though all the team, excepting Gamble, were on the forward line. Gamble produced the goods in clever fashion, and he put up a clever exhibition of goal-tending.

For Peterborough Dobson and Ray put up a great game in the centre positions. Dobson took the two scores for his team in the first half, and it was unfortunate that he was injured and compelled to retire. The team did not appear to be in the same during the remainder of the game. Although they got in nice combination work, something was lacking to make it effective. Seymour put up an aggressive and steady game against Blomfield, but was inclined to wait too long to shoot on the nets. In many cases when he made the distance alone he was worked into the corner, where he lost the puck. McMillan had hard luck with his shooting. He checked well and combined nicely with the rest of his team mates. McDougall and Campbell had a hard night of it, but gave a good account of himself. Both sidetracked many dangerous looking plays, and took advantage of any opportunity to help out the forward line. It was difficult for either team to stop the great work of Stoddard and Blomfield towards the end of the second half, as in the majority of cases the two players had the benefit of a good start. The ten goals secured by Lindsay in the second half were fast ones that would beat any goal tender. The shots were speedy and from close in. Derocher, while his team was working, put up a clever game at his position and starred in the first half.

THE PLAY.

Lindsay started right off the reel with a couple of shots, which were blocked. On the return McDougall secured and rushed, his shot going over the nets. Lindsay scored on off-side play, but just to start the excitement, Stoddard beat Derocher, after taking the pass from McDougall. Time, 2 1-2 minutes.

Derocher stopped a hot one, and Cain drew the first penalty for loafing. He was followed a minute later by Roy McDougall. The play alternated between the two nets, but after Gamble had blocked a daisy, Dobson came along with the necessary and the Peterborough rooters gave a mighty yell. Time, 2 1-2 minutes.

R. McDougall took a rest for an infraction, and with him out of the way, Stoddard broke away from centre and shot dead on Derocher, who blocked cleverly, and the puck went up the ice. Gamble used his pads to good advantage, and when McDougall and Stoddard combined, the shot went wild. Campbell had a nice chance to break the tie, but missed Gamble by a foot, and Stoddard got away again. Derocher blocked and rebounded on a lift from Blomfield. The two mates combined, but the village boy shot wide. Both goal tenders were working overtime, but after 5 1-2 minutes, Stoddard accepted a pass, and beating the defence, found the nets and Lindsay was one to the good.

Peterborough went after Gamble for he next few minutes, but couldn't connect. Green broke up a fine play, and Stoddard, by the assistance of McDougall, ascended from the ice. Gamble looked after McMillan's long shot and another from Seymour. Lindsay worked the puck up the ice, but there was nothing doing. Seymour took a flying dash down the boards and was ditched into the corner. Stoddard secured, but Derocher made a nice pick-up on the shot from the side, and a minute later prevented again. Cain went off for tripping McMillan. Derocher picked up another with his hands, and Cain signalized his reappearance by a lift, which, however, went high. Seymour journeyed to the timekeepers. Pacer McDougall missed a long shot by inches. Derocher stopped a couple of warm ones, and in return Lindsay territory was invaded. McMillan was behind the net on a pass, but this resulted in the puck finally becoming faced off in front of Gamble. Peterborough bucked and Dobson shoved the rubber in. Time, 10 minutes.

Shortly after the face-off Dobson was cut on the lip and retired, Cain going off to even up. Pacer McDougall, on play being resumed, drew his first penalty. Green got away, but shot high, and after securing, McDougall rushed, but fell by the wayside. Seymour was chased for getting Blomfield, and when Green and Stoddard combined the shot went over the nets. Blomfield took the next counter in 4 minutes on a lift from the side.

McDougall was sidetracked into the corner when he rushed, and in return Derocher stopped twice in quick succession. Ray found an opening, but with McMillan and Seymour with him he forgot to pass on meeting Green. Seymour tried hard, but the nets were not wide enough, and when Green Green rushed McMillan stopped him too suddenly and was sent to the fence. Lindsay pressed, but Seymour recovered, only to lose to Cote. Pacer was presented with penalty number two for tripping Ray, and Derocher stopped a lift from Blomfield. The half ended with Lindsay in possession of the puck and on the long end of the 3—2 score.

SECOND HALF

Dobson's injury was too serious to allow of him taking the ice for the second half. Pacer McDougall forget to return to the box to finish out his term, and on being notified of such being the case, the referee gave that player an additional minute. Both nets were assailed without success. McMillan was penalized for tripping Cote. McDougall came on and a minute later secured the puck, rushed, and passed to Stoddard, who scored. Time, 3 minutes.

Lindsay took the rubber from the face-off, and Derocher got in the road of a pretty shot from Blomfield. Seymour returned and shot, and Gamble blocked. Ray, on a loner, was forced to the side, and R. McDougall drew a five-minute penalty, which he did not deserve. Ray joined him a minute later. Everything looked lovely for Lindsay, but they couldn't score, and were having their hands full to prevent a counter against them. Gamble cleared nicely on McMillan's shot, and repeated when Mac and Seymour combined. Campbell stopped Green on his dangerous-looking jaunt, but Blomfield came along with some fancy work that had them all beat, and put his team ahead one better. Time, 6 min.

It just took Bill Stoddard two minutes to secure the next. Green had broken up a two-man play and Seymour was watching the game from the fence. Loafer Willie accepted a pass and scored.

Pacer McDougall came along with another one in two minutes. Lindsay was having the better of the play.

Derocher used his pad on a sizzler from Stoddard, and left his goal to do a little stick-handling. He did not go far, and when Green bore down on him he went out again and blocked, but the rubber took a bound and landed in the nets. Time, 2 minutes.

It was up to Campbell to take what proved to be the only score for Peterborough in the second half. Derocher had taken care of a shot from Cote, who had broken through the defence, and another from Blomfield. Campbell and McMillan got away, the former taking the last pass and placing the puck behind Gamble. Time, 2 minutes.

Seymour got away alone, but Gamble was waiting for him. Cote returned, and on an off-side pass from Stoddard, scored. The referee, however, should be given credit for catching this one. Peterborough took a brace and kept the play around Lindsay goal for about one minute. Stoddard saw an opening and rushed, and Derocher blocked. McMillan was stopped by Green and Derocher handled Blomfield's shot. After six minutes Stoddard got away with another offside pass from Green and the umpire's hand went up.

R. McDougall rushed, and was shoved into the corner, and Gamble juggled a hard one, after McMillan and Seymour had combined. Cote returned and shot wild. In two minutes Stoddard scored, and after doing a circus stunt over Campbell's stick, scored.

The referee caught another offside when Stoddard used his skate, after taking a pass from Blomfield. The shot beat Derocher, but the score doesn't figure in the summary. McDougall and Seymour combined, but lost the puck to the defence and Cote and Stoddard broke away together. Derocher blocked the shot. Blomfield went all to the bad on a lone shot, and Green was ordered to the box. Blomfield rushed nicely, but missed the net. McDougall tried it alone and drifted into Cote. Derocher went out and took care of a shot from Green on a pass from Stoddard. Seymour and Campbell combined, but got lost in the Lindsay defence. A beautiful shot from the side by Stoddard netted the next goal. Time, 3 1-2 minutes.

McMillan took the pass from Ray and Gamble blocked. Blomfield took the last score of the game in one minute on a pretty shot from the side. Full time was called with Campbell beating it for the Lindsay pens.

Peterborough and Orillia curlers will meet on Thursday to compete for the Shepherd-Neill trophy. Four of the local rinks will go to Orillia and four will come here from that place. Orillia won the trophy last year.

THE TURF

HOCKEY

The team representing the Peterborough intermediates in the O.H.A. this year was picked from the city league teams. It is stated that Peterborough people think more of, and take more interest in their city league games than they do in the O.H.A. games. This speaks well for the standard of hockey played in the city league.—Lindsay Warder.

Up in Lindsay they are talking about playing Randall of the disbanded Oshawa team. How the Mudville sports can see their way clear to beat the O. H. A. in this deal is a puzzler.

The Mission Study Class of George street Methodist church will meet at the residence of Mrs. George Curtis, 690 Aylmer street, to-morrow night at 7.30 o'clock.

HOW IT LOOKED TO LINDSAY

The following is part of the account of the Peterborough-Lindsay game here Friday night;—

the Lindsay braves journeyed into a Warder.—Can the Lindsay intermediates still play hockey? 'Twould seem so from last night's game when the Lindsay braves journeyed into a foreign country (Peterborough) and soundly grubbed the fast Peterborough outfit to the tune of 6—3. Even their most ardent supporters scarcely looked for such a decisive indication of superiority.

Peterborough, as fast as they are acknowledged to be, took the count, the cause being attributed to the superiority of the Lindsay players on the hard ice.

For the Peterborough seven Ray, the fast little captain of the team, put up a magnificent game and was always a thorn in the way of the Lindsay forward line. He handled himself well, as did Campbell at centre. Dusty was inclined to rough it and was penalized frequently. Derocher in goal had more than he could attend to, but he managed to turn aside numerous difficult shots and ones that were labelled "sure" were swiped into either one of the corners. The little Frenchman blocked well and clearly nicely. Our old friend, "Rollie" Glover was on the defence, but marred his play by too much tripping and slashing.

They are about as speedy a septette as you will find in the business outside of the Midgets, of course. That man Derocher, in goal—he of His Majesty's mail service, is a good one, and he was kept as busy last night as he was during the rush of mail matter at Christmas time. Then there was Rollie Glover, the hero of a hundred fights, who every year makes an Adelaide Patti announcement. The oldest inhabitant will remember this stocky lad and last night he showed that he had imbibed the elixir of life. He played a brilliant game. McDougall, the banker, who whiles away his time in financial matters on the banks of the Indian river among the Scotch people of Keene, held down cover point, and showed himself a heady and reliable defence player. Ray, as rover, was grand, and in the line up of the Peterline up. He scintilated last night at all stages, and is one of the greatest exponents of hockey in those parts. McMillan and Campbell are clever stick-handlers, and hard workers, and the same can be said of Dusty, who also had a tendency to lose his head and cut up badly. Let not they angry passions rise, young man.

W. H. HILL, ESQ.,

Manager Sun Life Assurance Co., of Canada,

Peterborough, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—About five years ago my late husband took out $1,000 00 insurance in The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, on which he only paid the first three premiums. Shortly after his death, which occurred on the 6th inst., although I was under the impression that his policy had lapsed, I called at your office to inquire if anything could be done whereby we might get something out of it. You can imagine my surprise and genuine gratitude to learn that, owing to your non-forfeiture privilege, the policy was still in force at his death and that I was entitled to the full thousand dollars, less only the two unpaid premiums and interest.

This seems to me such extraordinary and generous treatment that I wish to add my expression of most sincere thanks and appreciation to the many others your company must receive.

I also wish to acknowledge and thank you for your courtesy and promptness in procuring for me a cheque to-day covering the policy, and to state that if my endorsation of the already mentioned feature of your policies is of value you are quite at liberty to use it.

Gratefully yours,

MARGARET LONG,

A grand military concert will be given under the auspices of the Amity Club on Monday, Feb. 7th, when the 57th Regimental Band, of Peterborough, assisted by Miss Choate, Miss Reesor, Miss Halliban and Mr. Halpany, will supply a good evening's music.

For Division Court No. 5, to be held at Havelock, Mr. W. A. McMaster has received the commission of clerk and Mr. R. J. Graham, that of bailiff. The first court will likely be held the second week in March.

Mrs. Jas. Knox, of town, has been appointed a director of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society.

The Belmont Council held a special meeting in the town hall on Saturday last with all members present. Mr. Jas. Thompson was given the timber west half of lot 29, con. 3, Belmont, for $25. The auditors report showing assets over liabilities of $1,512.36 was received and 100 copies ordered to be printed.

At the inaugural meeting of the Village School Board, Dr. Kindred was elected chairman and Mr. H. Falkner, secretary-treasurer. The Business Committee are Messrs. Kindred, Falkner and Fennel of the whole Board, will form the Education Committee. Jos. Harrison was re-appointed caretaker at a salary of $215. It was decided to dispense with the services of one assistant; classes to be arranged so as to prevent overlapping, and change to take place at Easter.

Work at the ice-house had to be discontinued a few days this week on account of lack of ice, due to the recent warm weather.

Mr. Roger McKiejohn, of Tiffin, sold his farm stock and implements by public auction on Tuesday last.

The concert in the Opera House on Wednesday evening was very largely attended. The following programme was given;

Piano duet—Miss Mary and Mr. H. Balfour.
Chairman's address—Rev. D. Balfour.
Vocal duet—Mr. and Mrs. M. Swain.
Dialogue—"The Lost Child."

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address;

CONFERENCE TO BE HELD AT COBOURG

Epworth League Representatives to Gather on Febuary 8, 9 and 10

The ninth biennial convention of the Bay of Quinte Conference Epworth League will meet in the Methodist church, Cobourg, on February 8, 9, 10, 1910. It is expected that on this occasion between 250 and 300 delegates will assemble in Cobourg from the various districts of the conference, viz., Cannington, Lindsay, Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Cobourg, Brighton, Picton, Napanee, Peterborough, Campbellford, Madoc and Tamworth. Some of the best speakers of the conference will address this convention.

Orangeville is likely to soon have a modern, well-equipped hospital.

Too Much.

A certain young fellow has got the parrot's complaint—he talks too much. And this is how it let him down a cropper at an important interview.

"You love my daughter?" said the old man.

"Love her!" he exclaimed passionately. "Why, I would die for her! For one soft glance from those sweet eyes I would hurl myself from yonder cliff and perish, a bleeding, bruised mass, upon the rocks 200 feet below!"

The old man shook his head.

"I'm something of a liar myself," he said, "and one is enough in a small family like mine."—London Globe.

The Talking Macaulay.

Macaulay is an (almost) never-ceasing talker and pours out the prodigious stores of learning, wit and eloquence with such an absorption in his subject that I doubted when I heard him if he would not go on just the same if everybody left the room. Somebody asked the Duchess of Sutherland (after dinner at Stafford House) if he liked the society of women and whom he seemed to prefer. She answered, "Oh, he only looks upon us all in the light of interruptions."—Lady Granville's Records.

Electioneering and Drink.

Liquor formed a very serious item of old-time election expenses in England. For an election dinner in Forfarshire in 1830 the Hon. S. Wortley paid: Ginger beer, 6s.; brandy, 20s.; champagne, £20; claret, £21; gin, 20s.; ale, 10s.; brandy toddy, £2; gin toddy, £1; dinner, £4 10s.; madeira, £17 10s.; total, £69 2s. From July 21 to Sept. 15 his bill from the same landlord amounted to £308 5s. 10d., every item with the exception of that £4 10s. for dinner and £4 7s. 6d. for suppers being for liquor.—London Chronicle.

Told Him.

Visitor—Can you tell me where Mr. Greencorn's cottage is?

Rustic—I can for twopence.

Visitor—Here you are. Now, where is it?

Rustic—It's burned down.—London Telegraph.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Agitate—Agitate—

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—What is the matter with this town, anyway? Some say it is the lack of cheap power; others that it is the lack of energy on the part of the City Council or the Board of Trade, and many other reasons are given for the apparent want of vim that seems to have settled on this city for the last three or four years. Now, my opinion as to the cause of the lack of prosperity in our city is that it is owing to our high freight rates, which are due to the absence of water transportation. If we had water competition it would be the greatest inducement we could offer manufacturers. Of course we want cheap electric power, but the benefit from cheap transportation would amount annually to many times the saving that would be derived annually from the saving in cheap power.

For instance, a small estimate of the product of a company using, say five hundred horse power, would be, say twenty tons a day. Water competition would reduce the freight rate at least a dollar per ton, and probably two dollars per ton on the output, and raw material.

Electric power can be had here at the present time for $20 per horse power and we could hardly expect by any municipal plant to deliver electric power for less than $15 per horse power, a saving of $5 per horse power. Therefore, taking the above case, which is a very moderate one, a saving to such a company of at least $6,000, and probably $12,000, while the saving in cost of cheap electric power would only be $2,500. The output of such manufacturers, using such an amount of power would likely be very much greater than 20 tons a day, and such being the case the saving between freight rates and cheap power would be very much greater in favor of cheap power transportation. The Cereal Company use about 2,500 horse power, and a small estimate of their output and raw material would be 100 tons a day, or, say 30,000 tons a year. The saving to this company of cheap transportation over cheap power would be as $12,500 is to $30,000.

Now, the only way to get cheap transportation is by getting water competition by means of the canal. We may get the canal some day, but at the present rate of progress it will be ten or fifteen years yet before it is finished. Now, are we going to stand still that long merely for the want of agitation. The government is spinning out this work so as to serve for the coalition of government supporters for next two or three general elections. Why don't we get after them! Mr. Stratton, before the last election, was promising all kinds of speed in the prosecution of this canal, but now he is as silent as a clam. Why does not the Board of Trade and the City Council get a move on and organize the whole of the Trent Canal district from Trenton to Georgian Bay and sweep down on the Government at Ottawa like as of yore! At the present more than at any other time, we want such an agitation. We see the whole district through which the Georgian Bay canal runs, as well as the Welland canal district, are thoroughly organized and alive, and ever alert to bring the claims of their respective schemes up before the government and the public generally. Every week we see a reference to one or the other of these projects, but as for any reference to the Trent Canal, alas! we look in vain. Both the above named schemes will require enormous expenditures, which, taken together with the expenditure required for that awful "sink hole" the Transcontinental Railway, so there will be very little chance of the Trent Canal being completed for many years to come, unless a regular systematic organization is kept up to press the claims of the Trent Canal in season and out of season till the work is completed. The appointment of a Trade Commissioner is all very well, but the money required for this purpose would bear fruit a hundred-fold more if it was applied for a commissioner to agitate for the early completion of the canal. Cheap electro power is a great inducement to get manufacturers, but "it ain't in it" with the inducement of cheap transportation. If we had cheap transportation the work of a Trade Commissioner would be comparatively easy. The trouble is that the people along the line of the Trent Canal look to the city of Peterborough to take the initiative in the matter, and keep the agitation up, and that is where the scheme falls down. Why don't we elect representatives who will take a larger view of such important matters!

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

NATURE TELLS YOU

As Many a Peterboro Reader Knows Too Well

When the kidneys are sick,
Nature tells you all about it.
The urine is nature's calendar.
Infrequent or too frequent action;
Any urinary trouble tells of kidney ills.

Booth's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Peterborough people testify to this.

Mrs. T. DeRosia, of Mary and Bethune street, Peterborough, Ont., says;—

"I believe Booth's Kidney Pills a remedy of exceptional merit in relieving backache caused from disordered kidneys. I frequently suffered with a dull, heavy pain in the small of my back. It would extend around my sides and into my shoulders. Headaches were frequent and often accompanied by spells of dizziness. Booth's Kidney Pills were recommended by a friend, and I procured a box at Wm. Madill's Pharmacy. I soon found them to relieve me. I have had no trouble since and can credit this only to Booth's Kidney Pills."

MADE A MISTAKE.

He Was Not an Applicant For That Kind of a Job.

He was altogether a tired looking sort of person from the top of his head to the soles of his feet. His hat was tired; his collar, if indeed he had ever worn one, was so tired that it had retired beyond the vision of man, and even the patches upon his knees looked as if they would welcome a rest. Moreover, he was much in need of a shave and of several other ablutionary processes through which the full and perfect man should occasionally go before presenting himself in polite society. Indeed, the only thing about him that was not tired was his manner, and this was alarmingly fresh as he stopped at the farmhouse door and requested food and a job in tones bordering perilously on those of command.

"You will excuse me, madam, for addressin' a lady without bein' introduced," he began, "but, observin' that there was no mon about the place, I"—

"Now, just you move on," retorted the lady of the mansion. "We ain't got no use for no tramps about this place, and I'll just have you to understand right now that whether there's any men about this place now or at any other time—young, middle-aged, light, dark or yaller—we ain't wantin' in protection when the time comes that we need it, which fellers of your kind, wanderin' about the country all day tryin' to avoid work and livin' on the fat o' the land earned by the sweat o' some one else's brow, and lookin' for a chance to lay your hands on anything you can carry off without straining your muscles, seems to think we ain't got within reach, as I could prove the contrary of in a jerk of a ram's tail if I had a mind to ring that there bell ye see fastened on to the roof, by pullin' this here cord alongside the wash basin, which, Lord knows, I ain't seein' as how I ain't none of these weak sensicity women what can't handle the best man that ever lived without no help from nobody or thanks to the neighbors, which on the whole ain't no better in they should be when it comes down to a straightforward case o' fight or take your medic"—

"Excuse me, madam," interrupted the weary wayfarer, making rapidly for the gate, "I find I've made a mistake. I wanted a job on a farm, not in a gas house."

And he skipped blithely up the road with little evidence of that weariness which had lent distinction to his carriage in the moments immediately preceding the interview.

"Growing Down."

Everybody has noticed that in extreme old age people grow rapidly shorter, so that a person formerly of average height "grows down" into quite a diminutive man or woman. A German contemporary points out that this decrease of height begins as early as the age of thirty-five years. At thirty, we are told, the human body has reached its full height, which is retained for a few years, after which the "growing down" process begins. At first and for many years the process is so slow as to be almost imperceptible, but at the age of about sixty it begins to be noticeable, and after seventy, even though a veteran does not stoop at all, the fact that he is "growing down" becomes apparent to all.

Beethoven's Last Days.

Beethoven had troubles besides the scourge of deafness. Throughout his life the conduct of his brothers irked and grieved him, and when on the death of one of them he adopted his orphaned son that nephew's outrageous conduct broke his heart. Then he felt the sting of poverty. Dying, he would have owned the fatality of a waning life had it not been for the Philharmonic Society of England. The society has never boasted of the fact, but a fact it is that a donor of $500 sent by it to Beethoven at his last gasp made death less a martyrdom to the famous musician than it otherwise would have been.—London Graphic.

Peculiar Lakes.

On the Mangishlak peninsula, in the Caspian sea, there are five small lakes. One of them is covered with salt crystals strong enough to allow a man and beast to cross the lake on foot. Another is as round as any circle and a lovely rose color. Its banks of salt crystal form a setting, white as the driven snow, to the water, which not only shows all the colors from violet to rosy red, but from which rises a perfume as of violets. Both perfume and color are the result of the presence of seaweeds, the violet and the pink.

The Arctic Summer.

The Arctic summer is brief, but for weeks together there is nothing to distinguish day and night. Once at Dvornik two naturalists had left their ship at different hours. When later they met one said, "Good morning," the other, "Good evening." Both agreed that the hour was 7, but while one traveler held that it was 7 to-morrow morning the other maintained that it was 7 o'clock last night. On returning to the ship they settled that it was last night, so they dined and went to bed again.

THE APPEAL DISMISSED

The Toronto World says:—

Before Moss, C.J.O., Osler, J.A., Garrow, J.A., Maclaren, J.A.

Re Hamilton Manufacturing Co: the Ontario Bank (claimants) v. the Trusts & Guarantee Co., liquidator (contestant), appellant. W. D. Macpherson, K.C., for appellant. J. H. Moss, K.C., and L. M. Hayes, K.C., for respondents, the bank.

This is an appeal from the order of Meredith, C.J., of 15th October, 1909, dismissing an appeal from the certificate of His Honor Judge Weller, L.M., at Peterborough, allowing the claim of the Ontario Bank. The company being indebted to the bank, assigned certain securities to them, which, after insolvency of company, were sold by the liquidator in the winding-up proceedings, with approval of the bank, and as alleged by the bank, upon the understanding that the purchase price thereof was to be held by the liquidator and to stand in the place of the assets so transferred, and that the rights of the bank in respect of the securities were not to be prejudiced by such sale. The local master found in favor of the claimant as a preferred or secured creditor for $79,715.06, and as an ordinary or unsecured creditor for $134,815.48. The liquidator appeals from that finding, which was sustained by the chief justice. Appeal dismissed, with costs.

OVER BAKED MURPHIES

Caused Hostilities Which Resulted in Police Court Case -$300 for Complainant

A number of over-baked murphies caused a little excitement in the culinary department of a local hotel, as supper on Friday evening, and all the details were told to Magistrate Deeble at the police court yesterday afternoon.

The complainant, who occupied the position of pastry cook at the hotel, claimed that she was abused, and when ordered to leave was not given the full amount of wages due her. She said she hired in Toronto, on Monday, January 17, at $30 per month. There was a verbal agreement between the employer and herself that ten days' notice was to be given. She commenced work on Tuesday. On Friday night her employer came into the department, and, after examining the potatoes, picked one up and threw it at her. There was some words, and the employer took up a knife from the table and made a movement in the direction of the witness. She was then ordered to leave the hotel, but refused until such time as would allow her to pack up her belongings. Her employer then came at her, and in grabbing her by the arm, tore the sleeve from her waist. She had been given $2 as wages and $1 for the damage caused to the waist.

Witnesses for the defence claimed that the complainant used bad language and did not do as directed by the housekeeper. One witness said that the employer had only torn the insertion on the sleeve, and that the complainant had torn the sleeve off after going up to her room.

The magistrate ordered that the defendant pay the complainant $3 to enable her to go back to Toronto.

Mr. G. N. Gordon acted in the interests of the defendant.

Principal Places Which are Included in it - Bell Takes Over the North American Telephone and Telegraph Company — Important Changes.

Mr. F. W. Doan to-day received notice that the Bell Telephone Company had taken over the North American Telephone and Telegraph Company. He also received the formal notice of the boundaries of the new district of which he is superintendent, and the principal places embraced in the district are:—

Peterborough, Omemee, Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls, Uxbridge, Markham, Port Perry, Millbrook, Port Hope, Cobourg, Colborne, Brighton, Trenton, Belleville, Deseronto, Picton, Napanee, Kingston, Tweed, Madoc, Havelock, Norwood, Hastings, Campbellford and Stirling. The smaller places adjacent to these will, of course, also be included in the district.

Except along the front the Bell telephone has not operated extensively between Peterborough and Smith's Falls, the district having been taped by the North American Company, which is not part of the Bell system. The new district will be known as District 1, and Mr. Doan is the superintendent.

CURB WANTED ON OUTSIDE OF BENSON AVENUE WALK

Deputation Waits on the Board of Works—Engineer Will Report on Cost—New Grader May be Purchased

A deputation from Benson avenue, consisting of Mr. R. J. Kidd, and Mr. Pentland, waited on the Board of Works last night and asked to have a curb placed on the outside of the walk from Smith street to the Normal school. Mr. Kidd, who acted as spokesman, said that it would be necessary for the city to decide before February 9th as the Court of Revision meets on that date in connection with the frontage tax.

City Engineer Hay was instructed to look into the matter and report on the cost at once.

In connection with the claim against the city of the Cameron Company based on the ground that the city infringed on their patents in building the septic tank in Ashburnham, the Mayor and chairman of the Board of Works were authorized to deal with the matter. A number of municipalities are interested and there is a possibility that the city may settle the claim at a cost of $150.

The letter of O'Connell and Gordon acting for Mrs. Cadigan, who claims that a well on her property is affected by leakage from a sewer, was referred to the City Engineer some time ago. He reported that there was no leakage from the sewer, and the joints being in good shape. He had asked Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., to have a sample of water from the well analized. The Board decided to take no action till a report is received from Dr. McPherson.

The requisition of supplies for the City Engineer's Office was left with the chairman.

The engineer reported that there was no drain in the vicinity of Brown and Dunlop streets. There was a wooden culvert across the Grand Trunk, but the city had nothing to do with it. This culvert is in poor condition.

Ald. Duffus moved and Ald. Duncan seconded that the crossing on Otonabee street in front of Mr. Downer's property at Downer's corners be attended to early in the spring. It has been repaired temporarily.

The City Engineer reported favorably on the application of the Peterborough Light and Power Company to change the position of some poles at the corner of Rubidge and Dalhousie streets. They will be allowed to make the changes.

Mayor Morrow said he would like to see an application for some improvements to King Edward Park this year.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Metheral, it was decidd to have the chairman order a new grader on trial. If purchased the new machine will cost $80. It has many improvements over the grader now owned by the city.

The matter of purchasing stone for crushing was considered and the city engineer was instructed to see if the city would be allowed to put its machinery in the river bed below the Peterborough Hydraulic Company's dam, where there is a large number of boulders. If this cannot be done, the engineer was instructed to purchase as much stone as is required at three dollars per cord, the same price as paid last year. A big saving can be effected if the city can secure permission from the Hydraulic Company to crush stones in the riverbed. The city has about 200 cords of stone left over from last year.

Those present were Ald. Hicks, chairman; Mayor Morrow, Ald. Graham, uDncan, Metheral, Duffus and Phelan.

AN OFFERING THAT PLEASES

One of the most refined and pleasing acts ever presented in local vaudeville is the one being given at the Crystal the first three afternoons and evenings of this week by the two clever instrumentalists, the Shepperley sisters, of Toronto. The attendance last night was very large and the audiences manifested their keen appreciation.

The illustrated song, "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," is also a superior number.

WOULDN'T THIS MAKE YOU SIGH FOR OLDEN DAYS

A Peterborough man stated to-day that when he started housekeeping thirty-five years ago, choice stall-fed beef could be bought at 4 1-2 cents per pound, and turkeys could be secured for 25 cents apiece. Butter was around fifteen cents per pound. Some articles were, however, dearer then than they are now. Flour was quoted at six dollars per cwt., and a loaf of bread that now sells at ten cents could not be had for less than fourteen cents.

WOULD HAVE THE SNOWPLOUGH MEN CARRY SHOVELS

There was some talk about the way the snow ploughing is being done on the city's streets at the meeting of the Board of Works last night. Ald. Hicks said the plough men were not staying on the walks as much as they should. When the plough swerved out of the path the trouble was not corrected. It would be a good thing if they carried shovels and kept the walks straight and in the right place.

Street Commissioner Evans referred to the difficulty of keeping a plough straight. He thought the citizens should keep the walks cleared in front of their property like they do in Toronto, Hamilton, Belleville and some other cities.

"You can't expect them to do the shovelling before eight o'clock," Ald. Hicks said, "and that would be of little benefit to those who go to work at seven o'clock."

"Still, it wouldn't do any harm if citizens kept the walks straight in front of their lots," said Mr. Evans.

Ald. Duncan said that the ploughs did not turn out enough when there was a thaw and slush on the streets.

Mr. Evans said there was nothing in the contracts to compel the snowplough men to use a shovel.

"I'd like to see that remedied next year," said Ald. Hicks. "The engineering department might draw up a new contract."

There was some discussion about looking after more thoroughly the places on the streets where accidents are liable to occur.

Outwore Their Welcome.

Rural hospitality is proverbial, and the son in the city is far too forgetful of how a visit from him brightens up the old folks at home, especially in the weary winter days, when the old people are not so busy as in summer time, when visits of city folk are usually paid. But sometimes there is such a thing as overdoing it, if the remarks of an old man in Huron County may be believed. He has a son out in Wisconsin who has married out there. Some months ago he brought his bride home for the old folks to see. They made a long visit, and apparently the old folks were happy, but at last the sad parting arrived. The old man drove them to the station at Goderich, and as they stood on the platform just before the train pulled out, there were mutual embraces and farewells.

"Oh, it's done my old heart good to see you both," exclaimed the father heartily. "And it's done mother good, too. I hope you won't forget us out there in Wisconsin, and I hope you'll both come back again—but not for such a darn long stay as you made this time!"

Children's Aid Society

The public is reminded of the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society, which will be held in the City Council Chamber to-morrow (Wednesday) afternoon, at four o'clock. It is requested that there will be a large attendance.

The annual meeting of the County Orange Lodge will be held in the Orange Hall, Peterborough on Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. Delegates will be present from Apsley to Keene and important business will be transacted. Election of officers will take place.

During the last year 90,148 people, estimated to be worth an average of $1,000, emigrated from the United States to Canada.

F. Klingbeil, 80 years old, has been released from Kingston after serving four years for causing his wife's death.

VOL. LX., No. 27 PETERBOROUGH, ONT., CANADA, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1910 TEN CENTS PER WEEK.

ONTARIO'S GOVERNMENT WILL NEED $3,866,013.50 THIS YEAR

Big Feature of the Proposed Expenditure is Two Millions and a Half For the Hydro-Electric Transmission Line From the Falls.

Toronto, Feb. 2.—Things have never before gone with such a rush in the Ontario Legislature. When the public accounts were laid on the table the third day of the session, it seemed to be going some, but who ever heard of the estimates just one week after the opening day?

As the main estimates for the current year were passed last session, the supplementary estimates, brought down by Hon. Col. Matheson yesterday afternoon, are the financial feature of this session. A total expenditure of $3,866,013.50 is provided for, the large item in which is $2,500,000 for the Hydro-Electric transmission line from Niagara Falls. In addition to this $50,000 goes to the building of the Port Arthur transmission line.

The newly-organized provincial police account for the expenditure of $51,780, of which $43,000 is for the salaries of the provincial constables for the ten months from Jan. 1, 1910.

The Education Department will spend $59,580.55, of which $8,600 goes to agricultural and mining education, $3,600 being for agricultural training in high schools and $5,000 for mining education in the Sudbury High School; $8,000 will go to the work of public school inspection, $4,500 to departmental examiners and $6,000 to Queen's University, Kingston, for its faculty of education (second half year). The salary of the inspector of continuation schools is increased $100, of the inspector of technical schools $200, of the clerk of examinations $50, and $1,200 is set aside for a new clerk in the registrar's branch; $4,718 goes to the various normal and model schools and $5,200 to the high schools and collegiate institutes. For maintenance of the Education Department and miscellaneous expenses $6,300 is provided. The Belleville Institution for the Blind, $3,350.

Maintenance of the public institutions is set down as $17,250. Of this the sum of $2,000, for "farmer and assistants" for the Central Prison, is a foretaste of the new home of the institution near Guelph.

A bursar's clerk is to be provided for the Toronto Insane Asylum at a salary of $1,100. The salary of the assistant superintendent is increased $100. The assistant superintendents of the Brockville, Kingston, London and Mimico asylums are also increased $100, as is the salary of the medical superintendent of the Woodstock Asylum.

For maintenance of tuberculosis patients in municipal sanitaria $7,500 is set aside and $4,000 each for maintenance.

The total for the Department of Agriculture is $39,043. Of this sum $3,000 is for grants to agricultural societies, $5,000 is for additional on salaries at the Ontario Veterinary College. An all-round increase is given in the salaries of the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College and the Macdonald Institute.

For colonization and immigration $15,175 is provided. It includes bonuses to agents and organizations, including the Salvation Army, to assist in procuring domestic servants and farm laborers, $10,000. The expense of reconstructing and furnishing the Government building in London, England, is set down at $17,000.

The large item under maintenance and repairs of Government buildings is of course the reconstructing and fireproofing of the west wing of the Parliament buildings, destroyed in the recent fire. For this $200,000 is set apart, in addition to which there is a grant of $25,000 to the restoration of the library. Osgoode Hall will cost for repairs, etc., $20,425.18; the insane asylums, at Kingston $23,000; at Brockville $16,000, at Cobourg $3,300, at Hamilton $16,800, at London $16,570, at Mimico $19,400, at Orillia $14,000, at Penetang $14,500, at Toronto $9,000 and at Woodstock $6,500.

Under the head of "Central Prison, Toronto," is set down $129,500, of which nearly all ($125,000) is for the purchase of the land and erection of the buildings of the new provincial prison at Guelph; $5,000 is appropriated to the Mercer Reformatory.

In providing for the maintenance of the educational buildings of the province, the normal and model schools, Toronto, get the largest appropriation, $15,970. The Institution for the Blind, Brantford, accounts for $10,774; $18,000 will be spent on the Ontario Agricultural College building, while two grants of $1,000 each are made to the City of Guelph for additions to the winter fair building (balance of grant).

The completion of the addition to the court-house at North Bay calls for an expenditure of $3,650, and the erection of a new court-house at Kenora (part revote) for $25,000. A new building for the Victoria Industrial School will cost $10,000.

The total Public Works expenditure, most of which is for bridges and improvements, is $175,697, of which $138,897 is new vote and $36,800 revoted.

REFORMERS TRIUMPH IN THE MONTREAL ELECTIONS

Dr. J. J. Guerin is Elected Mayor—Forces of Law and Order Unite to Sweep the City Hall Clean From Grafters, and Succeed.

Montreal, Feb. 2. The Montreal civic electorate, irrespective of race or creed, have emphatically repeated their splendid verdict of September, when a board of control was voted for, by a magnificent majority.

The grafters, however, died hard, yet yesterday finished their career as civic administrators. In the first place, Hon. J. P. B. Casgrain, although personally a good man, was condemned for the company he kept, and Dr. J. J. Guerin, ex-Minister in the Quebec Cabinet, and ex-M.P.P. for St. Ann's, is mayor of Montreal by many thousands majority, receiving a majority in almost every ward in the city. In fact, the majorities in the French wards, where the proprietors voted against their compatriots in order to emphasize their desire for clean government at the City Hall, were splendid. The English and Irish sections of the metropolis also went to a man for the successful candidate, and for the first time since the palmy days of James McShane, the Irish-Canadians have a representative of their race at the head of civic government.

The electors also did nobly in the way of reaffirming their verdict on the question of a board of control. The entire slate of the citizens' committee for the controllers are elected by a good majority, one feature being the handsome manner in which the French districts voted for F. L. Wanklyn, the English-speaking representative of the board.

H. Mercier, M.P.P., and a son of the late Premier Mercier, also polled a strong vote, and it looked at one time as if he would defeat Dr. Lachapelle, who was on the so-called official slate.

As a matter of fact, almost every aldermanic candidate endorsed by the citizens' committee was returned yesterday, mostly by large majorities.

The famous Ald. Giroux, chairman of the police committee, went down in St. Jean Baptiste and loses his deposit, while Giroux, of roads fame, was likewise defeated in St. James.

Then Dr. Yates, who voted against the early closing of hotels, was run down by a new man in St. George's ward, and Ald. Joe Ward, who had supported the Carter bylaw, was re-elected in St. Andrew's by over 500. St. Ann's also rejected Ald. Dan Gallery, ex-M.P., electing O'Connell by over 1,000.

The stiffest fight was, however, in the west ward, where the liquor people endeavored to defeat Ald. Carter, but the latter came out six votes ahead of his opponent, Ald. Frasee, looked upon as a very strong opponent.

Ex-Mayor Payette as a candidate made a very poor showing for the board of control, and most people are glad of his civic downfall.

The following gentlemen compose the new council:

East—Lapointe, acclamation; Centre—Berther, acclamation; West—Carter; St. Ann—O'Connell; St. Joseph—Dandurand; St. Andrew—Ward; St. George—Boyd; St. Louis—Lamereux; St. Lawrence—Robinson; St. James—Brodeur; Lafontaine—Dubeau; Papineau—Gauvin; St. Mary's—Dr. Doux; Hochelaga—Carceau; St. Jean Baptiste—Leclair; Duvernay—Clement; Gabriel—Monaghen; St. Denis—Tetrau; St. Henri—Letourneau; St. Cunigonde—N. Lapointe; Mt. Royal—Proudhomme; Delorimier—Mayrand; Laurier—Turcot.

Of these, Proudhomme is the only one on the reform "Blacklist" to be re-elected. His offence was in voting with the rest of the infamous "23" for high contracts, in which it was believed "graft" to the contractors largely entered.

THE I.C.R. HAS A SUPRLUS; NET EARNINGS OF $442,388

Minister of Railways Says Government is Committed to Hudson Bay Railway and Will go Ahead With it With all Possible Speed.

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—The record of the I. C. R. for the nine months of the fiscal year up to Dec. 31, 1909, shows a net surplus of $442,388. The gross receipts were $7,773,300, a gain of $442,154, and working expenses $6,410,912, were a reduction of $757,087. Expenditures on capital account, Mr. Graham estimated at $1,280,000, as against $3,867,212 the previous year.

The average number of employes per month on the I.C.R. was 8,833, and the average payment for wages $427,470. Contracts have been let for new rolling stock worth $445,924, including 11 locomotives, 30 50-ton all-steel coal cars, 6 baggage cars for express trains, 2 first-class sleeping cars, 5 first-class passenger cars, 3 mail cars, 2 baggage cars and 3 colonist cars.

Maintenance of equipment for the period cost $432,362, and ordinary repairs $1,189,200, including over half a million for locomotives, and $444,900 for freight cars; $231,507 was spent on the maintenance of way and works. 52 1-2 miles of track were ballasted, 574,237 new ties were laid, 11 1-2 miles of track were re-laid with 80-pound steel and 5 1-2 miles of track were relaid with 67-pound relaying steel.

The above are the main financial features of the I.C.R. annual statement made yesterday in the Commons by Hon. George P. Graham, who expressed regret at the resignation of M. J. Butler. A. W. Campbell, Deputy Minister of Public Works for Ontario, will succeed him as Deputy Minister, but a new chief engineer of the department will be named.

Canada, said Mr. Graham, had shown greater courage in facing transportation problems than any other country in the world, but would have to do even more. He expected the day would come when Canada would control the largest portion of the carrying trade of the continent. He had been impressed with the necessity of building another lock at the Soo of from 25 to 27 feet, and would cost from eight to ten million dollars. The tonnage through Canadian canals during the past season exceeded 33 million tons, an increase of 80 per cent.

As regards the Hudson Bay Railway, Mr. Graham said the Government was committed to the work, and intended to proceed with it with all possible speed.

In the report of Mr. Armstrong, the engineer, the mouth of the Nelson River was preferred as the harbor or the bay. This would make the railway from The Pas Mission 67 miles shorter. A ship will be sent up this year to make a thorough examination concerning many of the points.

He was not prepared to say whether the railway would be a Government work, but this question would not delay construction.

Mr. Graham said there would be no appropriation this year for the Georgian Bay Canal.

The centre span of the Quebec bridge, he stated, would be 150 feet high, and the whole structure would take four years to build.

Turning to the question of capital account, the Minister said that while a time must come when capital account shall cease, that time was distant. It had to be remembered, in discussing the Intercolonial, that 75 per cent. of the railways of this country had gone into liquidation, and much of the original investment had been wiped out, but the original investment in the I. C. R. was still marked up against it. He regarded as capital anything that was new, that gave it additional value.

Hon. John Haggart, former Minister of Railways, speaking after recess, said that the proposal to build a railway to the Hudson Bay was a very beautiful scheme, but we would warn the Minister against being deceived into the belief that it would save to the farmer five cents a bushel an grain.

He had paid some attention to the transportation question and believed that the transportation problems of the Dominion would be solved by the construction of the Georgian Bay Canal.

He believed that wheat could be brought to Lake Superior and shipped via this route to Great Britain cheaper than via the Hudson Bay.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

It is announced that the C.P.R. will spend $30,000,000 for improvements in the west this year. This will include double-tracking the road from Port Arthur to Brandon.

Ten men are known to be dead and 17 others are missing, presumably penned up in entries by falls of slate, as a result of a gas explosion in the Brower Mine, 1 1-2 miles from Drakesboro, Kentucky, at noon yesterday.

The coroner's jury that inquired into the Sunday morning wreck on the T., H & B. near Hamilton, in which Henry Rumple, the engineer, was killed, were unable to discovered what caused the engine to leave the tracks.

Mrs. Philip W. Webster, Niagara Falls, N.Y., 42 years old, gave birth to her 26th child yesterday. She married at the age of 16. Five pairs of twins and one set of triplets were included in the number, but none of them lived.

Mayor Douglas of Glace Bay, who has been a supporter of the U.M.W. in the big strike and who opposed the calling of the troops, was elected yesterday by 12 votes. He was opposed by the P.W.A. and the Dominion Coal Co.

Hon. W. S. Fielding made the important statement in the Commons yesterday that the exchange of ratifications in respect to the Franco-Canadian treaty had taken place at noon yesterday, and that, in consequence the treaty was in force between the two countries.

WOULD PUT FOREIGNERS ON INDIAN LIST

Colborne, Feb. 2.—That Frank Merino came to his death by being shot with murderous intent by his friend, Gregor Mancuro, was the substance of a verdict returned by a coroner's jury early yesterday morning before a packed audience of townspeople in the Village of Grafton, seven miles from here.

To the verdict was added a recommendation that the Dominion Government take steps to prohibit weapons or intoxicants in construction camps, where foreign laborers are employed; that county constables be given authority to search these camps without warrants and confiscate all liquor and weapons found there; and, further, that all foreigners employed in construction camps be placed on Indian list to prevent them from purchasing supplies of liquor.

Grafton is a local option community, but the navvies purchase liquor in Cobourg.

BETTING ENQUIRY GOES ON

Some Western Members Say That Long Meets Are a Bad Thing

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—Conditions in British Columbia, due, or ascribed, to the hundred days of racing at Victoria and Vancouver last summer, were dealt with at the morning session of the commission on the bill to prevent bookmaking and pool selling. Mr. Raney called Hon. Mr. Templeman and Messrs. Barnard and Cowan, the members for Victoria and Vancouver, who said that protracted meetings were bad for the neighborhood in which they were held, and not desirable in any form. Mr. McCarthy agreed with them.

The witnesses said they had a short meeting in British Columbia for many years past with public betting, but there had been no objection from any part of the public. It was long meetings, partly due to the proximity of Seattle, that fault was found with. Victoria had 61 and Vancouver 43 days. The Victoria track is owned by the city and controlled by the exhibition board, and after the 61 days, decided to permit bookmaking at the short meeting held in the fall.

A. H. Beaton, who represented the harness interest in opposition to the bill, announced that he would call several witnesses to-day.

Rev. Dr. Shearer and Mr. Raney visited the ice races of the General Canada Association on the Ottawa River yesterday afternoon and for the first time saw the bookmaker and the poolseller in operation. They had "advance information" in the shape of a tip on Joe Patchen I. for the $100 pacing race. The Orillia horse won in straight heats, but the representative of the moral reform council had allowed the opportunity to put a crimp in the books to pass them by.

WILL LOOK INTO THE AGREEMENTS

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—W. J. Code, local agent of the Ontario Government, appeared before the railway committee yesterday, asking for a postponement of consideration of the bill to incorporate the London and Lake Erie Railway and Transportation Co., which is a merger of a number of local lines. He was refused.

Hon. G. E. Foster's idea that a sub-committee be appointed to look into the existing agreements was adopted despite the opposition of Col. Sam Hughes and others.

NEW STEEL COMPANY

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—Plans are maturing for the establishment in Canada of a branch of the Acieries de France (French Steel Company), on a large scale. Mons. Andre Weill, a member of the distinguished French family, which has been identified with the steel industry in France for more than two centuries, is in Ottawa, and in company with the company's expert and prominent Canadian business men, has personally inspected water power sites and property suitable for the large plant which the Acieries de France will require for the extension of its business to this continent.

HE FUTURE OF CANADA SECURE

London, Feb. 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—A. W. Smithers, chairman of the Grand Trunk Railway, presiding at the Canada Club banquet, declared that Canada is not over-advertised. He advocated the state system of emigration.

Sir E. Sheyer remarked that Canada was going to be the most remarkable development in modern history. Nothing could stop it. Britain was ready to supply the capital.

Sir W. White said the character of Canada's warm-hearted, optimistic and proud citizens alone assured her future.

COLD-BLOODED MURDER SHOCKS WATERBURY

Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 2.—A signed statement, made by Bronislow Kulvinske before he died at the hospital, was put in evidence yesterday at the trial of Sophie Kritchman, the young music teacher, who is charged with murdering Kulvinska. This statement was as follows:

"On Friday, Sept. 17, Sophie Kritchman, at whose mother's home I boarded, asked me to take a walk with her in the country. When we arrived at the spot in the woods she told me to lay down, and she said, 'I will cover your face with a handkerchief and go and see who is coming.' A minute later she said, 'I am going to kill you.' Then she shot me five times. At 5 o'clock Friday afternoon she came back and cut my throat.

"On Saturday she came back and threw a stone at me. Then Joe Mitchell shot me in the head."

AN INDIAN IS GIVEN PARDON

Washington, Feb. 2.—An ancient tradition on the Umatilla Reservation indirectly has been respected by the Taft administration.

Columbia George, an Indian on the reservation, had an infant relative who became ill. He called in a woman spirit doctor and the child died. He was told that in accordance with a tradition of the tribe it was his privilege to kill the doctor. George got intoxicated and killed the old woman with whisky dosed with strychnine.

A life sentence was given him. George apparently was most indifferent, but somebody interested himself in the case and an application came to Washington for George's pardon, and President Taft decided to commute the sentence, to expire immediately.

THE CHINESE MUST ENTER VIA BOSTON

Boston, Mass., Feb. 2.—Hereafter Chinese immigration into the United States will be chiefly through the port of Boston, it is expected, following the closing Monday night of the three Canadian border stations at Malone, N.Y.; Richfort, Vt., and Postal, N.D.

Chinese for the United States arriving at Vancouver, B.C., will be taken to Halifax by C.P.R. and sent by steamer to Boston.

HONOR FOR AN ONTARIO MAN

Boston, Feb. 2.—Rev. Thos. Nicholson, secretary of the board of education of the Methodist Church, is being seriously considered by the trustees of Boston University as the successor to President Wm. E. Huntington, who has already tendered his resignation.

Dr. Nicholson is a native of Woodburn, Ontario, and received his education at the Toronto Normal School and at the Northwestern University.

He has had a wide experience as an educator, and, is, according to the trustees, still a young man. He is but forty-eight years old, and the trustees will not select a man over that age.

It is likely that an official communication will be sent Dr. Nicholson in a few days. He is now located in New York.

THE LIBERALS HAVE ONE MORE THAN UNIONISTS

London, Jan. 2.—The Liberals won the election at Wickburghs, which was polled Monday, from the Unionists, B. Munro defeating Sir A. Bignold, so they will just have one more member in the new Parliament than the Tories, the respective representation being Liberals 274, Unionists, 273.

The return of two O'Brienites for the north division and west division respectively of Cork County yesterday completes the Irish elections. Out of 82 Nationalists in the new House, a dozen of them are followers of Wm. O'Brien.

The remaining constituencies to poll number three, viz., Glasgow and Aberdeen Universities, Edinburgh and St. Andrew's Universities, and Orkney and Shetland. The two university constituencies are certain to return Unionists.

Eko Camp "At Home."

Invitations have been issued by Eko Camp for an "At Home" to be held in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, on Monday evening, February 7th, at 8.30 o'clock.

STILL AFTER GUARANTEE

Toronto, Feb. 2.—A rumor is current at the Parliament buildings that Mackenzie & Mann will renew at the present session of the Legislature their petition, which was turned down last year, to have the form of provincial aid to a section of the line of the Canadian Northern into the clay belt of northern Ontario changed from a subvention of 4,000 acres of land per mile, to a guarantee of the bonds of the railway.

It will be remembered that Premier Whitney was firm last year. "No guarantee" was his ultimatum, and that settled it. Whether the railway officials think they see signs of softening, which might presage a more favorable answer, or whatever other reason may suffice, the rumor is undoubtedly afloat.

WIDOW AT GALT DROWNS HERSELF

Galt, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Hamblyn, widow, of Hespeler, in a fit of despondency, drowned herself in the cistern Monday night. She was 57 years of age and had three daughters, who were attending the opera house when their mother took her life.

Dr. Vardon, M.H.O., has received a telegram from Dr. J. G. Rutherford of Ottawa, chief veterinary inspector, that animals inoculated with matter from the brain sent from Galt on Jan. 16, had died from rabies, proving that the precautions taken by the Board of Health to prevent the spread of the disease, were justified. There is still danger that other dogs bitten may develop rabies.

Schooner Wrecked; Ten Perish.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 2.—The three masted schooner Frances, Captain Coombs, from New York to Jacksonville, Fla., was lost on the treacherous Hatteras coast early yesterday morning and her entire crew of ten men are supposed to have perished.

Brokers Charged With Larceny.

New York, Feb. 2.—Seven indictments, charging grand larceny, were filed by the grand jury yesterday against the brokerage firm of Tracy & Co., which failed May 17, 1909, for $1,500,000.

Committee Meeting

Bit by a Dog

There appears to be a growing feeling in the city against allowing dogs to run at large.

THE ENQUIRY AT SUDBURY

Sudbury, Feb. 2.—Evidence as to gaps between the ends of the rails, where they are joined by fishplates, occupied the bulk of yesterday's enquiry into the cause of the Spanish River wreck, in which 43 lives were lost.

The newest theory is that a car wheel, or perhaps the engine, striking one of these openings, broke the connection, and each succeeding wheel pushed rails ahead far enough to cause derailment.

Crazed by Study; Suicides.

London, Ont., Feb. 2.—Marinus Jensen, a young Dane, aged 23, committed suicide by drinking carbolic acid. He was employed as a baker and had worked in Toronto. Some weeks ago he determined to be a bookkeeper and, securing a correspondence school course, he worked so hard at nights that his mind was affected.

Montreal's New Skating Club.

Montreal, Feb. 2.—The new Earl Grey skating club house which is to be built on Drummond street, near Sherbrooke, will cost about $170,000. Skating only will be permitted. No hockey matches will be allowed.

FIGHTING FOR THE SACKVILLE PEERAGE

London, Feb. 2.—For a second time, Ernest Henry Sackville-West is asking the courts to declare him the eldest and legitimate son of the late Lord Lionel Sackville-West. The present Lord Sackville is married to a sister of the petitioner, who is the son of a Spanish dancer, who married his father, so the defence alleges, while she had another husband living. Sir Robert Finley is counsel for the defence.

Grecian National Assembly.

Berlin, Feb. 2.—The decision of King George of Greece to call a national assembly awakens the apprehension of the German Government circles lest the step leads to serious complications with Turkey.

Kingston Laundry License Cut.

Kingston, Feb. 2.—The City Council has cut the laundry license fee in two, making it $25 instead of $50 as imposed last September.

Cereal Manufacturers Combine.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb 2.—The reported consolidation of all cereal manufacturing concerns of Minneapolis, one in Battle Creek, Mich., two in Chicago and one in Iowa, in a new million-dollar corporation, to handle the output of the breakfast food concerns, is confirmed.

Wasn't Promoted, Hangs Himself.

New York, Feb. 2.—Disheartened because he was the largest and oldest boy in his class and failed of promotion, Walter Thompson, 15 years old, hanged himself yesterday with his school book strap to a bedpost, at his home in Flatbush, L.I.

ALL HONOUR TO MRS. LINALL

Great disasters, such as the railway wreck at Spanish River soon pass out of the public mind, but the name of Mrs. Linall, of Winnipeg should not be forgotten. The presence of mind she showed in saving her little son and another small boy, the way in which she bound up the wounds of the injured men, women and children, tearing up bedclothes for bandages until the supply was exhausted and then tearing part of her own clothing to pieces for the same purpose, her persistence in caring for the suffering ones, taking no rest for many hours, although she herself was so badly bruised that she might have expected others to wait on her—all this was worthy of the highest praise, and her name should be numbered among the daughters of Canada whom the people delight to honor.

THE INSOLENCE OF POWER

The Laurier Government have always resisted any enquiry into the conduct of public business as if it were an impertinence for any member of the Opposition to ask a question. They act as if the whole country belonged to them, as if they had the right to dispose of its money, its timber, its lands and mines as they please.

Every member of Parliament, no matter to which party he belongs, has a right to demand full information about public business. Every citizen of this country has a right to demand that the members of Parliament who represents him in the House at Ottawa shall be given every facility, for acquiring information and keeping his constituents acquainted with the details.

IN THE DARK

The excuse given for the government's refusal to allow an investigation as to over-classification on the government section of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is that an arbitration is in progress between the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and the Government. That excuse is worth nothing. There are three parties interested in this matter, viz., the Canadian people, the party of the first part, the Laurier Government, the party of the second part, and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, the party of the third part.

Now, it is well known that the Laurier Government made a contract with the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company that was exceedingly advantageous to that company and to its parent company, the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada. It is well known that all the immense influence of the Grand Trunk Railway Company and its subsidiary company, the Grand Trunk Pacific, was exerted in favor of the Liberals in the election that followed. It is well known that after the election the Laurier Government amended the contract in the interest of the company at the expense of the Canadian people. Who can tell what further concessions the Government may make to the company? The Grand Trunk Railway Company had always been very friendly to the Liberals and even before the making of the Grand Trunk Pacific contract the Laurier Government was exceedingly kind to the company. For instance, nearly the whole cost of reconstructing the great Victoria bridge in Montreal was paid by the Government.

In consideration of promises of further concessions the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company may not be as critical about over-classification as it would otherwise be. But the Canadian people, the party of the first part, have a right to know what is being done with their money.

The arbitration proceedings were commenced long ago. How much do the people of Canada know about the nature of these proceedings?

The people have been kept in the dark. Turn on the light, Sir Wilfrid.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Le Canada says in the course of one of its editorials on the navy question:—"Canada is gradually taking charge of the defence of its own territory on land—and sea."

It is these little side-lights of policy that show the whole ultimate intention up.

If New Zealand with an area of 104,471 square miles and a population of less than one million, can afford to pay for one Dreadnought, how many Dreadnoughts can Canada with an area of 3,654,964 square miles, and a population of 7,500,000, afford to pay for? Sir Wilfrid Laurier's answer to this problem is 0. Do you figure it out that way?

The various municipal bodies at the north end of the Trent Valley Canal are asking for more pressure on the Ottawa Government, looking to the early completion of that inlet. There seems to be some grave apprehension on the subject. It no doubt is feared that the Georgian Bay Canal will do away with the necessity of the Trent Valley Canal as a wheat route. But while that will be the case, the government can not sidetrack Central Ontario in that fashion. Such an administration might look elsewhere for support.

Speaking in the British Parliament on the 16th of March, 1909, the First Lord of the Admiralty said:

"There will come a day when by an almost automatic process all ships of an earlier type than the Dreadnought will be relegated to the scrap heap."

The eleven warships that Sir Wilfrid Laurier proposes to buy or build for Canada are all inferior to Dreadnoughts. Sir Wilfrid estimates that they will cost from eleven million to fifteen million dollars to buy or build, and that it will cost Canada about three million dollars per year to maintain them. Is it wise to spend that much money on ships that must soon be relegated to the scrap heap? Would it not be more sensible to make the first ships of the Canadian navy up to date? Better a few ships that could go into the front line of battle than a large fleet of out-of-date ships that must be protected by the Dreadnoughts of New Zealand, Australia and Britain.

During the years of Conservative administration of Canadian affairs Liberal newspapers and Liberal politicians were always complaining about the high cost of living. They promised that if the Liberals were placed in power at Ottawa they would quickly reduce the cost of living. Have they carried out the promise? Let those whose memories go back as far as January, 1896, about six months before the Liberals came into power, compare the prices that then prevailed with those they are paying in January, 1910. How much lower are they to-day than they were fourteen years ago? "Lower!" you exclaim in amazement. "Why, everyone knows that prices have been steadily increasing ever since the Liberals came into power."

We do not blame the Liberals for the increased cost of living, but we may point out that if the Conservative Opposition were as unfair in their methods of criticism as the Liberals used to be in their Opposition days, the air of Canada would resound with denunciations of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues because of the enormous increase in the cost of living.

FRANK HILL

Special to the Review.

Frankhill, Feb. 1.—Weather mild with light snowfalls.

We are very sorry to hear of the illness of Mrs. A. Sullivan, but hope for recovery soon.

Mr. Robert Boate, who had the misfortune of being struck with a falling tree in the eye, is progressing rapidly.

Mr. Michael O'Donnell, who fell off a threshing tank a week ago, will soon be around again.

A number of our young people intend going to a party in Ops tonight.

A delightful tea was held at the home of Mr. John Carrol on Friday last. A fair attendance was present.

Mr. Will Kearns is busy drawing elm logs to Mann's planing factory, Peterborough.

Mr. Dick Davis was in Bridgenorth Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Weir are spending a few days on their farm here.

A few of our young folks attended service at Lakevale Presbyterian church (Fowler's Corners) Sunday night.

Mr. Ross and Miss Tenev Boate were visitors to Orange Corners Sunday.

The Sporting Company will soon be booming again, we hope.

ECZEMA

"For three long months I was not able to attend to my own needs; and for three weeks the eczema on my hands was so bad that I was unable to feed myself. I had to be fed as one feeds a baby, because I could not hold knife, fork, spoon or cup."

So says Miss Violet McSorley, of 75 Gore Street, Sault Ste. Marie, in telling how Zam-Buk cured her of eczema. She adds: "Hands, wrists and arms up to the elbows were covered with eczema. The itching and the soreness were nigh unbearable. As the disease developed, the skin actually peeled off, leaving raw sores. The palms, fingers, backs of my hands and wrists were all in this shocking state, and I was forced to sit in agony all the while. The raw sores were soon in a foul condition, and my finger nails, all except two, fell off. During the different stages of my trouble, I sought the advice of three different doctors and received treatment, but although getting slight relief at first, there was no cure. Amputation was at one time thought necessary, but the timely introduction of Zam-Buk prevented this fearful ending.

"Zam-Buk was recommended by a friend and we bought a supply. The first few applications gave me a little ease, but it was not until I had continued with it for some time that I felt a decided improvement. After that my cure went on quickly. Zam-Buk did what everything else had failed to do. Now my hands and arms are quite freed from the terrible eczema."

HOW ZAM-BUK IS SUPERIOR

Zam-Buk is entirely different to other balms, and as superior as it is different. Most salves are nine-tenths animal oil or fat. Zam-Buk hasn't a trace of animal fat in it. Most salves contain mineral coloring matter. Zam-Buk is absolutely without! Many salves contain poisonous astringents. Zam-Buk doesn't.

Zam-Buk is actually more powerfully antiseptic than crude carbolic acid. Yet it stops, instead of causing smarting when put on a wound.

ZAM-BUK'S MANY USES

Zam-Buk heals more quickly than any other known preparation: eczema, ulcers, piles, bad leg, rashes, ringworm, festering sores, cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, stiffness, poisoned wounds, face and lip sores, chapped hands, cold sores, etc. Best balm for baby's skin sores! Used as an embrocation, it cures rheumatism, sciatica, etc. All druggists and stores 50c box, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

You know, I've seen both of 'em, and one's as attractive as the other. She's a real princess, gentlemen, and the prettiest woman I've ever laid my eyes upon. And to think of her as the wife of that blithering little ass, that nincompoop of a Karl Brabetz! She loathes him, I'm sure—I know she does. And she's got to marry him! That's what she gets for being a grand duke's daughter. Brabetz is the heir apparent to some duchy or other over there and is supposed to be the catch of the season. You've heard of him. He was in Paris this season and cut quite a figure—a prince with real money in his purse, you know. I wonder why it is that our American girls can't marry the princes who have money instead of those who have none.

Not that I wish any of our girls such bad luck as Brabetz! I'll stake my head he'll never forget me!" Chase concluded with a sharp, reflective laugh in which his hearers joined, for the escapade which inspired it was being slyly discussed in every embassy in Europe.

But to return. The advent of the princess put fresh life into the slow going city and court circles. Charming people whom Chase had never seen before seemed to spring into existence suddenly; the streets took on a new air; the bands played with a keener zest, and the army prinked itself into a most amazingly presentable shape. Chase could hardly believe his success. He lifted up his chin, threw out his chest, banished the look of discontent from his face and announced to himself that Thorberg was not such a bad place after all.

For days he swung blithely through the streets, the hangdog look gone from his eyes, always hoping for another glimpse of the fair sorceress who had worked the great transformation. It was two weeks before he saw her the second time. He was more enchanted by her face than before, especially as he came to realize the astonishing fact that she was kind enough to glance in his direction from time to time.

It was during the weekly concert in the Kursaal late one night. She came in with a party, among whom he recognized several of the leading personages at court.

Chase sat at a table with the French attache just below the box occupied by the princess and her party. In spite of the fact that he was a gentleman born and bred he could not conquer countless impulses to look at the flower face of the royal auditor.

Gradually the program led up to the feature of the evening, the rendition of a great work under the direction of a famous leader, a special guest of the music loving duke.

Chase arose and cheered with the assemblage when the distinguished director made his appearance. Then he proceeded to forget the man and his genius—in fact, everything save the rapt listener above him. She was leaning forward on the rail of the box, her chin in her hand, her eyes looking steadily ahead, enthralled by the music. Suddenly she turned and looked squarely into his eyes, as if impelled by the magnetism they unconsciously employed. A little flush mounted to her brow as she quickly resumed her former attitude. Chase cursed himself for a brainless lout.

The number came to an end, and the crowd arose to cheer the bowing, smiling director. Chase cheered and shouted "Bravo!" too, because she was applauding as eagerly as the others. She called the flushed, bowing director to her box and publicly thanked him for the pleasure he had given. Chase saw him kiss her hand as he murmured his gratitude. For the first time in his life he coveted the occupation of an orchestra leader.

The director was a frail, rather good looking young man, with piercing black eyes that seemed too bold in their scrutiny of the young lady's face. Chase began to hate him. He was unreasonably thankful when he passed on to the box in which the duke sat.

The third and last time he saw the Princess Genevra before his sudden, spectacular departure from the grand duchy was at the duke's reception to the nobility of Rapp-Thorberg and to the representatives of such nations of the world as felt the necessity of having a man there in an official capacity.

CHAPTER IV.

THE INDISCREET MR. CHASE.

THERE was not a handsomer, more striking figure in the palace gardens on the night of the reception than Hollingsworth Chase nor one whose poise proved that he knew the world quite as well as it is possible for any one man to know it. His was a unique figure also, for he was easily distinguishable as the only American in the brilliant assemblage.

He was presented to the princess late in the evening, together with Baggs of the British office. His pride and confidence received a severe shock. She glanced at him with unaffected welcome, but with the air of one who was looking upon his face for the first time.

He could not again approach within speaking distance of the princess, nor did he presume to make the effort. Chase knew his proper place. She was the gayest, the most vivacious being in the whole assemblage. She had but to stretch out her hand or project her smile and every man in touch with the spell was ready to drop at her feet. At last she led her court off toward the pavilion under which the royal orchestra was playing. As if it were a signal, every one turned his steps in that direction. Chase and the Englishman had been conversing diligently with an ancient countess and her two attractive daughters near the fountain.

Again the dapper director came forward to lead the musicians, and again he was most enthusiastically received. This time Chase was not where he could watch the princess. He found, therefore, that he could devote his attention to the music and the popular conductor. He was amazed to find that the fellow seemed to be inspired. He was also surprised to find himself carried away by the fervor of the moment.

With the final crash of the orchestra he found himself shouting again with the others. Oddly, this time he was as mad as they. A score or more of surprised, disapproving eyes were turned upon him when he yelled "Encore!"

"There will be no encore," admonished the fair girl at his side kindly. "It is not New York," she added, with a sly smile.

Ten minutes later Chase and the Englishman were lighting their cigars in an obscure corner of the gardens.

"Extraordinarily beautiful," Chase murmured reflectively as he seated himself upon the stone railing along the drive.

"Yes, they say he really wrote it himself," drawled Baggs, puffing away.

"I'm not talking about the music," corrected Chase sharply.

"Oh!" murmured Baggs apologetically. "The night?"

"Of course I have, old chap. By Jove, do you know she is good looking—positively ripping."

They lazily observed the approach of one couple, attracted no doubt by the disparity in the height of the two shadows. The man was at least half a head shorter than his companion, but his ardor seemed a thousandfold more vast. Chase was amused by the apparent intensity of the small officer's devotion, especially as it was met with a coldness that would have chilled the fervor of a man much larger and therefore more timid. It was impossible to see the faces of the couple until they passed through a moonlit streak in the walk quite close at hand.

Chase started and grasped his companion's arm. One was the Princess Genevra and—was it possible? Yes, the nimble conductor—the sensation of the hour, the musical lion! Moreover, to Chase's cold horror, the "little freak" was actually making violent love to the divinity of Rapp-Thorberg!

The princess had not seen the two men, nor had the fervent conductor, whose impassioned French was easily distinguishable by the unwilling listeners. The sharp, indignant "No" of the princess, oft repeated, did much to relieve the pain in the heart of her American admirer. Finally, with an unmistakable cry of anger, she halted not ten feet from where Chase sat, as though he had become a part of the stone rail.

"I have asked you not to touch me, sir! Is not that enough? If you persist I shall be compelled to appeal to my father again. The whole situation is loathsome to me. Are you blind? Can you not see that I despise you? I will not endure it a day longer. You promised to respect my wishes."

"How can I respect a promise which condemns me to purgatory every time I see you?" he cried passionately. "I adore you. You are the queen of my life, the holder of my soul. Genevra, Genevra, I love you! My soul for one tender word, for one soft caress! Ah, do not be so cruel! I will be your slave!"

"Enough! Stop, I say! If you dare to touch me!" she cried, drawing away from her tormentor, her voice trembling with anger. The little conductor's manner changed on the instant. He gave a snarl of rage.

"By heaven, I'll make you pay for this some day! You shall learn what a man can do with a woman such as you are! You"—

Just at that moment a tall figure leaped from the shadows and confronted the quivering musician. A heavy hand fell upon his collar, and he was almost jerked from his feet, half choked, half paralyzed with alarm. Not a word was spoken. Chase whirled the presumptuous suitor about until he faced the gates to the garden. Then, with more force than he realized, he applied his boot to the person of the offender—once, twice, thrice!

The princess stared, wide eyed and unbelieving, upon the brief tragedy. She saw her tormentor hurled viciously toward the gates and then, with new alarm, saw him pick himself up from the ground, writhing with pain and anger. His sword flashed from its scabbard as, with a scream of rage, he dashed upon the tall intruder. She saw Chase—even in the shadows she knew him to be the American—she saw Chase lightly leap aside, avoiding the thrust for his heart. Then, as if he were playing with a child, he wrested the weapon from the conductor's hand, snapped the blade in two pieces and threw them off into the bushes.

"Skip!" was his only word. It was a command that no one in Rapp-Thorberg ever had heard before.

"You shall pay for this!" screamed the conductor, tugging at his collar. "Scoundrel! Dog! Beast! What do you mean? Murderer! Robber! Assassin?"

"You know what I mean, you little shrimp!" roared Chase. "Skip! Don't hang around here a second longer or I'll"— And he took a threatening step toward his adversary. The latter turned tail and ran twenty paces or more in heartbreaking time, then, realizing that he was not pursued, stopped and shook his fist at his assailant.

"Come, Genevra," he gasped, but she remained as if rooted to the spot. He waited an instant and then walked rapidly away in the direction of the palace. Baggs grasped Chase by the shoulder, shook him and exclaimed when it was too late:

"You blooming ass, do you know what you've done?"

"The —— miserable cur was annoying the princess," muttered Chase, straightening his cuffs, vaguely realizing that he had interfered too hastily.

"Confound it, man, he's the chap she's going to marry."

"Marry?" gasped Chase.

"The hereditary prince of Brabetz—Karl Brabetz."

"Good Lord!"

"You must have known."

"How the dev— Of course I didn't know," groaned Chase. "But, bang it all, man, he was annoying her. She was flouting him for it. She said she despised him. I don't understand"—

The princess came forward into the light of the path. There was a quaint little wrinkle of mirth about her lips, which trembled nevertheless, but her eyes were full of solicitude.

"I'm sorry, sir," she began nervously. "You have made a serious mistake. But," she added frankly, holding out her hand to him, "you meant to defend me. I thank you."

Chase bowed low over her hand, too bewildered to speak. Baggs was pulling at his mustache and looking nervously in the direction which the prince had taken.

"He'll be back here with the guard," he muttered.

"He will go to my father," said Genevra, her voice trembling. "He will be very angry. I am sorry, indeed, that you should have witnessed our—our scene. Of course you could not have known who he was."

"I thought he was a— But in any event, your highness, he was annoying you," supplemented Chase eagerly. "You will forgive me if I've caused you even greater, graver annoyance. What can I do to set the matter right? I can explain my error to the duke. He'll understand."

"Perhaps—perhaps you'd better go at once," said the princess, rather pathetically. "My father will not overlook the indignity to—to my—to his future son-in-law. I am afraid he may take extreme measures."

CONGREGATION WAS ENTERTAINED

Enjoyable Reception in the Guild Hall of St. Andrew's Church

St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid Society were hostesses of the congregation last night at a reception given in the guild hall. The hall was very tastefully decorated and presented the appearance of a large drawing room. A large number of the congregation were present and spent an enjoyable evening. An informal programme of vocal and instrumental music was given, and during the evening refreshments were served. Those taking part in the programme were Messrs. F. R. Clarke, Gordon Wright, Miss Winslow, of Toronto; Mrs. P. A. Kerr, Mrs. Chas. Gilson, Mr. George Lang, Miss Bessie Read, Miss Mary Potter and Miss Beaty.

A vote of thanks was tendered the ladies on motion of Mr. G. A. Cornish and Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie. Mr. Andrew McFarland responded on behalf of the ladies.

The evening was brought to a close by singing Auld Lang Syne and God Save the King.

ASTHMA VANISHES

So Does Catarrh, Croup, Hay Fever and Bronchitis

Hyomei is a confidence creator. The first time you breathe in this powerful yet soothing, antiseptic air, you will know that it has marvelous curative virtues. There is nothing disagreeable about Hyomei. It is a very pleasant and prompt remedy for catarrh, colds, asthma, croup, bronchitis, etc.

If your head is so stuffed with mucous that you cannot breathe a particle of air through your nostrils, Hyomei will open them up and give relief in five minutes.

Why will sensible people suffer longer, why will they wheeze and gawk and spit and smother, when Wm. Madill will guarantee Hyomei to cure or money back. $1.000 is all Wm. Madill asks for a complete outfit.

"We know Hyomei to be a fine and effective remedy for croup and asthma. Our nine-year-old boy has been greatly troubled with asthmatic croup and we found no relief for it until we used Hyomei. This remedy does fully all that is claimed for it, and we give same our hearty endorsement and have often recommended it."—Mrs. Isaac Prout, 725 Radbourn St., Woodstock, Ont.

DONNELLY—PITMAN

On Saturday morning, January 29, 1910, by the Rev. Mr. Lutphen, of Cleveland, Ohio, Miss Mabel Pitman, of Peterborough, was married to Mr. John Donnelly, of Cleveland, formerly of Manchester, England.

The bride was attired in a beautiful travelling suit of blue broadcloth and carried a bridal bouquet, the gift of her girl friends of Peterborough.

On the eve of the bride's departure for Cleveland her girl friends, about 25 in number, met at her home to say farewell and presented her with a dozen beautiful tea spoons. She also received many other useful presents. Mr. Donnelly is also known in Peterborough, and their many friends join in wishing them long life and happiness.

SIR GEORGE DRUMMOND DIED TO-DAY

Special to the Review.

Montreal Feb. 2.—The death took place at 3.30 o'clock this morning of Sir George Drummond, president of the Bank of Montreal, and for many years known as the sugar king of Canada, he having been president of the Canada Sugar Refinery Company, one of the largest establishments of its kind in the Dominion. Sir George had been in failing health for some months, and his end was not unexpected. He was born in Scotland in 1829 and came to Canada in 1854 to assume the management of the Redpath refinery. Sir George was prominently identified with all forward movements in Montreal. He was twice married.

FARMER WRITES ON THE LICENSE REDUCTION QUESTION

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—After reading in your paper the discussion by the council upon license reduction, we are somewhat surprised to note the sudden, wonderful interest, which some of the aldermen take in the farmer. We would like to say if the aldermen are anxious to have the bar-room upheld let them come out plainly and say so and do not try to hide behind the farmer. The farmer who is opposed to the bar-room, and there are many such, is not opposed to paying for his accommodation. If the council really wishes to accommodate the farmer, there are many ways in which it might be done, such as improving the accommodation at the market, in storm and blazing sun, carrying heavy baskets up a long winding stair, which present accommodation the farmer pays for.

We have no quarrel with any member of the council, but it seems a very poor argument to talk of accommodation for the farmer, which costs the council nothing whatever but talk.

ANNUAL REPORT ON THE INSPECTION OF COLLEGIATE

New Regulation Regarding Gymnasiums Does Not Commend Itself to the Board—Should be Improvement in Writing and there is Too Much Time Given to Science Dept. Says Dr. Morrison

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held last night and there were present, the chairman, L. M. Hayes, K.C., W. H. Hill, John Crane Robt. Fair, B. F. Ackerman, H. Adams, Dr. Burnham, Dr. Morrison and Col. Miller. Several items in the report of Mr. J. E. Wetherill, who recently inspected the Collegiate Institute, were discussed and finally, the report was received and that part referring to the gymnasium, was referred to the Property Committee with power to take such steps as is deemed necessary in placing the matter before the Education Department in Toronto with a view of continuing the present arrangements.

The report with unimportant details eliminated follows:

Since last inspection the accommodations have been improved in many respects, but the library needs further additions and the scientific apparatus, should be still further increased. The ratio of pupils to teachers is thirty to one. Form 2H is too large. The division of a subject between two teachers should be avoided in the lower school. The tone of the school is remarkably good. The text books are all authorized and the registers are properly kept. Four pictures have been purchased. After 1910, first class grading will not be given unless the rooms are suitably decorated. Fire drills should be organized.

I shall take pleasure in recommending that for 1910, this school should enjoy the rank of an improved school. It must be clearly understood that the approval of a school gives neither approval nor standing to any of its pupils. The principle of an approved school is a sole arbiter of the standing of individual teachers. I congratulate the principal and the Board on the marked change in the conditions of this school as compared with those of a year ago. The accommodation and equipment are well improved. The organization is nearly the best possible, the staff on the whole is one of th bes in my district of inspection, the character of the pupils' exhibits has been revolutionized. The attention of the staff is called to the new regulation regarding promotion examinations, on page 12 of the amended regulations.

The attention of the Board is called to the new regulation page 18 of the amended regulations; "after August, 1911, a Collegiate Institute which was not provided a gymnasium satisfactory to the Minister of Education forfeit its status." It should be clearly understood that the use of neither the Armouries or the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium can be accepted as satisfactory. Such an arrangement has been denied to other schools. I have pointed out to the trustees whom I have met that for a first grade gymnasium, the regulations provide an annual grant of $160.

Signed, J. E. WETHERILL.

Dr. Morrison thought the report was a matter of much gratification. He however, was of the opinion that the question of writing needed consideration, and the proper place to start was in the kindergarten or the first book. The average scholar had too much to do and was apt to neglect his or her writing. The perfection of writing was lost sight of, and if there was to be an improvement the start should be made with the teacher of the primary class.

In regard to science books, Dr. Morrison thought that the science department was running wild. Some pupils spent three-quarters of their time in writing science and did not have time to spend on other subjects. The matter ought to be looked into carefully and brought before the Ontario Association when in convention. The work in science was far in excess of what it ought to be.

In connection with the clause referring to the gymnasium, he thought that the present arrangements with the Y.M.C.A. should be satisfactory. The Board should take the matter in hand at the proper time and show the department that the gymnasium here is adequate.

Mr. Hill.—The best step would be to take the matter to headquarters and lay it before the Minister of Education.

Vital statistics for London in January are.—Deaths 58, births 69, and marriages 32.

THEATRICAL

"THE RED MOON"

Melodious and rythmic in a most pleasing degree, equipped with brilliant costumes, effective settings and an increased orchestra, Cole and Johnson's "Red Moon" will be the offering at the Grand next Monday, Feb. 7th. The members to the last one, have as their creed, fun and music, and that there is no stint in the score is shown by the number of songs—seventeen, without the opening and closing choruses. The fun is in proportion. The book, which seems quite an inconsequential thing in musical comedy these days, has been given actual place in the arrangement of "The Red Moon." The story is not heavy and hangs together well enough to tell what it is all about. Two broke actors, fleeing from the rath of the Sheriff, after the destruction of an "Uncle Tom's Cabin Co.," arrive in town and are mistaken for a long-wished for doctor and lawyer. Then the complications begin, also a romance, which takes the two into Indian wilds of the west, to rescue the daughter of an Indian chief from his firewater cruelties. Their mission is successful after many adventures, and all ends in a tuneful jubilation.

Cole assumes the comedy role of the lawyer, while Johnson has that of the doctor. A popular addition to the cast is Anda Overton Walker, who sang and danced her way into prominence with Williams and Walker. She is allotted some of the most effective songs, besides a wild dynamic dance is introduced in the second act.

"The Red Moon" becomes a thing of melodic beauty for the characteristic songs of Cole and Johnson, the songs fit into the plot admirably and the dances are what might be expected of a sprightly, agile aggregation of girls, to whom music and its bodily expression are second nature. Bob Cole possesses those original little motions, manner of speech, peculiar expressions and all that go to make the successful comedian, and the most fastidious will find it difficult to find fault with him. The introduction of their famous piano specialty in the final act is an artistic gem. Some of the songs that are highly popular are: "The Same Old Moon is Shining," "Pliney," "Pickaninny Days," "Hoola Woola."

Ottawa Theatregoers Surprised and Delighted by Dockstader's Minstrels

Yesterday's Ottawa Journal says:

It is some time since a minstrel show has visited the Capital, and it is longer since any production provoked such hearty laughter and pleased so thoroughly as did Lew Dockstader's troupe at the Russell Theatre last evening. Favored with a large audience, Dockstader with excellent support, talked, sang and danced through several hours of musical comedy, and incidentally introduced a series of local "hits," which, cast carelessly from his aeroplane—an ingenious surprise which floats right over the heads of the audience—kept the whole house in a steady roar.

But even this spectacular move was if anything surpassed by the silhouette, "Fighting the Flames," in which Neil O'Brien and Wm. H. Thompson as chief and captain of the rural fire company, scored a decided success. The life-saving experience of O'Brien as told by himself is a gem.

In addition to more elaborate scenery than is usually presented with a minstrel aggregation, Dockstader's troupe was particularly pleasing in its musical numbers. The singing throughout was of a pleasing order, Lew Dockstader, especially winning much favor in "The Morning After" and "An Aeroplane Built for Two." Hamilton Hill, George McKenna and Neil O'Brien have remarkably pleasing voices, which drew many encores, McKenna being especially effective in "The Garden of Roses." In addition to this the chorus could hardly have been improved upon.

In all, Dockstader's Minstrels, despite the fact that the Stars and Stripes are unfurled at the conclusion, where a Union Jack ought to be, are capital entertainers and if applause counts for anything, strong favorites with Ottawa theatre-goers.

Five Men Arrested in Havelock on Vagrancy Charge Had Hearing This Morning.

The five men arrested at Havelock a few days ago on the charge of vagrancy, appeared before County Police Magistrate Edmison this morning. Smith and A.G. Smith, who claim the land of the heather as their birthplace were arraigned first.

"How do you come to be here," asked the Magistrate.

"We were looking for work," replied one of them.

"Where do you come from?"

"Montreal," was the answer.

A. G. said he had $50 in Montreal and A. G. also claimed to have money in the metropolis. He produced a letter from his brother in Montreal with whom he says his money is in keeping, showing that the brother had forwarded him ten dollars a short time ago. The men claimed they had been promised work in Havelock, but were unable to get it owing to their arrest.

One of the two men said they could get employment in Havelock, but the Magistrate advised them to go west instead of east.

"I'm inclined to think that you are poor men looking for work," he said in discharging them.

Thomas Connel, Thomas Clayton and Bernard Rabone were then escorted into court. Connel said he came from Digby, N.S., and had worked for one firm for three successive summers up to October last. He said he was a widower and had children for whom he had always provided until he was thrown out of employment.

"They live with my father and mother in Digby," he stated.

Clayton said he had been working at Ridgetown and Rabone stated he was working at Winnipeg up to about six weeks ago.

The trio were remanded for a week and will appear in court again on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock.

OBITUARY

MRS. SARA PARNELL.

At the age of seventy-seven there passed away this morning, at her late residence, 641 George street, Sara Milburn, relict of the late Richard Parnell. She had been ill for about three weeks, and the news of her death will be heard of with regret. She had been a resident of the city for many years, and was one of the oldest missionary collectors of George street Methodist church, of which she was a faithful member.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon, at two o'clock, from 641 George street, to Little Lake cemetery. The funeral service will be held at the house at 1.30 o'clock.

MRS. CATHARINE CULLEN.

The many friends of Mrs. J. M. Brooks will sympathize with her bereavement caused by the death of her mother, Mrs. Catharine Cullen, relict of the late Thos. Cullen. The deceased was in her 76th year and had been living with Mrs. Brooks for the past two years. She had enjoyed good health until a few days ago, when she was taken ill and passed away a quarter after two o'clock yesterday afternoon. The late Mrs. Cullen was born in the County Wicklow, Ireland, and she came to this country many years ago, and settled in Oshawa, where she resided until coming to Peterborough. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. J. M. Brooks, and two sons, Peter, of Oshawa, and Thomas, of Toronto. The funeral will take place from 199 Dalhousie street, to-morrow morning at nine o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the Grand Trunk station, where the remains will be taken to Oshawa for interment.

WHAT WILL TAX RATE BE THIS YEAR?

The tax rate for 1910 will be struck by the City Council in the near future. The estimates are now being prepared, but they will hardly be ready to allow the rate to be fixed at the regular meeting of the council on Monday night. The rate last year was nineteen and a half mills, with another half mill for street watering, bringing the total up to twenty. It is learned that the rate for educational purposes will be slightly higher than last year.

It is understood that the rate will be higher than last year, when there was scrimping on all sides in the endeavor to make both ends meet.

THE HANDICAP OF 60 PER CENT

Will be Taken into Consideration by Whitney Government — Corruption Will be Punished in Local Option Campaigns -- Peterborough Deputation.

Special to Review.

Toronto, Feb. 2.—Big deputation from cities, towns, villages and townships, where local option received a majority but not three-fifths, including Brantford and Peterborough, waited on the Premier and Provincial Secretary at noon. After listening to their requests, the premier promised that the government would amend the law so as to make corruption in local option contests punishable and would take into consideration the lessening of the present handicap of sixty per cent. This, your correspondent understands, will probably be reduced to fifty-five per cent. Sir James also promised that consideration would be given to reducing the three years' time that must elapse after a local option contest before another can be held and a reduction of time will probably be made in places where the majority of the by-law was quite large.

J. H. Burnham, of Peterborough, introduced the deputation, declaring that local option was well enforced in East Peterborough and "blind pigs" found too expensive an article of diet. In West Peterborough, under a majority by-law, it could be enforced just as well. Local option should be placed on the same footing as license reduction.

Mr. Hanna—"Are you asking that reduction of licenses should be submitted to the people the same as local option instead of having the council decide."

Sir James Whitney added, "That would be your argument, by a 'parity' of reasoning."

Mr. Burnham, "I cannot say whether we desire it or not. We want the substitution of a majority vote, both in pressing local option and in the repeal."

COUNTY ORANGE LODGE HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the County Orange Lodge of West Peterborough was held in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 1st. There was a large attendance from all the primary lodges in the county. After the regular routine of business was transacted the election and installation of officers took place which resulted as follows:

C. M.—Bro. Wm. Preston, L. O. L. No. 122, Lakefield.
Dep. C. M.—Bro. J. C. Waldie, No. 321, Downer's Corners.
C. Chaplain—Bro. Jos. Batten, No. 99, Peterborough.
C. Fin. Sec.—Bro. N. C. Howard Moore, No. 1175, Peterborough.
C. Rec. Sec.—Bro. W. G. Bartley, No. 321, Downer's Corners.
C. Treasurer — Bro. Wm. Watt, No. 321, Downer's Corners.
C. Lect.—Bro. H. Dodds, No. 50, Peterborough.
1st Lect. — Bro. E. McGregor, No. 321, Downer's Corners.
2nd Lect.—Bro. S. Harrison, No. 419 Lakefield.
C. Dir. of Cer.—Bro. W. Northcott, No. 1385, Lakefield.

The newly elected officers were installed by Past Jr. Dep Grand Master of Ontario East, Bro. J. B. McWilliams.

SPORTING NEWS

GOOD ICE AVAILABLE FOR TO-NIGHT'S DOUBLE-HEADER

The T.A.A. will make a big effort to land to-night's game from the Strathconas, and with the good fast ice available, the contest should be interesting to the big crowd expected. The absence of Ben Dowty from the line-up of the red and white team may make a big difference, and the Abstainers will be right there to take advantage of any let-down. The two teams take the second hour. The curtain raiser will be between the West Ends and Keene. Although the latter aggregation were beaten by the Oldham outfit at the first meeting, it does not necessarily mean that the game to-night will be a repetition. The village team may spring a surprise, as their opponents' lineup may not be filled with the regular players.

LINDSAY PRESS ON THE GAME

According to the Lindsay papers, the Scugog rooters were tickled immensely by the result of Monday night's game. Their reports are very fair, however, and give Peterborough credit for playing a strong game in the first half. Some of the comments are:—

The Post.—And what of the defeated ones? Leonidous Derocher, the Franco-Irishman, in the nets, is the cherries. He was kept dancing last night and although he allowed thirteen shots to find the net he connected successfully with ten times that number.

Campbell, at point, is an aggressive player and holds down that position well, although last night he found shelter in the penalty box for actions that were not according to Hoyl.

MacDougall, at cover, was as reliable as ever, and is a capital man at that position. Ray was as brilliant as ever and his work was a treat to witness. McMillan, Seymour and Dobson were also a speedy trio, although Seymour spent too much time in the penalty box. The forwards at times introduced some nice combination, more especially in the first half.

The Warder.—The seven from the canoe city played aggressive hockey all through the game, but the magnificent bursts of speed uncorked by the cup-holders were not to be checked.

The two goal-tenders can be classed in the A-1 rank. They have all the earmarks of being "guid ones."

Y.M.C.A. SPORTS

Games to be played this evening, Feb. 2nd, 1910.

8 p.m.—Business College vs. Canadian General Electric Co.
9 p.m.—Y.M.C.A. vs. George street Methodist church.

If each team will be at the gymnasium at the scheduled time it will make it much easier all the way around. It will enable the teams to get out of the building before morning, and to be at work on time. If each member of his team can, possibly be on time it will be a great help.

TO AMEND MUCH DISCUSSED CLAUSE

Peterboro Deputation is Waiting on Whitney Government To-day

Deputations from a large number of centres in Ontario are waiting on the Whitney Government at noon to-day with a view to some modification of the three-fifths clause in the local option by-law. This course seems to have been a concerted action on the part of the municipalities which have received a large majority in favor of the by-law, but which come short of the required three-fifths.

The deputation from Peterborough consists largely of those sympathetic with the Ontario Government and will act in an advisory rather than a dictatorial spirit.

APSLEY

Special to Review

Apsley, Jan. 29.—We are having some very mild weather at present, so much so that some of the lumbermen have had to discontinue the log hauling for a few days.

Mr. Harry E. Grieves, of Saskatchewan, who has been taking a vacation at Lasswade, made a trip through the neighborhood sketching views along East Road street recently. Mr. Grieves intends taking a number of such views home with him when he returns.

Mr. Wm. Hales, of Apsley, had the misfortune of losing a valuable colt a few days ago.

Mr. Ambrose Kingman, of Lasswade, is working for Mr. E. Forbes at present.

The Whitemore brothers are still lumbering.

Miss Florence Downing, of Apsley, has returned to Toronto.

Mr. Dennis Bailey, of Napanee, Ont., who has been selling tea through these parts for some years back, made his usual annual trip through the neighborhood a few days ago.

LAKEFIELD NEWS

Special to the Review.

The Chosen Friends held an "At Home" on Friday, January 28th, in Lakefield, and a very agreeable evening was spent.

The Bachelors' Ball was held in the town hall, Lakefield, on January 28. A large attendance was present, and all the guests thoroughly enjoyed themselves. A Peterborough orchestra provided music.

A large number of young people drove from Peterborough last Friday evening and spent the night skating here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Crawford returned home last night, after a lengthy visit out west.

Mrs. James, of Lakefield, wife of Rev. Mr. James, is home after a visit of several weeks.

The balance of $100.00 was donated to the objects of the mission.

PICTURE WAS CONSIDERED ALL RIGHT

Chief Boazel received a complaint over the telephone this morning to the effect that a moving picture pus on at the Royal Theatorium last night was not conducive to elevating the morals of the audience. The offending picture was entitled "Hector, the Angel Child." The chief paid a visit to the theatorium, and requested the proprietor to show him the picture on the screen, and he was accommodated. It was preceded by a very instering and instructive picture on gathering honey. The most objectionable feature of the picture complained of was a carousal in a cafe of all those taking part. Both men and women were represented as intoxicated, and the finale came with the "wise uncle" picking up one of the women and carrying her about. Later, three of the men could be seen in a room sprawling about, and a huge bottle was always prominent.

The chief characterized the picture as one not of the best, but did not take any further action.

OBITUARY

MARY AGNES FLOOD

The death occurred to-day at noon of Mary Agnes Flood, eldest daughter of Mr. Michael Flood, Enniskmore. She was seventeen years of age and had been ailing for some time.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, lot 6, in the 9th concession of Enniskmore, on Friday morning at nine o'clock, to St. Martin's church, and thence to St. Mary's cemetery.

THREE UNIQUE SOCIAL EVENTS

There will be a trinity of social gatherings in connection with the Murray street Baptist congregation during the present season. This church, consisting of about five hundred members, has been divided into three committees, the first consisting of all the members whose names begin with the letters A. To H. The second from I. to Q. and the third from R. to Z. These sections have assumed the responsibility of entertaining the rest of the congregation on the different dates. The first of these evenings will be held on Friday, February 11th. The A's to H's declare that the entertainment to be provided by their section will be equal to any evening provided by any organization in Peterborough this winter. Refreshments will be served in the school room after the concert. The public will be welcomed. The second section will have their evening in the month of March.

Held a Concert

The Philomathean Society of the Collegiate Institute held a most successful concert at the Collegiate Institute last night.

W. H. HILL, ESQ.,
Manager Sun Life Assurance Co., of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—About five years ago my late husband took out $1,000.00 insurance in The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, on which he only paid the first three premiums. Shortly after his death, which occurred on the 6th inst., although I was under the impression that his policy had lapsed, I called at your office to inquire if anything could be done whereby we might get something out of it. You can imagine my surprise and genuine gratitude to learn that, owing to your non-forfeiture privilege, the policy was still in force at his death and that I was entitled to the full thousand dollars, less only the two unpaid premiums and interest.

This seems to me such extraordinary and generous treatment that I wish to add my expression of most sincere thanks and appreciation to the many others your company must receive.

I also wish to acknowledge and thank you for your courtesy and promptness in procuring for me a cheque to-day covering the policy, and to state that if my endorsation of the already mentioned feature of your policies is of value you are quite at liberty to use it.

Gratefully yours,

Mr. James Robb, one of the oldest residents of Dummer, passed away on Monday morning of this week, at the old homestead of his son, Mr. William Robb, Stony Lake, at the good old age of 81 years. Mr. Robb, through his long life, has enjoyed good health and prosperity, and has lived to see a large family grow up to be an honor and credit to him. His sons, Hugh and John, who reside in Norwood, and William, at Stony Lake, are sons of whom any father should be proud.

The funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. Wm. Robb, Stony Lake, on Wednesday afternoon of this week, to the Norwood cemetery. A fuller account will be furnished next week.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

"WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE, THE MAN" SUBJECT OF AN INSTRUCTIVE PAPER

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE, THE MAN.

Such was the title of a most interesting paper read by Miss Nora Fitzgerald at the meeting of the Ladies' Literary of St. Peter's T.A.S. at their rooms, on Friday evening last, January 28. The reader showed much familiarity with her subject and also a very clear understanding and appreciation of the beauties of the writings of the immortal bard.

"There is rosemary, That's for remembrance,
I pray you, love, remember; and there
Pansies, that's for thoughts."
Hamlet, Act. IV., Scene 5.

There is no name in the annals of English literature so great as that of Shakespeare. Very little is known of his early life, or, in fact, of any of it. We have to judge the man by his work.

He was born at Stratford-on-Avon, on April 23rd, 1564. His birthplace has been preserved to this day, and the visitor to the British Isles must needs spend some time at the home of Shakespeare, else will the visit be incomplete.

There are a great many photographs of the place scattered throughout the world to-day. It fronts the street. No shade trees are around it. No avenue leads up to it. No garden gives it the least retirement. Its walls have been restored so frequently and carefully that its real age seems incredible. Inside the room in which the dramatist was born is low and ugly. There is here exhibited a portrait of the immortal bard, but it does not please since it fails to fulfill one's ideal of this sublime interpreter of human nature.

Until he was about fifteen years of age Shakespeare attended the grammar school in the neighborhood of his home, when, on account of his father's financial reverses he was apprenticed to a butcher.

During his early life he was very reckless and once was prosecuted before a magistrate for stealing. He was married at the age of nineteen to one Annie Hathaway, who dwelt a short way across the fields from Shakespeare's home. In 1586, at the age of 22, Shakespeare went to London, where he became, first an actor, then a writer for the stage. As an actor he seems to have made no special mark, but as a writer he very soon distinguished himself and in a few years had won the foremost rank among the dramatists of his time. His works became not only widely popular but they brought him special marks of favor from Queen Elizabeth, and her successor, King James. They also gained for him the patronage and friendship of some of the most accomplished men of rank of that day.

His plays—37 in all, according to latest criticisms, are classified as tragedies, histories and comedies. The first work of Shakespeare which was printed with his name attached was the poem, "Venus and Adonis," which appeared in 1593. In 1594, "Lucrece" was published. Both of these poems were reprinted during his lifetime. His only other work besides his plays were "The Passionate Pilgrim," a small collection of poems, first printed in 1599, and his Sonnets, 154 in number, which, with a poem entitled "A Lover's Complaint," were printed in 1609. In 1623, under the editorship of Shakespeare's fellow-actors and friends, John Henning and Henry Condell, appeared the "First Folio," containing 20 hitherto unprinted plays. This was seven years after his death, and though these plays were "warranted as "true original copies" they were very imperfect both in number and typeography. A second folio edition containing the same plays was published in 1632, while a third appeared in 1664. The third folio was the most complete, containing 36 plays those of the preceding editions with "Pericles" and six dramas not included in modern editions. A fourth and last edition folio reprint appeared in 1685. These four folios were the only editions of his plays brought out in the seventeenth century.

It has been said that very little is known of Shakespeare, his life and habits. "No letter of his writing, no record of his conversation, no character of him drawn with any fulness by a contemporary" has been extracted by antiquaries from the piles of rubbish which they have sifted. Yet of no person is there a clearer picture in popular fancy. The greatest of English poets is but a name. First of all it may be said that Shakespeare's works could only be produced by a first rate imagination working on a first-rate experience. Out of nothing, nothing can be made. Some plastic power is required, however great be the material. Shakespeare's mind did not form in early life a classified list of the objects of the universe, and learn no more about the universe ever after. From a certain fine sensibility of nature it is plain that he took a keen interest not only in general and coarse outline of objects, but in their minutest particulars and gentlest graduations. You may open Shakespeare and find the clearest proof of this. For instance, take this passage from "As You Like It"—

When last young Orlando parted from you
He left a promise to return again
Within an hour, and pacing through the forest
Chewing the food of sweet and bitter fancy;
Lo! What befell! he threw his eye aside
And mark what object did present itself;
Under an oak whose boughs were moss'd with age
And high top bald with dry antiquity,
A wretched, ragged man, o'ergrown with hair,
Lay sleeping on his back. About his neck
A green and gilded snake had wreathed itself,
And with her head nimble in threats approached
The opening of his mouth; but suddenly
Seeing Orlando, it unlink'd itself,
And with indented glides did slip away
Into a bush; under which bush's shade
A lioness, with udders all drawn dry
Lay crouching, head on ground, with catlike watch,
When that the sleeping man should stir; for 'tis
The royal disposition of that beast
To prey on nothing that doth seem as dead.

The author must have known considerable about the habits of wild animals else how could he have given such a correct and minute description as the one I have quoted.

Shakespeare had also a perfectly poetical appreciation of nature with his knowledge of facts and sensibility to charm. He was not obtuse. These lines,

Daffodils,
That come before the swallow dares, and take,
The winds of March with beauty; violets dim,
But sweeter than the lids of Juno's eyes
Or Cytherea's breath,

taken from "A Winter's Tale," seem to show that he knew those feelings of youth to which beauty is more than a religion.

He writes like a man who has lived at Rome and undergone a thorough training, studying with the best masters. He describes everything with that comes to hand, for he is prepared for it, whatever it may be and what he paints, he paints without an effort.

Shakespeare was a "man of men," not merely with men; he was not "a thing apart" with a clear intuition of what was in those around him, he had in his own nature the germs and tendencies of the very elements which he described. If you will describe the people, if you will write for the people, you must be one of the people. He knew what was in man for he felt it in himself. Throughout all his writings you see an amazing sympathy with the common people, rather an excessive tendency to dwell on the common feature of ordinary lives. He knew, too, that for most of the purposes of human life stupidity is a most valuable element. Coleridge has a nice criticism which deals with this point. He observes that in the narrations of uneducated people in Shakespeare, just as in real life, there is a want of prospectiveness and a superfluous amount of regressiveness. All through the works of Shakespeare you feel that you are reading the successful man; not a trace can be found of "eating cares" or narrow and mind-contracting toil but everywhere there is, in addition to a shrewd sagacity and boyish wisdom, a refining element of chastening sensibility which prevents sagacity from being too rough, and shrewdness from becoming cold.

He liked music, too, for he has written—

The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not mov'd by concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils,
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus;
Let no such man be trusted.

From his English historical plays it distinctly appears that Shakespeare, like everybody then, accepted the constitution of his country. He had a clear perception that, though it is possible to bribe a class as well as an individual, and that personal obscurity is but an insecure guarantee for political disinterestedness, he everywhere speaks in praise of a tempered and ordered and qualified policy in which the aristocratic classes have a certain influence and shows in every page a keen sensibility to the large views and high-souled energies, the gentle refinements and disinterested desires in which those classes are likely to be especially deficient. He is particularly the poet of personal nobility. The passage from Julius Caesar helps to instance the foregoing idea. It is taken from the speech of Mark Antony, over Caesar's bier:

"Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears,
I come to bury Caesar, not to praise him.
The evil that men do lives after them,
The good is oft interred with their bones;
So let it be with Caesar. The noble Brutus
Hath said that Caesar was ambitious;
If it were so it was a grievous fault;
And grievously hath Caesar answered it.
Here, under leave of Brutus and the rest,
Come I to speak at Caesar's funeral.
He was my friend, faithful and just to me;
But Brutus says he was ambitious;
And Brutus is an honorable man.
He hath brought many captives home to Rome,
Whose ransoms did the general coffers fill,
Did this in Caesar seem ambitious?
When the poor have cried, Caesar hath wept;
Ambition should be made of sterner stuff.
Yet Brutus says he was ambitious;
And Brutus is an honorable man.
Moreover, he hath left you all his walks
His private arbours and new planted orchards
On this side Tiber, he hath left them to you,
And to your heirs forever, common pleasures,
To walk abroad and recreate yourselves.
Here was a Caesar, when comes such another!"

It has been doubted whether Shakespeare was a man much conversant with the intimate society of women. However, he possessed a great knowledge of them—a capital acquaintance with their excellence, faults and follies. They are invariably high-souled, spirited and proud, ever zealous for their honor and exacting in the assertion of their rights. The language of Shakespeare's women is ever essentially female language. He could paint ing, which is the refinement of the best women. An example of his eloquence in women can be found in "The Merchant of Venice," where Portia pleads for mercy with Shylock, the Jew.

On few subjects has more nonsense been written than on the learning of Shakespeare. He was not a hard student, yet he was a happy and pleased reader of interesting books. He was a natural reader; when a book was dull he put it down, when it looked fascinating he took it up, and we see that he remembered and mastered what he read. We have clear evidence that he had the ordinary grammar-school education of his time, but he was not an elaborate scholar, though his plays show that he had a very powerful and educated mind. Max Muller, the German scholar, paid tribute to this learning of Shakespeare in his collection of essays "Chips from a German Workshop," and there is many a student in Germany who learned English solely in order to study Shakespeare in the original. Goethe was proud to call himself a pupil of Shakespeare, and indeed we owe a debt of gratitude to the poet of Stratford-on-Avon, not speaking of the poet only and of his art, so perfect because so artless, but rather of the man with his large, warm heart, with his sympathy, with all that is genuine, unselfish, beautiful and good, with his contempt for all that is petty, mean and false. Great nations make great poets, great poets make great nations. Happy the nation that possesses a poet like Shakespeare. Happy the youth of England whose first ideas of the world in which he is to live are taken from his plays. When we look at this small house, in a small street, in a small town of a small island, and then think of the world-ennobling spirit that burst forth from that small garret, we have learned a lesson and carried off a blessing, for which no pilgrimage would be too great.

Shakespeare is of no age. He speaks a language that thrills in our blood in spite of the separation of more than two hundred years. His thoughts, his passions, his strains of fancy, are all of this day as they were of his own, and his genius may be contemporary with the mind of every generation for a thousand years to come.

On April 23, 1616, Shakespeare died, having completed his 52nd year. Two days after the remains of the poet were interred in the chancel of the old church at Stratford. Over the grave there is a large, flat stone, on which you may read these lines:

"Good friend, for Jesus' sake, forbear,
To dig the dust enclosed here.
Blest be the man that spares these stones,
And curst be he that moves my bones."

For three long centuries this epitaph has guarded Shakespeare's sepulchre like the destroying angel's sword of flame. Protected by that awful imprecation, the bard of Avon has slept undisturbed. In a sculpture framed above the tomb of Shakespeare there has since been set a marble bust of him. In 1880 a Shakesperian memorial was completed at Stratford. It is a combination of theatre, library and museum. In 1887 Geo. W. Childs, of Philadelphia, presented the town with a splendid fountain, also a memorial of Shakespeare.

Shakespeare's widow died on August 6th, 1626, and was buried with him in the church.

The programme of the evening included an instrumental by Miss Kingsley, and vocal solo by Miss Heenan.

The next meeting will take place on Friday, February 11th.

One of the Speakers Condemned Laurier's Naval Policy-Good Programme

Special to the Review.

Omemee, Feb. 1.—An event of unusual interest occurred here on Jan. 17th, when the Sir Knights of R.B.P., No. 625, held their fifth anniversary in memory of the founding of the Preceptory. An oyster supper was the choice of the Sir Knights, and a well chosen committee had everything prepared in the Orange Hall. Only the Sir Knights and their wives and best girls were present.

After the inner man had been thoroughly satisfied, and the long rows of handsome spread tables had been removed, Sir Knight Thos. Newman, a Past Preceptor, called the gathering to order, and the programme consisted of the following:—

Chairman's address.
Address—Sir Knight George Lowes, W.P.
Solo—Miss Parsons.
Solo—Miss Balfour.
Mouthorgan — Sir Knight John Magee.
Address—Bro. Currie.
Solo—Mrs. Charles Rutherford.
Address—Jos. T. Beatty.
Solo—Miss Parsons.
Solo—Miss Balfour.
Address—Sir Knight F. Johnson.
Solo—Mrs. Charles Rutherford.

The feature of the programme was the address given by Bro. Currie. After touching on several introductory remarks, the speaker dwelt largely on a certain portion of Orangeism and the useless naval fleet scheme lately introduced by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Bro. Currie then took his seat amid cheers.

Sir Knight Johnson said Black Knights were the pick of Orange lodges, etc. He told several good stories.

The beautiful voices of the soloists were indeed pleasant to everybody.

THE KING AND CONSTITUTION IS EDWARD KING OF CANADA?

French-Canadian Journals at Great Pains to Show That His Majesty Has no Real Authority—Why This Constant Harping on Our Independence?—Hatred of the Idea of a United Empire.

(From Le Canada.)

The following double-headlined editorial from Le Canada, succeeding those that have appeared before in the French press generally, shows to what lengths the French-Canadians are going in their determination to repudiate all question of a united British empire:—

"According to the English Constitution the King can do no wrong. This mediaeval theory has been modernized by the necessary provision that every act of His Majesty is to to countersigned by a minister, who alone assumes the responsibility of it before parliament.

It is then not the King, but the minister who governs; whence the formula, 'The King reigns, but does not govern.'

In the United Kingdom the King can act only through a responsible minister. Now the minister responsible to parliament has no power except that which is given him by parliament.

In Canada by virtue of the Constitutional law (Act of Confederation of 1867), the King remains the head of our system of government, where he is represented by the Governor-General, but the powers of the Governor-General are defined by the Constitution. They cannot be exercised except by the advice of his ministers. No act of the Governor-General is of value, except in so far as it is the act of the Governor-General IN COUNCIL, that is to say, of his ministry.

And just as in England, the powers of the Governor-General-in-Council are defined by the parliament of Canada.

Therefore the theory expressed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and against which certain Tories have spoken, is correct. The King cannot exercise his authority in Canada in anything which is submitted by the Act of 1867, to the jurisdiction of the Canadian Parliament within the limits defined by the Canadian Parliament.

Now the militia and defence of Canada are amongst the subjects reserved to the jurisdiction of the federal parliament.

Article 91 of the Act of 1867 says:—The King can BY AND WITH THE ADVICE AND CONSENT OF THE SENATE AND THE HOUSE OF COMMONS OF CANADA make laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada upon all matters not included in the classes by the act reserved to the exclusive jurisdiction of the provinces; and for greater certitude, but without wishing to restrain the general terms of the present article, it is hereby declared that (in spite of anything to the contrary herein) THE EXCLUSIVE LEGISLATIVE AUTHORITY of the Parliament of Canada extends to all subjects in the classes hereinafter enumerated, viz. The Militia, the MILITARY AND NAVAL SERVICE and defence."

We in Ontario, may well ask why French-Canadians should be at such pains to show that Canada is not under or beholden to Great Britain and His Majesty the King? Is it not singular that despite repeated challenges no French journal will say that it approves of an empire united even for defence.

TEACHING OF MUSIC

The systematic study of music was introduced into the Public schools in October, 1908, and I am able to say that the progress made has been eminently satisfactory and bears out the wisdom of the Board in adding music to the curriculum.

The teaching staff, with few exceptions, have taken the subject up enthusiastically and have responded to the guidance given them with much fidelity.

The educational benefits to be derived from the music course are manifold and may be said to comprise:

(A) To cultivate the voice, both in speaking and singing.

(B) To train the musical ear.

(C) To train the pupil in the use of music as a means of self expression.

The Tonic-Sol-Fa system is at present used throughout the schools, next year in the higher grades the staff notation will be used.

With the consistent application of the principles of music to the students' daily routine of study it is but fair to assume that a pupil passing out of the Public schools will have a fair knowledge of music, be able to read music at sight, and, if so disposed, having had the ground work, to appropriate the higher grades of musical culture either as a profession or to his or her greatly enhanced enjoyment of the musical art.

In the first form the children are taught tone recognition, and suitable simple songs are used from which they derive pleasure and instruction. In the higher grades more time is given to voice production, and ear-training, more advanced songs are used and often two-part harmony is taken up.

General enthusiasm pervades the schools in the subject of music, and I am sure the work of the past year and a half, has been productive of much good, and although the introduction of a new subject calls for some confusion at its inception, I am free to say that great headway has been made.

Yours truly,
HELEN DAVIES.

TEACHING OF ART

In September of 1908 we began in the Public schools a systematic study of Art. This includes drawing with charcoal, pencil and crayon, painting in water-colours, brush-work with ink, modelling in plasticine, illustration of nursery rhymes, stories, messages from the school readers, original design, mechanical drawing, and picture study.

For many years in the Public schools of Ontario, Art has been treated as a subject of minor importance among the branches of study that form our school curriculum, but to-day we have a much broader conception of this important subject, and it now forms a very valuable part of the educational system of Ontario. We have many objects in view in Art education; first of all we hope to train the aesthetic nature of the children in our care—to develop in them that love for the beautiful in the world about them, which will help to make them better men and women — to teach them to love and appreciate good pictures—to give them another means of expressing their ideas—to train their observation and imagination—to develop their creative powers, and to cultivate in them habits of neatness and carefulness.

In the past year and a half, with the able assistance of the teachers, the children have made a good beginning in the different branches of the Art work, and we hope have laid a sure foundation for much better work in the future. Art is so full of attraction for them, that, as they are led to see its beauty and usefulness their Art lessons become a source of great delight. From the beginning they have shown great interest in their work, and this year's work shows a marked improvement over that of last year.

Yours truly,
J. G. McRAE.

FIRE CHIEF'S REPORT.

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education:

Gentlemen,—As requested by a number of interested citizens and some members of your Board, I have made a careful inspection of all the Public schools in the city for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not your Public schools should be equipped with fire escapes.

This inspection was made on January the 25th and 27th. I was accompanied by Mr. L. M. Hayes, Chairman of your Board, Mr. Robert Fair, and Mr. Mowat, inspector of Public schools, and I beg leave to report.

The majority of the buildings are so constructed that it will not be necessary to erect fire escapes on the outside of the buildings. The architect and builders of these schools have taken the precaution of providing a sufficient number of exits, and of sufficient width to enable the teachers and scholars to get out of the buildings in a remarkably short space of time.

There are two exceptions, however. I refer to the school in Ashburnham, where an outside stairway or fire escape would aid in clearing the school in shorter time. This stairway or fire escape could be built on the west side of the building. And also at the West Ward school a fire escape could be built on the east side of the building with good effect.

The King Edward school is well provided with exits, as at the present time only two storeys of the building are in use. Should the Board of Education at any future time have occasion to complete the building and occupy the third storey, I would most strongly recommend that before doing so they equip the building with solid and substantial fire escapes.

If you will refer to my report of an inspection I made on October the 22nd, 1908, you will observe that I drew the attention of the Board to some of the doors in the schools, which open inwards. This is contrary to law. Some of the alterations I suggested at that time have been carried out, but there are still a few doors that should be altered, and I sincerely hope these defects will be remedied at once.

At each of the schools we visited an alarm of fire was sounded, and it will be interesting to the public, as well as the gentlemen of the Board, to learn that the fire drill in the city of Peterborough is far more efficient than it is in many other cities.

I submit herewith the time it took to clear the respective schools, and the number of scholars in each school as follows:—

Central Annex—150 scholars, 35 seconds.

Central School—285 scholars, 35 seconds.

Ashburnham School—215 scholars, 40 seconds.

Queen Alexandra—285 scholars, 32 seconds.

West Ward—150 scholars, 30 seconds.

South Central—450 scholars, 50 seconds.

King Edward—325 scholars, 44 seconds.

This is remarkably good time, and your principals and teachers are to be commended for the interest they take in the fire drill; and they should be given every encouragement.

I also wish to say that I found the basements of all the schools entirely free from waste paper or combustable rubbish, as I did on previous visits.

With the consent of the Board, I will give a copy of this report to the public press, in order that the parents of the pupils may feel assured that the proper precautions are being taken.

All of which is respectfully submitted. I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant,
W. A. HOWARD,
Chief Fire Department.

The report was referred to the Property Committee. The chairman stated that he had noticed at the Central School, particularly, that some of the doors opened inward instead of outward. This should not be.

ACOUSTIC PROPERTIES OF LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY ROOM NONE TOO GOOD

J. W. Johnston, of West Hastings, Says That He Has to Read the Papers to Find Out What Goes on in the Sittings of Legislature.

Toronto, Feb. 3.—The remodelling of the present Legislative Chamber, or the construction of a new one, probably in the west wing of the buildings, was foreshadowed yesterday when the House launched into a discussion of the acoustic properties of the chamber and the inability of members sitting remote from the Speaker and Ministers to hear and take part intelligently in the debates.

J. W. Johnson (West Hastings) started the discussion by announcing that he was obliged to depend largely on the morning newspapers for his knowledge of the previous day's proceedings in the House. He ventured to suggest that not half the members were able to follow the proceedings intelligently. To meet the difficulty he suggested that the gentlemen occupying the "seats of the mighty," including Mr. Speaker, be dislodged from their present position under the ledge of the press gallery in the south end and moved farther towards the centre of the chamber.

Replying to the member, Sir James Whitney said the subject was not new. He was well aware of the poor acoustic properties of the chamber and the matter of rearranging the benches in four rows on each side of the Speaker, instead of three, and of shortening the room by moving the Speaker's and reporters' galleries out a few feet. The space between the rows of benches, he thought, would accommodate eight rows in place of six without crowding or requiring any more floor area. He had been assured by officials of the Works Department that if the two public galleries were similarly moved towards the centre the architectural appearance of the room would not suffer by the general change. This step had been proposed a year ago, but after working out the details and figuring the cost, he had quailed at the expense. However, he felt that something should be done to remedy the situation.

"Why not take the bull by the horns and decide to construct a new chamber in the western wing," said D. J. McDougal (Liberal, of East Ottawa). He opined that the present chamber had disadvantages which could not possibly be overcome, and should be converted into office room and the portion being rebuilt since the fire given over to a chamber constructed on more modern and convenient lines.

Sir James replied that that point had also been considered.

Sir James Whitney referred scathingly to the following comment which appeared in The Globe yesterday: "Mr. Studholme is reviving his eight-hour and minimum wage bill, and finds the Premier determined to insist on the strictest enforcement of the rules of the House. But it does not disconcert the Labor member to learn that he will receive no favors."

"Ordinarily," said Sir James, "I pay no attention to misrepresentation in the newspapers, but this is so obviously an attempt to place me in a false light that I feel bound to call attention to it. The Globe is endeavoring to scatter broadcast over the province the impression that I am opposed to the interests of labor, and I say now, what every honorable member knows to be a fact, that that is exactly the opposite to the truth." Vigorous desk hammering followed the Premier's denunciation.

Notice of motion to amend the Municipal Act, with respect to the adjudication of damages resulting from defective roadways, was given by F. G. MacDiarmid of Elgin West. The act as it stands makes municipalities responsible for damages from accidents occurring anywhere on the full width of the road allowance, even if no notice has been received by the municipality of existing dangerous conditions. Mr. MacDiarmid's amendment will remove the hearing of damage suits under clause 606 from the high court to the county court, which, it is supposed, will be in closer touch with local conditions.

The following bills were introduced and read for the first time:

"An Act respecting Agricultural Associations."—Hon. J. S. Duff.

"An Act respecting Wages."—Hon. Dr. Reaume.

"An Act to Secure Payment of Wages for Labor Performed in the Construction of Works."—Hon. J. J. Foy.

"An Act respecting Mortgages and Sales of Personal Property."—Hon. J. J. Foy.

"An Act to Amend the High School Act."—W. H. Hearst, Sault Ste. Marie.

Mr. Hearst's bill relates solely to the northern parts of the province, where there is no county organization. In counties provision is made for the formation of high school districts. Mr. Hearst's bill aims to supply this to unorganized districts where there are no county councils or no local machinery of government similarly qualified.

Sir James Whitney presented a petition from Buildings Laborers' Union, No. 1, asking for an amendment to the Assessment Act as regards the taxation of farm buildings.

Mr. Proudfoot gave notice that on Friday next he would call for an order of the House for a return showing the number of permits granted to public school teachers during the years 1908 and 1909: (1) The reason for granting such permits; (2) how many of the teachers who received permits had previously taught; (3) the ages of the teachers who had received such permits.

CANADA LOSES GREAT BANKER; DEATH OF SIR GEO. DRUMMOND

Great Canadian Financier Succumbs at the Age of 80—Was Engaged in Many Enterprises, and Was Strong Protectionist.

Montreal, Feb. 3.—By the death of Sir George A. Drummond, president of the Bank of Montreal, which took place early yesterday, the country loses an able financier and this community one of its very ablest citizens. Although Sir George, who was nearly 81 years old, and did not come to Canada till he was 25 years of age, he was a Canadian through and through, and as a strong protectionist in the land of his adoption, he favored tariff reform in the old land.

When Sir Richard Cartwright told the delegation of Montreal manufacturers that the Government was but a fly on the wheel as far as bringing prosperity to the country was concerned, Sir George and others at once started in to defeat the free traders then in power, and the Conservative triumph of 1878 was the result of their efforts. When the Mackenzie Government was defeated the Canada Sugar Refinery, which he had come to Canada to manage, and had shut down in 1874, was reorganized, and it is said that Mr. Drummond had more to do with the preparation of the "N.P." tariff than any other man outside the Ministry of the day. He was at all times a friend of Sir John Macdonald, who called him to the Senate in 1880.

Senator Drummond was a great authority on banking matters and his ability in the Upper House on more than one occasion commanded the admiration of those who had been taught to believe that the Montreal sugar manufacturer was a selfish monopolist, and not the cultured gentleman of ability whose speeches charmed the Upper House.

It was, however, as director, vice-president and president of the Bank of Montreal that made him famous in the eyes of all Montrealers, for no one save perhaps Sir Edward Clouston, Bart., will ever know what that great institution owes to the man who has gone the way of all flesh. While being an autocrat generally, Sir George felt that the shareholders were entitled to all possible information, and his addresses at the annual meetings were read with as much interest by Wall street and London as by bankers and public men of his own country.

Sir George Drummond's picture gallery in his splendid home on Sherbrooke street west was, it is claimed, one of the finest in the country, its value being placed quite recently by an English artist at over a million and a quarter. He was also greatly interested in music.

Just outside of Montreal he had a large stock farm, which had the reputation of being one of the most successful of its kind in Canada, and for a number of years past Sir George was able to obtain the principal prizes at the Chicago Stock Exhibition with the animals raised on this farm.

His wealth is placed at from four to six million dollars. His gifts to charitable objects have never been talked about in the press, but when it is known what Sir George did for the St. Margaret's Home, an Anglican institution of charity, it is more than probable that other large sums have been given without the knowledge of the general public.

SENATOR DRUMMOND

Railway Freight War.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 3.—As a result of the reduction of the westward bound freight rate by the Erie and Lackawanna roads, and to avert a rate war among the trunk lines, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad will raise its first-class rate from 60 to 75 cents per 100 pounds on its Canadian Pacific and Ontario and Western routes. It is now inferred the Erie and Lackawanna will return to the standard western rate.

SOME CANDID CRITICISM OF THE MINISTER OF LABOR

When He Asks for Help to Collect Statistics Members of Opposition Are Undecided Whether to Challenge Him or Not and Result is Peculiar Situation.

Ottawa, Feb. 3.—A curious situation developed yesterday, and the members of the Opposition found themselves divided upon it.

Hon. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor, moved a resolution calling for the appointment of Prof. Skelton of Queen's University, to get expert information for the purpose of the Government bill to restrict the hours of labor on public works to eight per day. This resolution was brought in by a special committee to whom the bill had been referred, and some opposition members who spoke declared the Department should be able to do this work. While R. L. Borden and some others admitted that the report of the committee should be received, according to custom, others refused to accept the report at all. On a vote the report was supported by 114 votes to 36.

Mr. King said the Labor Department had men efficient to do the work, but they were busy.

Mr. Blain argued that if the Labor Department did not already have the information the Department was a failure. Mr. King remarked that Prof. Skelton had special information regarding judgments in other countries which the committee desire to obtain. Mr. Blain thought the Justice Department would have these judgments. Mr. King considered that the officers of the Justice Department were not experts. An expert had been requisitioned in the case of the telephone investigation.

Mr. Lennox said the work of the Minister of Labor so far had not been well done. The Minister was supposed to be an expert himself. He felt afraid of the practice. For instance, much of the work of the conservation committee, he believed, would be utilized for the benefit of some person near the Government, and much of the money of the people would simply be devoted to making fortunes for a gentleman prominent in that committee.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said Mr. Lennox was making insinuations which he thought he would regret.

Mr. Foster thought it was time they knew what the Labor Department was doing, and what it proposed to do.

Mr. Henderson described it as a "Department to shirk labor," instead of a Department of Labor.

Mr. Verville supported the resolution, and Dr. Reid affirmed that it was simply a political question between Mr. King and Mr. Verville.

Col. Hughes called the officials of the Labor Department the political satellites of the Government "eclipsed by this young and brilliant luminary." The Minister of Labor had been engaged to do what any page in the House could do.

Mr. Borden thought the Department of Labor might very well do the work which Prof. Skelton was supposed to do. Some years ago, when he had asked for a special enquiry into a certain matter, he had been told that the Labor Department was quite capable.

E. B. Osler, considered that if they wanted unreliable information they should go, as a rule, to a young university professor. The experience of men of business was that nobody was utterly useless to give an opinion.

Mr. Goodeve said the Government was simply using the Labor Department as a buffer between it and the people.

Major Currie, who was in favor of an eight-hour day, said that the Labor Departemnt was a "cyclone cellar with a tin roof on it, built by Verville." It was another effort to sidetrack the whole question.

Mr. Magrath asked if the bill was going through this session or not, and Mr. King said his intention was to bring it forward as soon as possible.

Mr. Meighen declared the object of the Minister was to shield himself behind an expert.

Dr. Edwards opposed the resolution, and Dr. Sproule took the view that if the Department was incapable they should get the expert. Mr. Boyce considered that there was an Ethiopian in the woodpile somewhere.

The Conservatives who voted for the resolution were: Messrs. Broder, Sproule, Doherty, Monk, Macdonnel, Barker, Blondin, Daniels, Herron, Maddin, Marshall, Nantel, Paquet, Richards, Sam Sharpe, Stanfield, Wilcox and Worthington.

In moving the second reading in the Senate yesterday of an amendment to the criminal code, making it a punishable offence for a person to have precious ore in his possession, without being able to give satisfactory explanation of how he obtained it, Sir Richard Scott stated that there was similar legislation on the statute books of South Africa and West Australia.

Senator Power noted the West Australia legislation provided that the possessor of ore must be "reasonably suspected," and the South African act provided that no one could deal in precious ores unless authorized by license. He thought Ontario could solve the trouble of Cobalt by enacting similar legislation, and requiring those who receive licenses to keep a record of their transactions.

Senator Lougheed did not seriously object if the law was restricted to Ontario, but there were deposits of low grade ore in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Alberta from which collections had been accumulated for many years, and he doubted if owners could in all cases satisfactorily explain where the specimens came from. In many cases this had been forgotten. Prospectors were going through British Columbia collecting specimens of ore, and it would hardly be desirable to make them explain in a Criminal Court the possession of their samples.

Senator G. W. Ross thought that an exaggerated view was being taken. Agents and collectors, he thought, would be able to explain possession of all samples. The bill was given a second reading.

ARE STILL THEORIZING

Coroner's Jury Cannot be Sure as to Cause of the C. P. R. Wreck.

Sudbury, Feb. 3.—The coroner is at least getting closer to the nature of the derailment which precipitated the Spanish River wreck even if the actual cause be never learned.

The experts and counsel engaged in the inquest got their first real look at the on the torn-up section yesterday afternoon. General Superintendent Gutelius sent an engine over the roadbed yesterday morning to melt the snow, so that the marks made by the wheel flanges could be seen. It seems pretty clear that the forward truck of the first-class coach (the fourth car) left the track first at a point 383 feet east of the bridge abutments. It trailed along at an angle until it got so far out of line that it pulled the rear truck of the second-class coach off, 270 feet east of the bridge.

Within 46 feet of the face of the abutment, the leading truck of the second-class car left the rails. The hind truck of this car was by this time considerably shifted north of the track and struck the bridge abutment, toppling over the bank. Relieved of this weight, together with the jolt of encountering the solid masonry, the car plunged diagonally across the bridge, tearing out a large bracing girder. The recoil from this impact drove the rear end back through the north side of the bridge. The car broke in two, and the half on the bridge caught fire. The first-class car started down the embankment at about 200 feet east of the bridge, dragging the diner and Pullman.

So much for the derailment. What caused it must be left to theory. The roadbed, tracks and wheels are conceded to be pretty fair; if not reasonably good. Eliminate these, and the only thing left would be for something to have become loosened on the truck gear, which might have dropped or remained dangling. The company are lending every assistance to the crown that could be possibly wished for.

The following letter was received by Crown Attorney Clary from the secretary of the Dominion Railway Board, explaining that the findings of that body have been denied counsel here because the matter is still under investigation by the board's officers, and, further, that "the reports of the board's officers in such matters are privileged, and are intended to lead the board in protecting public safety by ascertaining whether the accidents are preventable. It is not the policy of the board to send its officials to disclose at inquests the information which it has so obtained for its own direction."

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Twenty-one warships are to be added to the Japanese navy by 1917. Eleven, including four Dreadnoughts, are practically completed already.

It was said in New York yesterday that the American Express Co. has purchased the Southern Pacific Railway Co.'s holdings of stock in Wells Fargo & Co., which is taken to indicate a merger of the two.

Charles W. Hickman, one of the most prominent physicians in the south, was found dead from gunshot wounds, at ten o'clock last night, on the street of Summerville, the fashionable suburb of Augusta.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who returned from Europe yesterday, contradicts the report that Steamship Superintendent Piera has resigned, and that Hugh Allan is to reside in London and look after C.P.R. steamship matters.

A thousand acre farm is to be established by the Salvation Army near Winnipeg for supplying a place for unemployed men to work, and as a centre of the farm laborers and domestic servants brought to the west by the Army. Market gardening will form a big part of the farm work.

New Jersey has taken up the business conduct of the Beef trust, and finds that while New York was suffering from an egg famine that sent prices to 60 cents a dozen, the packers had held out of the market in one concern alone 36,000,000 eggs, ready to be dumped into the market as the price prompted.

GUERIN'S BIG MAJORITY

Montreal Mayor Has a Plurality of Over 14,000—The Grafters Routed.

Montreal, Feb. 3.—It goes without saying that all Montreal is rejoicing to-day over the crushing defeat meted out to the grafters by a city undivided by race or religious lines.

Correct returns give Mr. Guerin, mayor-elect, 28,806 votes, while Senator Casgrain received 15,234, leaving the splendid majority of 13,572, the largest ever obtained by a mayoralty candidate in this city.

For the controllers, Joe Ainey, the Labor representative on the slate, ran away ahead of his ticket, as the figures show. Ainey 30,805, Dupuis 24,055, Wanklyn 22,049, Lachapelle 20,564. Louis Coderre came next with about eight thousand votes, closely followed by E. W. Villeneuve and H. Mercier. The three just named were very popular men, but the feeling was so strong for the nominees of the citizens' committee, that everything had to give away before them.

SLASHES WIFE; TRIES TO DIE

Toronto, Feb. 3.—"She worried me, she's been worrying me to death." This was the reason given by William Bell, for what may yet prove a successful attempt to murder his wife yesterday afternoon by cutting her throat in a vacant apartment over the Traders' Bank branch at Jones avenue and Gerrard street, at 2.30 yesterday. Bell afterwards tried to end his own life in a like manner with a knife.

Both are in the General Hospital where the woman is reported in a critical condition, but Bell is not seriously injured.

Bell is 43 years of age, an Englishman, a brickmaker by trade and separated from Emily, his wife, in July last. Since then he has been boarding at 159 Leslie street, while his wife who is a year or so younger than he, has been working as a domestic at 65 Wolfrey street.

IMPERIALISM OF PRINCIPAL PETERSON

Guelph, Feb 3.—"There is no use our living in a 'Fool's Paradise,'" said Principal Peterson of McGill University in a patriotic address last night before one of the biggest meetings the Guelph Canadian Club has ever held.

The subject of the address was Imperialism, though the speaker stated frankly that he did not altogether like the term Empire, as it suggested too much force and not enough of the free will.

Reminding his hearers of Germany's grabbing attitude toward Russia and France, the same attitude might at any time be taken towards Britain in which case there would be trouble.

The Empire must be a union of free and equal states, not a cluster of subordinate units around a centre, he said.

He expressed the opinion that Canada should contribute Dreadnoughts for the present, which should later become part of Canada's fleet.

PREHISTORIC BONES HAVE BEEN FOUND

Berlin, Feb. 3.—The first shipment of prehistoric bones collected by the German expedition in German East Africa, comprising forty-six large boxes reached the Berlin paleontological museum yesterday. One of the most treasured specimens is a thign bone which measures 6 feet 11 3-4 inches, as compared with the 4 feet 11 inches measurement of the corresponding bone of the American diplodocus.

The explorers have reached the conclusion that the African saurians were direct progeny of those whose remains were found in Wyoming.

Whitby Saw the Comet.

Whitby, Feb. 3.—G. E. Coutts of this place says he saw a comet, which was plainly visible in Whitby last Friday night, "showing a brilliant tail, going straight up, and then curving slightly to the south."

Brockville's Coming Treat.

Brockville, Feb. 3.—Judge Longley the eminent Nova Scotia jurist, will deliver an address before the Canadian Club on "Some Canadian Problems" on Feb. 23.

NEIGHBORS GOOD TO BEREAVED MAN

Galt, Feb. 3.—The finding of the coroner's jury is that the fatal gas explosion at the Bastine home was due to a defective main, and that the Dominion Natural Gas Co. is responsible. Suits for heavy damages will be entered by survivors of the three victims, and it is said leading citizens have subscribed funds to aid the claimants. Neighbors of James Bastine, whose wife and daughter lost their lives, secretly repaired and refurnished the home, and when the bereaved owner went to take up residence again he found the place comfortable and an inviting supper prepared.

Have Special Train.

Lew Dockstader and his minstrels arrived in the city this morning on a special train from Kingston, consisting of two baggage cars, two sleepers and a dining car. They appear at the Grand Opera House to-night.

FINDS HUSBAND AFTER 48 YEARS

Wabash, Ind., Feb. 3.—In a wood chopper at work near home, Mrs. Albert Holly yesterday recognized her husband, whom she had not seen since he marched away as a soldier in the civil war, 48 years ago. She believed he was killed in battle and sold her home and moved away. He could not find her when he returned from the south, and became a wandering carpenter.

Mrs. Holly married James Stull a few years after the war. For 40 years they lived happily together. Stull was a motorman here. Then months ago he was thrown from his car and killed. Holly and his wife will now remarry.

WAS CHINAMAN IN SMUGGLING BUSINESS?

Kingston, Feb. 3.—Was Hing Ching, who hanged himself, engaged in smuggling business? Report says American detectives have been watching his laundry. It is stated he was in the smuggling business in other places, but was watched so closely he could not succeed.

An English immigrant, aged 18, who walked from Toronto, asked shelter at the police station. His feet were badly frozen.

Frontenac County Orangemen will celebrate the next 12th of July in Brockville.

EIGHTY-SIX DIE IN THIS MINE

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 3.—A despatch to The Express from Eagle Pass says:

At nightfall, 68 bodies had been recovered from the Palau Mine of the C. Coahuila Coal Co., in the State of Coahuila, Mexico, where an explosion occurred yesterday.

Didn't Murder Her Husband.

Reno, Nev., Feb. 3.—Mrs. Mae Talbot, the former opera singer, was acquitted yesterday afternoon of the charge of murdering her husband, Albert E. Talbot. The deceased was a brother of Col. Talbot of the Canadian Parliament.

FERDINAND COHEN STILL IN DISTRESS

Philadelphia, Feb. 3.—Another attempt to secure the release from prison of Ferdinand Cohen, the waiter who is accused of kidnapping Roberta De Janon, the 16-year-old heiress of this city, failed again yesterday. Miss De Janon, who has been in a hospital since her return from Chicago, left the city yesterday afternoon for Atlantic City.

Ballinger to Have Counsel.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Secretary of the Interior Ballinger at last, after much persuasion, has decided to employ counsel to appear before the Ballinger-Pinchot congressional investigating committee to defend his side of the case.

The Kaiser's Sympathy.

Berlin, Feb. 3.—Emperor William yesterday donated $5,000 for the relief of the flood victims in Paris, and he also sent a warm telegram of sympathy to the French Government.

Loss of Life in Storm.

Christiania, Norway, Feb 3.—Heavy loss of life has occurred among the fishing fleets that were caught off the storm-swept coasts.

TURKISH FLEET AT FULL STEAM

Special to the Review.

Athens, Feb. 3.—A Turkish fleet is steaming at full speed towards Crete according to official information received here to-day. The crisis between the Port and Greece is more acute and perilously nearing the breaking point. Two Turkish army corps are in readiness to be hurled into the plain of Larisha at a moment's notice. The third corps, whose station is Salonica and the army of the Epirus. Not in years have the war clouds that ever hover over the Balkans, been so black as they are to-day.

Who Owns Them?

A dress coat and vest have been left by mistake at 500 Gilmour street. The owner should call and secure them as soon as possible.

$25,000 WAITING FOR OWNER

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Twenty-five thousand dollars is lying in the safe of the German Hospital, awaiting the finding of heirs to the estate of Mrs. Tindel, who died at that institution of apoplexy.

The money was in large bills, concealed in Mrs. Tindel's clothing, and was brought to light, together with her will, after her death.

Apoplexy claims hundreds of victims every year. Yet apoplexy is but an advanced stage of blood poisoning which manifests itself in headaches and backaches. Very frequently the cause is constipation.

Such a case as the above shows the importance of keeping the bowels active, the kidneys regular, the skin healthy, so that the blood will be always pure and rich.

"Fruit-a-tives"—the famous fruit liver tablets—are safe and efficient regulators for stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c.

ABOUT GAMBLING

The race-track gambling bill, which is now being considered by committee at Ottawa, aims to do away with the professional bookmaker at the race tracks. Some of those opposed to the bill have stated that horse racing is necessary for the development of the thoroughbred horse and that gambling is necessary in order to keep up interest in the racing. There is no question but that gambling is an evil, that it has ruined many men, that it has caused a large amount of suffering and a good deal of dishonesty. Many men who have gone the wrong way would have been all right to-day if they had not become victims of the gambling fever. Should men be sacrificed to develop thoroughbred horses? If the horses are worth more than the men, then, well and good. If the man is the more valuable of the two, let the law remove the temptation to gamble as much as possible. One of the worst features of the whole business is that the man who gambles is very often in a position where he cannot afford to drop any money.

A HORSE SHOW

Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, London, St. Thomas and Guelph will all have horse-shows during the next few months. Cobourg has a splendid exhibition of equines every summer. These shows are doing much to arouse interest in good horses. Automobiles and airships may come and go but the horse is still cutting a pretty prominent figure in Canada, and since we have horses we might as well have good ones. Horse shows are beneficial in the work of improving the quality. Why can't Peterborough have one? We have some fine horses in the city and district and we have the men who could make a success of the show if they took the matter in hand. Someone ought to start the ball rolling. The Review has advocated this and other attractive features persistently but the citizens have not yet waked up. It will come some day.

WHY NOT INVESTIGATE?

It has been alleged that the enormous cost of the government section of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is largely due to over-classification. What is meant by over-classification? The contracts made by the Government Commission with the contractors provided for different rates of payment for the different kinds of materials taken out, viz., solid rock, loose rock and common excavation. For example, take the contract from Moncton 50 miles to the westward. The rates were, for solid rock $1.50 per cubic yard, for loose rock 55 cents, and for common excavation 25 cents. Now it is very easy for anyone to understand what enormous profits the contractors might make if they were allowed to charge for common excavation as if it were rock excavation. This is what is alleged to have taken place nearly all along the line from Moncton to Winnipeg.

The charge of over-classification was first made by Mr. Hodgins, an eminent engineer, who was employed by the government in connection with the work, but resigned. The charge was repeated by Mr. Hugh Lumsden in resigning his position of chief engineer of the "National Transcontinental Railway."

Whether the charges are true or false can only be ascertained by a thorough investigation, but the fact that the engineers of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company have also charged over-classification lends color to the statements of Mr. Hodgins and Mr. Lumsden.

It is admitted by the Liberals themselves that the cost of construction has been enormously greater than the estimates. This fact of itself is sufficient to warrant a thorough investigation.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is willing to allow a limited investigation as to the truth of certain statements, which he selects from Mr. Lumsden's letter of resignation, but he will not agree to a broad investigation of the charges of over-classification.

The people of Canada have a right to know whether their money is being spent honestly or dishonestly by the "National Transcontinental Railway Construction Commission." They have a right to know whether the excessive cost of the railway is due to blundering incompetence on the part of the commissioners, or to a dishonest conspiracy between the commissioners and the contractors, or whether the commissioners are blameless. They have a right to know whether the contractors who are receiving such immense sums of money from the government have contributed to the Liberal election funds and if so, how much?

The government should court the very fullest investigation.

THE VALUE OF CANADA

It has often been assumed that the term National Policy, was used by the Conservatives simply to indicate the customs tariff designed to protect our home manufactures, but such was not the idea of Sir John Macdonald in adopting this term to designate the Conservative policy. The protective tariff was a most important part of Sir John's National Policy, but not the whole of it. The construction of railways to unite the different provinces and the improvement of our waterways were included in the programme of the National Policy. The work on the waterways was steadily prosecuted, but owing to the large expenditure required in connection with the Canadian Pacific Railway at a time when the revenues of the country were not great, the enlargement and extension of the canal system was not pushed as vigorously as it might otherwise have been. But after the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway Sir John planned to speedily improve the waterways and the ports of the Dominion. A few weeks before his last illness he spoke very emphatically in favor of a vigorous canal policy. Very little has been done in the way of canal construction in recent years.

If all the money that is wasted in paying excessive prices for nearly everything the Government buys were saved great things could be accomplished in canal construction within a few years without imposing any additional burdens on the people.

The value of our canal system to the country cannot be estimated by the traffic that passes through the canals. We must take into consideration the effect the canals have had in reducing railway rates. There is no doubt that railway rates have been very much lower on account of water competition. For many years the Grand Trunk Railway had no competitors excepting the Canadian waterways. During all those years the canals were paying themselves by keeping down rates. All the money that was saved in lower freight rates year after year should be deducted from the expenditure on the canals in estimating the cost to the people. Even now when we have railway competition in almost every part of Canada the rates are not so high as they would be if there were no canals.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address:

TWO ACCIDENTS ARE REPORTED

From Bethel Emily — Successful Basket Social Held

Special to Review.

Bethel, Emily, Feb. 1. — Notwithstanding the very unfavorable weather and the bad condition of the roads, a large crowd attended the basket social held under the auspices of the L. O. L., No. 294, at Bethel Hall on Wednesday evening, Jan. 26th. The following numbers, including two very interesting dialogues, made a very entertaining programme. Mr. M. Ruth occupied the chair.

Opening Chorus — "The Maple Leaf Forever."
Chairman's address.
Solo—Mr. W. Wheeler.
Recitation—Mr. F. Thompson.
Mouth organ selection—Mr. T. Guthrie.
Recitation—Miss V. McBain.
Instrumental duet—Messrs. Eugene Switzer and Harold McConnell.
Recitation—Mr. W. Bowden.
Address—Rev. Mr. Griffith.
Solo—Miss Olive Switzer.
Reading—Mr. H. Deyell.

Foreign talent intended being present, but owing to the unfavorable weather were unable to be there. At the close of the programme Mr. Langton Wilson was asked to come forward and sell the baskets. Mr. J. R. Boate was to have been the auctioneer but as he was unable to be present, Mr. Wilson kindly officiated. After the baskets and their contents were disposed of, the entire audience rising to their feet sang "God Save the King," and the very pleasant evening was brought to a close.

Mr. J. R. Boate while engaged in felling a tree on Tuesday met with an accident, in which he received a number of bruises and cuts on his face. Dr. Sutton of Omemee was called and attended to the wounds, which are now mending very quickly.

Mr. M. O'Donnell met with a painful accident on Thursday. He fell on the ice and though fortunately he did not break his arm, he severely hurt it. We hope he will soon be able to use his arm again.

Miss Beatrice Milburn was the guest of her cousin, Miss Tuney Boate, last week.

Mrs. Charles Fairburn, of Lindsay, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. O. Switzer.

Mr. Thos. Ruth, of Peterborough, spent Wednesday with his brother, Mr. Albert Ruth.

Mr. William Deyell was in Lindsay on business on Tuesday.

Mrs. E. Storey is visiting friends in Peterborough this week.

NOW SOLD IN CANADA

In Less Than Three Years, Parisian Sage, The Splendid Hair Tonic is Sold all Over Canada

There is a reason for the phenomenal sale of Parisian Sage in Canada during the past three years.

And the reason is plain to all. Parisian Sage does just what it is advertised to do.

Ask Wm. Madill about it. He will tell you that he regularly guarantees it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair or itching scalp in two weeks, or money back.

There is no reason whatever why any man or woman should fail to take advantage of the above generous offer.

But one thing that has made Parisian Sage is its peculiar power to turn the harsh, unattractive hair that many women possesses into luxuriant and radiant hair in a short time. Women of refinement the country over are using it and it never disappoints.

Sold everywhere, and in Peterborough by Wm. Madill, for 50 cents a large bottle.

FOWLER' CORNERS

Fowler's Corners, Feb. 2.—Bradley's portable saw-mill is doing a rushing business in this vicinity and is giving good satisfaction. The mill will leave for Lovesick Lake about the middle of March.

Fowlers Corners, Feb. 1.—Miss L. A. Darling is visiting friends in Peterborough.

Miss L. Nurse is visiting friends in the city.

Mr. R. W. Nurse spent Sunday in Peterborough.

Mr. Fred Jopling was the guest of Mr. R. Nurse Tuesday.

There was a large attendance at church Sunday night.

Mr. James Skinner is having his sale on the 15th, after which he will leave for the west.

Many of the young folk have the measles here, but none are seriously ill.

Many of the boys and girls on the 4th line enjoyed themselves at the basket social last week at Bethel.

THE PINE GROVE FARMERS' CLUB

The second regular meeting of the Pine Grove Farmers' Club was held in the Pine Grove Hall on Thursday evening, Jan. 27th, nineteen members being present, together with five new members.

Mr. Herb Abbott gave a very interesting and instructive talk on corn growing and on silos.

Mr. W. J. Bullock also gave a talk on his experience with alfalfa.

On Friday evening, February 11th, next meeting night, the club intend to hold a social evening.

The programme will consist of music and a debate, "Resolved, that it is more profitable to feed grain on the farm than to sell it off the farm." Leaders of debate — Affirmative, Welly Hunter; negative, Hollie Darling.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"Forgive me," muttered the hapless Chase.

"It would not be proper in me to say that I could bless you for what you have done," she said, so naively that he lifted his eyes to hers and let his heart escape heavenward.

"The whole world will call me a bungling, stupid ass for not knowing who he was," said Chase, with a wretched smile.

"If I were you I'd never confess that I did not know who he was," she said. "Let the world think that you did know. It will not laugh then. If you can trust your friend to keep the secret I am sure you can trust me to do the same."

Again Chase was speechless—this time with joy. She would shield him from ridicule!

"And now please go! It grieves me to feel that I may be the unhappy cause of misfortune to you."

"No misfortune can appall me now," murmured he gallantly. Then came the revolting realization that she was to wed the little musician. The thought burst from his lips before he could prevent: "I don't believe you want to marry him. He is the duke's choice. You"—

"And I am the duke's daughter," she said steadily, a touch of humour in her voice. "Good night. Goodbye. I am not sorry that it has happened."

She turned and left them, walking swiftly among the trees. A moment later her voice came from the shadows, quick and pleading.

"Hasten," she called softly. "They are coming. I can see them."

"It's a devil of a mess," sighed Baggs when they were far from the walls. "I'm sure it will cost you your job, if nothing else. You'll be relieved before tomorrow night, my word for it. And you'll be lucky if that's all. The duke's a terror. I don't for the life of me see how you failed to know who the chap really is."

"An Englishman never sees a joke until it is too late, they say. This time it appears to be the American who is slow witted. What I don't understand is why he was leading that confounded band."

"My word, Chase, everybody in Europe, except you, knows that Brabetz is a crank about music—composes, directs and all that. He's a confounded little bounder just the same. He's mad about music and women and doesn't care a hang about wine—the worst kind, don't you know. I say it's a shame she has to marry him. But that's the way of it with royalty, old chap. You Americans don't understand it. They have to marry one another whether they like it or not. But, I say, you'd better come over and stop with me tonight. It will be better if they don't find you just yet."

Three days later a man came down to relieve Chase of his office. He was unceremoniously supplanted in the duchy of Rapp-Thorberg.

It was the successful pleading of the Princess Genevra that kept him from serving a period in durance vile.

CHAPTER V.

THE ENGLISH INVADE.

THE granddaughter of Jack Wyckholme, attended by two maids, her husband and his valet, a clerk from the chambers of Bosworth, Newnes & Grapewin, a red cocker, seventeen trunks and a cartload of late novels, which she had been too busy to read at home, was the first of the bewildered legatees to set foot upon the island of Japat.

She was very pretty, very smart and delightfully arrogant after a manner of her own.

Mr. Saunders was the polite but excessively middle class clerk who went out to keep the legal strings untangled for them. He was soon to discover that his duties were even more comprehensive.

It was he who saw to it that the luggage was transferred to the lighter which came out to the steamer when she dropped anchor off the town of Ararat; it was he who counted the pieces and haggled with the boatmen; it was he who carried off the hand luggage when the native dock boys refused to engage in the work; it was he who unfortunately dropped a suit case upon the hallowed tail of the red cocker, an accident which ever afterward gave him a tenacity of grip that no man could understand.

If Lady Deppingham expected a royal welcome from the inhabitants of Japat she was soon to discover her error. Not only was the pictured scene of welcome missing on the afternoon of her arrival, but an overpowering air of antipathy smote her in the face as she stepped from the lighter, conquest in her smile of conciliation. She glanced from right to left down the lines of swarthy islanders and saw nothing in their faces but surly, bitter unfriendliness. They stood stolidly, stonily at a distance, white robed lines of resentment personified.

Not a hand was lifted in assistance to the bewildered visitors; not a word, not a smile of encouragement escaped the lips of the silent throng.

"Is there no British agent here?" she demanded imperatively, perhaps a little more shrilly than usual.

No one deigned to answer. Glances of indifference, even scorn, passed among the silent lookers-on, but that was all.

"Does no one here understand the English language?" she demanded. "I don't mean you, Mr. Saunders," she added sharply as the little clerk set the suit case down abruptly and stepped forward, again fumbling his much fumbled straw hat. This was the moment when the red cocker's tail came to grief. The dog arose with an astonished yelp and fled to his mistress. He had never been so outrageously set upon before in all his pampered life. Seizing the opportunity to vent her feelings upon one who could understand, even as she poured soothings upon the insulted Pong, whom she clasped in her arms, Lady Agnes transformed the unlucky Saunders into a target for a most ably directed volley of wrath.

Lord Deppingham, a slow and cumbersome young man, stood by nervously fingering his eyeglass. For the first time he felt that the clerk was better than a confounded dog after all.

"My dear," he said, waving Saunders into the background, "I think it was an accident. The dog had no business going to sleep"— He paused and inserted his monocle for the purpose of looking up the precise spot where the accident had occurred.

"Oh, rubbish!" exclaimed her ladyship. "I suppose you expect the poor darling to apologize."

"All this has nothing to do with the case. We're more interested in learning where we are and where we are to go. Permit me to have a look about."

His wife stared after him in amazement as he walked over to the canvas awning in front of the low dock building, actually elbowing his way through a group of natives. Presently he came back, twisting his left mustache.

"The fellow in there says that the English agent is employed in the bank. It's straight up this street. By Jove! He called it a street, don't you know," he exclaimed, disdainfully eying the narrow, dusty passage ahead.

"There's the British flag, my lord, just ahead. See the building to the right, sir?" said Mr. Saunders, more respectfully than ever and with real gratitude in his heart.

"So it is! That's where he is. I wonder why he isn't down here to meet us?"

"Very likely he didn't know we were coming," said his wife icily.

"Well, we'll look him up. Come along, everybody. Oh, I say, we can't leave this luggage unguarded. They say these fellows are the worst robbers east of London."

It was finally decided, after a rather subdued discussion, that Mr. Saunders should proceed to the bank and rout out the dilatory representative of the British government. Saunders looked down the sullen line of faces and blanched to his toes.

"Tell him we'll wait for him," pursued his lordship. "But remind him, —— him, that it's inexpressibly hot down here in the sun."

They stood and watched the miserable Saunders tread gingerly up the filthy street, his knees crooking outwardly from time to time, very much as if he were contemplating an instantaneous sprint in any direction but the one he was taking. Even the placid Deppingham was somewhat disturbed by the significant glances that followed their emissary as he passed by each separate knot of natives.

"I do hope Mr. Saunders will come back alive," murmured Bromley, her ladyship's maid. The others started, for she had voiced the general thought.

"He won't come back at all, Bromley unless he comes back alive," said his lordship, with a smile. It was a well known fact that he never smiled except when his mind was troubled.

"Goodness, Deppy," said his wife, recognizing the symptom, "do you really think there is danger?"

"My dear Aggy, who said there was any danger?" he exclaimed and quickly looked out to sea. "I rather think we'll enjoy it here," he added after a moment's pause, in which he saw that the steamer was getting under way. The Japat company's tug was returning to the pier. Lord Deppingham sighed and then drew forth his cigarette case. "There," he went on, peering intently up the street. "Saunders is gone."

Preston yesterday carried a Hydro-Electric by-law, and will raise $8,000.

Capt. Bernier is going to look for the Eskimos, who were Dr. Cook's guides.

Thos. Gordon, of Waterloo, is dead, aged 100 years and 9 months.

CITY WOULD BENEFIT BY SUCH A ROAD

Railway Line to Apsley Would Open Up Big Stretch of Country Which is Rich in Many Lines

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The letter by "Traveller" in the Review in reply to the one signed "Apsley," is a step in the right direction. Perhaps it will arouse enough interest in the minds of your citizens to urge on the construction of a G.T.R. to Apsley, and on through to connect with the I.B.O. When the Victoria road to Haliburton was first spoken of it was looked upon as a very doubtful proposition. Our old friend, W. H. Bowerman, of the Times, was a strong advocate of it, and through the medium of his paper did a great deal towards forwarding the building of that time. The results justified his opinion, as to-day the road is paying good dividends and has been running for 30 or 35 years, while some of the doubting Thomas' only gave it two or three years of existence. Another example is the C.O.R., built twenty or more years ago to Coe Hill. That also was given only a few years of existence when everything would be by that time taken out even to the settlers. Go over to Coe Hill to-day and you will see thousands of feet of fine lumber of all descriptions piled along the track awaiting shipment together with cords of pulpwood, tanbark, shingles, etc., not to mention acres of ground covered with telegraph poles. The cutting of this lumber has given employment to a number of portable steam sawmills and an opportunity to farmers to dispose of their hardwood timber, which otherwise would have been of little use to them.

Now, if Peterborough would build a road through the county the same results would follow here, as there are thousands of acres of hardwood timber in Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos, which, in the event of such a road coming, mills would soon be in operation that would benefit both your city and us. Look at the map of this county and note the number of lakes, and good fishing—nearly all salmon and bass; many of them have been stocked with bass by private parties during the past two years. Eel's Lake, the most northern, is about 10 miles long and from 1-2 to 2 miles wide, containing many beautiful islands suitable for summer cottages and an ideal lake for campers.

Another time I will try and give you a statement of sports of produce and imports with the hope that Peterborough will wake up. I might add that a gentleman from Peterborough, in speaking of a R.R., said, find some good paying mineral and you would sure get a road. They were building a road through the Cobalt and Sudbury districts when they found mineral. Try it through here and the chances are perhaps just as good. Don't wait until others come from north or east.

Yours, etc.,

APSLEY.

ZAM-BUK CURES PILES

Evidence From All Sources

A box of Zam-Buk in your pocket at the rink, or when tobogganing, sleighing, etc., is the best form of "insurance policy." The pain and smarting of a cut, a bruise or a sprain disappears with the prompt application of this famous healer. Not only does Zam-Buk give relief, but it ensures you against such serious after-effects as blood-poisoning, festering and inflammation.

Zam-Buk is so highly antiseptic that disease germs are actually destroyed as soon as they come in contact with it. It contains no rancid animal fats, no mineral coloring matter, but, on the contrary, is made from pure herbal essences. Hockey players will find Zam-Buk particularly useful.

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for cold-sores, chaps, etc. Miss Molly Maloney, of Scotch Hill, Margaree, Cape Breton, N.S., says: "I was very much troubled with chapped hands and cold-sores, and thought I would try Zam-Buk. It soothed the pain, and in a very short time my hands were quite smooth and completely cured." All druggists and stores, 50 cents box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

HALL'S BRIDGE

Special to the Review.

Hall's Bridge, Jan. 31.—A number of young people from Buckhorn and surrounding vicinity attended the hockey match at Lakefield Thursday evening last between Lakefield and the Sixteenth, the score being 3—2 in favor of the "firemen."

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Toronto, Canada.—"I shall endeavor to describe to you how I felt before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I scarcely knew what it was to be well. I had awful bearing-down pains and usually before my monthly periods I suffered terribly and had to go to bed. I was not able to walk across the floor the pain was so bad. I doctored for a long time, but the doctor's treatment did not do me any good. I gave up all hopes of ever being well again until one day my husband saw the Compound advertised in the paper. He decided to get me a bottle, and I am thankful he did. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and I kept on taking it until now I am a different woman. It also helped me during maternity and childbirth. I can thoroughly recommend your Vegetable Compound to any woman who is afflicted with female troubles."—Mrs. J. M. TWEEDALE, 138 Nassau St., Toronto, Canada.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

Mayor McCarthy, of San Francisco, says every man has a right to gamble.

BARRIE'S BIG FUR SALE

It means an enormous saving as all the Fur articles made up in stock will be offered at from 10 to 50 p.c. off regular prices At the regular prices most of these Fur articles would be an investment giving returns of 50 per cent clear profit to the purchaser, when compared with the prices they will be worth next season. AT OUR DISCOUNT PRICES they will give a still larger profit to you than this. See that you secure what you want in Furs this season — you'll pay much more next. Furs of the present winter's selling have not felt the influence of to-day's market and that is the argument that presents reason for buying this season

CITY NOT LIKELY TO HAVE CHEMICAL ENGINE THIS YEAR

This Was Principal Issue Discussed by Fire Water and Light Committee — Two More Men for Fire Brigade and Engineer's Salary Will be Increased Fifty Dollars a Year.

The main discussion at the meeting last night of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was relative to the affairs of the fire hall. The principal theme was the question of getting or not getting a new chemical engine for the brigade's equipment pending the action of the underwriters in the matter of insurance key rate reduction. Chief Howard, who was present was quite sure that the underwriters would arrange the key rate so that every householder would be benefitted if the underwriters had reasonable assurance that greater fire fighting facilities would be provided. His suggestion was to give the underwriters assurance that the engine would be purchased and he said that if that were done he felt sure that the underwriters would make the key rate general instead of only affecting the better class of risks as it does now.

The discussion on the engine was taken up first and it was very thorough, the many sides of the matter being taken into consideration. It was moved by Ald. Buller that before any positive steps were taken that the Chief and Ald. Metheral go to Toronto to talk over the matter with the underwriters. It was decided by the committee, however, to let the matter stand for the present, owing to the heavy expenses of the current season.

The Chief's request for six more men was next taken up. The Chief urged the committee that these were necessary. Ald. Metheral thought that the ten permanent men now at the fire station had rendered adequate service since the permanent brigade was established and that the city had not grown sufficiently to require six more. The Chief then suggested the addition of two more now and two more in October. Ald. Metheral thought that two more would be sufficient and wasn't even anxious for that addition and finally moved that no action be taken this year. This was seconded by Ald. Graham. In amendment Ald. Buller seconded by Mayor Morrow, moved that two men be added. The amendment was carried.

In the matter of increasing the firemens' wages, it was decided to increase Engineer Rankin's salary fifty dollars a year, making it $650, but the salary of the other men will remain the same as it now is.

It was decided to investigate the conditions of the city streets in regard to the lighting of them and steps will be taken to supply more illumination where it is required.

MR. D. HUGHES CHARLES APPEARS BEFORE BETTING COMMISSION AT OTTAWA

Mr. D. Hughes-Charles of this city, appeared before the committee at Ottawa that is considering the anti-gambling bill. To-day's Mail and Empire says:

Mr. D. Hughes-Charles, manager of the Bank of Commerce at Peterborough, who has been a large breeder of horses, was called by Mr. Moss, K. C. He emphasized the importance of keeping up the thoroughbred stock, and said that for this racing was essential. Although he had been to many race courses he had never bet a dollar on a horse in his life. He thought it would be preferable to retain the bookmaker rather than resort to private betting. He thought that racing could not go on without betting, and it was better, therefore, to have it controlled. "Man," he said, "is a betting animal."

Personally, Mr. Charles said he could watch a horse race from beginning to end without wishing to bet.

Answering Mr. Raney, the witness said he saw no harm in a man placing a bet with a bookmaker on the race course if it suited that man's conscience. As far as he knew, there was no rule in the Bank of Commerce prohibiting betting amongst its employees. He had only known of one man in the Bank of Commerce who went wrong through betting, and that was through pool-room gambling. On the other hand, there was the case of a bank manager who broke his bank through gambling on the Stock Exchange. "One man broke the bank," said the witness, "and the other man broke himself."

CANADA LIFE MAKES IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

Over Two Million Dollars Profits to Shareholders---Surplus and Assets Show Remarkable Increase

Enthusiasm prevailed at the Canada Life annual meeting to-day, Feb. 3rd, when it was announced that over two million dollars would be allotted to policy holders this year. This is largely in excess of the profits to policyholders five years ago.

The new business paid for was greater in 1909 than for some years, and total business in force is about $125,000,000, while the assets are nearly $40,000,000.

Both surplus and assets show the greatest increase in the company's history of 63 years.

TO RAISE WAGES $2.00 PER WEEK

The employees of the local printing offices have sent in a demand that the minimum wage to be paid to journeymen be advanced from $12 per week to $14 per week, and in addition some advance to the hands employed on the machines setting up the paper and to foremen.

An officer of the parent organization, the International Union, is here in the interests of the employees and several conferences have been held, but so far no definite adjustment of the matter has been reached. Men in the local offices now work eight hours per day.

An Acknowledgement

Mrs. Robert Herron, 112 Sophia St., desires to publicly thank the employees of the Quaker Oats Co. for their kind thoughtfulness in giving such substantial aid in her recent bereavement, the death last week of her husband, who was an employee of the above factory. She is most grateful to them and to all others who were so kind to her in her trouble. Being practically a stranger in Peterborough she appreciated the more, the goodness of those who came to her relief.

THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

It must be a source of pardonable pride to Mr. Kenner, the headmaster, and to his staff generally that the inspector's report speaks so highly of their work and of the "tone of the school." The ratepayers can feel that the immense expenditure upon education is being made to some purpose.

Teaching is hard work and involves much nerve-strain, but apart from that it is a serious matter in other ways. The future of a child practically depends upon the teaching upon what it is taught and how it is taught. "Tone" refers, doubtless, to the outlook and views of the budding man or woman, which is influenced for good or ill to a great degree by the teacher.

THE THREE FIFTHS CLAUSE

The statement made in some newspapers that Sir James Whitney and Hon. W. J. Hanna's reply to the immense deputation that waited upon them yesterday was that the three-fifths clause would remain, is not correct. They formally reserved judgment. But, as a matter of fact, their bias was all towards meeting the views of the Temperance and Moral Reform League, if not wholly, at least in part.

When the Mail and Empire described the deputation as the "biggest and surest" that ever addressed the Prime Minister on the subject of temperance, it accurately described the situation.

In order that there might be no just grounds for a charge of "politics" the deputation was composed of men of both political persuasions in about equal proportions. But the "politics" of the question was never once mentioned, because men of all parties have risen above that sort of thing at last in their treatment of great moral questions, and the political hack who is trotted on to a temperance deputation as a stool-pigeon or spy is no longer an "institution" worth trotting out.

The first thing, then, to be noted after the government's sympathetic treatment of the question of further temperance reform, is that the "temperance question" is no longer a political football. Sane and reasonable men have moved up in larger numbers to the chief positions of counsel and control. It was manifest that until such a time arrived the public would fail to be impressed with the importance and permanence of the movement. Even to those who acted in some instances "not wisely, but too well" acknowledgements are due, for if they retarded the progress of the movement by their haste and passion they did their best and that is something.

The next most important point of yesterday's event, however, was the statement freely made and applied that the liquor business is, in the majority of cases, in the hands of very undesirable people. License commissioners are supposed to have control of this as of other phases of the administration of the license law, and it was freely said that no business, such as the liquor business, with a lot of undesirables at the helm could possibly satisfy the public at large in the long run. This difficulty, then, is removable by the commissioners, and no doubt they will give increased attention to it.

It was considered one of the most necessary and desirable features of temperance reform that when licenses were not needed by reason of their redundancy in any locality they should be cut off. Others should be "rectified" in the manner suggested. To the men who conducted "good, clean" businesses all praise was given, both here in Peterborough and elsewhere.

o o o

The time has come for those who are in favour of improved conditions, but have withheld their support, to come forward and lend a hand. Their apathy has proved the worst feature of a highly complex situation.

o o o

A marked feature of the addresses was the frank testimony of many who were no Conservatives, to the earnest and sincere desire of the government to do what was best for the moral and physical advancement of the people. And it was a pleasant thing to note that the ministers seemed genuinely pleased with the compliment.

o o o

But both Sir James and Mr. Hanna impressed upon their hearers, in firm and emphatic language, the necessity for the temperance men to do better also. Throwing things into confusion is not reform, and is only apt to make matters worse, and the league, which, after all, was not so much a league as a promiscuous body of representative men, took to heart the necessity of helping the good work on, not only by destruction but by construction. No temperance-worker's work was done until it was fully completed and the new situation fully established and in good working order. This must be borne in mind. The government considered Owen Sound a most expensive place, just from this very fact, and Mr. Hanna spoke plainly on this point. Bad temperance hotels are not good advertisements for local option, and will not secure its permanence, but rather its speedy overthrow.

Sir James considered that local option in rural Ontario was but a matter of a short time. The Liquor Act's and procedure under them are to be amended in several most important particulars. The deputation, in withdrawing to the Private Bills rooms, reorganized itself and passed a hearty vote of thanks to the Prime Minister and the Provincial Secretary. It was a sane and satisfactory day for reform in several directions.

KEENE TEAM SPRUNG BIG SURPRISE ON WEST ENDS

Village Team Had the Oldham Outfit Going in the Second Half But Were Beaten Out by Two Goals — Strathconas Won From T.A.S. by 9-3.

Keene gave the West Ends an awful scare in the first game of the City League double-header last night, and the excitement caused for a short time in which Keene scored three times in succession helped a lot to make up for dumb work of the players. The West Ends took a comfortable load in the first half and won out by an 8—6 score.

The Strathconas won from T. A. S. by 9—3, after heading at the resting period by 3—2. The attendance was small, no doubt owing to the stormy weather. Bill Rose handled both games and had an easy night of it as both games were clean throughout. Next week Strathconas and West Ends come together and if the latter team can land out ahead it means a great chance for the championship.

FIRST GAME

Keene and West Ends had a merry race for honors in the first game, despite the four goal lead the latter team secured in the first half. The village team were always dangerous and at one time it looked as though they might go home with the big end of the score. The West Enders were off color and their work was not up to the standard. The team was without services of Dobson, but Hall who acted in his absence gave a good account of himself. He was prominent in the scoring and with Crane worked hard all thy time. McWilliams at cover, was reliable and although inclined to be unsteady on his skates, owing to it being his first game of the season was generally on hand when needed. Giroux was all to the good at left.

Keene played the usual individual game and got away with it better last night than in any other previous game. Combination was attempted, but it wasn't of the kind that results in counters. Lewis, Weir and Dickson were always mixed up in some play and they with McCarthy tallied for their team.

The teams were;—

West Ends		Keene
	Goal
Halpin		Dinsdale
	Point
Munro		McCarthy
	Cover
McWilliams		McDougall
	Rover
Crane		Weir
	Centre
Hall		Lewis
	Ring wing
Seymour		Dickson
	Left wing
Giroux		Wedlock

THE SCORING

The game opened with an assault on the Keene goal, with the shots going wild. Crane drew a penalty for tripping McDougall, who rushed, and Weir was ditched into the corner by Munro. Lewis got in the way of a pass from Hall to Crane. Wedlock journeyed to the penalty box and after thirteen minutes of play Seymour got away, passed to Crane, who in turn passed to Giroux and his shot connected with the nets.

Keene pressed and Halpin had to use both eyes. Seymour secured and sent a wicked one straight for the nets, but McCarthy stopped. McWilliams was out a foot on his long lift, but Crane got busy and made the figures stand 2—0 for his team. Time 7 minutes. In one minute Hall made the score 3—0, and 1-2 minute later went one better after taking a pass from Crane who secured from Seymour. Hall collided with Seymour and missed a chance for a long shot. The puck travelled up to the West End goal, but Keene was held scoreless. Crane and Seymour got away and skated into the Keene defence. McDougall rushed and Halpin was called upon to stop a hot one. On a pretty lift from the side Seymour put the fifth counter past Dinsdale. Time 5 minutes.

For the next five minutes only ordinary hockey was played, but Keene connected, Lewis doing the trick from a free-for-all in front of Halpin. Dickson was ordered to the fence as the bell rang for the rest. West Ends 6, Keene 1.

SECOND HALF

Seymour missed the nets on a couple of shots, after the face-off. Munro stopped Dickson on his loner, but the light-haired boy kept working, and from a scrimmage beat Halpin. Time 4 minutes.

Keene started in to give the West Ends a busy time, but although having the better of the play, no score was forthcoming. Giroux then took a hand and accepting the pass from Hall, placed the rubber behind Dinsdale in 4 minutes.

Hall took another in 2 1-2 minutes. McCarthy got away nicely and Halpin handled his shot. Weir got one for his team, on pass from Wedlock after 4 minutes. The village boys took a brace and McCarthy rammed another in in 2 minutes. Weir contributed the next from a scrimmage in 2 1-2 minutes.

Crane took the next two for the West Ends in 4 1-2 minutes. Seymour started the play for the latter one.

The last score of the game came from Dickson after Halpin had blocked a shot from West. Time 4 1-2 minutes.

Final score West Ends 8, Keene 6.

SECOND GAME

The T. A. S. as a team gave the Strathconas a hard tussle in the first half, but individual work marked their performance in the second. McNichol started the scoring in this period, but it proved to be the limit for the Abstainers. Straths put their scoring apparatus in operation and when the finish came they had placed six counters on the other side of Giroux, whose performance nevertheless was of the gift-edged variety. On one occasion it took five shots in succession to beat him. He, with Heffernan and McNichol, were the bright spots on the team and their work was pretty to watch.

The Strathconas dished up some phony hockey at times. Passes were missed and opportunities to score were let go by. Carelessness lost the championship fro this team last year and it may do so again. The aggressive and effective work of Weatherston at left and some good all around playing by Denison were the features of the teams' performance.

The teams were;—

Strathconas		T.A.S.
	Goal
Derocher		Giroux
	Point
Ray		Quigley
	Cover
Denison		Heffernan
	Rover
Campbell		Keneallcy
	Centre
Burritt		T. Subitino
	Right Wing
McMillan		McNichol
	Left Wing
Weatherston		Morin

THE SCORING

It took 7 1-2 minutes to register the first goal which went to the Abstainers. Quigley pulled the string after receiving a pass out from McNichol.

Weatherston evened up in 6 1-2 minutes, after some brilliant plays by both teams. Both Derocher and Giroux were kept busy.

Campbell stated the play that netted the next score for his team. Securing the puck near his own goal, he passed to Burritt and Weatherston, who was playing a great game at the left boards, accepted the next pass and beat Giroux. Time 9 minutes.

Campbell rushed the boards, but couldn't get the puck to Burritt. McMillan fell down on a chance to scoop one in and on the return Morin tied the game up, on a fast one that Derocher didn't see coming. Time 4 minutes.

Burritt scooped his first goal of the night and put the Straths in the lead again in 2 minuted.

Straths 3, T.A.S. 2.

SECOND HALF

Ray took his usual position and McNichol was ordered to watch him. After 12 minutes of fast hockey, McNichol secured and after getting past Campbell at point, beat Derocher.

In 3 minutes Ray found the nets on a play started by Denison, and one minute later Burritt added another. Heffernan got in front of Denison on this rush but lost to Ray on the return. Ray tripped Morin, but McMillan received the penalty. Ray rushed, passed to Burritt and Giroux was beaten on a close shot. Time 3 minutes.

1 1-2 minutes was sufficient for Burritt to take the next.

The Strathconas were having the better of the play and the T. A. S. were tiring. The classy work of Giroux and Heffernan was prominent at this period and what appeared to be certain scores were prevented. The last two goals went to McMillan. The first was on a scoop in six minutes and the second on a lift after receiving a pass from Weatherston.

SCORING SUMMARY

First Half

1—T.A.S., McNicholl, 7.30.
2—Strathconas, Weatherston, 6.30

BEN DUSTY MADE GOOD

Brantford, Ont., Feb. — Brantford Pros defeated Berlin here to-night in one of the fastest games witnessed this year. The locals whitewashed the Flying Dutchmen to the tune of 5 to 0, and the score fairly indicates the play.

For three-quarters of the time the puck was in Berlin territory and only Lehman's marvelous exhibition in the nets kept the score down.

At half-time Brantford led, 1 to 0, and in the second half fine combination work resulted in four more goals.

Ben Dusty, the Peterborough recruit, made good with the Brantfords. Tommy Smith also played, but showed lack of condition.

For the winners, Mercer and Howden were the best, and Dumart and Lehman starred for Berlin.

A crowd of 1,500 witnessed the game, which was kept clean from roughhouse work by Wagborne.

The game was fast and exciting. The College deserved to win, but they didn't. The C.G.E. team played pretty good team work, but for a team that never played basket ball until this year the Business College has got them all beaten to death. At the end of the first half the score was 10—7 in favor of the C.G.E., but in the second half the Business College couldn't get their eye at all and they couldn't keep the pace set by the C.G.E. team.

ATHLETIC CONTEST.

The contest for the senior school boys will start on Saturday, Feb. 5th, at 11 a.m. There will be three events each week, and eighteen events to complete the contest. The boy scoring the highest number of points takes first prize, which is a handsome silver medal, second is a bronze, and third is a bronze.

They are all well worth working for and the boy that wins these prizes will not be disappointed.

HOCKEY

Down Peterborough way a citizen wrote to one of the local papers on hockey matters, contending that Rolly Glover is a "has been," and a source of weakness to the team. Judging from Rolly's showing in Peterborough last Friday evening, we can only say that he exhibited the old time brilliancy that characterised his work as a defence player and he appeared to be as good as ever. Besides they have no other man in the game to take his place and play the game he is playing.—Lindsay Post.

Dusty played well for his first pro. game, and ought to make good.—Brantford Courier.

SHOTS ON GOAL

Joe Hall, the ex-Brandon player, now with Shamrocks, was fined $100 at a special meeting of the National Hockey Association to-day for his assault on Judge of Play Rod Kennedy in the Shamrock-Renfrew match of Jan. 2nd.

Canoe Builders and Quakers, play a Mercantile League game to-night at Brock street rink. Referee Bill Rose will call the game at 9.30.

The executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club will meet at the Examiner Office to-night at 7.30 for the purpose of selecting the team for to-morrow night's game with Lindsay.

The Collegiates will journey to Markham to-morrow to meet the team of that place. The return game will be played here on Monday night.

There are several players in the city league who would be sure to make good in faster company.

Ray did not extend himself last night and will be in good trim for the battle with Lindsay.

The Quakers intend making a desperate attempt to win out from the Canoe Builders to-night.

Rt. Rev. John Dowden, Bishop of Edinburgh, is dead.

LINDSAY OR LOCALS WHICH TEAM WILL WIN?

Go early and avoid the rush, is the slogan for to-morrow night's big battle at Brock street rink, when the Lindsay Midgets will hook up with the locals. The visitors, with a barrel full of confidence, will be accompanied by a big delegation of Scugog nosepokers, who may be depended upon to live up to their past reputation as warm air monopolists. The team will be the same as on last monday night, but the referee will bear another name. There will also be a different style of play on the part of the champions. One thing is certain, and that is that Bill Stoddard won't be hanging around the Peterborough defence, awaiting a play on the part of one or more of the other members of his team. The locals will introduce a specialty entitled "Batting them in from off Gamble's pads." The rink should be packed to-morrow night.

CHURCH LEAGUE GAMES AT AUDITORIUM TO-NIGHT

For the third doubleheader of their schedule, to-night, the church league teams will have good hard ice to work on, and the both games are sure to be fast and interesting. Each team is a well balanced one, as has been shown in the previous exhibitions. All Saints' and Knox church meet in the first fixture, and George street stack up against the champion St. Andrew's seven for the second struggle. A win for the Methodists is hoped for and with team available for to-night, the score should go their way. The teams for the first game have been notified to be on hand, sharp on time, and the fans will not be kept waiting. Referee McWilliams will blow the whistle for the start at eight o'clock. The teams will likely fineup as follows;

St. Andrew's — Goal, Richardson; point, Clark; rover, Thompson; rover, Currie centre, Rae; left, Sills; right, Leitch.

W. H. HILL, ESQ.,
Manager Sun Life Assurance Co., of Canada,
Peterborough, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—About five years ago my late husband took out $1,000 00 insurance in The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, on which he only paid the first three premiums. Shortly after his death, which occurred on the 6th inst., although I was under the impression that his policy had lapsed, I called at your office to inquire if anything could be done whereby we might get something out of it. You can imagine my surprise and genuine gratitude to learn that, owing to your non-forfeiture privilege, the policy was still in force at his death and that I was entitled to the full thousand dollars, less only the two unpaid premiums and interest.

This seems to me such extraordinary and generous treatment that I wish to add my expression of most sincere thanks and appreciation to the many others your company must receive.

I also wish to acknowledge and thank you for your courtesy and promptness in procuring for me a cheque to-day covering the policy, and to state that if my endorsation of the already mentioned feature of your policies is of value you are quite at liberty to use it.

Gratefully yours,
MARGARET LONG,

CURLING

Brockville curlers in the contest for the District Cup in the Ontario series defeated Colborne 35 to 28. They won also from Kingston by 30 to 28 shots.

Peterborough will play off with Brockville in Belleville next Monday afternoon.

Four rinks, skipped by Messrs. R. Neill, G. W. Morrow, W. M. Lang and R. J. Sturgeon, left this morning for Orillia to meet four rinks of that place for the Neill-Sheppherd Cup. Four rinks from Orillia will arrive in the city to-night and will play the locals. The skips of the rinks for Peterborough are Messrs. Medd, Davidson, Brown and Waddell.

Four rinks from Lindsay will come down on the special to-morrow night to meet Peterborough for the Peterborough-Lindsay Cup. The locals will go to Lindsay at a later date.

FAMILY IN DISTRESS

The Children's Aid Society have a particularly sad case which came to their notice to-day. A family of young children are left destitute. The youngest is an imbecile and a bright young boy is dying of consumption.

The only thing that was in the house when the agent, Mr. Cochrane, called, was some potatoes. He provided them with some food in the meantime, and then looked up the husband, who is, apparently, neglecting his family, and gave him a good, wholesome talk.

Mr. Cochrane will communicate at once with the department, and an effort will be made to isolate the consumptive and secure accommodation in the asylum for the imbecile child.

Mr. F. W. Miller, the city relief officer, has been communicated with, and it is hoped that the family will be rescued from their appalling condition.

AN ORIGINAL FEATURE AT THE CRYSTAL

An added feature at the Crystal for the balance of the week is the engagement of the phenomenal novelty whistling soloist, Miss Virginia Fearn-Huber. Miss Huber's work is quite out of the ordinary and was pronounced as very original and captivating by the large number that heard her at the Crystal this afternoon.

Mr. Edwards is to be congratulated on the superior quality and refinement of his special attractions.

To-night a complete orchestra will provide the overtures.

A Refined Performance

Peterborough ladies do not patronize a minstrel show to the same extent as the members of the fair sex in other cities. However, a large number of them will see Lew Dockstader and his minstrels at the Grand Opera House to-night. There is nothing the least objectionable in the show. The performance is refined and above criticism.

Local Man Bereaved

Mrs. Eliza Ann Tomblin, widow of the late Rev. Wm. Tomblin, passed away this morning at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Mark Sprague, William street. Deceased had been ill for some weeks. Mrs. Tomblin, who was 77 years of age, was born at Bloomfield, Prince Edward County. Some ten years ago, when Rev. Mr. Tomblin was superannuated, they took up their residence in this city. Six years ago the Rev. gentleman died. Mrs. Tomblin had been for many years a member of the Methodist church, and was in every sense of the word a true Christian lady, and until a few years ago took an active part in church work. One son and three daughters survive. The son, John, resides at Peterborough, and the daughters are Mrs. M. Sprague, city; Mrs. (Dr.) Garland, Cobourg, and Miss Tomblin, of this city.—Belleville Intelligencer.

ONCE MORE THE PROOF IS GIVEN

That Dodd's Kidney Pills Will Cure the Deadly Bright's Disease

Martin O'Grady Suffered From Bright's Disease for a Year, but the Old Reliable Kidney Remedy Cured Him.

EMMETT, Renfrew Co., Ont., Feb. 2.—(Special.)—That the one sure cure for Bright's disease, the most deadly of all kidney diseases, is Dodd's Kidney Pills is again proved in the case of Martin O'Grady of this place. And for the benefit of other sufferers, Mr. O'Grady has given the following statement for publication:

"For over a year I suffered from Bright's disease. I was attended by a doctor, but he did me no good. My appetite was fitful, my sleep broken and unrefreshing. My memory failed me and I was always tired and nervous. I had sharp pain and pressure at the top of my head.

"Being advised to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, I bought a couple of boxes and found relief soon after I started taking them.'

This is only one of hundreds of cases in which Dodd's Kidney Pills have conquerd the worst form of kidney disease. They never fail to cure Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism, Lumbago or Sciatica.

RABIES CAUSE A BAD SCARE

Many Dogs Have the Disease—Authorities are in Conference To-Day

Special to Review

Toronto, Feb. 3.—The Toronto Dominion and Provincial authorities are alarmed at the rapid speed of rabies in eastern and western Ontario as a result of a mad dog that crossed the border at Niagara three weeks ago and bit two persons and several animals. These have taken the disease and a large number of others. Dr. Rutherford, Veterinary Director General for Canada, is here conferring with Dr. Hodgetts, Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health.

WOMEN IS RECOVERING

Elder of the McPherson Woman is Reported as Gaining Steadily

There was a rumor around the city this morning that Margaret McPherson, the elder of the women assaulted at Norwood, was dead. The report was found to be untrue. A despatch from Norwood to-day says:

Norwood, Feb. 3 — Miss Margaret McPherson, one of the aged maiden ladies assaulted by the young Englishman, Robert Henderson, and thought for a time to be so seriously injured that she could not recover, is rapidly improving, and the doctor in attendance says he thinks she is now out of danger.

RURAL ONTARIO AND LOCAL OPTION

Movement is Making Great Headway-Deputation Saw Premier Whitney.

The Mail and Empire.

The largest deputation which has ever waited upon the Government with relation to the liquor license question interviewed Sir James Whitney and the Hon. Mr. Hanna yesterday, and from the Prime Minister and Provincial Secretary received replies which put hope in their hearts. The suggestions made differed greatly from those made by former deputations, for they did not ask for the total abolition of the three-fifths clause. Their chief suggestions were that the handicap, as they called it, should be reduced to something less than three-fifths, that the time for a vote on local option should be reduced from three to one or two years, and that some steps be taken to punish bribery and corruption in local option contests.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, of Peterborough, headed the deputation, which was composed of more than a hundred representatives of constituencies where local option had carried on straight majorities, but had failed to become law on account of the three-fifths clause. He stated that the deputation was of the opinion that the three-fifths clause, which was a precautionary one, was no longer necessary, and was not just such a matter of principle.

He favored putting the local option question on the same footing as the license question.

"Would you favor a submission to the people instead of having the council decide?" asked Hon. Mr. Hanna.

Mr. Burnham did not favor that idea. He drew attention to the fact that the three-fifths clause prevented local option in 108 municipalities, and 381 bars had been retained, that the people voted to abolish on a straight majority.

USE OIL TO KEEP DOWN THE DUST

The Peterborough Board of Works will in the near future go into the question of sprinkling the streets of the city with oil next summer in order to keep down the dust. Toronto and several other cities have tried the new method and find it very satisfactory. It is a good deal cheaper than the water waggons.

SIR JAMES WHITNEY AND THE GLOBE

Sir James Whitney referred scathingly to the following comment which appeared in the Globe yesterday; "Mr. Studholme is reviving his eight-hour and minimum wage bill, and on the strictest enforcement of the rules of the house. But it does not disconcert the Labor member to learn that he will receive no favors."

"Ordinarily," said Sir James, "I pay no attention to misrepresentation in the newspapers, but this is so obviously an attempt to place me in a false light that I feel bound to call attention to it. The Globe is endeavoring to scatter broadcast over the province the impression that I am opposed to the interests of labor, and I say now, what every honorable member knows to be a fact, that that is exactly the opposite of the truth." Vigorous desk hammering followed the premier's denunciation.—Toronto World.

PRODUCT AND HORSE POWER

A correspondent who writes the issue of the Daily Review of Tuesday, refers, among other matters, to the output from the mills of the Quaker Oats Company, here, and to the amount of power required in the mills.

Our correspondent has not made enquiry or he would have learned that instead of his estimate of the product of a day's work at the Quaker Oats Company's mills being 100 tons, it is really a trifle over 700 tons. Instead of 2,500 horse power being required to do this work, 1800 horse power is fairly ample for the service. The total output from the mills would run considerably over half a million tons per year, while an addition to the daily output of 700 tons. Nearly 300 barrels of feed are also manufactured.

The Company's output and requirements will both increase, but as at present it takes only about 2 1-2 h.p. for each ton of product turned out.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION HAS MADE RAPID STRIDES

Second Annual Meeting Shows a Balance in Bank of $51.25 and an Equipment Valued at $600.00—Mr. J. T. C. Lang, the New President.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Poultry Association, held last night, was well attended. The business before the meeting was the receiving of the auditors' report and the election of officers for the ensuing year. The association has been in existence two years, with a winter show in each year, both of which have been highly successful, despite the prediction made by skeptical ones, when the first meeting was called, that no success would be the with. To Mr. Geo. Panman, who has held the office of president during this time, much credit is due for his painstaking efforts on behalf of the association, as it has been largely through his work that each of the two shows were put on, and the association placed in its present position—that of one of the most successful in Ontario. The statement shows a balance on the right side of $51.25, and the equipment and cops is estimated at $600. There are enough coops to exhibit 1,500 birds, and these are the best obtainable.

As a means of educating and interesting the breeders of poultry, the association is doing a splendid work, as may have been noticed, especially in the holding of the show this winter. With capable men at the helm again this year, the prospects appear exceedingly bright, and with co-operation of the citizens th eshow next year should be a hummer.

THE OFFICERS

PROGRESS OF CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY FOR PAST YEAR

Secretary Goodwill Presents Comprehensive Report at Annual Meeting—Officers Elected—Provincial Society to Take Children.

The reports presented at the annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society yesterday afternoon show that a large volume of work has been accomplished by the society during the past year. The meeting was held in the council chamber at four o'clock, with a good attendance. President T. F. Matthews occupied the chair. The reports of the secretary and the treasurer were presented, and were very satisfactory.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The following officers were elected:
Hon. Pres.—Mayor W. G. Morrow.
President—T. F. Matthews.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Birdsall.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mr. Travers.
Secretary and Honorary Solicitor—J. E. L. Goodwill.
Agent—George Cochrane.
Hon Physician—Dr. T. H. Amys.

The Board of Managers was re-elected.

A telegram was read from Mr. J. H. Burnham, who was in Toronto, to the effect that Mr. J. J. Kelso would assist the society by taking several of the children now in the shelter, and place them in homes, and he promised to assist the society materially in other ways.

On the recommendation of the secretary, the society voted $50 to Mrs. Henry in appreciation of her services during the outbreak of scarlet fever and chickenpox last summer.

A committee to look after the clothing for the children in the shelter was appointed.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Mr. Peter Campbell, treasurer, presented his report for the year, which was as follows:

Receipts.

Dec. 1, 1908—
Balance on hand	$ 312 55
Cash received during year	1440 23
	$1752 78

Expenditures.

Nov. 30, 1909—
Total disbursements	$1670 23
Balance on hand	82 55
	$1752 78

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Peterborough, Feb. 2, 1910.

To the President and Members of the Children's Aid society of Peterborough:

I have the honor to present the annual report as secretary of your society. Another year's work has been done, and a large number of children in the city and county have been cared for by the society, and placed in foster homes. Also a large number, by reason of notices and warnings to parents to improve home conditions, have been materially benefitted. Perhaps more has been done in this latter direction during the last year than many former year, and judging from the improvements already obtained we have reason to believe that the following of the policy will give excellent results.

Mr. Cochrane, the energetic agent, has been kept busy investigating and reporting cases, serving notices and making visits to see that the warnings are being observed. Mr. Cochrane has devoted a large amount of time and attention to the work, and with a thorough knowledge of the methods of our society, and, being sympathetic and tactful, he has performed his duties most efficiently.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry have continued to make improvements in the interior of the Shelter, and have also improved the grounds. The Shelter itself is maintained in the most satisfactory condition. Their work has been well and carefully performed. We have had a very large number of children in the Shelter continuously during the year, and all have been looked after by Mrs. Henry in a kind, motherly way, and there has never been a complaint during the year.

The outbreak of scarlet fever and chickenpox in the Shelter, which necessitated a complete isolation for many weeks, made the worry for our matron unusually heavy, and the extra work in nursing and extra extra expense incurred in supplying medicines and otherwise should be recognized by the society.

It is with regret that we have to record the sad event of the death of Mary Rowbuck, aged seven years, a native of Belmont township, and who was the first patient in the Shelter with scarlet fever. This little girl was made a ward of the society by Police Magistrate Edmison in Havelock, and notwithstanding the untiring attention, nursing and medical attendance, she passed away and was buried in the Society's lot in Little Lake cemetery.

A matter that calls for remark is the very large percentage of children placed in the shelter during the year from the county, involving an expense to this society of over $600. A delegation composed of Messrs. Campbell, Cochrane and Henry waited on the County Council and urged that the annual grant from the county of $250 be increased in view of the above facts, but I understand the council have not seen their way clear to accede to our request this year. The cases passing through our hands have been similar in nature to that of former years, and I will report verbally on a few of the most important.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

E. L. GOODWILL,
Secretary.

NEW HORSE FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

Purchased by Committee This Morning — Will be Used on Hook and Ladder Truck

The Fire Water and Light Committee, backed by the expert opinion of Veterinary Surgeon Rogers, purchased a new horse for the fire department this morning. The horse is a big iron grey, and weighs in the neighborhood of 1,500 pounds.

The horse was brought to the fire hall by Hall, the horse buyer, and met with the approval of the committee. The horse will be used on the hook and ladder truck.

THE WARNE DRUG CO'S NEW STORE

The Warne Drug Co., have vacated their old premises at 345 George street and this morning are installed in their commodious new store at 351 George street, five doors north of the old place of business and next to R. WITNESSES DO NOT AGREE

Passengers in Wreck do not Confirm Evidence of Employees

Sudbury, Feb. 4.—A day's delay has been occasioned in the Spanish River wreck inquest by the failure of the C.P.R. to produce the forward truck of the first-class coach. The truck is at the bottom of the river. At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the experts, engineers, lawyers and officials made an examination of the result by applying oiled rags to the markings, it was discovered that it was the trucks of the diner they were working on.

Somewhat of a surprise was sprung last night when the evidence of two commercial travelers, who were examined in the hospital yesterday afternoon, was presented.

Russell E. Smith of Hamilton, representing the Regal Shirt Co., swore that he and a traveler named Saunders (deceased) of Orillia, were in the dining-car when the crash came. They had walked from the first-class coach about five minutes before. Saunders had asked him the time. Witness noted it was 1.10 p.m. He hadn't time to put his timepiece back because of the crash.

This conflicts with the evidence of the engineer that he was running on time and not more than 35 or 40 miles an hour. The train was due at Webbwood, eight miles further on, at 1.15. Smith also declared that the oscillation of the cars was so great on account of the "tremendous speed" that he and Saunders had difficulty in walking from the first-class coach to the diner.

A contradiction of Engineer Telford's statement that the train merely slowed up without stopping at Nairn, to let Dr. Arthur hop off, came from Joseph Johnston, an injured traveler for F. H. Forward of Belleville. Johnston says that he got on the train at Nairn, and not only did she stop dead, but he took his time in getting aboard. He carried two grips.

Yesterday morning Engineer Frank Taylor of North Bay, who has been investigating the wreck for the C.P.R. presented a blue print and diagram of the condition of the tracks and roadbed noted Wednesday. He believed that the first truck of the first-class coach was the one first derailed.

Diver Lepointe swore that he believed no bodies had been swept away by the current, and that all were recovered.

According to Divisional Car Foreman Harris, who was recalled, the couplings on the cars will allow a lateral play of about five feet before they will break. Besides the couplings safety chains are used.

Essex County Needs Harbor.

Windsor, Feb. 4.—A delegation of representatives from Essex and Kent Counties will go to confer with the Dominion Government as to the establishing of harbor refuge at Two Creeks, on Lake Erie, near Wheatley. This is a natural landlocked harbor, east of Point Pelee, capable of sheltering hundreds of boats if a proper entrance is constructed. It is also the entrance to the proposed St. Clair and Erie Railway, which is being promoted by Duluth capitalists.

A deputation of delegates from municipalities in Essex County will wait on the Ontario Government to ask aid in opening the large outlets and watercourses in the county.

Jamaica Can't Give Preference.

Kingston, Jamaica, Feb. 4.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—All the witnesses before the royal commission for improving trade relations with Canada, have urged that Jamaica is unable to give a preference to Canadian goods. The U. S. is the island's best customer, taking three-quarters of the total banana output, duty free. A Canadian preference would lead to American retaliation. Representatives of the sugar industry denied that the Canadian preference had aided them.

The establishment of a fast and frequent steamship service might improve trade conditions, all said.

Premier Roblin's Illness.

Winnipeg, Feb. 4.—Premier Roblin, who has been confined to his home for the past week suffering from a severe attack of lumbago, is improving very slowly. His physician has ordered him south for his health, just as soon as he is able to travel.

He will be unable to attend the opening of the Legislature on Feb. 10.

Cats Save Woman's Life.

New York, Feb. 4.—Fifteen pet cats kept by Miss Teresa Mulvey, 63 years old, gave the alarm of fire yesterday, which probably saved the life of her sister Margaret, 60 years old. Miss Teresa herself was so badly burned that she will die. Four of the cats were suffocated.

Cold Storage Eggs Seized.

New York, Feb. 4.—United States inspectors yesterday seized 300 cans of liquid eggs from a cold storage warehouse as unfit for food. The contents of the cans represented 60,000 eggs. In their liquid form they are sold to bakers for use in cake making.

REVENUES SOARING

Hon. Col. Matheson Reports That Province of Ontario Grows Richer

Toronto, Feb. 4.—Hon. Col. Matheson, in rising in the Legislature yesterday afternoon to move that the House go into committee of supply, congratulated the House and the people of the province on a prosperous financial year. He had expected, owing to the change in the fiscal year, that there might have been a very large deficit. He was happy to be able to say that, owing to economy of administration and extra revenue received, they had been very near making ends meet, even for the ten months. There was an apparent deficit of $61,000, but it should be taken into account that a large proportion of the crown timber dues and most of the license dues were paid during the months of November and December. It should also be observed that an extra $35,000 has been paid in cash for railway aid, which might have been paid in certificates on account extending over forty years. The $15,000 had been spent on additions to the Parliament buildings.

Every item of the estimated receipts had been exceeded except one. Owing to the unparalleled development of New Ontario there had been an increase in the receipts from crown lands of $528,000 over the estimates. He thought it a good evidence of the prosperity of the country that the receipts of the Provincial Secretary's Department had gone $83,000 over the estimate.

The succession duties had shown an increase of $284,000. Nearly $600,000 had been received from this source since he had made his last budget speech on March 4, 1909.

"Then we took in $560,000 from the earnings of the T. & N. O. Railway. I am glad to say that the prospect is that this is likely to continue, so that soon the net earnings of the road will be quite sufficient to pay all the charges on the cost of construction.

"In nearly every item we have been able to keep the expenditure well within the estimates. I might say in regard to the public institutions that in every item there was not one cent in excess. This shows careful attention to detail."

"We are not manufacturing power. We are simply meeting the trusts. None but a Government could interfere. This Government has interfered and the result is that the people are saving money. Hamilton alone is saving a large amount yearly because we are going to give them cheap power, which will be well worth the capital expenditure of $1,000,000, and other places are in the same proportion. There will be no profits on watered stock."

J. D. McDougall (East Ottawa), who lead off for the Opposition, claimed that the prosperity of the country was due to the legacy of the late Government. But, why should the expenditure have increased in four or five years from $5,267,000 to $10,374,000. No credit was due the Government for the increase in succession duties or the Dominion subsidy. Notwithstanding the prosperity of the province, the revenue from crown lands had remained at a standstill.

The Government seemed to forget that they were enjoying a "boom time," when they should save for a rainy day.

His main criticisms were three: The increased ordinary expenditure, the change in mining policy, and that 200,000 acres of the clay belt had been given to a railway company, despite the previous protestations of the Government.

Rev. T. W. Neal Called to Kingston.

Kingston, Feb. 4.—Rev. T. W. Neal of Newmarket, Ont., has been called to Sydenham street Methodist Church, Kingston, for the next conference year and has accepted. Rev. Charles Sykes of Kingston goes to Wesley Church, Toronto, and the transfer of Rev. T. W. Neal from Toronto Conference to Montreal Conference will even matters up.

British Fleet on Practice Cruise.

London, Feb. 4.—It was stated at the Admiralty yesterday that the sailing yesterday of the British squadron from Malta was for practice cruise and had no bearing whatever upon the political situation in Greece and Crete.

It was officially said that the fleet was not going as far east as the Piraeus.

Selecting Fritch Jury.

Windsor, Feb. 4.—The work of selecting jurors for the trial of Dr G. A. Fritch, formerly of Embro, Ont., charged with the murder of Maybelle Millman, is progressing slowly. Fritch, with notebook and pencil, is a close observer of every move of the preliminaries. He is confident of acquittal.

Londoners Control Textile Stock.

Montreal, Feb. 4.—A cable received by the Bank of Montreal says that the Canadian Investment Co. of London, Eng., have availed themselves of the balance of Dominion Textile Stock on which they had an option. This takes three millions out of the total issue of five millions of common stock.

Going to Edmonton.

Welland, Feb. 4.—E. A. Frowde, secretary of the Welland Y.M.C.A., has been appointed secretary at Edmonton. He will spend a few days at his home in Peterboro before going west.

MR. BORDEN BRINGS IN AN AMENDMENT TO NAVAL BILL

During Monentous Debate in Commons on the Navy Question, Both Leaders Make Historic Speeches—Premier Makes Reply to Critics

Ottawa, Feb. 4.—One of the most momentous debates in the history of Canada began yesterday on the second reading of the Government's naval bill.

Two of the greatest speeches to which Parliament has listened were delivered by the Premier and R. L. Borden. Sir Wilfrid's address was reminiscent of his younger days. With grip and play upon words, he entertained the House as few men can.

But the speech lacked information. He was vague upon the subject.

Perhaps the chief portion of his remarks was a savage onslaught upon the Conservative party.

R. L. Borden took no pains to conceal his anger against the attack. He thrust under the armor of the Premier as he has never done before, and emphasized Sir Wilfrid's anti-British record. His effort is described to-day as the best speech of his career, and so strongly did he play upon the feelings of his party that the cheering which constantly greeted his remarks was at time deafening.

When at the end he demanded that Canada aid the Mother Country with Dreadnoughts in her time of stress, and condemned the virtual declaration of independence, as well as the weakness and ineffectiveness of the force proposed, the men on the Conservative side burst spontaneously into the National Anthem. Joining hands, they sang "God Save the King" and cheered again and again for Canada and the Empire. The Government side remained silent.

Mr. Borden's amendment calls for a contribution of two Dreadnoughts to the imperial navy in the meantime, and a referendum to the people.

F. D. Monk opposed the whole proposal.

Sir Wilfrid was greeted with prolonged applause by his followers. The Premier said that the question of naval defence arose for the first time at the Imperial Conference of 1902, when it was revealed that between the advices of His Majesty in Great Britain and in the dominions beyond the seas there was a diversity of opinion. The Secretary for War suggested that the dominions should train and equip a force, to be controlled by the War Office, and that contributions be made to the plan of naval defence. Most of the colonies agreed, but the Canadian representatives put forward a policy from which for eight years the Government had never deviated, and which had been embodied in the bill now before the House.

"By this policy the present Government stands or falls," said the Premier, "but we shall not fall." The policy would give to Canada the dignity and status of a nation within the British Empire.

Referring to the policy of the Conservative party, the Premier said he did not think he would be offensive or unjust in describing them as divided in council and divided in action. Yet the policy as outlined in the bill had received their tacit assent. Outside the House, the proposals had received the commendation of the best minds in the Conservative party. Others, whom he described as afflicted with "pharisecism of imperialism," had condemned the bill. Mr. Foster, who had criticized freely, was yet committed to endorsation of the policy. In the House last year, he had been slow to move his resolution regarding naval defence.

"We are asked, why did you consent to such an insignificant navy as the one which you propose? Well, we considered it prudent. Two plans were proposed. One for a fleet of seven and the other for a fleet of eleven ships. We thought it better to have eleven. In this we acted on the advice of the Admiralty. We are blamed that we are not to move an armored vessel of the Dreadnought type. I could not give a more competent authority than Sir Charles Beresford, who is as good a seaman as there is in the British navy, and he has condemned this plan of Dreadnoughts being built by the colonies.

"It is our intention to have our ships built in Canada if possible. We are prepared to pay a little more for this, provided the difference is not extravagant. As soon as this bill passes, we intend to call for tenders to see whether we can have a plant established in Canada to build these ships.

"I may say that it would probably take one year to complete a plant to build ships in this country, and then probably four years to complete these eleven ships."

The Premier then referred to "these arraign our policy because we have by it sacrificed the interests of our native land for the interests of empire." This applied chiefly to F. D. Monk and his supporters.

"Have these men been asleep for eight years? Are they Rip Van Winkles?" asked the Premier. He recalled the Imperial Conference of 1902, and said the navy was necessary because of the "state we have reached as a nation."

Mr. Borden noted that the Prime Minister had taken up almost three-fourths of his speech with something which had absolutely nothing to do with the present question. The question of autonomous rights and privileges had been settled 75 years ago.

"It is significant," he said, "that when my right honorable friend finds himself in circumstances of peculiar difficulty with his own party, he always goes back to the days of 1837, and quotes to us, not only from speeches of Lord Durham, but from the orations of Lafontaine and Baldwin. It is an old piece of tactics, and I sincerely condole with him to-day on circumstances in which he finds himself. He told us, in the first place, that he had an absolutely united party behind him; and before long we found him dealing at great length with criticisms which had been made upon his course in the Province of Quebec, and presumably from members of his own party.

"His retrospective glance does not go back to some periods that perhaps he might be well inclined to forget. What was his own aspiration in the days of 1891-1892. Speaking in Boston in 1891 he said that Canada would never consent to imperial confederation, even on commercial lines alone, because the consequence would be participation of Canada in British wars, and Canada would never consent to participate therein."

Mr. Borden quoted several extracts from Hansard along the same line, noting especially Sir Wilfrid's declarations that he would always prefer a Yankee dollar to an English shilling, and that the goal of his inspirations was the independence of Canada.

"I am not aware," said Mr. Borden, "that he has ever publicly repented that aspiration."

"The question we have to consider is the organization of the forces of the empire for defensive purposes in naval warfare. In the first place the Premier has referred to a resolution of March, 1909. I want to say that I understood the clear terms of that resolution to be that any proposal of this Government should follow suggestions of the Admiralty made in 1907, and I say, without hesitation, that in the most important respect of all, control of the naval force of the Empire in time of war, the bill of the Government absolutely departs from the suggestions of the Admiralty, and, therefore, from the unanimous resolution of this House."

Mr. Borden suggested that Sir Wilfrid should raise his estimate of the time which will be occupied in the construction of the navy in order that he might not incur the criticism of the character which have been made in the House with respect to his predictions concerning the N. T. Railway. He did not believe that a naval service could be effectively organized in less than fifteen or twenty years.

He recounted the delay which took place in connection with the decision to send troops to South Africa. A delay such as that might occur again, and it might spell ruin to the Empire if it took place with regard to the employment of our naval forces.

He would invite the Premier to consult the will of the people, and the will of the country to-day was that these different proposals ought to be submitted to the people to pass upon before any permanent policy of this kind is engaged in.

COL. MATHESON WAS INJURED

Provincial Treasurer Breaks Arm While Leaving Govt. Buildings

Toronto, Feb. 4.—Unfortunate indeed was the accident that befell Hon. Col. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, yesterday afternoon. After delivering the budget speech, the supreme effort of the session, and listening to the reply of the financial critic of the Opposition and the following remarks of one of the supporters of the Government, he left the Parliament Buildings shortly after the House rose.

As he started down the walk that stretches from the front door to the Macdonald monument, he slipped and fell, fracturing his left arm between the elbow and the shoulder.

Help was soon at hand, and the Treasurer was carried by two of the members into the room of Hon. Dr. Pyne, where the injured limb was set. He was subsequently removed to the Western Hospital, where the latest report was that he was doing well.

Col. Matheson is a man of 68, having been born in Perth, Ont., which is still his residence, in 1842. He has been in the Legislature since 1894, and in the Government since the accession to power of Sir James Whitney five years ago.

Rhodes' Scholarship.

Toronto, Feb. 4.—The Rhodes' Scholarship for Toronto University has been awarded to A. L. Burt, a student of Victoria College, who is registered for the fourth year in modern history.

Mr. Burt has a brilliant record at college. He won the junior matriculation scholarship in 1906, and also took first in first-class in science, second in first-class in mathematics, and also was awarded the first Edward Blake scholarship in mathematics and science. In 1907, his first year, he gained fifth place and took first-class in science, in 1908, his second year, he won first in first-class in modern history, and in 1909, first in first-class in modern history.

He is a good musician, prominent in athletics and popular with the student body. He is president of the Union Literary Society of Victoria, and resides at 31 Howland avenue.

This Railway Wants Too Much.

Ottawa, Feb. 4.—In sponsoring the bill of the Hamilton, Waterloo and Guelph Railway in the railway committee yesterday, Lloyd Harris, M.P. (Brantford) said it seemed to be the policy of Toronto to keep out connections with outside places by imposing impossible conditions.

H. H. Dewart, K.C., on behalf of the city, proposed a number of amendments, all of which were accepted by the company save ons as regards stopping places within the city limits.

Controller Spence said the company was an amalgamation of different radial interests seeking a double set of rights, and might come into the city on parallel lines.

The bill comes up again next Thursday.

Detective Assists Man He Shot.

Detroit, Feb. 4.—John Kiward, who deserted his wife and child two years ago at Cornwall, Ont., and came to Detroit, later marrying Miss Heilde in this city, and who was shot by Detective Bedenus last November, while trying to escape after his arrest on a charge of bigamy, has hemorrhage of the lungs and is dependent upon charity. He is being assisted by Miss Heilde, and also by Bedenus.

Paulham Nearly Killed.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 4.—Louis Paulhan had a narrow escape from death yesterday, when his Farman biplane collided with the fence guarding the racetrack at Overland Park, smashing through it and coming down in a heap of wreckage on the track. Paulhan got a severe shaking up.

Dr. Harrison In Charge.

London, Feb. 4.—Former Controller Dr. Harrison of Toronto, has been placed in charge of the office of W. C. Fitzgerald, high secretary of the Woodmen of the World, until the meeting of the Grand Encampment. Harrison was a former contestant for the office.

New Treaty Hurts Revenue.

Montreal, Feb. 4.—One of the effects of the Franco-Canadian commercial treaty which has just gone into effect, will be the reduction of revenue of about $350,000 on the various

Sidney H. Kidner, well-known at the beaches in Toronto, by reason of his taking a daily dip in the lake durin the winter, has joined the R.N.W.M.P. and leaves for the west to-night.

Break In N. Y. Stocks.

New York, Feb. 4.—The onslaughts of an aggressive bear party, together with gathering distrust of the industrial, business and political outlook brought about violent declines in the Stock Exchange yesterday, with United States Steel heading the downward movement. In all, sales totalled 1,672,000 shares, with a fourth of this aggregate in steel shares, which broke to 78, the lowest since September last.

At the low point, which came early in the final hour, declines ran all the way to eight points.

The violence of the movement caused the day to be regarded as a probable culmination of the decline, with a reversal likely to follow.

An Aeronaut's Suicide.

San Francisco, Feb. 4.—With his head thrust into the envelope of a balloon into which a stream of illuminating gas was pouring, C. A. Farrar, an aeronaut, aged 30 years, was found dead yesterday on the roof of the house where he lodged. Ill-health caused him to commit suicide.

Millers Asking Too Much?

Ottawa, Feb. 4.—In the private bills committee objection was taken by the Minister of Agriculture to the extensive powers proposed to be granted to the Dominion Millers' Association. The bill was referred to a subcommittee.

London Cadets Coming.

Ottawa, Feb. 4.—Ten boys from the Lord Roberts' Boys, an association of cadets in London, Eng., will visit Canada this summer and take part in the O. R. A. matches. They will attend the Toronto Exhibition.

Tunnel Seems M.C.R.

St. Thomas, Feb. 4.—The impetus which the new tunnel between Windsor and Detroit will give to M.C.R. traffic will materially affect conditions at St. Thomas. In addition to the construction of a new roundhouse the yards here will be increased, and the M.C.R. has also decided to add another line of track from Buffalo to the tunnel.

How to Pay Civic Debts.

Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 4.—Insurance on his life for between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, the city to pay the premiums and receive the benefits under the policies at his death, is the novel scheme for paying the city debt, presented by David S. Beach, to the Bridgeport common council. He stipulates in return that the city erect to his memory a monument with a suitable inscription, acclaiming him the originator of municipal life insurance.

Chairman For Twentieth Year.

Galt, Feb. 4.—David Spiers has been re-elected chairman of the Collegiate Institute for the twentieth time. He has been 38 years a member of the board.

Rev. James Rogers, M.A., Barberton, Ohio, called to St. Paul's Lutheran Church, will visit Galt before he decides, as he has heard Canada is a wilderness.

The night clerk says the building was burning in six different places at once.

The Talking Macaulay.

Macaulay is an (almost) never-ceasing talker and pours out the prodigious stores of learning, wit and eloquence with such an absorption in his subject that I doubted when I heard him if he would not go on just the same if everybody left the room. Somebody asked the Duchess of Sutherland (after dinner at Stafford House) if he liked the society of women and whom he seemed to prefer. She answered, "Oh, he only looks upon us all in the light of interruptions."—Lady Granville's Records.

KEENE FAIR GOING AHEAD

Satisfactory Reports at Annual Meeting—Officers Elected—Money in Treasury

Keene, Feb. 2.—The following are the minutes of the meeting of the Otonabee Agricultural Society, held in the town hall Friday afternoon.

The president, Mr. Robert Humphries, occupied the chair. The minutes of the last meeting and of the directors' meeting were presented by the secretary, and on motion of Wm. Drummond, seconded by R. A. Nelson, received and adopted.

The annual financial report, showing a balance on hand of $274.89, was read and considered.

On motion of Peter Drummond, seconded by W. J. Miller, the following officers were elected for the coming year:—

President—Robert Humphries.
Vice-President—Peter Drummond.
2nd Vice-President—John A. Smith-son.
Sec'y—Treas.—Andrew Shearer.
Auditors—J. C. Read and James McNeil.

Directors—J. H. Fife, J. Lang, J. U. Moore, W. J. Miller, G. Howson, W. Renwick, A. Stuart, W. W. Shearer, W. B. Stewart, W. Drummond, J. Miller, R. Weir, R. A. Nelson, D. Edwards, F. A. Easson, Edgar Wood, Alex. Wood.

The secretary presented correspondence from the Agricultural Department which was duly discussed and considered by the meeting.

On motion of W. Drummond, seconded by J. Lang, the president was appointed a delegate to the meeting of the Association of Fairs and Exhibitions to be held in Toronto.

On motion of Peter Drummond, seconded by Wm. Drummond, the society decided to request the Department to appoint an expert judge for this year's fair.

The fair will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 6th and 7th.

On motion of F. A. Easson, seconded by R. A. Nelson, it was decided that the society hold a field crop competition, the grain chosen being as last year white oats.

No action was taken regarding the Children's Sheaf Competition.

It was decided that the by-laws be amended, that officers should remove their badges while exhibiting their stock; also that judges may reject any animal offered for competition in any class to which they consider that it does not rightfully belong.

On motion of Wm. Drummond, seconded by R. A. Nelson, the committee for the care of the grounds was re-appointed.

Last fair showed, as usual, a slight increase over the year before in every way, with an increase in entries of 103, in members of 15, in prize money distributed of $51.

There was also an increased attendance and consequent increased gate receipts.

The society is in a healthy state, owning a vaulable property with a good track and ample buildings.

EXTENSION OF PLANT AT TORONTO OR PETERBOROUGH

Frederic Nicholls, general manager of the Canadian General Electric Company, and Norman McLeod, chief engineer of the structural dept., are in the city in connection with the proposed extension of the plant of the company. Mr. Nicholls stated today that the company intended spending between $250,000 and $750,000 on new buildings and equipment but it has not been decided whether the money will be spent on the Toronto or Peterborough plants. Mr. Nicholls and Mr. McLeod are going over the ground here to secure information that will decide whether the additions will be made in Peterborough or in Toronto. The company has several unusually large contracts, among them being an order from the Ontario Power Co., Niagara Falls, for three 11,000-horse power machines, the Western Central Power Co., Vancouver, for three 10,000 h. p. machines, and the Electric Development Co., of Niagara Falls for three 12,000 h. p. machines. The company has orders on hand at the present time for machines totalling 100,000 h. p.

The greatest congestion is in the machine shop and it is in this department that the bulk of the extension will take place. Mr. Nicholls stated that if it is decided to make the additions at Peterborough it will be necessary to develop more power here as the full capacity of the present power house at Nassau is being utilized in turning the wheels with the plant as it is at present.

A decision as to where the buildings will be erected and the money spent will be reached in the near future.

PRINTERS ON STRIKE

The members of the Typographical Union, employed in the composing room and job department of the Review office are on strike to-day owing to no settlement having been reached in connection with the demand for higher wages. As a result, the Review is issued to-day in somewhat reduced form. Review readers will no doubt appreciate the difficulty of issuing a newspaper under the conditions and will refrain from criticism.

Apologies are also tendered advertisers for any inconvience they may be caused.

The editorial and business staffs were on hand as usual this morning, but for once are taking life easy, and are giving an exhibition of putting in time without having a great deal to do. During their spare moments they are rehearsing a revised version of that popular song, "Everybody's Out But Father".

CONGREGATIONAL SOCIAL

The Congregational Social of All Saints' Church, which was to have been held at the Home of Mrs. Jas. Edgar, be held at the Home of Mrs. Scott 265 Park Street, on Monday Afternoon and Evening Feb. 7.

BIG YEAR FOR CANADA LIFE

That a company in its sixty-third year should establish new records in spite of notable achievements in the past is both unusual and unexpected, yet the Canada Life has done that, and the outcome of it is that over $2,000,000 will be allotted in profits to the policy-holders in this, its dividend year. This is largely in excess of the amount divided five years ago, and individual policies will receive materially larger dividends than those of 1905.

All along the line gains were made in 1909, the new business paid for, over $10,000,000, being greater in amount than for several years, while the gain in surplus of nearly $1,200,000, and the increase in assets of almost $3,000,000, constitute records in the company's history.

The total business in force is now almost $125,000,000, the assets aggregate $39,686,000, and the surplus over $3,322,000.

A feature of the company's management calling for commendation is the reduction in expenses again made in 1909 in actual amount as well as in ratio, although the Company's business is constantly increasing.

The superior quality of the Canada Life's assets is shown in the detailed list laid before the meeting. The assets are increasing over $10,000 a day.

How Bees Treat Intruders That Get Into the Hive.

What does the bee do when some foreigner in the animal world, as, for instance, a heavy slug, invades its hive? Stings it to death, of course. But what then? All the bees in the hive may not be able to drag out the carcass, and yet they must do something with it to keep it from infecting the colony. Move into a new house? Scarcely, for they would abandon their store of honey. No, the workers cease gathering honey and start out after propolis, the red resinous substance with which bees line and fence their hives. This bee glue they spread all over the foreign substance in little fillets until the foreigner is completely embalmed.

So, too, if a snail invades the hive and evades being stung to death they glue him fast in his shell and when he starves to death embalm him with propolis.

But the bee is not the only insect that exhibits a clearly defined intelligence. The maternal nature shows up in some of the meanest insects to a wonderful degree. The pine silk worm moth tears all the hair and down from its own body in order to make a soft nest for its young and expires soon after. This is to a greater extent than the rabbit, which tears only the fur from its belly for its nest.

Some gall insects even immolate themselves to protect their offspring. As the insect, full to great distension with eggs, expels them gradually till all have been laid and nothing but a hollow shell remains of the mother, she sees that her task has been accomplished and gathers the eggs into a pile, spreads herself over them, fastens the sides of her own body down over them, and thus dies. This, of course, forms an impermeable covering for the eggs till they are hatched. The mother has here paid for the childbirth with her life, and the children are born in the shelter of her corpse.

The Toronto General Trusts Corporation

Report of Proceedings of the Twenty-eighth Annual General Meeting.

The Twenty-eighth Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Toronto General Trusts Corporation was held in the Board Room of the Corporation, on the corner of Yonge and Colborne streets, Toronto, on Wednesday, the 2nd of February, 1910.

There were present:—

Hon. J. M. Gibson, K.C., Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., Hon. Robert Jaffray, J. W. Langmuir, D. R. Wilkie, Samuel Nordheimer, Alfred Myers, G. A. Stimson, E. R. Greg, Thomas Patterson, W. R. Brock, Arthur C. Hardy, Frederick Wyld, J. Bruce Macdonald, Thomas Long, Sir William Mortimer Clark, K.C., John L. Blaikie, James Maclennan, Sir Aemilius Irving, LL.D., E. Galley, Hamilton Cassels, K.C., Alexander Nairn, James Kerr Osborne, W. B. Couch, A. L. Malone, C. E. Robin, T. J. Maguire, F. R. Dymond, J. A. H. Burt, H. M. Forbes, Frank M. Pratt, W. N. Lonsdale, H. C. Hewitson, J. G. Scott, K.C., George Porter, Wm. G. Watson.

The Vice-President, the Hon. J. J. Foy, took the chair, and Mr. A. D. Langmuir, the Assistant Manager, acted as Secretary to the meeting.

The financial statements, showing the operations of the Corporation for the year ending 31st December, 1909, were submitted and commented upon by the Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Langmuir.

The report to the Shareholders was then read as follows:—

To the Shareholders:—

Your Directors have pleasure in submitting the Twenty-eighth Annual Report of the Corporation, accompanied with the financial statements, showing its operations for the year ended 31st December, 1909.

Executorships	$ 706,115 57
Administrations	411,414 40
Trusteeships	1,583,195 47
Guardianships and Committeeships	69,599 92
Guaranteed Investments	578,923 68
General Agencies	120,700 96
General Investment Agencies	575,774 93
Lunatic Estates	17,281 94
	$3,015,005 94

In addition to the foregoing the Corporation has also been appointed during the year Trustee for Bond issues to the amount of $2,535,000.

The net profits of the year, after payment of all expenses at the Head Office and Branches, and after making provision for every ascertained loss, amount to $162,353.78, as compared with $131,181.88 for 1908. To these net profits have to be added $22,417.16 brought forward from 1908, thus leaving $184,770.94 at the credit of Profit and Loss, as against $153,350.66 in 1908.

Out of these profits your Directors have declared and paid two semi-annual dividends of four per cent., on the Corporation's stock for the year, amounting to $80,000; have added to Reserve the sum of $50,000, thereby increasing that fund to $500,000, and have carried forward to the credit of Profit and Loss the sum of $54,770.94, making the total paid-up capital and surplus of the Corporation as at 31st December, 1909, $1,554,770.94.

Your Directors decided during the year that, as the Corporation had quite outgrown its present office and vault accommodation at Toronto, the time had come to make provision for a new Head Office. To this end they have purchased a lot on the corner of Bay and Melinda streets, and are proceeding with the erection of an up-to-date eight-story building, the first three floors of which will be occupied by the Corporation.

Your Directors announce with deep regret that, owing to impaired health, Dr. Hoskin (who for the past four months has been residing in England) desires to retire from the Presidency of the Corporation. A committee of the Directorate has been appointed to carefully consider the question of selecting a fitting successor to Dr. Hoskin, who will be able to devote a good deal of his time to the duties of the Presidency. The Directors are pleased to say that Dr. Hoskin has decided to remain on the Board, and to continue as President until his successor is appointed.

The Hon. S. C. Wood resigned from the Vice-Presidency of the Corporation, as well as from the Directorate, and his place as Vice-President has been filled by the appointment of the Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P.P., who is one of the charter members of the Corporation, having been a Director, continuously, for twenty-eight years.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. W. LANGMUIR, Managing Director.
W. H. BEATTY, Vice-President.

Toronto, February 2nd, 1910.

AUDITORS CERTIFICATE

We, the undersigned, beg to report that we have made a full examination of the books, accounts and vouchers of The Toronto General Trusts Corporation to the 31st December, 1909, and find same to be correct and properly set forth in the above statements of Profit and Loss and Assets and Liabilities. We have examined, and find in order, all the mortgages, debentures, bonds and scrip of the Corporation, as well as those negotiated for the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, and Trusts, Estates and Agencies in the Corporation's hands, and have checked same with the Mortgage and Debenture Ledgers and Registers. The Bankers' balances, after deducting outstanding cheques, agree with the books of the Corporation.

We have also examined the reports of the Auditors of the Winnipeg and Ottawa Branches, and find that they agree with the Head Office books.

R. F. SPENCE, F.C.A., "CAN.,"
GEO. MACBETH,
Auditors.

Toronto, January 29th, 1910.

The Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Langmuir in Presenting the Statement of Affairs of the Corporation for the Past Year Said:—

It gives me much pleasure to submit the statements showing the operations of the Corporation for the past year, as I am confident they will be accepted by the Shareholders and all concerned as being very satisfactory. The financial results of the past twelve months are the best in the history of the Corporation, and, what is perhaps of equal, if not greater, importance, the year closed with marked evidences of constantly-increasing confidence in and appreciation of the objects of the Corporation.

The Profit and Loss Statement accompanying the report which has just been presented shows that the gross profits of the past year amounted to $324,662.72, and the net profits to $162,353.78, which, together with $22,417.16 brought forward from the previous year, make a total of $184,770.94 brought down to the credit of Profit and Loss.

In the preparatoin of our Proft and Loss Statement for the year we have continued our policy of only taking such compensation for the management of estates and trusts as has been passed upon by the courts or agreed to by the beneficiaries of estates and trusts. I think, therefore, I am warranted in saying that the Profit and Loss Statement is a satisfactory one; for, after payment of an eight percent. dividend amounting to $80,000, we have added $50,000 to Reserve, and have carried forward to the credit of Profit and Loss $54,770.94, making the paid-up capital and surplus of the Corporation $1m554,770.94, an increase for the year of $82,353.78.

The Assets and Liabilities sheet submitted should also be satisfactory, for it will be observed that the assets remaining under the care of the Corporation, after the distribution to beneficiaries of estates of very large amounts, aggregate $37,881,113.53, as compared with $35,161,646.79 last year, or an increase of $2,719,466.74.

The information given to the Shareholders and the public in these statements leads me to again refer to the outstanding features in our work, and which cannot be too often reiterated at annual and other meetings of this Corporation, namely; That we are purely and simply what our name implies—a GENERAL TRUSTS corporation transacting a business of a purely fiduciary character. We are in no sense a speculative company, for we scrupulously confine ourselves to the management of estates, trusts and work of a kindred character. We do not conduct a banking department for the receipt of deposits to be held subject to withdrawal by cheque, believing that our entire energies should be devoted to the proper and prompt investment of the trust and agency funds committed to our care. I have, however, no fault to find with companies that adopt a different course, but, believing that trust companies created for the administration of trusts and estates should practically last forever, the Board of this Corporation have laid down the principle, and have acted on it from its inception, that we shall exclusively confine ourselves to a trust and agency business.

Dr. Hoskin further states: "There are many matters connected with the interests of the Corporation and its beneficiaries present to my mind, which, however, are beyond the scope of this letter, but I may be pardoned for briefly referring to one, viz., that concerning litigation—a matter concerning which I can speak with some confidence, regard being had to the fact that my practice was almost entirely connected with estates and their administration. During the existence of this Corporation, now extending over a period of twenty-seven years, it has been Executor, Trustee, etc., for thousands of estates, yet litigation against the Corporation has been practically nil, and, so far as my memory serves me, in no case has it been adverse, a matter upon which I have often commented, and which certainly reflects credit upon the Corporation, and should commend itself to beneficiaries and the public. And this record is all the more surprising when one considers the conflicting interests that spring up between those for whom we are Trustees, and the knotty and troublesome questions that are constantly arising in connection with the administration of Trusts—a gratifying result arising, I am justified, in saying, from the care exercised by the Board of Management."

I can only add that Mr. Hoskin was admirably fitted for the position of President of a Trust Company. His great experience in legal work similar to what came before him as President, and his unfailing courtesy with all who came in contact with him, exceptionally well qualified him for the position.

It was with much regret that the Board received the resignation of the Hon. S. C. Wood as Vice-President, as well as from the Directorate, and as his successor had to be elected at once the Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P., was appointed Vice-President in his stead.

Before I sit down I have pleasure in stating that the investments made by the Corporation for trust, guarantee and agency accounts, as well as for

On motion of the Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., seconded by Sir Wm. Mortimer K.C., the report of the Directors was adopted.

The report of the Inspection Committee was also adopted as signed by the Hon. J. J. Foy, Sir Aemilius Irving and Mr. Frederick Wyld.

W. H. Beatty, John L. Blaikie, W. R. Brock, Hamilton Cassels, K.C., Sir Wm. Mortimer Clark, K.C., LL.D., Hon. Senator W. C. Edwards, Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P.P., Col. Hon. J. M. Gibson, K.C., Arthur C. Hardy, John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D., J. W. Langmuir, Thomas Long, J. Bruce Macdonald, Sir Daniel H. McMillan, K.C.M.G., W. D. Matthews, Hon. Peter McLaren, E. B. Osler, J. G. Scott, K.C., Sir Aemilius Irving, K.C., Hon. Senator Robert Jaffray, Samuel Nordheimer, B. E. Walker, LL.D., D.S.O., D. R. Wilkie, Frederick Wyld, E. T. Malone, K.C.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors Dr. John Hoskin re-elected President, and W. H. Beatty and the Hon. J. J. Foy, K. C., Vice-Presidents.

AN INDICTMENT

John L. Sullivan has committed literature. Recently he and his erstwhile rival, Mr. Jake Kilrain, have been delighting the public in drama, one of the kind in which rough house happens and the two gray-headed has-beens show what the science of ear-banging can accomplish. Mr. Kilrain still looks possible, but time has dealt too generously with Mr. Sullivan. His figure leans towards the embonpoint, not to say pudgy. Therefore he is seeking that rest and seclusion which literature grants. He has become an autobiographist. It must be confessed that while his language is ornate and his sentiments noble, he is not as convincing in literature as he was in the ring. One cannot fears that he is reading romance instead of history when Mr. Sullivan tells us that he always hated to knock a man out or see him knocked out. He regards it as brutal and indelicate, and blames the savage and bloodthirsty mob for demanding it. Ah, no, John L., it was not such sentiments as these which won you a niche in the hall of fame. You may have experienced a change of heart, some might call it fatty degeneration of the heart, but we cannot think that in years gone by you went into your cabinet and mopped up bitter tears of regret because you saw some one who had stood before you carried away like a piece of limp wet flannel. No, Mr. Sullivan is not as strong in literature as he was in art. —The Montreal Star.

That is all very well, but John L., if he fought hard, fought fair, and what is more, he fought square. Fighting isn't playing the piano or singing hymns, but it is the use of Nature's weapons in a perfectly fair way. Why, then, should the great gladiator be sneered at?

The common, cowardly blackguards, who "parade" in other walks of life, as we see every day, are not to be spoken of in the same breath with John L., who, if he rejoiced in the "mouth" and later looked upon the wine when it was stinging like a serpent, had the strength to cut it all out. When his opponents saw the champion in the ring they knew what was coming. They didn't have to put pads on the back of their heads for fear someone would strike them from behind. When he got licked he bred about it. That was the weakest thing he ever did. But then, that was in excess of pride, not of fear. He knew it meant that he had "passed," not because he was for the moment knocked out, but because no man could have done it if his time for "moving on" to the has-been class had not arrived. That he talks fair, as the Star suggests, is to his credit. He at least recognizes the propriety of it, and he is no hypocrite. In his way, John L. is a fine man. Would that there were more like him, and Bob Fitz, and the other fair fighters, instead of the four-flushers, who live more by their evil than their good qualities. The stock exchange and the ring compare to the infinite disparagement of the former. In what other walk of life is fairness and straightness so rigorously demanded?

CANADA LIFE'S

Most Successful Year.

LARGE GAIN IN SURPLUS—BUSINESS INCREASED —EXPENSES DECREASED.

The Directors have pleasure in submitting their 63rd Annual Report showing the transactions of the Company for the past year, and setting forth the financial position as at 31st December, 1909.

The Year's Business. Applications to the number of 5,117 for assurances of $12,198,814 were received during the year, and the new policies paid for totalled $10,139,434.00, an increase over the new business paid for in 1908, which in turn was greater than that of 1907. It is very gratifying to note that the Canadian business has again shown a substantial increase. The business from the United Kingdom compared favorably with that of last year, while the business from the United States has been well maintained. The total business in force now amounts to $124,772,856, the increase for the year being over $4,000,000.

The Income and Payments. The income for the year was $5,697,319.59, being larger by $361,277.05 than that of 1908. The payments to policyholders totalled $2,032,332.16. Notwithstanding the constantly increasing volume of business transacted, the expenses of management decreased in 1909, as compared with those of the previous year. A similar reduction in the expenses of management was reported a year ago, the decrease in each year being not only in percentage but in actual amount.

The Assets. The total assets now stand at $39,686,063.57, having increased in 1909 by $2,972,948.33, the greatest gain in any year in the Company's history. The assets of the Company are increasing at the rate of nearly $10,000.00 for each business day of the year, and the safe and profitable investment of these rapidly growing funds is a serious responsibility which receives the constant care of the Directors.

The Surplus. The increase in surplus reported a year ago of $1,060,000 was up to that time the largest in the Company's history. The Directors are able to announce an even larger gain for 1909, the increase for the year being $1,195,125, bringing the total Surplus over all liabilities up to $3,322,764.65. Such a result could only be attained by a strict adherence to those principles of management which long experience has shown to be the essentials of success, namely, judicious economy in expenditures, prudent investment of funds and skilful selection of risks.

Allotment of Profits. The Directors are gratified to be able to announce that the surplus (included in the above) earned on quinquennial dividend policies issued prior to 1900 enables them to declare a bonus upon such policies as follows:—

Upon life policies a reversionary bonus addition of 1¼ per cent. per annum upon the sum assured, amounting to $62.50 per $1,000.00 of assurance (or its equivalent value in cash or reduction of premiums to policyholders so electing); upon endowment assurances the bonus addition will be not less than $50.00 for the quinquennium for each $1,000.00 of assurance, payable at the end of the endowment period or prior death (or the equivalent of such bonus addition in cash or premium reduction to policyholders so electing).

The profits now declared on these policies are on a cash basis from 30 per cent. to 40 per cent. greater than at the previous quinquennial division in 1905, when over $1,000,000.00 was allotted to such policies. As illustrating this, attention is drawn to the following actual examples from life policies, taken at random and showing the profits now declared, on a cash basis. The table also shows the large increase in profits now declared over those of the two previous quinquennial divisions:—

CASH PROFITS

Quinquennial Year.	Policy No. 64329 Issued 1895	Policy No. 36637 Issued 1885	Policy No. 17135 Issued 1875	Policy No. 4972 Issued 1865	Policy No. 1514 Issued 1854
1900	$164.50	$215.50	$224.50	$229.00	265.00
1905	265.50	334.20	345.50	351.20	394.80
1910	367.00	453.00	467.10	474.10	521.20

Basis for illustration in each case $10,000.

The Directors confidently anticipate that this announcement will be received with general satisfaction by the many persons who will share in the large amount of profits to be distributed on these policies.

Quinquennial dividend policies issued since 1900 receive their allotment of profits each five years from the date of issue, upon their premium due date in place of the fixed date (as at 31st December) for older policies. The premium rates and reserves for such policies are on a different basis from that for policies issued prior to 1900. For these more recent policies as well as deferred dividend policies a modified form of the Contribution System of allocation of profits has been adopted by the Company, and under this system the profits will vary with the plan of assurance and duration of the policy, as well as with the age of the assured.

The amount of surplus now to be allotted to quinquennial and maturing deferred dividend policies will, it is expected, exceed $2,000,000.

Our work is so well in hand that the Profit Certificates on all policies now entitled to participate will be mailed on this occasion at an earlier date than formerly.

Retirement of Directors. The following Directors retire by rotation:—Kenneth MacKenzie, Esq., Frank Sanderson, LL.D., Hon. Robert Jaffray, Adam Brown, Esq., and E. R. Wood, Esq., the first two representing the policyholders and the last three representing the shareholders, all of whom are eligible for re-election.

It is with pleasure that the Directors again record their appreciation of the efficiency and zeal with which the officers, staff and field representatives have performed their respective duties.

Toronto, January 31st, 1910. GEO. A. COX, President.

QUEBEC BRIDGE AGAIN

More Details of Disaster Leak Out in Committee.

Phoenix Bridge Co. Outwitted the Government, Who Mistook It For the Phoenix Iron Works — Clause Providing For Penalties May Not Be Enforced, Mr. Graham Admits—Extraordinary Tale of Negligence.

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—It is evident that much of the story of the ill-fated Quebec bridge remains to be written. Some of it came out yesterday afternoon in the Commons during supply on railway estimates.

The Government evidently was outwitted by the Phoenix Bridge Co., which undertook to build the structure. When the Government was dealing with this company, it mistook it for the well-known Phoenix Iron Works of Philadelphia, and it was only after the bridge fell and the question of responsibility was gone into that the discovery was made that the Government had contracted, not with the big company, but with a subsidiary company, capitalized at only $50,000. It will be remembered that $3,000,000 was paid to this company. There was a guarantee bond of $100,000, but this is likely lost.

When the vote of one million dollars for the Quebec bridge came under discussion yesterday, Mr. Blain raised the question of responsibility for the disaster and the loss of life. It was elicited from Mr. Graham that over three million dollars had been paid to the "Phoenix Bridge Co." up to the date when the Government took over the work. The money was paid by the Quebec Bridge Co., but the Government footed the bill.

"Where is the ultimate responsibility to be found?" asked Mr. Borden. "Is there not some revenue accruing to the people? I should like to know whether the Government has suffered this project to proceed under conditions which have allowed five or six millions of the peoples' money to be represented by nothing but a mass of twisted steel. Under the conditions, has the country no recourse?"

Mr. Graham said that there was reason to fear that the Government could not enforce the clause in the agreement providing for penalties. The Phoenix Bridge Co., with which the contract had been made, was simply a small subsidiary company created to do this work.

Mr. Crockett was informed that as to the $100,000 bond the company had set up the technical claim of notification.

"Then $100,000 was lost through neglect," said Mr. Crocket.

Mr. Graham remarked that all hope had not been lost. However, he had no great hope of collecting anything from the company itself, but the metal in the river was an asset.

Mr. Borden described it as "the most extraordinary tale of negligence and non-management that any country has ever known. The mere recital without comment is enough to stagger one."

Houghton Lennox reiterated the story subsequent to the great disaster; $6,434,718 had been paid by the Government to or for the Quebec Bridge Co.; $981,268 of the sum was interest to the Bank of Montreal, interest to the stockholders, as well as bonuses.

When the company was behind with its interest to the bank, the Government paid the arrears. It was not a real company, for while supposed to be building this great bridge, it was not even able to pay its bank interest. Its capital was not paid up, yet the Government paid compound interest for it.

Mr. Graham stated that, in all, the bridge would cost the country $17,000,000. The railway will be completed before the bridge, which, it is hoped, will be ready four years hence. Until it is built a ferry will be used.

Mr. Fielding moved in the House yesterday that a grant of $50,000 be given to the French Government in aid of the sufferers from the floods. He understood the distress was very great, and there was much need of relief.

To Mr. Foster, he said he had no definite statement as to the loss sustained, but a communication from the Canadian office in Paris said that need was widespread.

Mr. Borden thought it eminently proper to take part in the relief of these people. France being the home of the ancestors of a considerable portion of our population.

The international fisheries regulations for the protection and preservation of food fishes in the international boundary waters were tabled in the Commons yesterday. The regulations were prepared by Prof. Prince of Canada and Dr. David Starr Jordan of the United States, and will come into force about one year hence.

C.N.R. English Terminal Port.

London, Feb. 5.—It is practically settled that Southampton will be the English terminal port of the new steamship service to be inaugurated this spring by the Canadian Northern Railway Co.

Sir Charles Scotter, presiding at a meeting of the London and Southwestern Railway Co. yesterday, made a veiled reference to the subject, in saying that negotiations were proceeding which would result in another large line of steamers using Southampton as a terminal port.

Bickerdike For Senate.

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—Robert Bickerdike, M.P., for St. Lawrence division of Montreal, is the probable successor of the late Sir George Drummond in the Senate of Canada.

TO CURB PRESS.

Publishers of Pamphlets In India to Be Watched.

Calcutta, Feb. 5.—The new press bill designed to suppress the dissemination of anarchistic literature, and foreshadowed in the speech with which Lord Minto opened the Imperial Council, was introduced at yesterday's session of the council by Sir Herbert Hope Risley, Secretary of the Home Department, British Government of India.

The measure does not create a censorship, but provides for the control of all newspaper and job presses, the proprietors of which are obliged to deposit from $160 to $1,600, which sum is to be forfeited upon conviction of an attempt to incite to murder or anarchical outrages, to tamper with the loyalty of the army and navy, excite racial, class or religious animosity, contempt of the Government, or native prince or the intimidation of public servants, etc.

Sir Herbert said: "We see a widely read portion of the Indian press occupied in rendering the Government odious in the sight of the Indian people. The Government is represented as a foreign one and, therefore, selfish and tyrannical. It is alleged to have produced famine, its public works to have generated malaria, and to have introduced the plague and poisoned the wells with the object of reducing the population in order to place it in subjection; to have destroyed religion by a godless system of education, and in short, to have enslaved a whole people who now struggle to be free. The Press openly proclaims that the only sure cure for the ills of India is freedom from foreign rule.

"We are confronted with a murderous conspiracy," concluded the Secretary, who appealed for the prompt and unanimous passage of the bill."

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

All danger of a street railway strike in Philadelphia has been averted.

The Masonic Hall and the home of Blake Edwards of Colborne were burned early yesterday.

Roosevelt will arrive in England on May 15 and soon after his arrival will deliver an address at Oxford University.

Regina city council has decided to make the sale of cigarettes in that place prohibitive by imposing a $50 tax on all vendors.

John Cray, a retired farmer, 75 years of age, thinks he was a victim of knockout drops at Windsor. He is out a large sum of money.

Charles Henderson, who on Friday last assaulted with an axe the aged McPherson sisters at Norwood, was yesterday remanded for a week. Magistrate Edmison warned him that he might be tried for murder, but the prisoner seemed indifferent.

Senator Choquette, candidate for mayor of Quebec, announces that if he is elected he will help the passing of a law to have the bars closed at 10 o'clock every evening, except on Saturdays, when, as prescribed by the act, they close at seven in the evening.

Eric, the young son of Charles Sheldon, divisional engineer of the C.P.R. at Muskoka, was fatally hurt when an engine ran him down, crushing one leg. He was brought to the hospital at North Bay, but died. There is no school at the Muskoka divisional point, and the children romp in the railway yards.

Charles McGill Is Free.

Toronto, Feb. 5.—Charles McGill, former general manager of the Ontario Bank, took a little walk before he went to bed last night for the first time as a free man in slightly over three years. He was released from Kingston Penitentiary yesterday on a pardon, and left that city at noon, arriving in Toronto at 4.30. He was companioned by his brother, John McGill, of 32 St. Mary street, with whom he will remain for the present. He has not yet decided what course he will follow as to occupation or residence.

Met at the station he greeted the quotationers with a smile. To them he said, "I am glad to be back. If I have done wrong, I have paid the penalty. I have little to say that can interest any but my personal friends." He passed on with his brother, and declining to take a carriage, rode with him in a street car. "I want to face them all from now on," he said.

Mr. McGill is a little thinner, a little grayer than when he went away. His shoulders, too, are now slightly bowed, but is eye is clear and yesterday shone with joy.

Charles McGill was sentenced on Feb. 1, 1907, to serve five years in Kingston by Judge Winchester, for embezzlement. This was the maximum penalty for the offence.

Little Negress Leads Scholars.

New York, Feb. 5.—Estelle E. Gibbs, a negro girl, fourteen years old, of Hoboken, received yesterday the first prize, a gold medal, at the graduating exercises of the Hoboken public school pupils. She had the highest average of any public school scholar in the city—99 1-3 per cent. in six subjects. The medal was presented by Mayor Gonzales.

There are 10,000 white pupils in the schools and only 15 negroes. Only eleven negro families live in Hoboken. Estelle is the daughter of a pullman car porter.

The Young Lobster.

From the eggs of the lobster are hatched creatures not in the least resembling their parents—little fellows that swim with featherlike locomotive organs near the surface of the water. At the end of six weeks they develop legs—unless, as is highly probable, they have previously been devoured by fishes or other enemies—becoming thereupon small lobsters of familiar shape. Having reached this stage of growth, the young lobsters become walking animals, and, sinking to the bottom, immediately seek hiding places to protect them from their foes.

THREE SHOT IN AFFRAY

Young Printer in Toronto Runs Amuck With a Revolver.

Charles Turff and Lawrence Street, Two Bystanders, Are Wounded and Pele, Who Was the Cause of the Row, Gets a Bullet In His Thigh—Albert Haggett, the Prisoner, Had Pockets Filled With Cartridges.

Toronto, Feb. 5.—Three men were shot in a wild western shooting affray which took place among a huge crowd which started over a drunken brawl at 8 Louisa street, a disorderly house. Only one of the injured, a young Pole, was implicated in the original trouble.

Lawrence Street, 529 King West, an onlooker, was the first man shot. He was struck in the right thigh.

Chas. Turff, 285 Wilton avenue, the most seriously injured, was struck in the abdomen while pluckily assisting Policeman Mullin to take the desperado, Alfred Haggett, a young printer, into custody.

It appears that Victor Tesenaivk, the Pole, was accosted in the street by a young woman and invited to the house. He went with her and found two men and another woman inside. He sat down and almost immediately an altercation arose over two dollars. The Pole was ejected without his hat and returned for it. Refused admission he burst in the door and was then chased into the street by Haggett, who fired upon him with two revolvers.

One bullet struck young Street, and he fell, while Haggett, still firing, pursued the Pole. He dropped him with a bullet in the groin and then ran along west on Louisa street, stumbling almost upon Policeman Mullin at James street. They drew up directly under the electric light, and Haggett thrust the guns in the policemans' face.

"If you move, Mullin, I'll blow your brains out," he said.

Mullin stood still and the crowd moved up closer behind. Suddenly Turff lurched forward in an effort to grasp Haggett. This attracted the man's attention and he fired upon his capturer, who felt a stinging pain in his abdomen. He did not stop, but rising to his feet grasped Haggett firmly about the shoulders and the two went down.

Then "Banty" Russell, the Argonaut centre scrimmager, who had been edging up upon the man with Andrew Marcicano, 58 Homewood avenue, pounced upon Haggett and he was subdued. Mullin put the handcuffs on him and he was taken to the Agnes street police station. He was charged with shooting with intent to kill.

Mullin had intercepted another man running from the scene but let him go as he observed Haggett, hatless and bootless, coming toward him with his face covered with blood, and brandishing the two revolvers. Detective Montgomery went out from the Agnes street station where Mullin had taken Haggett and brought in Colin Wright, who had been in the trouble but refused to make any statement. He was very drunk and badly frightened.

At the hospital where he was taken in the police ambulance with Street, the Pole told the story given above. Haggett at the police station said that he had gone to the house and found the Pole there. They had trouble, and Haggett fired two shots in the house to scare the woman, Maggie Harris or Haggett or Arias who kept the place. He then pursued the Pole into the street and shot him. One of the revolvers, a 32-calibre weapon, he said was his own, but did not know where the other had come from.

He did not know of shooting Street, it being one of the wild shots which struck the lad. Turff was carried to the hospital by several of the crowd.

Orangemen Aroused.

Southampton, Ont., Feb. 5.—A circular has been sent out by the Grand Black Chapter of Western Ontario, of the Royal Black Knights of Ireland, the most potent influence in the Orange Order, calling attention to the fact that at a recent French-Canadian Congress held in Ottawa, a resolution was passed to ask the Legislature to enact "that where 25 per cent. of the pupils in any district are of French origin, the French language shall be used in the public schools."

This is regarded as a most extraordinary request and Orangemen and Protestants are being called upon to oppose such a request if brought before the Legislature.

Judge Nearly Run Over.

Welland, Feb. 5.—Wm. Crompton was fined $10 and costs for nearly running over Judge Wells. The latter was walking on the road when Crompton drove along in a cutter. The driver ordered his honor off the road. "If he had run me down, and he would certainly have done it had I not got off the way, he would have been guilty of murder, and all his intentions were evidently to run over me. A man walking is entitled to the same courtesy as a man driving," said the judge addressing the court.

Evidence Clears Atlas.

Toronto, Feb. 5.—Rev. G. M. Atlas arraigned in the Police Court yesterday upon five charges of theft and fraud against his fellow-countrymen, the Macedonians, was acquitted of two of them and remanded upon the others. He was defended by T. C. Robinette, K.C. Magistrate Denison heard the cases.

Big New York Fire.

New York, Feb. 5.—The New York medical supply depot of the United States army at Vestry and West streets, a seven storey structure, was burned yesterday; loss $500,000.

BJORNSON VERY ILL.

Famous Norwegian Author In Critical State In Paris.

Paris, France, Feb. 5.—Bjornstjerne Bjornson, the great Norwegian poet, dramatist, and novelist, who has been ill in this city for some weeks, shows no tendency to improve, and it is feared that he has not long to live. He is surrounded by his near friends and the entire world is anxiously watching his condition.

M. Bjornson may be called the Grand Old Man of Norwegian literature and drama. Among his works that have been translated into English are two novels of Norwegian peasant life, "A Happy Boy," and "The Fisher Lass," and among others "The Heritage of the Kurts," "Paul Lange," and "Laboremus." His latest dramatic work has only recently been in rehearsal at Dresden. He is the author of numerous plays, including "Leonardo" and "Mary Stuart In Scotland," and an epic poem called "Arnljot Gelline." M. Bjornson was born in 1832. From 1860 to 1862 he lived in Denmark, Italy and Germany. In 1874 he bought a farm in the heart of Norway, where he has since generally spent the summer, at other seasons living much in Paris, Rome, and the Tyrol.

BJORNSTJERNE BJORNSON.

Simple Funeral For Drummond.

Montreal, Feb. 5.—The body of Sir George A. Drummond was cremated yesterday afternoon by his own special desire. After a simple service in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, the cortege proceeded to the Mount Royal Crematorium. The ashes were afterwards laid away in his family vault.

As president of the Crematorium Company, Sir George had always been strongly in favor of cremation as the best means of disposing of the dead. It was at his special desire that no flowers were brought to his home or to the church by his many friends, for the late president of the Bank of Montreal abhorred such extravagances and vain shows, saying always that they were crimes when there were poor people that could be fed.

The ceremony as carried through by the Rev. Arthur French, rector of St. John's, was very quiet, but there was a great concourse of relatives and personal and business friends of the great financier.

It is stated that Sir George Drummond leaves an estate valued at six million, divided between Lady Drummond, who keeps the elegant Sherbrooke street home, and the three sons.

Probing School Book Contract.

Toronto, Feb. 5.—Hon. A. G. MacKay has given notice of motion that he will ask on Tuesday next for an order to be laid on the table in the Legislature of the original contract of the province with the T. Eaton Co. for the printing and binding of the Ontario school books.

There is a rumor that the members are agitating for an increase of $500 in the sessional indemnity, but few of them seem to know anything about it. The probability is that no move in this direction will be made this session. It would cost the province about $53,000.

The extension in the time for receiving private bills for one week from Feb. 3 will enable the Hamilton and Toronto-civic bills to get in in time.

The House only sat for 20 minutes yesterday. Six statute consolidation bills got their second reading and another went through committee without amendment. No reference was made to the accident to Hon. Col. Matheson. It is understood that the Provincial Treasurer will be able to be back in his seat in about ten days. Sir James Whitney will have temporary charge of the Department, and will also assume charge of the budget debate.

Earl Grey at Montreal.

Montreal, Feb. 5.—Earl Grey was received yesterday at the court house by the judges and His Excellency dined later on with their lordships, amongst those present being Justice Clearwater of New York.

May Pardon Mrs. Lajoie.

Kingston, Feb. 5.—Mrs. Lajoie, sentenced at Hull last July, to seven years for assault on her own child, has given birth to a baby boy in the penitentiary. An effort is to be made to have the woman pardoned or paroled.

R. Dickson, Brockville, has been released on parole. He was sentenced to five years for robbery of G.T.R. cars between Brockville and Kingston on July 25, 1908.

Daniel Graves, hotelkeeper at Harrowsmith, was given four months in jail at hard labor for selling liquor without a license.

Harry Walker, aged 50, is dead, as a result of injuries received by a fall from a hay loft.

DID PEDESTAL BREAK?

This Seems to Have Been Cause of C.P.R. Wreck.

In Spite of Evidence Blaming the Disaster on a Fracture In the Oil Box on the Foremost Trucks of the First-Class Car, Jury Returns a Verdict of "Cause Unknown."—Recommendations to Commission.

Sudbury, Feb. 5.—In the face of most positive evidence that it was a broken pedestal on the forward truck of the first-class coach that caused the terrible Spanish River wreck, Coroner Howey's jury last night returned a verdict of "cause unknown."

General Superintendent Gutelius of the C.P.R. and S. E. Reaugh, special engineer for the crown, were agreed as to the cause.

So for the second time since the wreck, an open verdict has been returned. This jury, however, went a little farther than the first one, and gave put it up to the Railway Commission to investigate, with a few suggestions.

The verdict finds that the derailment was "caused by the forward truck of the first-class car leaving the tracks and plunging over the embankment, followed by the dining and sleeping cars, also causing the derailment of the second-class car, but his jury is unable to determine the cause for the truck of the said first-class car leaving the track," and adds:

"We would recommend that the following be thoroughly investigated by the Railway Commission of Canada:

1. Are three section men sufficient to keep an eight-mile section in proper condition during the winter time in the rigorous climate of northern Ontario?

2. Should openings be placed in the roofs of cars capable of being opened from either the in or outside, suitable for the escape of passengers in case of overturned cars?

3. Should emergency tools be carried in convenient places outside of cars, as well as inside?

The investigation prosecuted by Crown Counsel Harry Drayton of Toronto, has been most thorough, and has shed a great deal of light on what looked a discouraging maze, when he took up the case last Monday. Roadbed, ballast, tracks, rolling stock were gone into minutely, until the plausibility of derailment from any of these sources could be abandoned, and interest finally centred on the foremost trucks of the first-class car.

U. S. Would Not Mind.

Kingston, Jamaica, Feb. 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Lord Balfour of Burleigh, chairman of the royal commission on Canadian and West Indian trade, in a speech, said that Jamaica should look at the policy of the United States itself, which, rightly or wrongly, had adopted the policy of preference in regard to its own dependencies. As long as drawing together in business relations tended to mutual support he did not see it should cause any offence. He recorded his profound belief from what he had seen. He knew, from conversation with Americans in a position to judge, that wisely, properly and sensibly done, reciprocity between the West Indies and Canada would not be a cause of offence. If he was not profoundly convinced of the correctness of this inference he would not take the responsibility of expressing his views.

Hon. Wm. Paterson, Canadian Minister of Customs, said if Canada had something to give she must expect something in return. He knew the difficulties to be surmounted here, and understood the position of the Jamaicans, but, with sadness, he found the preference which Canada had given to Jamaica had not answered the purpose intended.

Lords Will Pass Budget.

London, Feb. 5.—Pending Premier Asquith's return from the continent next week, there is no development in the political situation.

The indications are, however, that there will be nothing to prevent the early passage of the budget, the only party likely to oppose it being the O'Brienites, numbering about a dozen.

The Freeman's Journal, the organ of the Nationalists, publishes an inspired article, declaring that the Redmondites will offer no opposition to the passage of the budget just as it left the last Parliament, as any defects can be remedied in the succeeding budget.

Alfred Lyttelton, the Unionist member of the House of Commons for Leamington, speaking in London last night, asserted that the House of Lords would stick to its pledge and pass whatever budget the Commons sent up.

Bombarded Greytown.

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 5.—The insurgent gunboat Ometepe appeared off Greytown Thursday and bombarded the city for twenty minutes. Nine houses were set on fire by the shells from the gunboat.

The shore batteries replied vigorously and succeeded in disabling the Ometepe, which was forced to retire.

Recently Captain Thesiger of the British cruiser Scylla made an official declaration that there should be no fighting at Greytown, where there are large British interests.

Not Good Enough For Uncle Sam.

Windsor, Feb. 5.—Wm. Frances, a former business man of this city, has been barred from the United States by U. S. immigration officials in Detroit. Some time ago Frances was arrested by the Detroit police in connection with the disappearance of a diamond from the bosom of a prominent Detroiter. Recently he moved his household effects across the river. Now he has been ordered to bring them back.

Met Death on Railroad.

Woodstock, Feb. 5.—Gordon Clarke, aged 20, son of late Fire Chief Clarke of London, was run over and killed on the Grand Trunk Railway between Ingersoll and Woodstock, Thursday night.

The young man, who was employed as an engineer by the Hydro-Electric line, now working between here and Ingersoll, attended a hockey match here Thursday night.

It is thought tht while returning to Ingersoll on a freight he fell off. The remains were badly mangled.

Federal Grant to Veterans.

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—A grant of land or a cash contribution of $150 to $200 to each man was urged on Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday by Messrs. Sealey, German and Mederic Martin, M.P.'s, acting for the veterans of '66-'70. A big deputation some time ago made the request in general terms, and it is now being followed up by sub-committees. No definite answer was given but the reply was regarded as encouraging.

C. G. E. Plant to Be Enlarged.

Peterboro, Feb. 5.—Frederic Nicholls, vice-president and general manager of the C. G. E. Co., stated yesterday that extensions to either the Peterboro plant or the foundry in Toronto, involving an expenditure of from $250,000 to $750,000, are contemplated. This is necessitated by the rush of orders and by the steady increase of business.

Post Free For Roosevelt.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The carriage post free of all mail matter by Theodore Roosevelt is proposed by Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, who introduced a bill to that effect yesterday.

Franking privileges are now enjoyed by both Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Harrison, widows of ex-presidents.

Orangeville, Ont., Feb. 5.—The scrutiny in the local option vote in this town commenced here yesterday morning before Judge McCarthy. The bylaw was carried by a majority of about four votes over the three-fifths requirement. James Haverson, K.C., and W. J. L. McKay, appeared for the petitioners; and H. E. Irwin, and C. B. McKeown, supported the measure. Over forty witnesses were subpoenaed. The counting of the ballots did not benefit either party. The court reserved judgment.

CANADA LIFE'S

Most Successful Year.

LARGE GAIN IN SURPLUS—BUSINESS INCREASED —EXPENSES DECREASED.

The Directors have pleasure in submitting their 63rd Annual Report showing the transactions of the Company for the past year, and setting forth the financial position as at 31st December, 1909.

The Year's Business. Applications to the number of 5,117 for assurances of $12,198,814 were received during the year, and the new policies paid for totalled $10,139,434.00, an increase over the new business paid for in 1908, which in turn was greater than that of 1907. It is very gratifying to note that the Canadian business has again shown a substantial increase. The business from the United Kingdom compared favorably with that of last year, while the business from the United States has been well maintained. The total business in force now amounts to $124,772,856, the increase for the year being over $4,000,000.

The Income and Payments. The income for the year was $5,697,319.59, being larger by $361,277.05 than that of 1908. The payments to policyholders totalled $2,032,332.16. Notwithstanding the constantly increasing volume of business transacted, the expenses of management decreased in 1909, as compared with those of the previous year. A similar reduction in the expenses of management was reported a year ago, the decrease in each year being not only in percentage but in actual amount.

The Assets. The total assets now stand at $39,686,063.57, having increased in 1909 by $2,972,948.33, the greatest gain in any year in the Company's history. The assets of the Company are increasing at the rate of nearly $10,000.00 for each business day of the year, and the safe and profitable investment of these rapidly growing funds is a serious responsibility which receives the constant care of the Directors.

The Surplus. The increase in surplus reported a year ago of $1,060,000 was up to that time the largest in the Company's history. The Directors are able to announce an even larger gain for 1909, the increase for the year being $1,195.125, bringing the total Surplus over all liabilities up to $3,322,764.65. Such a result could only be attained by a strict adherence to those principles of management which long experience has shown to be the essentials of success, namely, judicious economy in expenditures, prudent investment of funds and skilful selection of risks.

Allotment of Profits. The Directors are gratified to be able to announce that the surplus (included in the above) earned on quinquennial dividend policies issued prior to 1900 enables them to declare a bonus upon such policies as follows :—

Upon life policies a reversionary bonus addition of 1¼ per cent. per annum upon the sum assured, amounting to $62.50 per $1,000.00 of assurance (or its equivalent value in cash or reduction of premiums to policyholders so electing); upon endowment assurances the bonus addition will be not less than $50.00 for the quinquennium for each $1,000.00 of assurance, payable at the end of the endowment period or prior death (or the equivalent of such bonus addition in cash or premium reduction to policyholders so electing).

The profits now declared on these policies are on a cash basis from 30 per cent. to 40 per cent. greater than at the previous quinquennial division in 1905, when over $1,000,000.00 was allotted to such policies. As illustrating this, attention is drawn to the following actual examples from life policies, taken at random and showing the profits now declared, on a cash basis. The table also shows the large increase in profits now declared over those of the two previous quinquennial divisions :—

CASH PROFITS

Quinquennial Year.	Policy No. 64320 Issued 1895	Policy No. 30637 Issued 1885	Policy No. 17135 Issued 1875	Policy No. 4072 Issued 1865	Policy No. 1514 Issued 1854
1900	$164.50	$215.50	$224.50	$229.00	265.00
1905	265.50	331.20	345.50	351.20	394.80
1910	367.00	453.00	467.10	474.10	521.20

Basis for illustration in each case $10,000.

The Directors confidently anticipate that this announcement will be received with general satisfaction by the many persons who will share in the large amount of profits to be distributed on these policies.

Quinquennial dividend policies issued since 1900 receive their allotment of profits each five years from the date of issue, upon their premium due date in place of the fixed date (as at 31st December) for older policies. The premium rates and reserves for such policies are on a different basis from that for policies issued prior to 1900. For these more recent policies as well as deferred dividend policies a modified form of the Contribution System of allocation of profits has been adopted by the Company, and under this system the profits will vary with the plan of assurance and duration of the policy, as well as with the age of the assured.

The amount of surplus now to be allotted to quinquennial and maturing deferred dividend policies will, it is expected, exceed $2,000,000.

Our work is so well in hand that the Profit Certificates on all policies now entitled to participate will be mailed on this occasion at an earlier date than formerly.

Retirement of Directors. The following Directors retire by rotation:—Kenneth MacKenzie, Esq., Frank Sanderson, LL.D., Hon. Robert Jaffray, Adam Brown, Esq., and E. R. Wood, Esq., the first two representing the policyholders and the last three representing the shareholders, all of whom are eligible for re-election.

It is with pleasure that the Directors again record their appreciation of the efficiency and zeal with which the officers, staff and field representatives have performed their respective duties.

Toronto, January 31st, 1910. GEO. A. COX, President.

"Gone?" half shrieked her ladyship.

"into the bank," he added, scratching a match.

"Theppy," she said after a moment, "I hope I was not too hard on the poor fellow."

"Perhaps you won't be so nervous if you sit down and look at the sea," he said gently, and she immediately knew that he suggested it because he expected a tragedy in the opposite direction.

They expected every minute to hear the shouts of assassins and the screams of the brave Mr. Saunders. Their apprehensions were sensibly increased by the mysterious actions of the half naked loiterers. They made off in various directions, more than one of them handling his ugly creese in an ominous manner. Bromley was not slow to acquaint his lordship with these movements. Deppingham felt a cold chill shoot up his spine, but he refused to encourage the maid's fears by turning around.

"Your lordship," said Mr. Saunders three minutes later, "this is Mr. Bowles, his majesty's agent here. He is come with me to"—

It was then and not until then that his lordship turned his stare from the sea to the clerk and his companion.

"Aw," he interrupted, "glad to see you, I'm sure. Would you be good enough to tell us how we are to reach the—er—chateau and why the devil we can't get anybody to move our luggage?"

Mr. Bowles, who had lived in Japat for sixteen years, was a tortuously slow Englishman, with the curse of the clime still growing upon him. He was half asleep quite a good bit of the time and wholly asleep during the remainder.

"Everything is transferred by hand, my lord, and the chateau is two miles farther up the side of the mountain. It's quite a walk, sir."

"Do you mean to say we are to walk?"

"Yes, my lord, if you expect to go there."

"Of course we expect to go there. Are there no horses on the beastly island?"

"Hundreds, my lord, but they belong to the people, and no one but their owners ride them. The servants at the chateau turned Mr. Skaggs' horses out to pasture before they left."

"The servants, my lord."

Lady Deppingham's eyes grew wide with understanding. "You don't mean to say that the servants have left the place?" she cried.

"Yes, my lady. They were natives, you know."

"What's that got to do with it?" demanded Deppingham.

"I'm afraid you don't understand the situation," said Mr. Bowles patiently. "You see, it's really a triangular controversy, if I may be so bold as to say so. Lady Deppingham is one of the angles; Mr. Browne, the American gentleman, is another; the native population is the last. Each wants to be the hypotenuse. While the interests of all three are merged in the real issue, there is nevertheless a decided disposition all around to make it an entirely one sided affair."

"I don't believe I grasp"— muttered Deppingham blankly.

"I see perfectly," exclaimed his wife. "The natives are allied against us, just as we are, in a way, against them and Mr. Browne. Really, it seems quite natural, doesn't it, dear?" turning to her husband.

"Very likely, but very unfortunate. It leaves us to broil our brains out down here on this pier. I say, Mr.—er—old chap, can't you possibly engage some sort of transportation for us? Really, you know, we can't stand here all day."

"I've no doubt I can arrange it, my lord. If you will just wait here until I run back to the bank I dare say I'll find a way. Perhaps you'd prefer standing under the awning until I return."

It was fully half an hour before he was seen coming down the street, followed by a score or more of natives, their dirty white robes flapping about their brawny legs. At first they could not believe it was Bowles. Lord Deppingham had a sharp thrill of joy, but it was short lived. Bowles had changed at least a portion of his garb. He now wore the tight red jacket of the British trooper, while an ancient army cap was strapped jauntily over his ear.

"It's all right, my lord," he said, saluting as he came up. "They will do anything I tell 'em to do when I represent the British army. This is the only uniform on the island, but they've been taught that there are more where this one came from. These fellows will carry your boxes up to the chateau, sixpence to the man, if you please, sir, and I've sent for two carts to draw your party up the slope. They'll be here in a jiffy, my lady." Then, turning majestically to the huddled natives, he waved his slender stick and said: "Lively now! No loafing! Lively!"

Whereupon the entire collection of boxes, bags and bundles figuratively picked itself up and walked off in the direction of the chateau.

CHAPTER VI.

THE CHATEAU.

THE road to the chateau took its devious way through the little town out into the green foothill beyond. Two lumbering wooden wheeled carts, none too clean, each drawn by four perspiring men, served as conveyances by which the arrivals were to make the journey to their new home.

Lady Deppingham's pert little nose lifted itself in disgust as she was jogged through the town behind the grunting substitutes for horseflesh. She sat beside her husband in the foremost cart. Mr. Bowles, very tired, but quite resplendent, walked dutifully beside one wheel; Mr. Saunders took his post at the other. The servants came along behind in the second cart. Far ahead, like hounds in full cry, toiled the unwilling luggage bearers. From the windows and doorways of every house, from the bazaars and cafes, from the side streets and mosque approaches, the gaze of the sullen populace fastened itself upon the little procession. The town seemed ominously silent.

"Most of the islanders have got three or four wives already."

At last they came to the end of the sunlit street and plunged into the shady road that ascended the slope through what seemed to be an absolutely unbroken though gorgeous jungle. The cool green depths looked most alluring to the sun baked travelers. They could almost imagine that they heard the dripping of fountains, the gurgling of rivulets, so like paradise was the prospect ahead. Lady Agnes could not restrain her cries of delighted amazement.

"It's like this all over the island, your ladyship," volunteered Mr. Bowles, mopping his brow in a most unmilitary way, "except at the mines and back there in the town."

"Where are the mines?" asked Deppingham.

"The company's biggest mines are seven or eight miles eastward as the crow flies, quite at the other side of the island. It's very rocky over there, and there's no place for a landing from the sea. Everything is brought overland to Aratat and placed in the vaults of the bank. Four times a year the rubies and sapphires are shipped to the brokers in London and Paris and Vienna. It's quite a neat and regular arrangement, sir."

"But I should think the confounded natives would steal everything they got their hands on."

"What would be the use, sir? They couldn't dispose of a single gem on the island, and nothing is taken away from here except in the company's chests. Besides, my lord, these people are not thieves. They may kill people occasionally, but they are quite honest, believe me. And, in any event, are they not a part of the great corporation? They have their share in the working of the mines and in the profits. Mr. Wyckholme and Mr. Skaggs were honest with them, and they have been just as honest in return."

"I should think they'd be terribly tempted," said Lady Agnes. "They look so wretchedly poor."

"My lady," said Bowles, "there are but four poor men on the island—myself and the three Englishmen who operate the bank. There isn't a poor man, woman or child among the natives. This is truly a land of rich men. The superintendent of the mines is a white man—a German—and the three foremen are Boers. They work on shares, just as the natives do, and save even more, I think. The clerical force is entirely native. There were but ten white men here before you came, including two Greeks. Being part owners, the natives have decided that four hours constitute a day's work. They pay themselves accordingly, as it were. No one works after midday, sir."

"I say, wouldn't this be a paradise for the English workingman?" said Deppingham. "That's the kind of day's labor they'd like. Do you mean to say that these fellows trudge eight miles to work every morning and back again at noon?"

"Certainly not, sir. They ride their thoroughbred horses to work and ride them back again."

"You take my breath away," said the other, lapsing into a stunned silence.

The road had become so steep and laborious by this time that Bowles was very glad to forego the pleasure of talking. He fell back with Mr. Saunders and proceeded to give the inquisitive lawyer's clerk all the late news of the island.

The inhabitants of Japat had been prompt to protect themselves in a legal sense. They had engaged the services of eminent solicitors in London, who were to represent them in the final settlement of the estate. London was to be the battleground in the coming conflict. A committee of three had journeyed to England to put the matter in the hands of these lawyers and were now returning to the island with a representative of the firm, who was coming out to stand guard, so to speak. Von Blitz, the German superintendent, was the master mind in the native contingent. The absent committee was composed of Ben Adi, Abdallah Ben Sabbat and Rasula, the Aratat lawyer. They were truly wise men from the east—old, shrewd, crafty and begotten of Mohammed.

The mines continued to be operated as usual pending the arrival of the executors' representative, who, as we know, was now on the ground in the person of Thomas Saunders. The fact that he also served as legal adviser to Lady Deppingham was not of sufficient moment to disturb the arrangements on either side.

As for the American heir, Robert Browne, he had not yet arrived. He was coming by steamer from the west, according to report, and was probably on the Boswell, Sumatra to Madagascar, due off Aratat in two or three days.

"The islanders," said Mr. Bowles, lighting a cigarette, "it looks to me, have all the best of the situation. They get the property whether they marry or not, while the original beneficiaries have to marry each other or get off the island at the end of the year. Most of the islanders have got three or four wives already."

"You mean to say that they can have as many wives as they choose?" demanded Saunders, wrinkling his brow.

"Yes, just so long as they don't choose anybody else's."

"My word!"

"Eh?" queried Bowles, arousing himself.

"I didn't say anything," retorted Saunders, looking up into the treetops.

Standing out against the sky fully a mile ahead was the home to which they were going. The chateau, beautiful as a picture, lifted itself like a dream castle above all that was earthy and sordid. It smiled down from its lofty terrace and glistened in the sunset glow like the jewel that had been its godmother.

According to its own records, the chateau, fashioned quite closely after a famous structure in France, was designed and built by La Marche, the ill fated French architect who was lost at sea in the wreck of the Vendome. Three years and more than £700,000—to make it seem more prodigious, nearly 18,000,000 francs—were consumed in its building.

Apartments fit for a king abounded. Suits which took one back to the luxuries of Marie Antoinette were common. Banquet halls, ballrooms, reception halls, a chapel and even a crypt were to be found if one undertook a voyage of discovery.

Lord and Lady Deppingham, being first in the field, at once proceeded to settle themselves in the choicest rooms—a Henry VI. suit, which looked out

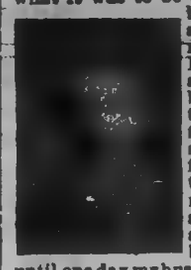
AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.



Toronto, Canada.—"I shall endeavor to describe to you how I felt before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I scarcely knew what it was to be well. I had awful bearing-down pains and usually before my monthly periods I suffered terribly and had to go to bed. I was not able to walk across the floor the pain was so bad. I doctored for a long time, but the doctor's treatment did not do me any good. I gave up all hopes of ever being well again until one day my husband saw the Compound advertised in the paper. He decided to get me a bottle, and I am thankful he did. I had not taken one bottle before I began to feel better, and I kept on taking it until now I am a different woman. It also helped me during maternity and childbirth. I can thoroughly recommend your Vegetable Compound to any woman who is afflicted with female troubles."—Mrs. J. M. TWEEDALE, 138 Nassau St., Toronto, Canada.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

MATCHMAKING.

A Story of Love Between Intellectual People.

By WAYNE S. BORROW.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

A little dark woman dressed in a kimono was arranging a mahogany tea table, with claws to its legs, on which were a teapot, dainty china cups and saucers, cream and sugar bowls. The apartment was as daintily furnished as the tea table. Persian rugs were on the floor, damask and lace curtains hung in the windows, while a profusion of bric-a-brac was scattered about. It was an apartment that a man would never dare enter, for should he turn around suddenly his coattail would be sure to sweep some valuable bit of china on to the floor, of course breaking it into fragments.

A woman large and fair entered.

"You poor thing! You look fagged to death."

"I am, dear. I'm dead already. This is my ghost that wants a cup of tea."

The little dark woman in the kimono pushed the large fair one into an easy chair, slipped out hatpins and disposed of the gorgeous picture hat that crowned a blond pompadour.

"I'm sure you're an angel, Laura. Perhaps this poor ghost has got to heaven."

"Tell me about it," said the other sympathetically. "You haven't lost flesh over it, Annie."

The visitor laughed ruefully. "Do I lose flesh over anything?" she inquired. "But I have taken what Jack calls my annual vow and swear-off from clubs. The federation may federate in any town it sees fit. I'll not go near it. No, I'll not!" as her hostess laughed and refilled her teacup. "This vow is not to be annually broken—only annually renewed.

"You see it was like this: It was worse than an ordinary federation meeting, for I had Myra Reed Morton and her daughter Lily's love affairs on my mind. You know, Professor Henry of the university has been desperately in love with Lily for a year, only he doesn't know it, poor soul! He's so wound up in his 'ologies and knowledges that he doesn't understand what he wants."

"And you were trying to help him, you matchmaking creature!" suggested Laura.

"Of course I was! Isn't Myra Reed a widow and one of my dearest friends, and isn't Lily the sweetest and best girl of her age I know? I've invited the professor to my house and listened to his theories till"—

"Till you're very, very tired of it," agreed the other sympathetically.

The sufferer nodded. "I've given him every chance in the world to be alone with Lily, and I've tried—well, it sounds brutal to put it just that way—but I've tried to shield Myra's little idiosyncrasies from the son-in-law I hoped she would have.

"Then along came this miserable federation meeting, and the evil one counseled me to put Myra on the program. Some madness led me to think that she would actually follow instructions and give me a paper on colonial families of Virginia—that for the Daughters, you know. In my besotted state of mind I ran and invited the professor to be present at that particular meeting. To invite him it was necessary to invite the entire faculty unless I wanted to seem desperately special. Oh, Laura, I don't know whether I have fortitude to go on!"

"Yes, you have," her friend insisted. "Take a wafer and several long breaths. Did Susie Allingham faint? I heard the most garbled account of the thing."

"Faint? No more than you or I. She had promised me to have a paper on traveling libraries and a full report. Five minutes before the reading I asked her how long her paper was and would she please let me glance over it. The shameless creature hadn't the scratch of a pen. She said she was going to give us a little talk, and she was shaking like a leaf with stage fright right then. Oh, yes, she pretended to faint!"

"You can't quite say that, can you? You didn't have a physician present or test her with a redhot iron?"

The president of the Spare Moments club giggled comfortably. "I rather think the latter. Jane Courtney—you know what a soldier Jane is—oh, I grenadier: well, perhaps Jane had been on foot all day looking after the refreshments and various things that nobody else wants to, and when she saw Susie keel over she turned around and remarked: 'That Allingham girl looks a sight with her bonnet knocked over one ear, and her switch is coming loose. Good gracious, it'll fall off in another minute!'"

There was soft murmur of appreciation from the other side of the table. "And Susie?"

"Susie opened one eye to see who it was talking, and then she changed her mind about fainting. My, but she was mad! She wept. I had to fill her number on the program with some music. I didn't care. By that time it was all a mad, seething, boiling whirlpool of managing to make something do for something else anyhow."

"But about Myra?"

"Oh, yes! Well, Myra came, and so did all the professors. I had no idea those men were so interested in women's clubs. What do you suppose that woman had done in place of anything on earth about colonial Virginia?"

"Something wild, of course."

"Something wild? I like your phrase. It was bloodcurdling! She had diagrams! I thought I should sink when she drew those diagrams out. You know, she's a fanatic on some new ism about reforming the world by setting down and holding your breath and thinking about something else."

"Not a bad idea," with carefully preserved gravity. "And you put it so luckily, Anne. I think I could do that myself."

"Oh, well, you know! The kind of thing that used to be in the front of the first readers when you and I were babies at school. You sit down and shut your teeth and say, 'I—am—in—it, be—is—in—it,' or something like that."

"No, dear. It's 'assertions' that you mean. You build them into your character by saying them over that way."

"Laura," in a tragic tone, "you're almost as bad as she is! I don't want to build things into my character. You talk as if it was a summer cottage. Oh, dear me, I haven't a shred of character left since Myra disgraced me as she did! She got to talking about things that weren't quite nice, it seemed to me, for a mixed audience, and I was in agony because I had Lily portioned off with the professor there in the back room.

"I could see the other men trying not to laugh, and I felt so apologetic—so abject! If I could have crawled out under the seats, dusting those men's boots as I went, I should have been glad. Then came the diagrams! A large pink thing meant your natural affections. Laura, do you love people in that shade of pink? Because, if you do, pray never love me any.

"A blue wedge was for your—for your—intellectual capacity, I think. I hadn't any by the time that came. Some green streaks, she told us, stood for patience, but mine was at an end. I pulled the back of her frock and whispered to her, 'Where is your paper on colonial Virginia families?' Laura, that aggravating creature looked across her shoulder at me as serenely as she will look at her son-in-law when she runs right over him, and she said, loud enough for everybody to hear: 'Oh, this is a much more important matter, my dear. This concerns the source and origin of man and his cosmic destiny.' Laura, what is cosmic destiny? Do you suppose you and I each have one?"

Her hostess got breath finally from the smothered laughter that had greeted the diagrams. "Never mind your cosmic destiny, honey," she counseled. "Tell me what the professor and Lily did."

"I was in agony for them. Some of Myra's remarks were very plain and hardly the things for young girls to hear, let alone girls accompanied by gentlemen. But there! I might have spared myself worry. It seems I am only a plain fool."

"Oh, no," remonstrated her friend slyly. "Nobody would ever say that of you."

"I'd rather be a plain fool than a pretty one," retorted the other. "And that's what Myra Morton and her like call me, I know! It seems that Myra is a brilliant woman and that I had only made trouble and retarded things, instead of helping."

"How was that?"

"Oh, the professor is deeply interested in the particular ism that Myra is exploiting just now. I suppose he loves Lily in that shade of pink and does his thinking in blue wedges and has streaks of green patience. Anyhow, he said that Myra's diagrams were very illuminating. He was up in the crowd congratulating her on that disgraceful performance. I saw that both he and Lily looked mightily pleased about something, and after the thing was over he told me confidentially—I have been encouraging his confidential talks, you know, during the past year—that the hearing of that paper had removed the last shadow of a barrier between himself and Myra's daughter."

"Barrier?"

"Oh, yes; I have been trying to tell him about Myra and prepare him for what he might expect, and I suppose my opinion of her crankism and Professor Henry's don't precisely agree."

"They wouldn't naturally," slipped from Laura's lips, and then was regretted.

"Don't you tell me that I mean well!" turning sharply. "I'll bear anything but that. No doubt it's what the professor and Lily and Myra Reed Morton are saying of me this minute. They are sitting and holding their breaths and thinking about something else and saying that I am a well meaning creature who lacks sense."

"Well," commented her friend crisply, "if they can do all that at one time I believe I'll investigate the system myself."

A STRANGE DOOR KNOCKER

Bella Coola Indian Relic Is an Excellent Piece of Craftsmanship.

Perhaps the strangest door knocker in the world may be seen in the pagan Indian village at Bella Coola, about half way up the coast of British Columbia.

It consists of a wooden carving representing a man. The arms are movable, and between the hands is held a knocker apparently so formed as to represent the stone hammer the Bella Coolas used generations ago. Across the knees is a board, like part of the wooden drum these Indians formerly used much more extensively than today. When the arms are raised the hammerlike knocker may be dropped so as to make a terrific knocking on the board.

This figure, instead of being fastened on the door of the house, stands above it, but the doorway is low and the knocker is easily reached. Above the door is an interesting inscription, the pride of his family. This has been put up in honor of one of his ancestors and it reads:

"In memory of Chief Chelamen who died July 1883, aged 50 years. He was honest and well disposed, and respected by both whites and Indians. In December '82 he gave away with the help of his sons Alexander and Johnny, property in blankets, canoes, etc., valued at 4,000 dollars this being his eighth large potlatch and feast that he had held."

This sign is painted and was apparently made by a white man, but the wording and the arrangement of the lines show that the work was done to order.

The reference to the giving away of blankets and canoes is characteristic of these people. By so doing they gained not only a aristocratic position in the tribe but also credit, for the property was always returned with interest and feasting in due course of time.

At first this latter fact was not understood by the missionaries and Indian agents, who supposed that the potlatch was a boastful wasting of property. They caused a law to be passed in British Columbia making it a criminal offence to give a potlatch, and many Indians have been imprisoned for disobeying the law by continuing their forefathers' methods of financial investment, but nowadays the law is no longer enforced.

Sometimes property was given away for the benefit of sons or daughters. When they became a certain age they had in consequence an aristocratic position and credit of which they were so proud as are the sons of families of social position in London or elsewhere. This class of potlatch may be likened to endowment insurance.

Occasionally property was given away where no return was expected. It was then mostly food, with a few dresses, bracelets and similar articles, just as white swells give dinners with favor, souvenirs and birthday or wedding presents. Such giving away the Indians of the whole coast call a cultus potlatch, cultus meaning useless and indicating that no investment has been made or return expected.

Potlatches of one kind or the other, occasion, are given at christenings, weddings or when neighboring tribes are brought together.

Prisoner's Dock From Instinct.

The relation of stories in which a judge figured recalled an occasion a good many years ago when Justice MacMahon held the Assize Court in the old court house on Adelaide street, Toronto. The room was so arranged that when the clerk of the court called the name of each juryman selected to take his place in the jury box, he had to walk the length of the room from behind the rail, back of which spectators sat, to reach his own enclosure. In doing so he passed the prisoner's dock.

On this occasion the clerk called out the name of a juror, and the latter left his seat, but apparently did not know where to sit.

"Get into the box," called out one of the constables after him. The juror walked half the length of the room till he reached the prisoner's dock, when he stopped, opened the gate and walked in and seated himself. There was a laugh at the expense of the juryman, but Judge MacMahon whispered to one of the officials to scrutinize the identity of the man. It was soon discovered that he was an old hand in court, having been three times convicted of offences. He followed his natural instinct in hustling into the box when spoken to sharply.

Flags of War.

There has just been deposited in the archives department a number of flags which good Canadians will revere. They were borne by loyal men in the war of 1812, and, blood-besmeared and bullet-torn, are hanging on the walls of the new building, set aside as sacred to Canadian history.

The flags are those of the 4th and 5th Regiments of the incorporated militia of Upper Canada, the 100th Artillery, the Royal Emigrants, the 1st Canadian Regiment, the Quebec militia of 1775, and the Royal Engineers.

The flags of the 1st Regiment, the 4th Regiment, and the Quebec Militia are badly tattered and torn and indicate the severity of their engagements.

The two flags of the Royal Emigrants are curious. They are home-made, woven on small worsted square made, woven on small worsted squares, with poles of lances. All of the flags were given to Dr. Doughty's care by the Militia Department.

A Venturesome Countess.

The Countess of Minto, who, with her husband, narrowly escaped being killed by a bomb-thrower in India, has had several exciting adventures. Once she journeyed with her husband from Ottawa to Montreal in Canadian canoes and camped out at night, while on another occasion she startled Canada by riding on the cowcatcher of a locomotive in far-away Klondike, and seated on this dangerous perch, took a number of snapshots of the quickly-flying scenery. On another occasion the wing of the house in which she was sleeping caught fire, and she was only rescued in the nick of time by her husband.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

HOW YOUNG M.P.'S PRACTICE LAW-MAKING.

When All the House Is Quiet the New Member Brings In His Little Bill—It Is Kicked About and Ragged a Little, and Other New Members Talk a Little About It, Then It Is Quietly Squelched by the Big Ones.

It is the time when the hurry of Parliament is for the while suspended. Sir Wilfrid has vanished from the chamber. The leader of the Opposition has gone out to a dinner on Sunny Huff. Foster is probably imbibing blue books in a closet, and half the members are missing. These times come perhaps after a long debate, when the House has given itself over to Private Members' bills. The boy Minister of Labor, with his sleek little chops, and his modestly rotund waistcoat, strays in and out of the chamber, or from vacant seat to vacant seat, uneasily. Brodeur, who has a plump person clad in black, and a fringe of dark hair around his sallow face, is perusing the sanguine typography of a Halifax daily paper. The Minister of Railways and Canals sits lounging in his seat with his brown Christie tilted daringly over his grey hair, examining his long thin fingers with an air of indifference, although he would have the House believe him a very devil of a rake, instead of a good-hearted town editor, translated to a terribly high sphere, but with his soul still kept clipped and watered by a Methodist parson. Fielding, with his short white beard, is poring over a tyle of English illustrated magazines, keeping one eye on them, and one ear to the House; the other eye and extra ear being reserved for emergency. The House begins to drowse as the tail of what was once an interesting debate waggles a few times and dies.

There is a certain member sitting half way back in the Liberal bank. He sits for a small urban district made up mostly of retired farmers and merchants. His hair is long. Day in and day out he has attended the sessions. He has never taken part in the great debates and he always falls in line behind the Government when it comes to a vote, but he is tremendously strong with his constituents in that "down East" locality, so the Government is careful of him. Not all men are permitted to be great leaders or any kind of leaders in Parliament, and he is one of the unpermitted. Not to every man is it given to find a happy idea for a bill that would make him and his Government "strong" with the country; he was never so lucky. But he always wanted to do something. He wanted to say something on the great questions, and he always wanted to be the father of a "real" bill that would do the country good, so that people in the corner stores would remember it and say: "Ya, He done it." He never knew that all good bills are Government bills. He longed to be able to read the needs of the public and make out of them legislation, but he never did, until he heard the Government bring out a new measure; whereupon he at once wondered sadly why he never thought of that. But now he has a bill, and as the great men are gone and the House has slowed down, leaving the floor clear for some more private bills, he rises and calls for the ear of the Speaker.

It was a really nice bill. If only it had been passed it would have righted a great many wrongs, and made thousands of poor people happier. There could be no doubt that the honorable member had earnestly sought out something that needed remodying. The only trouble with the thing was that in order to put it into effect the earth would have been yanked off its financial foundations; society would have been knocked badly west, and the Government would have had to have pawned the Intercolonial to hire policemen enough to keep it from being assaulted. But it was a nice bill nevertheless. The timid member stood forth with his hand primly resting in the V of his coat lapels and informed the House of its merits.

The old hands on the game threw in a word or two just to start a discussion, and forthwith the timid members of the House started in to scrap about the bill. It was, it always is, like puppies fighting. They roll over and over on the bill, bite one another softly, and they growl in a gentle gurgly fashion. On the Conservative side there is a new member who once went to a debating school, and who carries in his memory a great many rules for public speaking, gathered from the autobiographies of great statesmen. Like the man who introduced the bill, he has always been afraid to talk before the chiefs, so he, too, takes advantage of their absence to practice. Some of the new French members get up and take the opportunity to practice English, coached by more accomplished friends, who suggest the words to them when they come to a tight place. One of them, a fat little man from near Montreal, goes far afield to show off his new found English phrases, and when he states a proposition, places his palms with fingertips to fingertips, and poses like a sepia saint of some old Dutch master or little Eva before dying.

Meantime the father of the bill sits back and watches the course of the thing which he has launched upon the House. It is more like a baby than a book. He cannot see what a rickety baby it is, but sits back in pathetic pride, a little pained that the press gallery is empty, but, nevertheless, happy and proud. Member after member makes the little bill an excuse to practice the art. As the Speaker is about to submit the question, however, some of the older members see that it is time to put an end to the fun. They seriously condemn the bill. It goes tottering back to its parent, who suggests a division of the House. It is then that, in order to save the Government from untactfully squelching one of its own strong supporters, the Minister of Finance leaves his English illustrateds and takes hold of the situation.

"Mr. Speaker," he says, suavely, "I see that my hon. friend's bill is not

A GRAND OPERA STAR.

The Way a Great Singer Felt the Night of Her Debut.

I had been kept in such a constant state of happiness that the night of my grand opera debut seemed like a beautiful dream, writes Marie Rappold. I was eager — not fearful—to come face to face with the audience.

Heinrich Conried came to my dressing room. He had promised me a surprise for that night, and there he stood in the doorway in the costume of a chorister, so that he could be near me on the stage. If there was a trace of anxiety left that dissipated it.

The muffled sound of the orchestra was rising. Somewhere a call-boy cried my name, and Mr. Conried led me into the wings. I heard my entrance cue. "Watch the conductor," he whispered. Next moment I was on the stage. Faces everywhere and reaching to high heaven—that was the moment's impression of my first Metropolitan audience.

A wave of welcoming applause that swept the house was kindly meant, but disconcerting. It caused me to lose track of the orchestra. But the conductor's eye was on me. In a moment I caught his nod and was singing. The faces grew blurred and distant. A consciousness of the audience as many in one came over me. I found myself singing to that one. I had so wanted to sing to it, dreamed of it.

My dream had come true, and I sang with joy in my heart—a joy that overflowed when I stood dazed and spellbound by the volley of applause and cheers. "Famose!" boomed the voice of Mr. Conried behind me, and I drank life's sweetest draft from the cup of success. The end of the night was like the beginning. I remember it only dimly. But the three weeks of preparation, I shall never forget them.

Oscar Saenger always said I would sing in opera. But he insisted just as firmly that the right opportunity would not come until I was perfectly ready. It took me seven years to learn that lesson, and I advise every young singer to take it to heart.

The House That Cook Built.

This is the house that Cook built.
This is the grub that lay in the house that Cook built.
This is the man who gave out on the way and was sent by Cook to the shack to stay and make free use of the grub that lay in the house that Cook built.
This is the sailor all savage and grim, who replaced the man with the crippled limb and was given a note from Peary that said, "This man is in charge because Cook is dead," and gobbled the grub that lay in the house that Cook built.
This is the sportsman all jaunty and gay, who strolled up into the Arctic to play, and dropt in at the shack of his friend on the way, and encountered a sailor all savage and grim, who replaced the man with a crippled limb and had a note from Peary which said: "This man is in charge because Cook is dead," and gobbled the grub that lay in the house that Cook built.
This is the owner just back from the Pole, who called at his house and found it quite droll that his guest, the sportsman so jaunty and gay who had strolled up into the Arctic to play and had stopped at the shack of his friend on the way, should be slave to a sailor all savage and grim, who replaced the man with the crippled limb, and showed him a note from Peary that said: "This man is in charge because Cook is dead," and gobbled the grub that lay in the house that Cook built.—Springfield Republican.

FUN FOR EVERYBODY.

Barring-Out Day Was General Treat For Village.

The fun on Barring-out day was not always confined to the teacher and scholars only, says an old teacher in the Bruce County district. The boys had at least the sympathy of the grown-up ones of the village and sometimes this sympathy was very active against the tactics of the teacher to gain admission to the school. So it often happened that the poor teacher, while fighting the hordes within, was surrounded by enemies and traitors without.

On one occasion, after dismissing school, and as I was looking out of one of the windows, I observed that it was fastened down securely. Investigation revealed the fact that the other windows. I observed that it was fastened down securely. Investigation revealed the fact that the other windows had been similarly treated. This evidently had been done while I was absent at my noon-day meal, and it revealed the plot of a serious mutiny next morning.

Next morning I was in the schoolhouse very early, but not much earlier than the first scouts, consisting of four or five of the larger boys, who came, not cautiously looking for or expecting the enemy, but running at full speed, and, finding the door open, and evidently thinking that some of their comrades had got there before them, they rushed into the school. I pretended that I was not conscious of their presence or of their confusion and disappointment when they saw me reading a book at my desk. Then numbers increased rapidly and a council of war was held in the school yard. After due deliberations a little boy with red hair, afterwards a noted athlete and bank manager, was sent in to tell me that the village blacksmith wished to see me. I expressed surprise: I had been talking to him that morning, but asked the boy to return and tell the blacksmith I could not go just then, but would call on him at noon.

But time passed rapidly, 9 o'clock arrived, school was called, and the plot was foiled. The boys took their seats, many of them without their books, and commenced work in about the same humor they would be in if they were sent to split and carry in wood when they expected to go fishing. The lesson assigned to the fourth class that day was "Pontiac's Attempt to Capture Fort Detroit." At the close the scene when Pontiac and his followers rushed through the gate and found the soldiers within ready to receive them, and, after allowing the boys time to meditate, I told them I could see a striking likeness between those baffled Indians then and themselves that morning when they found me in the school ready to receive them. The boys enjoyed the joke on themselves, but declared they would get even with me, and they did two or three days afterwards, but at the expense of rising early enough to get possession of the school before daylight.

Many of these boys are now honorable members of society and holding good and responsible positions, and it would be strange if it were not so, because they had the advantage of the heredity of parents who did not fail to give them a good education and sound training, both by precept and example.

A Rising Newspaper Man.

Paul E. Bilkey, the new president of the Press Gallery of the House of Commons, is a young newspaper man rapidly coming to the front as a clever and entertaining writer and a keen observer of public affairs. He was born at St. George, Bermuda, some 30 years ago, and is the son of an Anglican clergyman. When very young Mr. Bilkey came to Canada and located in Toronto, where he was educated. He entered the field of journalism in 1896 and has been identified with The Toronto Star and later with The Telegram. He has been Parliamentary correspondent of that progressive paper since 1903, and is building a splendid reputation for himself as an all-around newspaper man, alert and watchful, a good news gatherer, and a witty and humorous reporter of current events.

On his present paper he distinguished himself years ago by his bright sketches of proceedings in the Police Court. In fact, there used to be a heresy that more people read The Telegram's Police Court than read its editorials; but, of course, that was long ago.

Mr. Bilkey has a large circle of friends in the capital and is married to an Ottawa girl, formerly Miss Sarah Dalton.

Miss Cameron's Views.

In Miss Agnes Dean Cameron's volume, just issued, she tells in her well-known dashing style of the wonders of the mighty region traversed. "There has always been a West," she says. "For the Greeks there was Sicily; Carthage was the western outpost of Tyre; and young Roman patricians conquered Gaul and speculated in real estate on the sites of London and Liverpool. But the West that we are entering upon is the Last West, the last unoccupied frontier under a white man's sky." Concerning the extent of our untilled, fertile, northern empire, she says: "Place a pair of dividers with one leg on Winnipeg and the other leg at Key West, Florida. Then swing the lower leg to the Northwest, and it will not reach the limit of good agricultural land."

The Soliciter-General.

Hon. Jacques Bureau, Solicitor-General in the Dominion Cabinet, had rather a strenuous experience in his younger days. He was private secretary to the late Hon. John Norquay, then Premier of Manitoba. When Mr. Greenway succeeded Mr. Norquay, Mr. Bureau was unceremoniously "fired" on the assumption that he was a Tory. As a matter of fact, he had no politics. But what made the situation very hard for him was the fact that he hadn't a dollar to his name, and could not speak a word of English, he having been reared in Quebec. However, he managed to get a job, and by degrees mastered English, so that he made the best of the situation. Now he speaks English like a native, and is on easy street financially.

BERNIER'S MUSK-OX.

Explorer's Specimen Is Now In New York Zoo.

A new baby musk-ox, one of the rarest and most noteworthy animals of the Polar world and one seldom seen in the temperate zone, has just arrived and is on exhibition at the New York Zoological Garden. The present one is the only specimen in captivity in the United States. The little northern-dwelling creature has come from over a six-thousand-mile journey from Melville Island, one of the most westerly of the Arctic islands, longitude 75 degrees north, latitude 110 west. She was captured by Capt. Joseph E. Bernier, the Canadian Government explorer, and brought on a vessel to Quebec. Through the efforts of Director W. T. Hornaday, she was acquired by Dr. Cecil French, a veterinarian animal dealer of Washington, acting for the New York Zoological Society. From this point the animal was boxed up comfortably in an express crate and shipped to New York. The musk-ox is about six months old, and is a splendid, healthy specimen with a happy disposition, good temper, etc.

The musk-ox is quartered in a large corral adjoining the Rocky Mountain sheep, on Mountain Sheep Hill. Her diet for the present, will be a mixture of clover hay, crushed oats and various chopped vegetables. The entire body is covered with a dense mass of fine dark brown hair of a woolly nature, having a broad white band across the forehead and a light grey saddle mark. The legs are of a white or greyish color. The two horns, an inch or so long, are hidden in the thick mass of wool on the head. In time, however, the horns will grow together at the base until they meet in the centre of the forehead.

The baby is about three feet long and nearly two and a half feet in height and might be said to be nearly half-grown, and weighs 200 pounds. A full-size adult male stands four feet five inches high at the shoulder and is six feet seven inches in length, weighing about 1,200 pounds. The fact that it is the only living specimen of this extremely rare land mammal to reach civilization for a long time, and the great difficulty in capturing and transporting the animal in safety from the far north, surrounds the musk-ox with more than ordinary zoological and popular interest.

The meat of the musk-ox is as good as any beef, and Commander Peary and all Arctic explorers have had to depend largely on the flesh of this creature to furnish food. Structurally the musk-ox stands in a genus of its own, midway between cattle and sheep. Commander Peary states that the musk-ox of the far north is a very strong and tireless animal. It does a great deal of work walking and pawing in the course of a day's grazing. They travel and feed in herds of from five to twenty-five. Hunting musk-ox, though entailing a great deal of work, is not difficult. Either from natural stupidity or as the result of their freedom from molestation in their Arctic fastnesses, they are comparatively tame. A large herd, on the approach of men and dogs, forms in a bunch, heads radiating, calves, if any, under their mothers, and the big bull leader standing outside of the bunch, head down and pawing the ground, ready for a charge in any direction. Single animals, or two or three together, run only to the nearest rock ledge, hill-top or other natural feature which may afford them some protection in the rear when they turn and face the enemy. They fall an easy prey to the rifles, and require little skill to kill.

The musk-ox inhabits the northeast coast of Greenland, from Franz Joseph Fiord, latitude 70 degrees, to the most northerly point of land, and also the Barren Grounds of northern Canada north of latitude 64 degrees from Great Bear Lake to Hudson Bay and Grant Land. It is said by explorers that there are none of these animals in any part of Alaska within two or three hundred miles west of the Mackenzie. At the present rate at which they are being killed by whalers, Arctic explorers and the natives, the musk-ox is destined soon to be a creature of the past.

The Toronto General Trusts Corporation

Report of Proceedings of the Twenty-eighth Annual General Meeting.

The Twenty-eighth Annual Meeting of the Shareholders of The Toronto General Trusts Corporation was held in the Board Room of the Corporation, on the corner of Yonge and Colborne streets, Toronto, on Wednesday, the 2nd of February, 1910.

There were present:—

Hon. J. M. Gibson, K.C., Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., Hon. Robert Jaffray, J. W. Langmuir, D. R. Wilkie, Samuel Nordheimer, Alfred Myers, G. A. Stimson, E. R. Greig, Thomas Patterson, W. R. Brock, Arthur C. Hardy, Frederick Wyld, J. Bruce Macdonald, Thomas Long, Sir William Mortimer Clark, K.C., John L. Blaikie, James Maclennan, Sir Aemilius Irving, LL.D., E. Galley, Hamilton Cassels, K.C., Alexander Nairn, James Kerr Osborne, W. B. Couch, A. E. Malone, C. S. Gzowski, T. J. Magurn, F. R. Dymond, J. A. H. Burt, H. M. Forbes, Frank M. Pratt, W. N. Lonsdale, H. C. Hewitson, J. G. Scott, K.C., George Porter, Wm. G. Watson.

The Vice-President, the Jon. J. J. Foy, took the chair, and Mr. A. D. Langmuir, the Assistant Manager, acted as Secretary to the meeting.

The financial statements, showing the operations of the Corporation for the year ending 31st December, 1909, were submitted and commented upon by the Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Langmuir.

TWENTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE DIRECTORS OF THE TORONTO GENERAL TRUSTS CORPORATION FOR THE YEAR ENDED 31st. DECEMBER, 1909.

The report to the Shareholders was then read as follows:—

To the Shareholders:—

Your Directors have pleasure in submitting the Twenty-eighth Annual Report of the Corporation, accompanied with the financial statements, showing its operations for the year ended 31st December, 1909.

Executorships	$ 708,115 57
Administrations	311,413 48
Trusteeships	1,553,195 47
Guardianships and Committeeships	69,599 92
Guaranteed Investments	548,923 08
General Agencies	120,700 96
General Investment Agencies	275,774 93
Lunatic Estates	17,281 94
	$3,615,005 93

In addition to the foregoing the Corporation has also been appointed during the year Trustee for Bond issues to the amount of $2,536,000.

The net profits of the year, after payment of all expenses at the Head Office and Branches, and after making provision for every ascertained loss, amount to $162,353.78, as compared with $131,181.88 for 1908. To these net profits have to be added $22,417.16 brought forward from 1908, thus leaving $184,770.94 at the credit of Profit and Loss, as against $153,350.66 in 1908.

Out of these profits your Directors have declared and paid two semi-annual dividends of four per cent., on the Corporation's stock for the year, amounting to $80,000; have added to Reserve the sum of $50,000, thereby increasing that fund to $500,000, and have carried forward to the credit of Profit and Loss the sum of $54,770.94, making the total paid-up capital and surplus of the Corporation as at 31st December, 1909, $1,554,770.94.

Your Directors decided during the year that, as the Corporation had quite outgrown its present office and vault accommodation at Toronto, the time had come to make provision for a new Head Office. To this end they have purchased a lot on the corner of Bay and Melinda streets, and are proceeding with the erection of an up-to-date eight-story building, the first three floors of which will be occupied by the Corporation.

Your Directors announce with deep regret that, owing to impaired health, Dr. Hoskin (who for the past four months has been residing in England) desires to retire from the Presidency of the Corporation. A committee of the Directorate has been appointed to carefully consider the question of selecting a fitting successor to Dr. Hoskin, who will be able to devote a good deal of his time to the duties of the Presidency. The Directors are pleased to say that Dr. Hoskin has decided to remain on the Board, and to continue as President until his successor is appointed.

The Hon. S. G. Wood resigned from the Vice-Presidency of the Corporation, as well as from the Directorate, and his place as Vice-President has been filled by the appointment of the Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P.P., who is one of the charter members of the Corporation, having been a Director, continuously, for twenty-eight years.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

J. W. LANGMUIR, Managing Director.
W. H. BEATTY, Vice-President.

Toronto, February 2nd, 1910.

AUDITORS CERTIFICATE

We, the undersigned, beg to report that we have made a full examination of the books, accounts and vouchers of The Toronto General Trusts Corporation to the 31st December, 1909, and find same to be correct and properly set forth in the above statements of Profit and Loss and Assets and Liabilities. We have examined, and find in order, all the mortgages, debentures, bonds and scrip of the Corporation, as well as those negotiated for the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, and Trusts, Estates and Agencies in the Corporation's hands, and have checked same with the Mortgage and Debenture Ledgers and Registers. The Bankers' balances, after deducting outstanding cheques, agree with the books of the Corporation.

We have also examined the reports of the Auditors of the Winnipeg and Ottawa Branches, and find that they agree with the Head Office books.

R. F. SPENCE, F.C.A., "CAN.,"
GEO. MACBETH,
Auditors.

Toronto, January 29th, 1910.

The Managing Director, Mr. J. W. Langmuir in Presenting the Statement of Affairs of the Corporation for the Past Year Said:—

It gives me much pleasure to submit the statements showing the operations of the Corporation for the past year, as I am confident they will be accepted by the Shareholders and all concerned as being very satisfactory. The financial results of the past twelve months are the best in the history of the Corporation, and, what is perhaps of equal, if not greater, importance, the year closed with marked evidences of constantly-increasing confidence in and appreciation of the objects of the Corporation.

The Profit and Loss Statement accompanying the report which has just been presented shows that the gross profits of the past year amounted to $324,602.72, and the net profits to $162,353.78, which, together with $22,417.16 brought forward from the previous year, make a total of $184,770.94 brought down to the credit of Profit and Loss.

In the preparation of our Profit and Loss Statement for the year we have continued our policy of only taking such compensation for the management of estates and trusts as has been passed upon by the courts or agreed to by the beneficiaries of estates and trusts. I think, therefore, I am warranted in saying that the Profit and Loss Statement is a satisfactory one; for, after payment of an eight percent. dividend amounting to $80,000, we have added $50,000 to Reserve, and have carried forward to the credit of Profit and Loss $54,770.94, making the paid-up capital and surplus of the Corporation $1,554,770.94, an increase for the year of $82,353.78.

The Assets and Liabilities sheet submitted should also be satisfactory, for it will be observed that the assets remaining under the care of the Corporation, after the distribution to beneficiaries of estates of very large amounts, aggregate $37,881,113.53, as compared with $35,161,646.79 last year, or an increase of $2,719,466.74.

The information given to the Shareholders and the public in these statements leads me to again refer to the outstanding features in our work, and which cannot be too often reiterated at annual and other meetings of this Corporation, namely; That we are purely and simply what our name implies—a GENERAL TRUSTS corporation transacting a business of a purely fiduciary character. We are in no sense a speculative company, for we scrupulously confine ourselves to the management of estates, trusts and work of a kindred character. We do not conduct a banking department for the receipt of deposits to be held subject to withdrawal by cheque, believing that our entire energies should be devoted to the proper and prompt investment of the trust and agency funds committed to our care. I have, however, no fault to find with companies that adopt a different course, but, believing that trust companies created for the administration of trusts and estates should practically last forever, the Board of this Corporation have laid down the principle, and have acted on it from its inception, that we shall exclusively confine ourselves to a trust and agency business.

Dr. Hoskin further states: "There are many matters connected with the interests of the Corporation and its beneficiaries present to my mind, which, however, are beyond the scope of this letter, but I may be pardoned for briefly referring to one, viz., that concerning litigation—a matter concerning which I can speak with some confidence, regard being had to the fact that my practice was almost entirely connected with estates and their administration. During the existence of this Corporation, now extending over a period of twenty-seven years, it has been Executor, Trustee, etc., for thousands of estates, yet litigation against the Corporation has been practically nil, and, so far as my memory serves me, in no case has it been adverse, a matter upon which I have often commented, and which certainly reflects credit upon the Corporation, and should commend itself to beneficiaries and the public. And this record is all the more surprising when one considers the conflicting interests that spring up between those for whom we are Trustees, and the knotty and troublesome questions that are constantly arising in connection with the administration of Trusts—a gratifying result arising. I am justified in saying, from the care exercised by the Board of Management."

I can only add that Mr. Hoskin was admirably fitted for the position of President of a Trust Company. His great experience in legal work similar to what came before him as President, and his unfailing courtesy with all who came in contact with him, exceptionally well qualified him for the position.

It was with much regret that the Board received the resignation of the Hon. S. C. Wood as Vice-President, as well as from the Directorate, and as his successor had to be elected at once the Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P., was appointed Vice-President in his stead.

Before I sit down I have pleasure in stating that the investments made by the Corporation for trust, guarantee and agency accounts, as well as for

On motion of the Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., seconded by Sir Wm. Mortimer K.C., the report of the Directors was adopted.

The report of the Inspection Committee was also adopted as signed by the Hon. J. J. Foy, Sir Aemilius Irving and Mr. Frederick Wyld.

W. H. Beatty, John L. Blaikie, W. R. Brock, Hamilton Cassels, K.C., Sir Wm. Mortimer Clark, K.C., LL.D., Hon. Senator W. C. Edwards, Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., M.P.P., Col. Hon. J. M. Gibson, K.C., Arthur C. Hardy, John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D., J. W. Langmuir, Thomas Long, J. Bruce Macdonald, Sir Daniel H. McMillan, K.C.M.G., W. D. Matthews, Hon. Peter McLaren, E. B. Osler, J. G. Scott, K.C., Sir Aemilius Irving, K.C., Hon. Senator Robert Jaffray, Samuel Nordheimer, B. E. Walker, LL.D., D.C.L., D. R. Wilkie, Frederick Wyld, E. T. Malone, K.C.

At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors Dr. John Hoskin re-elected President, and W. H. Beatty and the Hon. J. J. Foy, K. C., Vice-Presidents.

on the sea and the town as well. It is said that Wyckholme slept there twice, while Skaggs looked in perhaps half a dozen times—when he was lost in the building and trying to find his way back to familiar haunts.

There was not a sign of a servant about the house or grounds. The men whom Bowles had engaged carried the luggage to the rooms which Lady Deppingham selected and then vanished as if into space.

"They say these Americans are a wonderful people, my lord," ventured Mr. Bowles. "I dare say when Mr. and Mrs. Browne arrive they'll have some way of"—

"Browne!" cried her ladyship. "This very evening I shall give orders concerning the rooms they are to occupy I suppose, however, that the rooms we have taken are the best?"

"The choicest, my lady," said Bowles, bowing.

"See here, Mr.—er—old chap, don't you think you can induce the servants to come back to us? By Jove, I'll make it worth your while."

"What are we to do?" wailed Lady Agnes, sitting down suddenly upon the edge of a fountain.

"You see, my lady, they take the position that you have no right here," volunteered Bowles. "They've got the ridiculous idea into their noddles that you can't be the heiress unless Lord Deppingham passes away inside of a year, and"—

"I'm —— if I do!" roared the perspiring obstacle. "I'm not so obliging as that, let me tell you. If it comes to that, what sort of ass do they think I'd be to come away out here to pass away? London's good enough for any man to die in."

"You are not going to die, Deppy," said his wife consolingly, "unless you starve to death," she supplemented, with an expressive moue.

CHAPTER VII.

THE BROWNES ARRIVE.

CONTRARY to all expectations, the Brownes arrived the next morning. The Deppinghams and their miserably frightened servants were scarcely out of bed when Saunders came in with the news that a steamer was standing off the shallow harbor. Bowles had telephoned up that the American claimant was on board.

The deepest gloom pervaded the household when Lady Deppingham discovered that not one of their retinue knew how to make coffee or broil bacon—not that she cared for bacon, but that his lordship always asked for it when they did not have it.

Bromley upset the last peg of endurance by hoping that the Americans were bringing a cook and a housemaid with them.

"The Americans always travel like lords," she concluded, forgetting that she served a lord and not in the least intending to be ironical.

"That will do, Bromley," said her mistress sharply. "If they're like most Americans I've seen they'll have nothing but wet nurses and chauffeurs. I can't eat this vile stuff. Come on, Deppy. Let's go up and watch the approach of the enemy."

Scarcely half an hour passed before the advance guard of the Browne company came into view at the park gates below. Deppingham recalled the fact that an hour and a half had been consumed in the accomplishment yesterday. He was keeping a sharp lookout for the magic red jacket and the Tommy Atkins lid. Quite secure from observation, he and his wife watched the forerunners with the hand bags; then came the sweating trunk bearers and then crated objects in—what? Yes, by the Lord Harry, in the very carts that had been their private chariots the day before!

Deppingham's wrath did not really explode until the two were gazing open mouthed upon Robert Browne and his wife and his maidservants and his ass, for that was the name which his lordship subsequently applied, with no moderation, to the unfortunate gentleman who served as Mr. Browne's attorney. The Americans were being swiftly, coolly carried to their new home in litters of oriental comfort and elegance, fanned vigorously from both sides by eager boys. First came the Brownes, eager faced, bright eyed, alert young people, far better looking than their new enemies could conscientiously admit under the circumstances; then the lawyer from the States; then a pert young lady in a pink shirt waist and a sailor hat; then two giggling, utterly un-English maids, and all of them lolling in luxurious ease. The red jacket was conspicuously absent.

It is not to be wondered at that his lordship looked at his wife, gulped in sympathy and then said something memorable.

Almost before they could realize what had happened the newcomers were chattering in the spacious halls below, tramping about the rooms and giving orders in high, though apparently efficacious voices. Close at their heels trooped the servants, all of whom took part in the discussion incident to fresh discoveries. At last they came upon the great balcony, pausing just outside the French windows to exclaim anew in their delight.

"Great!" said the lawyer man after a full minute. "Finest I've ever seen! Isn't it a picture, Browne?"

"Glorious!" said young Mr. Browne, taking a long breath. The Deppinghams, sitting unobserved, saw that he was a tall, good looking fellow. They were unconscionably amused when he suddenly reached out and took his wife's hand in his big fingers. She was very trim and cool looking in the white duck.

"What does Baedeker say about it, Bobby?" asked Mrs. Browne. Her voice was very soft and full—the quiet, well cultivated Boston voice and manner.

The pert girl in the pink waist opened a small portfolio, while the others gathered around her. She read therefrom. The lawyer drew a compass from his pocket and pointed vaguely into what proved to be the southwest.

"We must tell Lady Deppingham not to take the rooms at this end," was the next thing that the listeners hear, from Mrs. Browne's lips. Her ladyship turned upon her husband with a triumphant sniff.

"What did I tell you," she whispered. "I knew they'd want the best of everything. Isn't it lucky I pounced upon these rooms? They shan't turn us out. You won't let 'em, will you, Deppy?"

"The impudence of 'em," was all that Deppy could sputter.

At that moment the American party caught sight of the pair in the corner. For a brief space of time the two parties stared at each other, very much as the hunter and the hunted look when they come face to face without previous warning. Then a friendly, half abashed smile lighted Browne's face.

"I beg your pardon," said Browne. "This is Lord Deppingham?"

"Ya-as," drawled Deppy, with a long which was meant to convey the impression that he did not know who the deuce he was addressing.

"Permit me to introduce myself. I am Robert Browne."

"Oh," said Deppy, as if that did not convey anything to him. Then, as an afterthought, "Glad to know you, I'm sure." Still he did not rise, nor did he extend his hand. For a moment young Browne waited, a dull red growing in his temples.

"Don't you intend to present me to Lady Deppingham?" he demanded bluntly without taking his eyes from Deppy's face.

"Oh—er—is that neces"—

"Lady Deppingham," interrupted Browne, "I am Robert Browne, the man you are expected to marry. We are here for the same purpose, I suspect. We can't be married to each other. That's out of the question. But we can live together as if we"—

"Good Lord!" roared Deppy, coming to his feet in a towering rage. Browne smiled apologetically and lifted his hand.

—"as if we were serving out the prescribed period of courtship set down in the will. Believe me, I am very happily married, as I hope you are. The courtship, you will perceive, is neither here nor there. Our every issue is identical, Lady Deppingham. Doesn't it strike you that we will be very foolish if we stand alone and against each other?"

"My solicitor"— began Lady Deppingham and then stopped. She was smiling in spite of herself.

"Your solicitor and mine can get together and talk it over," said Browne blandly. "We'll leave it to them. I am quite ready to be a friendly ally, not a foe."

"Let me understand you," began Deppingham, cooling off suddenly. "Do you mean to say that you are not going to fight us in this matter?"

"Not at all, your lordship," said Browne coolly. "I am here to fight Taswell Skaggs and John Wyckholme, deceased. I think both of us will run no risk if we smash the will. If we don't smash it the islanders will cheerfully take the legacy off our hands."

"By Jove!" muttered Deppy, looking at his wife.

"Thank you, Mr. Browne, for being so frank with us," she said coolly. "If you don't mind, I will consult my solicitor." She bowed ever so slightly, indicating that the interview was at an end and, moreover, that it had not been of her choosing.

"Any time, your ladyship," said Browne, also bowing. "I think Mrs. Browne wants to speak to you about the rooms."

"We are quite settled, Mr. Browne, and very well satisfied," she said pointedly, bowing red with a fresh touch of anger.

"I trust you have not taken the rooms at this end."

"We have. We are occupying them."

"I'm sorry," said Browne. "We were warned not to take them. They are said to be unbearable when the hot winds come in October."

"What's that?" demanded Deppingham.

"The book of instructions and description which we have secured sets all that out," said the other. "It's strange that the servants didn't warn you."

"The—the confounded servants left us yesterday before we came, every mother's son of 'em. There isn't a servant on the place."

"What? You don't mean it? I say, Britt, come here a moment, will you? Lord Deppingham says the servants have struck."

The American lawyer, a chubby, red faced man of forty, with clear gray eyes and a stubby mustache, whistled soulfully.

"I'll see what I can do, Mr. Browne. Got to have cooks, eh, Lord Deppingham?" Without waiting for an answer he dashed off. The native carriers were leaving the grounds when Britt's shrill whistle brought them to a standstill. The lawyer waved a triumphant hand to his friends and then climbed into one of the litters to be borne off in the direction of the town.

"He'll have the servants back at work before 2 o'clock," said Browne calmly. Deppingham was transfixed with astonishment.

"How—how the devil do you—does he bring 'em to time like that?" he murmured. He afterward said that if he had had Saunders there at that humiliating moment he would have kicked him.

"Good Lord!" roared Deppy in a towering rage.

"They're afraid of the American battleship," said Browne.

"But where is the American battleship?" demanded Deppingham, looking wildly to sea.

"They understand that there will be one here in a day or two if we need it," said Browne, with a sly grin. "That's the bluff we've worked." He looked around for his wife and, finding that she had gone inside, politely waved his hand to the Englishmen and followed.

At 3 o'clock Britt returned with the recalcitrant servants—or at least the "nick" of them, as he termed the score he had chosen from the hundred or more. He seemed to have an Aladdin-like effect over the horde.

Calmly taking Lord Deppingham and his following into his confidence, he said, in reply to their indignant remonstrances, later on in the day:

"I know that an American man-o'-war hasn't any right to fire upon British possessions, but you just keep quiet and let well enough alone. They just simply know that I can send wireless messages and that a cruiser would be out there tomorrow if necessary, pegging away at those green hills with cannon balls so big that there wouldn't be anything left but the horizon in an hour or two. You let me do the talking. I've got 'em bluffed, and I'll keep 'em that way."

Over in the gorgeous west wing Lord Deppingham later on tried to convince his sulky little wife that the Americans were an amazing lot, after all. Bromley tapped at the door.

"Tea is served in the hanging garden, my lady," she announced. Her mistress looked up in surprise, red eyed and a bit disheveled.

"Ask some one to bring the tea things in here, Bromley," she said sternly. "Besides, I want to give some orders. We must have system here, not Americanisms."

The tea things did not come in. In their stead came pretty Mrs. Browne.

"Won't you please join Mr. Browne and me in that dear little garden? It's so cool up there, and it must be dreadfully warm here. Really, you should move at once into Mr. Wyckholme's old apartments, across the court from ours. They are splendid. But now do come and have tea with us."

CHAPTER VIII.

THE MAN FROM BRODNEY'S.

IT was quite forty-eight hours before the Deppinghams surrendered to the Brownes. They were obliged to humbly admit in the seclusion of their own councils that it was to the obnoxious but energetic Britt that they owed their present and ever growing comfort.

Late in the afternoon of the day following the advent of the Brownes, Lord and Lady Deppingham were laboriously fanning themselves in the midst of their stifling Marie Antoinette elegance.

"By Jove, Aggy, it's too beastly hot here for words," growled he for the hundredth time. "I think we'd better move into your grandfather's rooms."

"Now, Deppy, don't let the Brownes talk you into everything they suggest," she complained, determined to be stubborn to the end. "They know entirely too much."

"That's all very good, my dear, but you know quite as well as I that we made a frightful mistake in choosing these rooms. It is cooler on that side of the house. I'm not too proud to be comfortable, don't you know."

The next day they moved into the west wing, and that evening they had the Brownes to dine with them in the banquet hall. Deppingham awoke in the middle of the night with violent cramps in his stomach.

"Don't say a word to Lady Deppingham," he grunted, sitting up in bed and gazing wildly at his valet, "but I've been poisoned. The —— servants—ouch!—don't you know! Might have known. Silly ass! See what I mean? Get something for me—quick!"

For two hours Antoine applied hot water bags and soothing syrups, and his master, far from dying as he continually prophesied, dropped off into a peaceful sleep.

The next morning Deppingham, fully convinced that the native servants had tried to poison him, unconditionally discharged the entire force.

Of course there was a great upheaval. Lady Agnes came tearing down to the servants' hall, followed directly by the Brownes and Mr. Britt.

"Stop!" she cried. "Deppy, what are you doing? Discharging them after we've had such a time getting them? Are you crazy?"

"They're a pack of snakes—I mean sneaks. They're assassins. They tried to poison every one of us last"—

Britt smoothed the troubled waters with astonishing ease. The servants returned to their duties, but not without grumbling and no end of savage glances, all of which were leveled at the luckless Deppingham.

"Why poison?" demanded Britt. "They've got knives and guns, haven't they?"

"My dear man, that would put them to no end of trouble cleaning up after us," said Deppingham loftily.

Meanwhile it may be well to depict the situation from the enemy's point of view—the enemy being the islanders as a unit. They were prepared to abide by the terms of the will so long as it remained clear to them that fair treatment came from the opposing interests. Rasula, the Aratat lawyer, in mass meeting had discussed the document. They understood its requirements and its restrictions; they knew by this time that there was small chance of the original beneficiaries coming into the property under the provisions. Later came the news that marriage between the heirs was out of the question. Then the islanders laughed as they toiled. But they were not to be caught napping. Jacob von Blitz, the superintendent, stolid German that he was, saw far into the future. It was he who set the native lawyer unceremoniously aside and urged competent representation in London. The great law firm headed by Sir John Brodney was chosen. A wide awake representative of the distinguished solicitors was now on his way to the island with the swarthy committee which had created so much interest in the metropolis during its brief stay.

Jacob von Blitz came to the island when he was twenty years old. That was twenty years before the death of Taswell Skaggs. He had worked in the South African diamond fields and had no difficulty in securing employment with Skaggs and Wyckholme.

Von Blitz was shrewd enough to see that the grandchildren were not coming to the island for the mere pleasure of sojourning there; their motive was plain. It was he who advised—even commanded—the horde of servants to desert the chateau.

He lived, with his three wives, in the hills just above and south of the

PRODUCT AND HORSE POWER

A correspondent who writes the issue of the Daily Review of Tuesday, refers, among other matters, to the output from the mills of the Quaker Oats Company, here, and to the amount of power required in the mills.

Our correspondent has not made enquiry or he would have learned that instead of his estimate of the product of a day's work at the Quaker Oats Company's mills being 100 tons, it is really a trifle over 700 tons. Instead of 2,500 horse power being required to do this work, 1800 horse power is fairly ample for the service. The total output from the mills would run considerably over half a million tons per year, while an addition to the daily output of 700 tons. Nearly 300 barrels of feed are also manufactured.

The Company's output and requirements will both increase, but as at present it takes only about 2 1-2 h.p. for each ton of product turned out.

LEAVES FROM A NATURALIST'S SCRAPBOOK.

Who loves the solitary morning hour,
The moss-grown woodland path, the myst'ry of
Some forest dell?
Who sees with rapture sunlight on a flower
Or learns with quiet joy the history of
A heather-bell?

Who seeks at noon the willow-bordered stream
Whose limpid course 'twixt verdant pasture lands
Lies undisturbed?
Who loves 'mid drowsy nature's soft daydream
To watch the water's gleam—with idle hands
And soul allured?

Who mounts to watch the majesty which girds
The hills with magic radiance and the skies
With farewell glow?
Who listens to the twilight songs of birds
Whose mournful notes bring back those memories
Of long ago?

Come with me to the realm of dawn
Where the dewdrops sit in wreaths
On the op'ning sunflower's tawny cheek,
And the wind a fragrance breathes.

Where the sighing crests of the poplar trees
Impresson the sun's first ray.
And the feathered flock in their nests beneath
Awake to greet the day.

Where the last pale star in myst'ry fades.
And warmer lights adorn
The eastern heaven's stilly face
With wakening smiles of morn.

O, come! O, come! And you shall see
A sight thrice fairer far
Than moonlight on Italian lakes
Or chateaux of Navarre!

Who with a humble mind and faith secure
The seeing eye employs to make his own
Earth's beauteous things—
Ah, he hath surely some of Nature's pure
Still-burning fire of Genius — which alone
Contentment brings.

BIG YEAR FOR CANADA LIFE

That a company in its sixty-third year should establish new records in spite of notable achievements in the past is both unusual and unexpected, yet the Canada Life has done that, and the outcome of it is that over $2,000,000 will be allotted in profits to the policy-holders in this, its dividend year. This is largely in excess of the amount divided five years ago, and individual policies will receive materially larger dividends than those of 1905.

All along the line gains were made in 1909, the new business paid for, over $10,000,000, being greater in amount than for several years, while the gain in surplus of nearly $1,200,000, and the increase in assets of almost $3,000,000, constitute records in the company's history.

The total business in force is now almost $125,000,000, the assets aggregate a actual amount as well as in ratio, although the Company's business is constantly increasing.

NORTH GRAY MEMBER SAYS LAURIER'S STAND IS TEPID

W. S. Middleboro in Debate on Naval Bill, Says Premier's Attitude in Behalf of Canada Was Less Service to Britain Than That of Japan.

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—W. S. Middleboro, the young Conservative member for North Grey, resumed the debate in the Commons yesterday, on the second reading of the navy bill. It had been expected that Hon. Geo. E. Foster would speak, but he will not take part in the debate until Thursday, when Sir Frederick Borden will also address the House.

He made his best point when he declared that the attitude of the Premier, when he affirmed that he would not go to war when Britain was at war until he had decided whether it was a war in which Canada should take part, was less loyal, less patriotic, and of less service to Great Britain than an ordinary ally of the Empire would be.

Mr. Middleboro read extracts from the British treaty with Japan to show that one of the contracting parties would not have even the right to discuss whether it would go to war or not, if one of them was at war, but must instantly take part in any hostilities.

He declared that the supremacy of the British navy had been the cause of our maritime peace for over a century. By strengthening the naval force of the Empire we would be guaranteeing the peace of the world. Great Britain was spending $900,000 per day on the army and navy, and Canadians got the benefit of it. He regarded the Imperial navy as nothing less than an insurance policy against the horrors of war.

The Premier had declared that there was no emergency. Mr. Middleboro said that the very reason why this bill was before the House was because an emergency existed. By the proposals of the Government it would be ten years before a single ship of the Canadian navy would be in active service and capable of rendering assistance to the Empire.

F. L. Fowke (Lib., South Ontario) endorsed the naval policy. The Government had not accepted the larger proposal of the Admiralty, which was more than Canada could be reasonably expected to accomplish at present; neither had it shown any meanness of spirit by accepting the smaller plan, but had gone in for the medium policy. Mr. Fowke was not impressed by the German menace, which had been to a large extent manufactured by a section of the British press, and which had now passed away.

The Opposition had proposed to vote a large sum of money—probably twenty millions of dollars—for constructing two Dreadnoughts, and it was further proposed that in regard to the expenditure of this sum the people of Canada were to have no determining voice.

He could not understand why the Opposition should object to the control of the navy by the Canadian Parliament. Was it because they were distrustful of themselves, and had no confidence in the Canadian people? Was it because they had no more confidence in that portion of the race which lives in the British Isles than in Canadians?

Martin Burrill (Con., Yale-Caribou), who followed, referred for a second time to the fact that a number of Liberal newspapers had claimed that the National Anthem had been sung immediately after an inspiring speech by Sir Wilfrid on Thursday last. The Premier should have shown as much concern over this as he did over the fake Borden telegram, which appeared in British Columbia newspapers, and should have had it corrected. The Toronto Globe had published a correction hidden away in the inside of a paper without a heading to indicate what it was, but other newspapers, including The Winnipeg Free Press, had not.

The Commons' railway committee took up a series of bills for the extension of railways controlled by the Lake Superior Corporation. The Soo people, represented by Thos. Reid of Toronto, asked an extension of time for building the line of the Manitoulin and North Shore Railway. It was proposed to drop a third clause for an extension of time for a branch from Meaford to Owen Sound. "Because," said Mr. Reid, "there has been some opposition."

"A very necessary branch," said James Conmee. "That section must n't be dropped."

"Glad to have it in," said Mr. Reid.

The section stays in, and the bill was reported with an amendment proposed by W. R. Smyth requiring a branch from Sudbury to Little Current to be built in three years instead of two years. Three other bills relating to railway projects of the Soo corporation were renewed—one, the Pacific and Atlantic, involving the ambitious project of building from a point in Glengarry to the Soo.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham gave the following revised estimates of the cost of the Hudson Bay Railway, by the alternative routes:

	Churchill.	Nelson.
Construction	..$11,351,520	$8,981,000
Shops, etc.	7,757,152	7,440,000
Port expenses	6,675,000	5,065,000
Total	$25,723,672	$21,486,000

OPPOSITION PRESENT SOME OBJECTIONS TO ONTARIO'S CONDITION

Power Scheme is Helping One Class at the Expense of the Others, Says Mr. McEwing—Public Schools in a Deplorable Condition, Too, He Says.

Toronto, Feb. 9.—On the resumption of the budget debate in the Legislature yesterday afternoon, J. W. McEwing (West Wellington), after expressing regret at the accident which would prevent the Provincial Treasurer from being present at the debate, and a hope for his speedy recovery, continued the criticism of the Government's financial policy along similar lines to those taken by the previous Opposition speaker.

His charge was "extravagance" and he advised a halt in the expenditure. This had increased from $5,396,000 in 1905, till in 1909 it was $8,225,712, and this was not for twelve months, but for ten. To go a little further, the estimated expenditure for 1910 had grown to the enormous sum of $12,364,744. The matter was of serious import to the province.

Mr. McEwing criticised the large expenditure of $2,500,000 on behalf of the Hydro-Electric scheme, as calculated to benefit one class of the community, the manufacturer, at the expense of the rest. He doubted the justification of the expenditure for such a purpose under such conditions.

Turning to the eulogiums of Governmental speakers on the Educational Department, he declared that never in the last fifty years had the public schools been in as deplorable a condition as to-day. In 1909, for the first time in twenty years, had untrained teachers been employed. The change in the school books had added more than the saving effected by the reduction in the price. The readers were not of good quality. The grade of teachers was no higher than six years ago. The cost per pupil for public school education had doubled in eight or nine years. The universities were getting an undue share of the outlay.

In the last connection he took occasion to score the conduct of university students. Those who were being educated largely at the public expense should at least act the part of gentlemen.

He opposed the reduction in mining royalties. Cobalt companies, which had paid $14,252,882 in dividends, or 63 per cent. of the total value of the mines, did not require reduction very badly.

And when he launched out into a denunciation of the expenditure on Government House, which he proposed to abolish, accommodating the Lieutenant-Governor with an office in the Parliament Buildings.

One hundred thousand dollars had been expended in six years. For what? To keep up an establishment to entertain the society people of the City of Toronto. This ill-suited a democrated age.

A. L. Norman (Prince Edward), who followed for the Government, declared that the criticisms on the score of increased expenditure had been sufficiently met by the verdict of the last general election. The Government had gone to the people with a rising barometer in the way of expenditure.

The last speaker's remarks on the low condition of the education system did not rhyme well with those of a previous speaker who claimed for his predecessors the credit for improved conditions.

The down-trodden farmer was a good election cry, but it didn't deceive the farmer. The Government had brought the system of farmers' education right down to their own doors by the appointment of agricultural instructors. He quoted from the experience in his own riding to show that the farmers were satisfied with the way they were being treated.

He was glad to know that a large sum was being spent on higher education. It would educate a class with wider earning capacity.

The cry of "Down with Government House," was an old worn-out dish-rag of a cry. He drew a picture of the gastronomic feats at Government House dinners of the protesting member, which convulsed the House.

A. Ferguson (S. Simcoe), spoke from the standpoint of the farmer. He resented the insinuations that they had not been treated fairly by the present Government.

In reply to criticisms which had been passed on the decrease in the wheat acreage of the province, he wished to say that stock-raising had increased in proportion as the other had decreased.

The farmers had also benefited by the improvement in the public schools and by the reduction in the price of school books. In regard to higher education, 50 per cent. of the university students came from the farm. The taking over of the veterinary college by the Government would also benefit the farming community.

In the Attorney-General's Department no greater boon had been conferred on the farmers than the measure of last reform of last session, by which contracting for fees had been allowed and the number of appeals limited.

The application of prison labor to the furtherance of good roads would also be appreciated by the farmers.

Court For Ladies Only.

Montreal, Feb. 9.—Recorder Weir yesterday instituted a women's court. Previously all women, no matter what the charge against them, came up in open crowded in the same huge prisoner's box as men. The women's court is private.

A Postponement.

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—Further consideration of the bill respecting the Hamilton, Waterloo and Guelph Railway was yesterday set down for Feb. 24 by the railway committee. The hearing has been fixed for Thursday.

MANY OBJECTIONS TO THE LONG SAULT POWER SCHEME

Ontario Government Objects to the Establishment of a Big American Power Plant Near Cornwall—Clifford Sifton Presents a List Containing Many Arguments Against Proposal.

Toronto, Feb. 9.—Severe comments on the lack of information imparted by the plans of the Long Sault Rapids Co. marked the proceedings at the first session of the International Waterways Commission in the Queen's Hotel yesterday.

The commission, which is presided over by George C. Gibbons, K.C., London, consists of Eugene Coste, W. J. Stewart, representing Canadian interests, and Gen. Ernst, Washington; George H. Clinton, Buffalo, and Prof. Haskell, Detroit, have before them the proposition of the Long Sault Rapids Co., which seeks to dam the St. Lawrence River above the Long Sault Rapids, near Cornwall, and to develop initially 200,000 horsepower.

To protest against the scheme four deputations from Montreal, consisting of representatives from the Board of Trade, the shipping federation, the Board of Harbor Commissioners, and the Chambre du Commerce, are in the city. President W. J. Gage and Barlow Cumberland of the Toronto Board of Trade are also strongly opposed to the scheme. The strongest protest, however, was presented by J. N. White of Ottawa, who read Hon. Clifford Sifton's report on the view of the executive committee of the commission of conservation in regard to the application of the company.

Leighton McCarthy, K.C., who represented the company, in whose interests F. H. McGuigan and Henry Holgate were also present, delivered a skilful introductory speech, subsequently introducing the delegates from Brockville, Prescott, Morrisburg and Cornwall, who supported the company's proposition.

Hon. Adam Back pointed out that though the statement had been made that Western Ontario was robbing the east on the power question, the reverse was the case. Power at a price far lower than the Long Sault Rapids Co. had quoted had been offered to Eastern Ontario.

"We have submitted prices to these municipalities of Prescott and Morrisburg," he stated, "based on a twelve-dollar rate, and not on the fifteen-dollar rate as proposed by this company."

The work of the Hydro-Electric Commission covered the whole of Ontario. Port Arthur and Ottawa both benefited by it, and the original scheme which they had under contemplation was to give power from Brockville in the east to Windsor in the west.

He was glad that whatever arrangements were to be made the commission would reserve one-half of the power to Canada. At Niagara Falls two-thirds of the power was being exported.

He considered that the rate regulating clause was useless, the only solution being to own the power, as was done at Niagara. He concluded by stating that he took exception to the Dominion Government ignoring the Province of Ontario, whereas the U.S. Congress before taking action first consulted the State of New York.

The memorandum of the Dominion Commission of Conservation signed by Hon. Clifford Sifton, chairman, was read by James White, secretary. The objections to the project were, in part, as follows:

(1) It is quite possible that serious damage would result from the construction of the works.

(2) The proposed diversion of water by the dam between the Long Sault Island and Barnhart Island would take from the main navigable channel between Barnhart Island and the U. S. mainland about 50 per cent. of its water.

(3) The construction of the dams in question will result in compelling navigation (other than by the Cornwall Canal) to follow a new route known as the South Sault Channel—inferior to that now followed.

(4) The time will undoubtedly arrive in the history of Canada when deeper navigation upon the St. Lawrence will require to be provided for by the Canadian Government.

(6) Looking at the whole scheme, it does not appear that any serious attempt can be made to show that Canadian requirements or Canadian interests are an appreciable factor in the plans of the company.

(10) Although not at present required for actual use, the power possibilities of the St. Lawrence at the Long Sault are very great, and the time will undoubtedly come when they will be of enormous value. The present proposition contemplates giving away this valuable asset without any substantial consideration to a foreign company for its private financial advantage.

(11)—The obvious conclusion from the facts above recited seems to be that the plain duty of Canada is to maintain her rights of ownership and jurisdiction absolutely unimpaired and untrammelled.

There are other considerations to be taken into account besides those of an exclusively material character. Leighton McCarthy submitted that the scheme would be for the benefit of Canada, and the company would undertake to do nothing which had not the approval of the two Governments.

All the company asked was for the benefit of both American and Canadian interests, and he concluded by saying that civilization was the only method of conservation.

Royal Commission to Probe.

Woodstock, Feb. 9.—The Attorney-General's Department will pay for a royal commission to enquire into alleged graft charges against certain members of the County Council in regard to road construction.

UNITED STATES ANTARCTIC DASH

American Rivals of Capt. Scott May Start in June.

Washington, Feb. 9.—The directors of the National Geographical Society yesterday accepted the invitation to join with the Peary Arctic Club in starting an expedition in search of the South Pole, provided sufficient funds can be raised. The expedition may start in June.

In an official statement the society says it "believes that it is of great importance to science that tidal, magnetic and meteorological observations shall be obtained at or in the vicinity of Coats Land during the same period that the British expedition under Capt. Robert F. Scott, R.N., is making similar observations on the other side of the Antarctic area, 1,800 miles distant, and at the same time that this recently discovered land shall be explored."

LONGSHOREMEN WANT HIGHER PAY

Montreal, Feb. 9.—The Longshoremen's Association has sent registered letters to each and every steamship agency in the city protesting against the bonus system. They get 27 1-2 day and 32 1-2 night work with 2 1-2 cents an hour bonus at the end of the year. The men demand straight 30 and 35 cents an hour. They hope to form a Canadian federation of longshoremen.

CLINTON NOW HAS DOG SCARE

Clinton, Feb. 9.—A large collie dog, owner unknown, was shot yesterday. It had been acting strangely all day and had visited nearly every part of the town, attacking all dogs with which it came in contact. The head will be sent to Toronto for examination, and if rabies is found about 20 dogs bitten by it will be shot.

SHIPYARDS FOR PACIFIC FLEET

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 9.—Reports current here state that a British shipbuilding company, whose representatives recently investigated Deep Cove, Saanich Inlet, have decided to establish shipbuilding yards and iron and steel plant there, to take part in the construction of the Canadian warships for the Pacific.

KING GUSTAVE IS DOING WELL

Stockholm, Feb. 9.—The following bulletin was issued at 9.30 last night by the physician in attendance on King Gustave, who was hurriedly operated upon Monday night for appendicitis, after three days' illness:

"The King passed a quiet day and slept well. Anodynes have been unnecessary. Pulse 56, temperature 98.2. The wound presents no unfavorable symptoms. His majesty's general health is satisfactory." The queen left Karlsruhe last night for Stockholm.

PRINCE'S EFFECTS SEIZED FOR DEBT

Vienna, Austria, Feb. 9.—The creditors of Prince Miguel of Braganza, who married Miss Anita Stewart of New York, last September, have seized the furniture and other effects in the prince's residence here, and removed them to an auction room. A large and boisterous crowd gathered yesterday to watch the men transferring the bric-a-brac and other belongings of the prince into a huge wagon.

Prince Miguel and his wife are now in Paris. The prince left the management of his affairs in the hands of a lawyer, who immediately after the wedding paid off most of the creditors, but several money-lenders are reported to have made such usurious demands, that the attorney refused to listen to them.

WOULD ABOLISH THE PARLIAMENTARY BAR

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—In a discussion at the Ottawa City Council Monday night, on the question of license reduction, Ald. Grant moved for a deputation to wait upon the Government to protest against the selling of liquor in the House of Commons. He argued that hotels should not be cut off, when such an example is set. The motion was defeated.

Bjornsen's Condition Improves.

Paris, Feb. 9.—Bjornstjerne Bjornson's remarkable vitality seems to have pulled him through another crisis, his condition being reported as better yesterday.

A few days ago it was thought that the death of the Norwegian poet and novelist was imminent.

Picked Up at Sea.

Halifax, Feb. 9.—The British bark Calcium, bound from French Guiana for New York, sprung a leak in a gale on Jan. 31 and was abandoned three days ago, being water-logged. Her crew was transferred to the British oil tanker Syrian, and landed here.

Brunty's hotel, at South River, Ont., was burned Monday. Loss, $15,000; insurance, $5,000.

Chief Justice Howell of Manitoba has reached New York on his return from a vacation trip to the Bermudas.

An expert engineer and civic worker issues a pamphlet showing that New York's population will be twenty millions in 1950.

The Fulton Block, Cornwall, was burned Monday evening, while most of the occupants were at an entertainment in the town hall.

The International House Painters' and Decorators of Canada and the United States opened their twenty-sixth annual convention at Detroit yesterday.

Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia, backed by the Government, is promoting a scheme to connect New York and other cities with Chile by a direct rail route.

The bill of Martin (St. Mary's, Montreal) to provide for payment of railwaymen's wages fortnightly, instead of monthly, was killed by the railway committee yesterday.

Napoleon Drouin, candidate for mayor of Quebec, opposing Senator Choquette, says that if elected he will regulate liquor trade, build bridge, deepen the St. Charles River and work for the people.

A Melbourne despatch, dated yesterday, says that Premier Deakin, speaking at Ballarat, said the Government hoped to make further efforts in the direction of preferential trade treaties and imperial co-operation, the hope and mainstay of the empire.

DETECTIVES AFTER A WINDSOR HUSBAND

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 9.—With the injunction to "bring him back dead or alive," Mrs. Wm. P. Crake has sent detective officers in search of her husband, who has been missing for over a week. She alleges he had when he left home $1,000 in money in his pocket. This was Crake's third matrimonial venture.

TRIAL COMES TO A SUDDEN STOP

Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 9.—The jury in the case of Sophie Kritschman, charged with the murder of Bronislaw Kulviunakes, was yesterday morning dismissed by Judge Curtis in the Supreme Court, as a result of the giving out for publication Monday night by Attorney Kennedy, of counsel for the defence, of a letter threatening the prisoner if she accused any one other than herself of the crime.

THE "MUTUALS" MAY BE BARRED

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—The Senate banking and commerce committee resumed consideration of the insurance bill, taking up the fire clauses. The morning was devoted to argument against the proposition that unlicensed companies, such as the New England Mutuals, should be allowed to do business in Canada. Counsel for the fire companies pointed out that they paid taxes amounting to $260,000 and in wages and rentals expended six million dollars, while the unlicensed companies paid nothing and took the cream of the business.

CHATHAM'S NEW Y.M.C.A. BUILDING

Chatham, Feb. 9.—Onas Schafer was arrested in Wallaceburg yesterday, charged with forging the name of John McGarvin.

The promoters of the Y.M.C.A. in Chatham have received a subscription of $5,000, and they have also received an option on a central location for $6,000. The canvassers have been successful in raising $1,500 to date. It is expected that the rest of the required $2,000 will be raised this month, and the building will be immediately started.

Amateur Operatic Company

The Peterborough Amateur Operatic Company will practice at 285 Park street on Friday, at 8 p.m. The stage rehearsals commence next week, so it is imperative that each member of the company should get right down to work at once. Remember the date of the competition, week of April 4th.

PEERAGE CLAIM IS ABANDONED

London, Feb. 9.—Ernest Henry Sackville West yesterday withdrew his petition for legal recognition of his claim to the title and estates of his father, the late Lord Lionel Sackville West. In a letter addressed to Sir John Bigham, president of the Probate Court, the petitioner said:

"I wish to tell your lordship that although it breaks my heart, I retire my petition, as I am unable to fight the case."

NO LICENSE REDUCTION FOR LINDSAY

Lindsay, Feb. 9.—A deputation from the Citizens' League waited on the Town Council Monday night asking that two hotels be cut off, reducing the number from eight to six. A tie vote followed, the mayor's vote deciding the issue against any reduction.

Fall of Gravel Killed Him.

Oshawa, Feb. 9.—Wm. Scroggie, a farmer of the Township of East Whitby, was accidentally killed while working on the Canadian Northern Railway line which is being constructed just north of this town. A gravel pit fell on him.

London, Feb. 9.—Competitors for the King's prize at Bisley, will shoot at a figure at one stage of the contest.

A young woman, believed to be Miss Beatrice B. Snider, of Buffalo, committed suicide by going over the American Falls at Niagara.

SHOOTS THREE AND HIMSELF

Columbus, O., Feb. 9.—Lyman Bolton, a farm hand, aged 38 years, yesterday murdered his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James Larimore, at Sunbury, and seriously wounded his wife. Bolton then turned the pistol on himself and blew out his brains. He had been married for six years, but his wife left him some time ago.

Child Freezes to Death.

New York, Feb. 9.—A pitiful tragedy of New York's extreme cold weather is the death of one-year-old Cecilia Roanie, who was found yesterday frozen to death in her little crib near a window. The baby had kicked the blankets from the cradle during the night. At the child's side was a half-filled bottle of frozen milk.

Roosevelt's Home-Coming.

New York, Feb. 9.—President Robt. C. Morris of the Republican Club of this city announced yesterday that he had received a cablegram from Theodore Roosevelt, authorizing the club to take the initiative in a home-coming celebration of national proportions, which has been planned for him about June 15.

THE NAVY QUESTION

The navy question is the question of the hour. As Mr. Monk said in the recent great debate, it is the most important question ever submitted to the parliament of Canada. Why? Because it involves the great underlying question of membership in the empire. Thanks to Mr. Borden's bold and sudden determination to bring Sir Wilfrid's continued jockeying to a stop, the whole affair is now squarely at issue. Sir Wilfrid, backed by the French press, has been forced to admit that in such a war as the Crimean Canada would not participate. (Mr. Borden says that such a declaration is practically one of independence and that "independence" is the goal for which Sir Wilfrid has long been steering. In support of this charge Mr. Borden makes numerous startling quotations from Sir Wilfrid's speeches. The Montreal Witness endorses Mr. Borden's stand. It calls his policy the "common-sense" one. To those Canadians who are not yet prepared to assume the burden of empire his demand for a plebiscite affords a means of announcing their opinions. In any event the adoption of the Laurier Navy bill means the "declaration of independence" of Canada. The principle of the unity of empire is finally denied. Our hopes are dashed to the ground. It is truly and without exaggeration a conspiracy against the position of Canada as a member of the British empire. At last the true policy of the French premier has been brought to a head.

THE FRENCH POSITION

"It was not Mr. Borden, but Mr. Monk, who asked for a referendum of the navy question to the people. This gives that demand small significance as Mr. Monk's position is quite untenable by loyal subjects. The question, with the meaning Mr. Monk's attitude gives it, is simply; Are we British or are we not? We have not come to discussing the question before the people. Sir George Cartier said that the last gun fired on behalf of the British connection would be fired by a French-Canadian, and we have often heard that declaration echoed since by those who seemed best qualified to speak for the people whom Mr. Monk professes to represent. If we are, British we must do our duties as such. It is therefore hard to understand what he and Mr. Bourassa are driving at."—The Montreal Witness.

In times of stress the greater interest obscures the less. The French of all political persuasions are uniting in the face of the "enemy."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Toronto University has 4,000 registered students, and the number is increasing rapidly.

The policy of "separation" of one part of the population from another is being carried to considerable lengths in Canada. What can possibly be the outcome, but that the strongest will seek to win and "possess the land" as against the others. It is a dangerous policy for somebody.

The sympathy of the province will be accorded to Hon. Mr. Matheson in his misfortune. Hitherto his contention has been confined to breaking records financially speaking, and it is a pity that he has not been able to confine himself to that profitable and agreeable pastime.

To begin a course of excessive military or naval expenditure for Canada is little less than a crime. We should cripple ourselves in time of peace and should be, if Sir Wilfrid has his way, no better in time of war. Mr. Borden's policy is the only possible one. Sir Wilfrid's is independence and useless waste rolled into one.

CONMEE AMENDS BILL

James Decides Not to Ask So Many Concessions.

Member For Algoma Realizes the Justice of Some of the Criticisms, Says Hon. Dr. Pugsley—Provincial Premiers Seem Pleased With Proposal to Appoint a Commission on Technical Education.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—James Conmee, whose efforts to annex for private American interests immensely valuable Canadian water powers have made him somewhat notorious, and have caused it to be remarked in Parliament that any bill of his relating to development must be looked upon with suspicion, bobbed up in the Commons yesterday again with his bill to incorporate the International Waterways, Canal and Construction Co. It was given a second reading and referred to the railway committee, where an opportunity to be heard will be given parties interested in the measure.

Last week the bill was "talked out" of the House. Hon. Dr. Pugsley stated that Mr. Conmee had recognized the force of some of the objections he had made to the bill on that previous occasion, and it was proposed to remove some of the objectionable portions, particularly that part which affected the Saskatchewan River. He thought the bill should be referred to the railway committee.

Geo. H. Perley said the time when the bill was to come before the railway committee should be fixed so that all parties interested could attend.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster remarked that it was claimed the bill interfered with provincial rights.

A. C. Boyce declared that the bill called for the severest criticism, and the greatest care would have to be exercised in dealing with it.

Mr. Conmee affirmed that the bill asked for no wide privileges. This evoked laughter.

It would be amended, he said, to remove certain objectionable portions and would not now affect the waters of Lake Manitoba and Lake Winnipeg.

Hon. Mr. Graham promised that all parties concerned would be notified when the bill would come before the committee.

In reply yesterday to Hugh Guthrie, the Minister of Labor read replies which he had received from the Provincial Premiers concerning the appointment of a royal commission on technical education. The gist of the replies was as follows:

Nova Scotia: "Delighted to see such a commission appointed."

Prince Edward Island: "Proposal meets approval of the Government. No objections will be taken on the ground of jurisdiction."

New Brunswick: "Entirely agree with the view of the Federal Government. No hesitation in saying that it will meet with the approval of the Provincial Government."

Quebec: "In favor of the proposal."

Ontario: "Seeing it is only for the gathering of information, see no objection to the commission."

Manitoba: "Would be glad to see more interest taken in the question of technical education." The Manitoba Government was the only one which was non-committal.

Saskatchewan: "No objection to the proposal. Believe that the Federal Government is the proper one to take action in this matter."

Alberta: "Project meets with hearty approval and endorsation."

British Columbia: "Appointment of commission meets with the approval of this Government. It is not the intention of this Government to raise the question of jurisdiction."

Answering C. O. Magrath, who asked whether the United States, under the proposed waterways treaty, would have the absolute right to the use of the Georgian Bay Canal if constructed, and would Canada have a similar right to the use of waterways connecting Lake Michigan with the Gulf of Mexica via the Chicago drainage canal, the Minister of Justice yesterday afternoon said the proposed waterways treaty would not seem to have any effect on the use of either waterway, but it might be that the provisions of the treaty of Washington in 1871 might have application to one or both.

F. D. Monk's bill respecting co-operative credit societies, and Lloyd Harris' bill respecting co-operation, were sent to the banking and commerce committee.

E. N. Lewis drew the attention of the Government to the saving of life by wireless telegraphy, which occurred off Cape Hatteras the other day, and asked if the Government proposed to protect all the Canadian trade routes—more particularly the St. Lawrence—by the erection of wireless telegraph stations on land.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said: "The Government proposes to protect all trade routes of Canada by wireless telegraphy, and by a navy also."—(Laughter.)

BAD LEG FOR 60 Years

OLD LADY'S SENSATIONAL TESTIMONY TO ZAM-BUK.

(Photo of Mrs. Minnett)

Here is strong proof of how Zam-Buk cures long-standing sores, or chronic wounds. Mrs. J. Minnett, of 192 Thurbers Ave., Providence, Rhode Island, says:

"When a child of eight I was bitten on the leg by a dog. The wound never healed up soundly, and I have suffered with an ulcerated leg for over 60 years. At one time, I was an in-patient at the East Suffolk Hospital for a long period, and for three years I was in and out of hospitals with it. I was continually in pain, and the sore would not heal, but continued to discharge.

"Twelve months ago I came out here to my daughter, and as soon as she saw how bad the leg was she sent for a doctor. He gave me some ointment, but it did me no good. Doctors said my leg would never be healed.

"One day my youngest daughter brought home a box of Zam-Buk and induced me to try it. With the first application I seemed to find ease. I kept on with the Zam-Buk treatment, and soon saw that the wound was getting better. I persevered, and, to cut a long story short, Zam-Buk healed up the sore! It is marvellous to think that, after suffering for sixty years, Zam-Buk has been able to heal the wound."

Zam-Buk is superior because it is nature's own healer, composed entirely of pure herbal essences. For eczema, ulcers, cold sores, chaps, abscesses, piles, burns, scalds, cuts, bruises, rashes, etc., it is unequalled. All druggists and stores 50c box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

He lived with his three wives, in the hills just above, and south of the town itself. The Englishmen who worked in the bank and the three Boer foremen also had houses up there, where it was cooler, but Von Blitz was the only one who practiced polygamy. His wives were Persian women and handsome after the Persian fashion.

One hot, dry afternoon about a week after the reopening of the chateau, the siesta of a swarthy population was disturbed by the shouts of those who kept impatient watch of the sea. Five minutes later the whole town of Ararat knew that the smoke of a steamer lay low on the horizon. No one doubted that it came from the stack of the boat that was bringing Rasula and the English solicitor. Joy turned to exultation when the word came down from Von Blitz that it was the long looked for steamship, the Sir Joshua.

Von Blitz stood at the landing place to welcome Rasula and his comrades and to be the first to clasp the hand of the man from Brodney's.

At last his figure could be made out on the forward deck. His straw hat was at least a head higher than the turban of Rasula, who was indicating to him the interesting spots in the hills.

"He's big," commented Von Blitz comfortably, more to himself than to his neighbor. "And young," he added a few minutes later. Bowles, standing at his side, offered the single comment:

"Good looking."

As the tall stranger stepped from the boat to the pier Von Blitz turned a look of triumph upon Britt, who had elbowed through the crowd a moment before and was standing close by.

The newcomer was an American!

• • • • • • • •

"I've sighted the enemy," exclaimed Bobby Browne, coming up from Neptune's pool—the largest of the fountains. His wife and Lady Deppingham were sitting in the cool retreat under the hanging garden. "Would you care to have a peek at him?"

"I should think so," said his wife, jumping to her feet. "He's been on the island three days, and we haven't had a glimpse of him. Come along, Lady Deppingham."

Lady Deppingham arose reluctantly, stifling a yawn.

They had come to call the new American lawyer "the enemy." No one knew his name or cared to know it, for that matter. Bowles in answer to the telephone inquiries of Saunders said that the new solicitor had taken temporary quarters above the bank and was in hourly consultation with Von Blitz, Rasula and others. Much of his time was spent at the mines. Later on, it was commonly reported, he was to take up his residence in Wyckholme's deserted bungalow far up on the mountain side in plain view from the chateau.

Life at the chateau had not been allowed to drag. The white servants had become good friends despite the natural disdain that the trained English expert feels for the unpolished American domestic.

Miss Pelham, the stenographer from West Twenty-third street, had set her cap for the unsuspecting Mr. Saunders. She had learned in the wisdom of her sex that he was fancy free. Mr. Saunders, fully warned against the American typewriter girl as a class, having read the most shocking jokes at her expense in the comic papers, was rather shy at the outset, but Britt gallantly came to Miss Pelham's defense and ultimate rescue by emphatically assuring Saunders that she was a perfect lady, guaranteed to cause uneasiness to no man's wife.

"The devil!" exclaimed Britt, apparently much upset by the revelation.

But of this more anon.

• • • • • • • •

Browne conducted the two young women across the drawbridge and to the sunlit edge of the terrace, where two servants awaited them with parasols.

"There he is! See him?" almost whispered Browne, as if the solitary, motionless figure at the foot of the avenue was likely to hear his voice and be frightened away.

The enemy was sitting serenely on one of the broad iron benches just inside the gates to the park, his arms stretched out along the back, his legs extended and crossed. It was quite apparent that he was lazily surveying the chateau, puffing with consistent ease at the cigarette which drooped from his lips.

"Mr. Britt was right," said Mrs. Browne irrelevantly. She was peering at the stranger through the binoculars. "He is very good looking."

"And you from Boston, too," scoffed Lady Deppingham. Mrs. Browne flushed and smiled deprecatingly.

"Wonder what he's doing here in the grounds?" puzzled Browne.

"It's plain to me that he is resting his audacious bones," said her lady-ship, glancing brightly at her co-legatee.

Three men were approaching by the path which led down from the far-away stables. Browne recognized the dark skinned men as servants in the chateau—the major domo, the chef and the master of the stables.

"Lord Deppingham must have sent them down to pitch him over the wall," he said, with an excited grin.

"Impossible! My husband is hunting for sapphires in the ravine back of—" She did not complete the sentence.

The enemy was greeting the statuesque natives with a friendliness that upset all calculations. It was evident that the meeting was prearranged. There was no attempt at secrecy. The conference, whatever its portent, had the merit of being quite aboveboard. In the end the tall solicitor, lifting his helmet with a gesture so significant that it left no room for speculation, turned and sauntered through the broad gateway and out into the forest road. The three servants returned as they had come, by way of the bridle path along the wall.

"The nerve of him!" exclaimed Browne. "That graceful attention was meant for us. I'll have Britt interview those fellows at once. Our kitchen, our stable and our domestic discipline are threatened."

They hastened to the chateau and regaled the resourceful Britt with the disquieting news.

That evening he dragged the reluctant Saunders into the privacy of the hanging garden and deliberately interrupted the game of bridge which was going on.

"Ladies and gentlemen," said Mr. Britt, calmly dropping into a chair near by, "this place is full of spies."

"Spies!" cried four voices in unison. Mr. Saunders nodded a plaintive apology.

"Yes, sir, every native servant here is a spy. That's what the enemy was here for today. I've analyzed the situation and I'm right. Ain't I, Mr Saunders? Of course I am. He came here to tell 'em what to do and how to report our affairs to him. See? Moreover, he's getting the evidence of everybody to prove that Skaggs and Wyckholme were men of sound mind up to the hour of their death. He has the depositions of agents and dealers in Bombay, Aden, Suez and three or four European cities, all along that line. He goes over the day's business at the bank as often as we do as agents for the executors. He knows just how many rubies and sapphires were washed out yesterday and how much they weigh. It's our business, as your agents, to scrape up everything as far back as we can go to prove that the old chaps were mentally off their base when they drew up that agreement and will. Of course if we can prove that insanity has always run through the two families it"—

"Good Lord!" gasped Browne nervously.

—"it would be a great help. If we can show that you and Mrs.—er—Lady Deppingham have queer spells occasionally, it"—

"Not for all the islands in the world," cried Lady Deppingham. "The idea! Queer spells! Please be good enough to leave me out of the insanity dodge, as you Americans call it."

"Is it necessary to make my husband insane in order to establish the fact that his grandfather was not of sound mind?" queried pretty Mrs. Browne, with her calmest Boston inflection.

"It depends on your husband," said Britt coolly. "If he sticks at anything which may help us to break that will he's certainly insane. That's all I've got to say about it."

"Well, I'm hanged if I'll pose as an insane man," roared Browne.

"Mr. Saunders hasn't asked me to be insane, have you, Mr. Saunders?" asked Lady Agnes in her sweetest scorn.

"I don't apprehend"— began Saunders nervously.

"Saunders," said Britt calculatingly and evenly, "next thing we'll have to begin hunting for insanity in your family. We haven't heard anything from you on this little point, Lord Deppingham."

"I don't know anything about Mr. Saunders' family," said Deppingham stiffly. Britt looked at him for a moment, puzzled and uncertain. Then he gave a short, hopeless laugh and said under his breath:

"Holy smoke!"

When he finally called the conference adjourned and prepared to depart he calmly turned to the stenographer.

"Did you get all this down, Miss Pelham?"

"Yes, Mr. Britt."

"Good!" Then he went away, leaving the quartet unconsciously depressed by the emphasis he placed upon that single word.

The next day but one it was announced that the enemy had moved into the bungalow. From time to time his gray, blue or white clad figure could be seen directing the operations of the natives who were engaged in rehabilitating Wyckholme's "nest."

The chateau was now under the very eye of the enemy.

CHAPTER IX.

THE AMERICAN BAR.

"YOU'RE wanted at the phone, Mr. Britt," said Miss Pelham. It was late in the evening a day or two afterward. Britt went into the booth. He was not in there long, but when he came out he found that Miss Pelham had disappeared. The coincidence was significant—Mr. Saunders was also missing from his seat on the window sill at the far end of the long corridor. Britt locked his disgust and muttered something characteristic. Having no one near with whom he could communicate, he boldly set off for the hanging garden, where Deppingham had installed the long idle roulette paraphernalia.

"Say," he said without ceremony, "the enemy's in trouble. Bowles just telephoned. There's a lot of excitement in the town. I don't know what to make of it."

"Then why the devil are you breaking in here with it?" growled Deppingham.

"This'll interest you, never fear. There's been a row between Von Blitz and the lawyer, and the lawyer has unmercifully thrashed Von Blitz. Good Lord, I'd like to have seen it, wouldn't you, Browne? Say, he's all right, isn't he?"

"What was it all about?" demanded Browne.

"It seems that Von Blitz is in the habit of licking his wives," said Britt. "Our friend the enemy met him this evening and told him that no white man could beat his wife, singular or plural, while he was around. Von Blitz is a big, ugly chap, and he naturally resented the interference with his divine might. He told the lawyer to go hang or something equivalent. The lawyer knocked him down. From the way Bowles tells it he must have knocked him down so incessantly in the next five minutes that Von Blitz's attempts to stand up were nothing short of a stutter. Moreover, he wouldn't let Von Blitz stab him worth a cent. Bowles says he's got Von Blitz cowed, and the whole town is walking in circles, it's so dizzy. Well, to make it short, the lawyer has got Von Blitz to bating him secretly, and the German has a lot of influence over the people. It may be uncomfortable for our good looking friend."

"If he should be in great danger down there," said her ladyship firmly—perhaps consciously—"we must offer him a safe retreat in the chateau." The others looked at her in surprise. "We can't stand off and see him murdered, you know," she qualified hastily.

The next morning a messenger came up from the town with a letter directed to Messrs. Britt and Saunders. It was from the enemy and requested them to meet him in private conference at 4 that afternoon. "I think it will be for the benefit of all concerned if we can get together," wrote the enemy in conclusion.

The messenger carried back with him a dignified response in which the counselors for Mr. Browne and Lady Deppingham respectfully declined to engage in any conference at this time.

At 2 o'clock that afternoon the entire force of native servants picked up their belongings and marched out of the chateau. The major domo, suave and deferential, gravely informed Mr. Britt that they were leaving at the instigation of their legal adviser, who had but that hour issued his instructions.

"I hope you are not forgetting what I said about the American gunboats," said Britt ponderously.

Artillery Deserters Arrested.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 7.—Two deserters from the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery are under arrest here and will be taken back by escort to Kingston. They were arrested in Niagara Falls, N.Y., Saturday and handed over to the local police. They gave their names as Herbert Lightall, Chicago; Albert Suddard, Kingston, and were gunners in B Battery at Kingston. Suddard is in uniform, but Lightall, who says he is an American, has sold his regimental clothes.

Philadelphia Shirtwaist Strike Ends.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 7.—Terms of settlement of the girl shirtwaist makers' strike were agreed upon here Saturday night by a board of arbitration chosen at a recent meeting of strike leaders and manufacturers. All the strikers are to be taken back, but the open shop condition insisted upon by the manufacturers is to prevail.

Fruit Growers' Association Passing.

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 7.—As the association's affairs have been very backward, it has practically been decided at a meeting of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association to allow the organization to be taken under the wing of the Provincial Department of Agriculture.

One Killed and Four Injured.

Jacksonville, Feb. 7.—One trainman was killed outright and four people seriously injured in South Jacksonville, when train No. 36 on the Florida Eastcoast Railway, from St. Augustine, crashed into the rear end of the New Smyrna express, which was standing at the station. It had pulled up to take on water, when 36 came along forty miles an hour, striking an empty Pullman and tearing it into kindling wood.

Perils of Fifth Avenue.

New York, Feb. 7.—Fashionable Fifth avenue is so infested by pickpockets and "street workers" that it is unsafe, according to Magistrate Cornell, for a man with any considerable sum of money in his pockets to walk at night from Delmonico's to the Waldorf.

PASSED AWAY IN SOURIS, MAN.

Death of Joseph Scott, Brother of Dr. Scott of this City

On Friday, in Souris, Manitoba, the death occurred of Joseph Scott, son of the late George Scott, of Smith township, and a brother of Dr. W. D. Scott, of this city. Death came suddenly. The late Joseph Scott was born in Smith, but had been a resident of Souris for many years. He had been prominent in civic matters of that place, and had served on the council. He was a Mason and a Forester. Surviving him are a widow, who was a Miss Robertson, and five brothers and sisters.

The remains will arrive in the city this evening on the C.P.R. local, and the funeral will take place from the residence of Dr. Scott, corner of Hunter and Stewart streets, to-morrow afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, to Little Lake cemetery.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM MOHER.

The death occurred on Saturday, at his late residence in Douro, of Wm. Moher, aged 87. The deceased was well known, having resided in Douro for many years. Surviving him are his widow and six sons, Messrs. Wm. and John, of Peterborough; Joseph and Jeremiah, of Douro; Daniel, of Lakefield and Michael of Young's Point. The funeral took place on Monday morning to St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro, and was largely attended.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed byits correspondents

The Laurier Navy

To the Editoe of the Review.

Tweed, Feb. 3.—I see by your valuable paper that you still stick to your guns in opposition to the Government naval policy. I admire your attitude; why it is nothing but down-right Tomfoolery for the Laurier Government to expend so much hard cash to build such a baby navy they purpose to build in the near future. In the first place, what does Canada need a navy for anyway, more than any other British possession? In the second place, what would our baby navy amount to if war does come. The great battle for control of the seas, will be fought on the North Sea, and if Britain gets beat the conqueror could smash our baby some fine morning before breakfast. In the third place Canada has no more need of a navy, than Wilfrid Laurier has of a bowie knife on the floor of the House of Commons at Ottawa.

Why not copy the example of New Zealand. That country, with a population of about one million, has given one dreadnought to the British fleet. We of Canada have a population of nearly eight millions. We simply do nothing to held the mother country if we are part of the British Empire. We ought to do all we can to keep that empire intact, or otherwise let us get out of it, but by all means act like honest and lovable men. Where does all our boasted loyalty come in to the British Empire? The King that is the head of it does it all, and by singing some patriotic song or God Save the King, but it seems we must be sure that some other fellow will pay to keep the Empire intact surely surely there is enough of level-headed men at Ottawa to stop Laurier in his mad career. Surely there is common sense enough among the people of this country to see where this foolishness will end. There is no doubt but there is quite a few people encouraging the Government to build a navy, but if the truth was known they are the grafters and contractors that expect to fill their pockets out of the money thus expended or squandered. Why not get Britain to build say, two dreadnoughts and call them after some prominent man or place in Canada, have them in the main fleet of the Empire and any of our young men that wants to follow the profession of the sea have the first chance to train as men of wars. Men on these two ships and by doing so that would strengthen the main fleet and these ships would still belong to Canada. Otherwise, if our Government at Ottawa acts so indifferent about the fate of the Empire, let the provinces act singly. I am certain Ontario, if we took a vote of our people, would endorse to grant the British fleet with a first-class ship and I think all of the other provinces would do likewise with the exception of Quebec.

Yours truly,
JOHN DUFF.

MR. BROWNING PRESENTED WITH HANDSOME CHAIR

At a recent meeting of St. Luke's A. Y. P. A. the friends of Mr. G. R. Browning availed themselves of the opportunity to present him with a chair and address previous to his leaving for Havelock.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt read an address to Mr. Browning expressing regret at his departure and wishing him every success.

Mr. Browning replied briefly expressing his thanks for this kind token of appreciation.

The president, Mr. Chas. Crane, was in the chair. Rev. J. R. McLean of Colbourne will give a lecture on "Scenes of Scotland," under the auspices of St. Luke's A. Y. P. A. on Thursday, Feb. 17.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Are You Going West?

Western Canada passengers appreciate more and more the many advantages afforded them when travelling via the Grand Trunk Railway System, the famous St. Clair Tunnel route, with its unsurpassed service over double track line almost all the way to Chicago. Choice of routes from there west passing through principal cities of Canada and United States. Good farming land everywhere in evidence, therefore making pleasant what might otherwise be a long, tedious and monotonous trip. Call on any Grand Trunk agent for further particulars regarding tickets, routes, etc.

THE FUTURE OF CANADA

The bubble of French Canadian loyalty to a united British Empire has burst most ingloriously. The process has been in course of preparation, although fairly well disguised, for many years, but the British Imperial Conferences called by Great Britain in recent years necessitated a stand being taken by Canada one way or the other, either for a fleet-unit in matters of defence, as recommended by the Admiralty, or against it as recommended by the French-Canadians. The result has been as expected.

The Review has allowed French Canada to speak for itself in this matter, and has, from day to day, printed extracts from La Canada, La Presse, Le Nationaliste, &c. We have kept and will continue to keep in live touch with the heated condition of the French mind on the most important of all questions that have affected Canada in the past or will affect it in the future.

Le Nationaliste now goes so far as to state that the date for breaking away from Great Britain has already arrived. Its words are:—"They prepare under the pretext of loyalty the crisis from which will arise the fatal rupture of the colonial tie."

Nice talk this from a journal that rails at the sentinel for being extreme!

Why is this closer union of the empire, for purposes of defence alone, so bitterly repugnant to the French? If they had no particular aspirations and ambitions of their own, how could measures for the protection of our commerce and not affecting us otherwise, possibly raise such a storm of rebellious protest?

Is it not that "the French-Canadian dream" is still being dreamed? To Canada generally the religious aspect of the future and the racial are matters of intense and vital interest. What the future will mean for Canada is now being determined. The Canada of the future is now in the making. What is it to be?

MR. J. H. BURNHAM RETURNS TO LAW

Mr. J. H. Burnham, who assumed the editorship of the Review prior to the last general election for the Legislative Assembly, and continued in charge of the editorial department during the general election for the House of Commons, handed in his resignation to the management of the Review in December last, as he was desirous of returning to the practice of law, which he gave up some years ago in order to undertake historical work in connection with the service of Canadians abroad in the British naval and military service. His work in that department of historical research was the first on the subject and was of great general interest. It will be remembered that, more recently, he was Conservative candidate in the last Dominion elections. His relations with the Review have been of the pleasantest, and now that arrangements have been practically completed for the appointment of his successor, Mr. Burnham will go into partnership with Mr. R. N. Ruddy, K.C.

PETERBOROUGH IS FAVORED

Will be Visited by England's Most Brilliant Comedian G. P. Huntley in "Kitty Grey"

Before returning to England from a most flatteringly successful tour of the United States G. P. Huntley, the distinguished English comedian and his London Musical Comedy Company will visit a few of the large Canadian cities and Peterborough is to be included in the itinerary. Mr. Huntley, and his three-score associates will be seen at the Grand on Saturday evening only in that fluffy and delightful musical play "Kitty Grey."

Many American musical comedies have visited here, but it is said that "Kitty Grey," which ran for three years in London, surpasses in excellence anything ever attempted on this side. The magnitude and beauty of the production is said to have made the Americans "sit up and take notice."

"Kitty Grey" as adapted from the French by J. P. Pigott, with whom by three of England's foremost composers, Lionel Monckton, Paul Rubens and Howard Talbot. The play is staged in three acts with four of the most gorgeous scenes ever seen. The scenes are laid at the Hotel Royale, Biarritz—Kitty's dressing room, at the Apollo Theatre—Pinaforte room, Savoy Hotel, London, and Duplay's Restaurant, London.

The company is almost entirely English and was brought to America by Charles Frohman, after a most successful run at Hicks' Theatre. There is an English chorus selected from the big London playhouses. Costumes, scenery and all the stage paraphernalia were brought to this country from London.

Supporting Mr. Huntley are such players of international reputation as Charles Angelo, Leslie Gaze, James McElhern, Robert Carroy, James Byron, Galdys Claire, Eva Kelly, Ida Knight and Nellie Daly.

Affew of the songs that will tickle the ear and set the feet moving are: "Have You Got Another Girl at Home Like Mary?" "Just Good Friends," "Belle of the Stagem" "I Loved Her," "If the Girl Wants You," "King Hal's Gals," "Kitty's Not Built That Way," and "Incognito."

In America it was declared by the newspapers and critics that American producers would do well to copy the delightful musical play "Kitty Grey" and pattern along the lines of bright comedy and catchy music.

ASH WEDNESDAY AND LENT BEGINS

Season of Fasting and Penance Starts—Services in Some of the Churches

This is Ash Wednesday, and it marks the beginning of the season of fasting and penance called Lent. Services are being held in the Catholic and Anglican churches. In the former the priest will mark the heads of the worshippers with ashes from palms blessed on Palm Sunday the year before, at the same time reminding those worshippers that they are but dust and must return to dust. This is to imbue them with the necessity of doing penance, and from this day until Easter Sunday there will be many acts of fasting, abstinence and mortification by Catholics and by many Protestants as well.

During Lent, which lasts six weeks, the theatres will see smaller attendances, and other amusement places will notice a falling off. There being comparatively few banquets, dances and the like, confectioners and other lines of trade will suffer somewhat.

Yesterday was Shrove Tuesday, and there were services in the Catholic and Anglican churches.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY WANTS A LARGER GRANT

The Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society have requested the City Council to give them an increased grant. A deputation from the society waited on the council Monday night and asked that the grant be increased to $1,000. It was $550 last year. The spokesmen were Messrs. P. E. Campbell, H. Beal and A. P. Poussette, K.C. They pointed out that more money was needed on account of the increased cost of keeping Victoria and Central Parks in condition. It will be necessary to employ two caretakers this year.

The council referred the request to the Finance Committee.

UNDERWRITERS WRITE TO FIRE CHIEF RE THE KEY RATE ON PETERBOROUGH RISKS

The following letter has been received by Fire Chief Howard:—

Toronto, Feb. 7th, 1910.

W. A. Howard, Esq.,
Chief, Fire Department,
Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—I am in receipt of your favor of the 4th inst., stating that the council of your city is desirous of sending a deputation to Toronto with a view of meeting with the Underwriters. I regret that such a meeting as is proposed is almost impossible to be held the present month on account of the number of managers that are compelled to be away from the city at the present time. In the meantime, however, I should be glad if you could give me some information as to risks the rates on which have been increased by the recent re-rating, so that we can have these looked into, and probably an explanation might be furnished for the change.

The very substantial reduction in the key rate that was made for Peterborough, viz., from 60 cents to 35 cents, was intended to make a reduction on all risks unless there had been some change in conditions which had not previously been taken into account, and an examination of the Peterborough ratings shows that this reduction has actually been made, except in such cases. The wish of our members was to give Peterborough the fullest possible consideration for the improvements that have been effected in the fire protective service and they would, I am sure, be well pleased if every risk in the city bore a low rate, as experience has shown that it is on deservedly low rated risks that there is the best chance of making a profit in the fire business. In the meantime, however, I shall be glad to hear further from yourself or the city clerk giving me particulars of some risks where the rates have not been reduced.

Yours truly,
JOHN A. ROBERTSON,
Secretary.

Ald. Morgan, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and Fire Chief Howard will go to Toronto in a short time to confer with the underwriters on the matter referred to in the letter. Anyone having any grievance should make it out in writing and mail it to Chief Howard or Ald. Morgan, that it may be presented at the meeting with the underwriters.

HOUSE OF REFUGE FOR PETERBOROUGH TO BE CONSIDERED BY COUNCIL

The City Council will take up the question of building a house of refuge for the city at an early date. Dr. Bruce Smith, the Provincial Inspector, has condemned the Protestant Home building and the government grant to this institution has been cut off. In view of this fact the matter of a House of Refuge for the aged poor has come to the front very prominently. A deputation consisting of Rev. H. J. Keith, Dr. Halliday, E. A. Peck and others waited on the City Council on Monday night in reference to this question and asked the aldermen to give it consideration. Mr. Keith, Dr. Halliday and Mr. Peck pointed out the need for a house of refuge. Mr. Keith said there were about forty persons in the city who were fit subjects for such an institution. They were no where looked after at the House of Providence, Protestant Home. Some of them were in the jail. He also drew attention to the statement of Dr. Smith that Peterborough spent less on charity than any other city in the province.

On motion of Ald. Bradburn and Butler, the question was referred to the Committee of the Whole Council to be taken up at an early date. It is intended to go into the matter very thoroughly and endeavor to work out scheme that will be satisfactory to all classes and creeds.

GROCERS PETITION COUNCIL TO REGULATE BUSINESS HOURS

A majority of the grocers of the city have petitioned the city council to pass a by-law to regulate the boroughhours for grocery stores in Peterborough. They ask that they must not be opened before seven a.m. and must close at seven p.m.

A deputation from the grocers appeared before the council on Monday night and Mr. R. C. Braund acted as spokesman. He pointed out the necessity for uniformity of hours in the grocery business. Some of the stores were open at almost all hours, to the detriment of others employing clerks whom they wanted to have reasonable hours.

The petition will be considered by the council.

VICIOUS ATTACKS

Cards With References to Hotelman and License Inspector Posted on George Street

An act that shows contemptible vindictiveness was the tacking up of three large cards on George street telephone poles by some coward, the cards containing references to Mr. G. N. Graham, proprietor of the Oriental, and Mr. Jos. Stewart, the local license inspector. The printing on the cards was done with ink and a brush, apparently of the kind that is used in getting out bulletins.

The cards were apparently tacked up the night before last, and were removed yesterday morning. Mr. Graham notified Chief Rozel, who characterizes the attacks as cowardly and underhand, and Messrs. O'Connell and Gordon, Mr. Graham's solicitors, have taken up the matter in the interests of their client.

The offence constitutes criminal libel.

MONDAY WAS COLDEST YET

Thirteen degrees below zero are the figures for last Sunday, but on the early part of Monday the thermometer went five better, making eighteen degrees below, a record for this winter. Yesterday zero temperature prevailed until the afternoon, when a change for higher temperature came about. Mr. Walter Peters is the authority for the above.

MANY ACCOUNTS PASSED BY THE CITY COUNCIL

The following report from the Finance Committee was adopted at the meeting of the City Council Monday night:—

1. That the petition sent by the Ontario Association for the Betterment of Consumptives, addressed to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council requesting that more provincial institutions be established, in which indigent consumptives can be maintained and treated, be signed by the mayor and clerk and sealed with the corporation seal, and forwarded; and that $10 be given to the association towards its expenses.

2. That the city treasurer be authorized to pay for the two horses authorized by the council to be purchased for the fire department on the certificate of the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

3. That the City Trust Commissioners be requested to pay the deficiency on the debentures under By-law No. 173 of Ashburnham, out of the surplus funds in the hands of the commissioners.

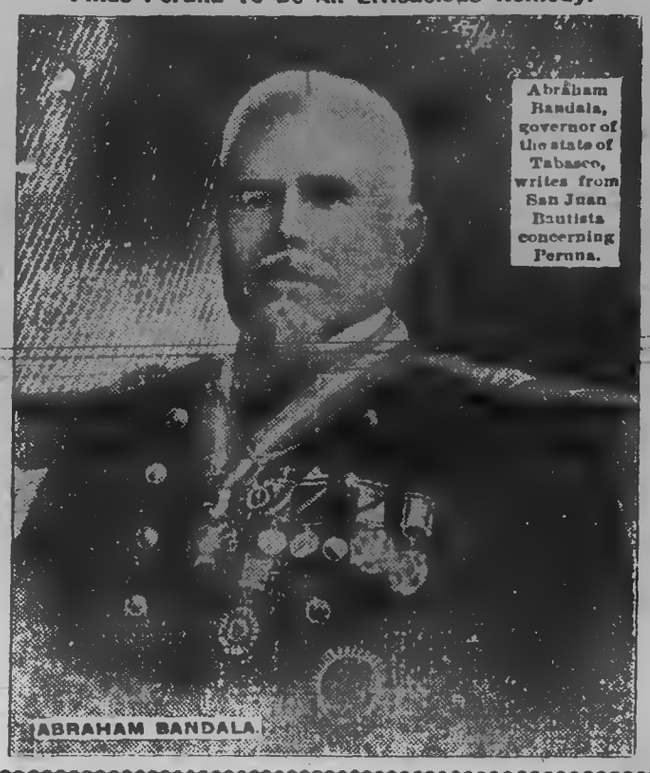
GOVERNOR BANDALA OF TABASCO

Finds Peruna To Be An Efficacious Remedy.



Abraham Bandala, governor of the state of Tabasco, writes from San Juan Bautista concerning Peruna.

ABRAHAM BANDALA.

San Juan Bautista, 6th Sept. 1906.

The Peruna Drug M'f'g Co.

Gentlemen:—It gives me pleasure to say that the persons who have used the preparation Peruna for catarrhal affections have found it an efficacious cure worthy of being recommended.

You can make such use of this letter as you consider most adapted to your interests, and I beg to remain,

Yours very truly,
Abraham Bandala.

Other distinguished personages from Mexico have given similar statements concerning the benefit of Peruna. Prominent among these men of world-wide reputation is Dr. Augustin Rivera.

Silao, Guanajuato, Mexico.

The Peruna Drug Co.

Gentlemen:—Because of the magnificent results which I have obtained from the use of your praiseworthy remedy, "Peruna," in several obstinate cases of nasal catarrh, I take pleasure in writing you a testimonial recommending it as the best medicine discovered for such cases.

I congratulate you for such a splendid preparation, and offer to you my services as the first to recommend it to my numerous customers.

Accept my most sincere testimonial, and use it as you think best for those who suffer from the disease which I have mentioned, and I am glad to sign myself as your friend. Respectfully,

Dr. Augustin Rivera.

As soon as an impartial doctor becomes acquainted with the virtues of Peruna, he finds catarrh not to be so formidable a disease.

WEST ENDS TO MAKE BIG EFFORT TO WIN TO-NIGHT

And Tie up the City League Race for the Championship—Referee Whitehead of Toronto Will Handle the Game.

The Strathconas will have a chance to-night to show just how fast they can travel, when chased, and the West Ends will have a chance of overtaking them and making another game necessary to decide the championship of the city league. Referee Whitehead of Toronto, who handled the Peterborough-Lindsay game here will officiate, and there is every reason to believe that the game will be the fastest of the city league schedule this year. Strathconas won out by two goals in the first contest between the two teams and are confident that they can put the West Enders away a second time. Captain Dobson's outfit, however, have not been losing any sleep and with Ben Dusty out of the way the players are expecting a win to-night. Each team will play the line-up of last Wednesday.

The game will start at nine o'clock, T. A. S. and Keene will meet at eight o'clock.

PETERBOROUGH RINKS WINNERS

Defeated Seven Rinks From Campbellford—Big Night at Curling Rink

Seven rinks of five men to a rink came from Campbellford last night on the Trenton special to Lindsay and played seven rinks of local curlers in the Charlotte street rink. In spite of the fact that the visitors were defeated in six rinks, the game was interesting, and everyone was well satisfied. Rev. E. A. Pearson was the only local skip to lose. He was 6 up at the 10th end, but in the 11th Campbellford got 7, and in the 12th they got 7 more, making the totals, Peterborough 14, Campbellford 19. After the game refreshments were served in the club rooms, and the visitors caught the special on the return home. The rinks and scores were:—

CURLING

The two rinks which were successful in landing the District Cup for Peterborough will go to Toronto to-morrow to compete for the President's Cup. The winners of each group of the cup competition will compete.

For the Peterborough-Lindsay Cup the locals have a lead of five as a result of the games here on Monday night. Peterborough may go to Lindsay the latter part of the week.

Y.M.C.A. SPORTS

Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. the George street Methodist church will play the Canadian Electric Company and a good game is being looked forward to.

LINDSAY WON BY TWO GOALS

Defeated Trenton in a Brilliant Game—Half Time Score Was 2-1—Final Score 6-4

Lindsay, Feb. 8.—Brilliant and spectacular in all departments was the game played to-night between Trenton and Lindsay, Lindsay winning out by 2 goals, the score being 6 to 4, but they had to climb all the way. The game was replete with sensational rushes, Trenton, if anything, having the best combination, while Lindsay's speedy players starred individually. Trenton had the weight and used it to advantage. The small ice handicapped both teams, and Lindsay expect to win on the larger ice sheet at Trenton. Blomfield played a whirlwind game and was the hardest worker. Cummings, H. Armstrong and Croft starred for Trenton. Whitehead handled the ball satisfactorily and the game was clean. The teams:

SHOTS ON GOAL

Two Church League games are scheduled for to-morrow night at the Auditorium. George St. and Knox meet at eight o'clock and St. Andrew's and All Saints' at nine.

Bill Rose will referee the T. A. S.-Keene contest to-night.

Strathconas line-up to-night will be Detocher, Denison, Campbell, Ray, Burritt, McMillan, Weatherstone.

Halpin, McWilliams and Seymour will be the defence for the West Ends. Crane, Dobson, Giroux and Shortt will constitute the forward line.

Peterborough's Intermediates and Juniors are down and out for this season. Still, experience is worth a whole lot. Both teams did well and neither has any cause to be ashamed of the manner in which they lost.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address:

MUST CONFINE DOGS.

Government Makes an Effort to Stamp Out Rabies.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—With probably between two and three hundred mad dogs roaming around all parts of western Ontario, and new cases of rabies being reported to the Veterinary Director-General's Department almost daily, the Minister of Agriculture and Dr. Rutherford, acting in co-operation with the Health Department of the Ontario Government, have determined on drastic action to stamp out the dread disease. It has been steadily growing more prevalent ever since it was first introduced into the province by a dog which crossed the Suspension bridge over the Niagara River at Queenston in May, 1907, and bit several Canadian dogs.

Under authority of an order in council containing regulations in respect to rabies, an order was issued on Saturday by the Department of Agriculture on the report of Dr. Rutherford, Veterinary Director-General, to the effect that rabies is known to exist in many widely separated parts of the western peninsula of Ontario, directing that all dogs in that part of the province lying west of the eastern boundaries of York and Simcoe counties must either be securely chained in an outhouse or other building, or kept under lock and key, or else kept constantly muzzled with effective metallic muzzles in a manner satisfactory to the veterinary inspectors of the Department. The order further states that in any municipality where rabies is known actually to exist, the muzzling privilege may be withdrawn, in which case all dogs must be detained or isolated by being chained or kept under lock and key.

This order, affecting as it does every dog-owner in western Ontario from a point a little east of Toronto, and requiring the muzzling or chaining of many thousands of dogs, is bound to create a storm of protest, but both the Provincial and Federal authorities have agreed that the only way to effectively stop the further spread of the disease is by the above drastic method. For infringement of the regulation a maximum fine of $200 may be imposed under the Federal act and under the Provincial health act a fine of $20 for each infraction of any regulation of the Provincial Health Board may be exacted. The Provincial Secretary has agreed to act in co-operation with the Federal authorities, and will use the machinery of the Provincial constables and peace officers to assist the Dominion veterinary inspectors in enforcing the order. The dual jurisdiction in the case is because of the fact that rabies endangers both human lives and live stock.

C.P.R. Western Plans.

Montreal, Feb. 7.—Wm. Whyte, second vice-president of the C.P.R., announced yesterday that the double tracking of the road would be continued in the spring from Winnipeg to Portage la Prairie, which is half way to Brandon, the latter town being 132 miles from Winnipeg, and that the second section would be completed the year following.

Year by year, the C.P.R. will build its double track on the most congested portions of the system. At present most of their western branch lines strike the main line between Winnipeg and Brandon, and consequently this is the part that will be first provided with a second pair of rails.

Mr. Whyte also says that there are now thirty million bushels of wheat in the hands of the western farmers, the value of which will be about $25,000,000, consequently not only will the road have a good deal of traffic coming east, but a great deal of merchandise will have to be taken back.

Shooting Tragedy In Montreal.

Montreal, Feb. 7.—James McGovern, residing at 474 William street, is dying at the General Hospital, having been shot in the head Saturday evening by Joseph Martel, who was rooming at the McGoverns' with his mother. Because McGovern asked the man to pay his room rent, he started in to shoot every one in his path. The victims were the father and two daughters, Mary and Bridget. Mary is pretty badly wounded, but will recover, while Bridget was sent home yesterday from the hospital, not being seriously injured. James McGovern, however, received a ball in his head and will likely die. Martel, who is thirty years of age, is in jail. He had been drinking at the time of the shooting, and habitually carried a revolver.

Another Mine Explosion.

Indiana, Pa., Feb. 7.—Ten Hungarians and one American were killed by a gas explosion Saturday in the No. 2 slope of the Ernest mine of the Jefferson and Clearfield Coal Co., five miles north of this place.

The explosion occurred in a heading where 12 workmen were working. One of these escaped by crawling a quarter of a mile on his stomach to evade the noxious gas.

One hundred and ten men working in the same slope escaped through headings of the mine, although they were held back for about ten hours by black damp.

Cuban Editors Sent to Jail.

Havana, Feb. 7.—The Government has instituted an active campaign against newspapers here, charged with publishing articles calumniating the administration.

The editors of La Prenza and El Gordo were Saturday sentenced to two and four months' imprisonment respectively on the charge of libelling President Gomez. The cases against three other papers were dismissed on the ground that the objectionable articles were written by Congressmen, who, under the law are exempt from prosecution.

One Bishop's Advice.

Nice, France, Feb. 7.—Bishop Chapon, who has several times attracted attention by refusing to follow the militant counsels of some of his colleagues, publishes a letter to the priests of his diocese instructing them to co-operate with the public school teachers instead of opposing them.

Bishop Chapon says that he would consider himself a bad bishop, a bad Christian, and a bad citizen if he excited strife between the teachers, the cures and the families, and he admonishes the priests to keep out of politics.

Montreal's Seasonable Visitor.

Montreal, Feb. 7.—Captain Bartlett, who accompanied Peary to within 120 miles of the Pole, was here yesterday. Both will attend the Royal Society's banquet in London in May, and the captain will also make a lecturing tour. He spoke of the perfect understanding between himself and Peary. If Peary had broken down on the polar trip, it was agreed that he should take the final dash and get the credit for it.

Big Fire at Hartford.

East Hartford, Conn., Feb. 7.—A garage, lumber yard, four tenement blocks, an office building and other small structures were burned here early yesterday. Five families were rendered homeless. The loss is estimated at $250,000.

Harry Larkin was arrested at Hamilton on a charge of deserting from Wolseley Barracks.

T. P. Jones, Liberal candidate for the Manitoba Legislature at Swan River, died after an operation.

Mr. Justice Mathers, of Manitoba, is now chief justice of the province.

Presqu' Isle lighthouse, ten miles north of Owen Sound, has been removed.

PETERBOROUGH, January 29th, 1910

W. H. HILL, ESQ.,

Manager Sun Life Assurance Co., of Canada,

Peterborough, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—About five years ago my late husband took out $1,000 00 insurance in The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, on which he only paid the first three premiums. Shortly after his death, which occurred on the 6th inst., although I was under the impression that his policy had lapsed, I called at your office to inquire if anything could be done whereby we might get something out of it. You can imagine my surprise and genuine gratitude to learn that, owing to your non-forfeiture privilege, the policy was still in force at his death and that I was entitled to the full thousand dollars, less only the two unpaid premiums and interest.

This seems to me such extraordinary and generous treatment that I wish to add my expression of most sincere thanks and appreciation to the many others your company must receive.

I also wish to acknowledge and thank you for your courtesy and promptness in procuring for me a cheque to-day covering the policy, and to state that if my endorsation of the already mentioned feature of your policies is of value you are quite at liberty to use it.

Gratefully yours,

MARGARET LONG,

TAFTS BILL TO REGULATE COMBINES TO BE INTRODUCED

After a Long Delay the Final Draft of the President's Proposed Curb on Corporations is Ready—Will Throw the Spot-Light on Stock Transactions.

Washington, Feb. 7.—The long-expected federal incorporation bill, to embody the recommendations made in his special message by President Taft, will be introduced in Congress today. The final draft differs materially from the earlier drafts, and represents several months of study by the President and his Cabinet.

No corporation formed under the terms of the proposed act will be permitted to purchase, acquire or hold stock in any other corporation; nor can any corporation organized under the act, or under the laws of any state or foreign country for the purpose of, or engaged in, any like business acquire or hold the stock of a corporation formed under this act; and no such corporation will be permitted to have banking powers.

Forfeiture of charter may result if any corporation organized under the act shall enter into any combine, or combination, or engage in any conspiracy against interstate or foreign trade or commerce, or shall monopolize or attempt to monopolize any part thereof. The charters of all corporations are made subject to alteration, suspension or repeal by Congress. The Attorney-General is given power to bring forfeiture proceedings and the court may appoint a receiver.

Annual reports must be filed with the Bureau of Corporations and the commissioner of the bureau may call for special reports. Ten days after the declaration of any dividend, a financial statement showing the amount of net earnings must be filed with the commissioner of corporations.

Stock may be paid for in cash or in property, but every certificate of stock issued in payment for property must contain a statement that it is so issued and before any stock is so issued, a full statement, sworn to by a majority of the board of directors, must be filed, setting forth a full description of the property, the number of shares to be issued in payment therefor and whether such shares are to have a par value or not; the names and addresses of the vendors of the property, the statement of their connection, if any, with the company; the terms of any agreement, verbal or written, with respect to the transfer of the property; full details as to price; all amounts paid or to be paid to each vendor, and if the vendor is a corporation of the corporation or stockholders, a statement of the price paid or agreed to be paid by them for the property to be sold to the corporation; and where the stock to be issued for such payment has a par value, there must be filed in the Bureau of Corporations, an appraisement of the value of the property by two disinterested appraisers, approved in writing by the commissioner, who may also appoint other appraisers.

Whenever a corporation shall fail to pay any written obligation at maturity, or if any execution against its property shall be returned unsatisfied, the commissioner of corporations shall appoint a special agent to examine into its condition. If this agent reports that the corporation's condition is so unsound as to make its continuance in business contrary to public welfare, the commissioner may appoint a receiver.

The real and personal property of corporations are to be subject to state, county and municipal tax.

Incorporation fees are to be paid amounting to one-tenth of one per cent. of the total capital up to $10,000,000; one twentieth of one per cent. from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, and $250 on every million dollars of capital in excess of $20,000,000.

The Senate committee probably will report all the bills, greatly changed, however, from the original form in which they were presented by the President. The House committee is not even considering the Taft program. If it were possible to force the committee to a vote it is a question whether a single member would accept any of the Presidential measures in their personal shape.

"The way in which the House committee treated the President is disgraceful, to say the least. Frank W. Mondell of Wyoming, chairman of the committee, declined his support even to the extent of introducing the bills in the House. Volstead of Minnesota, Smith of California, Gronna of North Dakota, Parsons of New York, and the eight other Republican members of the committee, sidestepped the honor the President sought to thrust upon them.

Mother Abducted Child.

London, Ont., Feb. 7.—The abduction of a child by its mother in this city on Sunday, Jan. 2, was revealed in the high court on Saturday, before Justice Sutherland, when John Smith, through his solicitor, W. R. Meredith, applied for a writ of habeas corpus to secure possession of his daughter, Madeline Smith.

Smith's statement was to the effect that his wife had left him while he was living in Chatham, and came to London. He came to the city and placed the girl with his mother on Sunday, Jan. 2, the little girl was proceeding to Sunday school, when she was taken by her mother and removed to the home of John McPhee, brother-in-law of Mrs. Smith, who resides in West London.

On the grounds of desertion he applied for a writ to secure the custody of the child, and the writ was granted.

CATARRH CURED

No Cure, No Pay, is a Most Generous Offer

To get an antiseptic strong enough to kill catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, has been a problem which was never solved until the discovery of Hyomei (High-o-me).

Hyomei is prepared from eucalyptus, the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

The inflamed condition will go, too, and the snuffing hawking and offensive breath and the discharge of mucous and crusts in the nose will cease.

Then why should any catarrh sufferer hesitate, when Wm. Madill has such faith in Hyomei that he offers to return your money if after a fair trial Hyomei does not cure catarrh.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler, costs $1.00, and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost but 50 cents. Hyomei also cures asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds or grip.

MI-O-NA Cures Dyspepsia.

CONDEMNS LIQUOR EVIL

Bishop Casey of St. John Issues Strong Pastoral Letter.

After Condemning Drunkenness, His Lordship Says Unworthy Liquor Dealers Should Get Out of Business Because They Are Damning Themselves as Well as Others—Picture of the Ideal Trafficker.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 7.—An arraignment of the liquor traffic, the strongest deliverance on the subject recorded by the Catholic Church in eastern Canada, was contained in Bishop Casey's pastoral letter read yesterday in all churches of diocese of St. John.

After explaining what sort of liquor dealer a man must be to be worthy of respect, he speaks of "others" and to these he says: "Get out of business, in which you are damning yourselves by damning your neighbors." After condemning the habit of drunkenness in the strongest possible language his lordship, says: "Not less guilty before God, than the unfortunate himself, is the false friend, or the barkeeper, who places temptation in his way. He who offers to treat one whom he knows to have a weakness for drink, or the dealer who sells to such a one, is as guilty before high heaven as Cain who killed his brother."

Then the bishop asks, "Is there a liquor dealer worthy of general esteem, one perfectly respectable in all his relations, one who fears not the anger of God, or the reprobation of wives and mothers? Is there one who has properly obtained a license and conducts his business to meet legitimate want of the public; who is himself perfectly sober; who does not adulterate his goods or sell them to anyone likely to abuse them; who permits no disorder, such a blasphemy or indecent language, in his store; who seeks not to evade the law; who incites no one to drink, least of all the young; who never sells to minors; in a word, who is obedient to civil law and to the principles of Christian charity and justice? Such a man is a liquor dealer worthy of respect and one who has no cause from his business to fear the judgment of God or reproach of public.

HIS OWN GIRL BITTEN.

Hon. W. J. Hanna's Daughter Is Victim of a Dog.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—Not often does it happen that a vigorous statement by a public man on a matter of wide general interest is backed up almost immediately by an occurrence which brings the question home to himself personally. This was what happened to Hon. W. J. Hanna yesterday afternoon.

At about 3.15 he had announced in the Legislature the steps taken by the Government to stamp out the menace of rabies in Western Ontario, and had replied somewhat warmly to the remarks of a member who suggested that the scare did not amount to much.

Shortly after 5 o'clock, according to a despatch from Barrie, the 13-year-old daughter of the Provincial Secretary, Margaret Hanna, was bitten in the calf of the leg by a collie dog, which attacked her without provocation while playing with other children on the street. The dog was shot by a policeman, and the remains cremated. Dr. Wilkinson attended the girl and cauterized the wound.

While not unduly alarmed, Mr. Hanna insisted on the child being taken at once to the Pasteur Institute in New York. Mrs. Hanna will leave with her to-day. "The feeling of security will amply compensate for the course pursued. It precludes the possibility of future trouble," the Provincial Secretary remarked last evening. "I saw no other course to pursue, in view of what has come to our knowledge in the Department from so many different points in the territory covered by the order-in-council."

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Wm. Webber has been appointed passenger manager of the C.P.R. Atlantic lines.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, is in bed with a severe attack of la grippe.

January fire losses in America were $7,100,000 less than for January last year, but aggregate fifteen millions.

Between three and four thousand delegates are expected to attend the big Conservative convention at Ottawa in June.

The Marine Department opened an enquiry at Halifax yesterday into the grounding of the steamship Corinthian in December.

It is reported that the St. John, N.B., Telegraph has secured a 30 days' option on The St. John Sun, owned by B. F. Pearson of Halifax.

Fire in the cellar of Trinity Episcopal Church, Quebec, during service Sunday night, resulted in a hurried but orderly dismissal of the congregation.

Thomas Hurst of Osgoode Township is claiming $50,000 from the C.N.R. for the death of his wife, who was killed while driving over a level crossing.

Magistrate Shaver of Cooksville sentenced Angelo Petronio, a young Italian, to 18 months in the Central Prison for brutally assaulting William Jones of Port Credit.

James Holderoft, engineer, has retired after 47 years' service, 25 with the G.T.R., and 22 with the C.P.R., during which time he missed only five days when he should have worked.

Quadruplets Doing Well.

Burks Falls, Feb. 8.—The appearance of a quartette of very pretty girl babies at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wilson, on Yonge street, Burks Falls, last Thursday, has been the talk of the country since. The four babies are all thriving and hearty, and the happy mother is doing nicely. Visitors are pouring in to see them and messages of congratulations, by letter, wire and otherwise have been coming in a steady stream.

Burks Falls' people feel so proud that it is quite likely they will give vent to their feelings in a very special manner at an early date. An effort is being made to get a photograph of parents and babies for publication.

The father is probably the best known auctioneer in this north country, and has been a resident of this place for many years.

Berlin Factories Are Busy.

Berlin, Ont., Feb. 8.—Owing to the way being blocked for the granting of exemption of taxation in favor of the new furniture factory to be established by George Lippert, a popular fund of $600 is being raised to provide a free lot, and more than half of that amount has already been subscribed. There has been opposition on the part of other manufacturers on the ground that the starting of this factory will accentuate the stringency in the labor supply.

French Naval Program.

Paris, Feb. 8.—The Cabinet yesterday approved the project of a new law fixing the permanent strength of the French navy as follows: Battle fleet, 23 battleships, 10 scout ships, 52 seagoing torpedo boats, for coast defence, 94 submarines, 2 mine layers; for distant foreign service, 10 ships.

La Liberte says that the naval program of new construction and reconstruction involves an expenditure of $38,000,000 during the next ten years.

Will Marry Earl's Son.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 8.—Word was received in this city yesterday by cable that Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel, who are in London, announcing the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Armstrong Drexel, to Guy Montague George Finch-Hatton, Viscount Maidstone, and heir to the earldom of Winchelsea and Nottingham.

Bisley Opens July 4.

London, Feb. 8.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—It was announced at yesterday's meeting of the National Rifle Association that the Bisley meeting will be from July 4 to 16. A team from Australia will be present, and also a contingent from the Malay States Guides, and the Singapore Rifle Association.

EPIDEMIC IS NO SCARE

Measures Against Rabies Will Be Strict, Says Hanna.

Ontario Government Is Co-operating With Authorities at Ottawa, and Law Will Be Enforced Against Dogs—Allan Studholme Will Oppose Help to the Salvation Army to Bring Out Immigrants.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—"While I have no thought of unnecessarily alarming the province, it is not news to the members of this House that a situation exists demanding the immediate and best attention of the authorities," declared Hon. W. J. Hanna in the Legislature yesterday, in answer to a question by Evan Fraser (Welland) as to whether the attention of the Government had been called to the prevalence of rabies in western Ontario. "The Department at Ottawa and their chief veterinary officer have been consulting with the Board of Health here. Dr. Rutherford spent several days here last week. Joint action by the two Governments has been decided on. The health and municipal authorities from York west to Windsor would be well advised to fully and heartily concur in the course mapped out and carry out the provisions of the order-in-council."

The order-in-council referred to calls for the muzzling or tying-up of all dogs in the district referred to. The Ottawa authorities have taken similar action.

Allan Studholme (East Hamilton) interjected the suggestion that there were two sides to the question. He had read an article to the effect that the mad dog scare was groundless.

"The Government has full data," replied the Provincial Secretary. "So far 41 persons have been reported as exposed to contagion by bites or otherwise. Fortunately for themselves, they have taken immediate precautions and the majority are in New York for treatment. A number of animals exposed to contagion, however, which have not been sent to New York, have died and others are dying daily."

"Do you know that they died from that cause?" enquired Mr. Studholme.

"There is no doubt whatever as to the cause," was the retort of Mr. Hanna. "The Government has made the fullest enquiries, and we are taking no chances."

Hon. Frank Cochrane introduced a bill entitled, "An act respecting woodmen's liens for wages."

Hon. A. G. MacKay made the motion of which he gave notice on Friday for a return to the House giving full articulars of the school book contract with the T. Eaton Co., Limited.

The return asked for by W. Proudfoot (Centre Huron) showing the number of fishing licenses issued, the price of each, the number of nets, etc., in use, was laid on the table by the Provincial Secretary.

A notice of motion has been given by Hon. A. G. MacKay that he will move on Thursday for an order of the House showing the number of male and female teachers granted county model school and normal school certificates in the years 1906, 1908 and 1909.

Several petitions against any increase in the number of liquor licenses in northern Ontario from east-end Toronto churches were presented to the House by T. R. Whiteside (East Toronto).

The debate on the budget will be continued this afternoon. J. McEwing (West Wellington), the second speaker for the Opposition, will lead off the discussion. Allan Studholme (East Hamilton) has declared his intention to renew in the course of the debate, his request of the past two years for the statistics as to the number of old country laborers placed on Ontario farms, and will make a vigorous protest to the grant of $10,000 to the Salvation Army for immigration work. Public institutions, he claims, are crowded by men brought out by the Army and placed on farms adjacent to Toronto, who have had no intention of engaging in farm labor, but have drifted to the cities. He will also criticise the London immigration office of the Government.

Every member of the Legislature received yesterday morning a "Vote for Women" circular from the Canadian Suffrage Association.

Sold Liquor on Election Day.

Brantford, Feb. 8.—At the Police Court yesterday Mrs. Baird, proprietress of the Mount Pleasant Hotel, was fined $35 for selling liquor on the day of the municipal elections. Bartender Jos. Ross claimed that only ginger ale was served, but two witnesses swore they got whisky. Ross is out on bail of $200, pending arraignment on a charge of perjury.

Swedish Scientist Dead.

London, Feb. 8.—Prof. Martin Ekenburg, the Swedish scientist, who on being arrested in London last fall charged with complicity in several bomb outrages in Sweden, became temporarily insane, and was later committed for extradition to Sweden, died suddenly yesterday of apoplexy.

Eleven Bullets In Head; Hanged.

San Francisco, Feb. 8.—After firing 11 bullets into his head from a 22-calibre revolver, re-loading the weapon to accomplish the feat, Roman Pritschon hanged himself at his home in Alameda Saturday night, to make the suicidal work thorough. Six of the bullets entered the brain.

Five Gill Nets Confiscated.

Brockville, Feb. 8.—Five large gill nets, fitted with loaders, were located in Cranberry Lake, on the Rideau, by Inspector McGuire, who promptly confiscated the same. The owner offered some opposition to the confiscation, but McGuire won out, and lugged off the load.

The Pope Snubs Fairbanks.

Rome, Feb. 8.—Protestants in general yesterday warmly congratulated former Vice-President Fairbanks of the United States on what they term his dignified attitude regarding a refusal to receive him at the Vatican. An opportunity to pay his respects to the Pope had been granted Mr. Fairbanks at his request, but was withdrawn because he declined to abandon his purpose of addressing the Loyal Society of the American Methodist Episcopal Church.

The Catholics place the responsibility for the unpleasantness upon what they describe as the offensive Methodist propaganda being conducted in Rome.

Casgrain After Priests.

Montreal, Feb. 8.—Hon. J. P. B. Casgrain, the defeated candidate for the Montreal mayoralty, has written a letter to the Archbishop of Montreal, bitterly complaining of the attitude of several priests in the east end, whom the Senator names, claiming that they circulated the report amongst the people that he was a Freemason and unworthy of occupying the position of chief magistrate.

The Senator tells his grace that he will give the reverend gentlemen till the 15th of February to retract, and if they fail to do so he will institute actions-at-law against them.

In the Cause of Arbitration.

Baltimore, Feb. 8.—There was organized last night, at the residence of Theodore Marburg, the American Society for the Judicial Settlement of International Disputes. This body will devote itself principally to issuing articles by leading men of all countries on subjects indicated by the title of the organization, and to organizing meetings of national scope in various parts of the country from time to time.

Highwaymen at Chatham.

Chatham, Feb. 8.—Peter Traxler, a farmer residing at Dawn Mills, was struck on the head on South King street at 11.50 Saturday night by thugs and $59.50 in cash taken from him. Traxler was going out to visit relatives, but, finding them out he was returning to his hotel when he was attacked by a man and a boy. His head was badly cut and he is in a serious condition.

Policeman Nearly Frozen to Death.

Buffalo, Feb. 8.—After a search of several hours Michael J. Condon, a patrolman of the Central Park Police Station, who after midnight had failed to make his hourly telephone reports, was found early yesterday lying unconscious in a vacant lot near his beat. His hands and feet were frozen and his condition is critical.

WEDDING BELLS

HEFFERNAN—DOHERTY

The marriage took place at St. Peter's Cathedral on Monday morning at eight o'clock of Miss Mary Ann Doherty, 17 Oxford street, Ashburnham, to Mr. Wm. Heffernan, of Douro. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McColl. The bridesmaid was Miss Loretta Conroy, of Peterborough, and the groomsman was Mr. John Ryan, of Douro. Afterwards a wedding breakfast was partaken of at the home of the bride's brother on Oxford street. Mr. and Mrs. Heffernan will reside in Douro.

MR. D. D. GALLETLY VISITS CITY

An Old Citizen and His Wife are Here on Return From Trip to Scotland

A resident of the city, 22 years ago and an "absentee" for the past nine years, Mr. D. D. Galletly sees great improvements in Peterborough and notices many changes among its citizens. Mr. Galletly is here on a short visit to his grandson, Mr. H. Lee, Charlotte street, on his way home to Banff, Alta., after a visit to his old home, Gallashiels, Scotland. He is accompanied by his wife.

Mr. Galletly is well known to a large number of the citizens of Peterborough and when he was here was very prominent in musical circles and as an accomplished vocalist. Although he is 72 years of age, he still retains all his faculties and has singing voice and will sing in St. Andrew's and St. Paul's churches next Sunday.

He left Peterborough in 1888 and went to Banff in a capacity which called for him supervising the shipments of furniture for the C.P.R. hotel in the western town. Later he was given charge of the cave and basin hot sulphur springs baths, which are under Government control, and which have made Banff a well known place all over the continent. Mr. Galletly states that the springs are growing more famous every year and are being favored with an increasingly large patronage. During the past year 4,000 a month bathed in the pools and there were over 16,000 visitors to them.

Mr. Galletly is very entertaining in his reminiscences of Peterborough.

"I was choirmaster in St. Paul's fourteen years," he said to the Review this afternoon, "and was leader in that church before they had any organ." Later Mr. Galletly was choirmaster in "the Old Kirk," St. Andrew's, for three years.

RALLY OF THE YOUNG PEOPLES' SOCIETIES

The annual rally of the Young Peoples Societies of the city was held at Charlotte street church on Monday evening of this week. There was a large attendance and the gathering listened to an excellent address by Rev. Mr. Gegg, a Baptist minister from Toronto. The president, Rev. J. R. Webb, presided, and there was a good musical programme. Rev. Mr. Brown, of St. James' church, was elected president for 1910, and Mr. W. Shiner was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

AT ST. LUKE'S

Last night the annual Shrove Tuesday Pancake Social was observed at St. Luke's, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid. The programme consisted of the following numbers:

Instrumental solo—Miss Leary.
Recitation—Mr. Waring.
Vocal solo—Miss Quartermaine.
Recitation—Miss Bartley.
Vocal solo—Mr. Dudley.
Recitation—Miss Leary.
Recitation—Mr. Waring.
God Save the King.

Ash Wednesday service will be held to-night at St. Luke's at 8 o'clock, when the rector will preach a sermon suitable for the day, and its object on the text, Exodus 38:8, "And he made the laver of brass, and the foot of it of brass, of the looking glasses of the women assembling, which assembled at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation."

Holy Communion was celebrated this morning at 10.30.

INDIAN DIED ON GULL LAKE

Tragedy in the North—Companion Went for Aid

Word has reached Peterborough from Minden that Jacob Henry, a Mississauga Indian, 72 years of age, was frozen to death on Gull Lake, a few days ago.

Jacob, in company with an old man named Robert Sawyer, left Minden in the afternoon to walk across the lake to their home. Jacob became exhausted after he had walked some distance on the ice. His companion helped him as far as he could, and then remained with him during the night. It was very cold and the men had no matches or means of keeping themselves warm. In the morning Sawyer walked to a house on the lake shore and secured assistance. The dead body of the Indian was found lying on the ice. Sawyer says Jacob was alive when he left him.

SPANISH CABINET

Has Been Forced to Resign —New Government to be Formed.

Madrid, Feb. 10.—The Spanish Cabinet, headed by Premier Moret y Prendergast, resigned yesterday afternoon.

The Ministerial crisis was brought about by the right wing of the Liberal party protesting against the Premier's alliance with the Republicans.

Jose Canalejas y Mendez, leader of the Monarchical Democrats, has been charged by the King with the task of forming a new Cabinet.

This he has done, the Ministry being constituted as follows:

Premier—Jose Canalejas y Mendez.
Foreign Minister—Garcia Prietro.
Minister of the Interior—Senor Sagasta.
Minister of War—Gen. Aznar.
Minister of Marine—Arias Miranda.
Minister of Finance—Senor Cobian.
Minister of Justice—Ruiz Valarino.
Minister of Public Works—Senor Caibeton.
Minister of Public Instruction—Count Romanones.

The dissension was the outgrowth of the Premier's intended appointment of a Minister of the Interior and the contention of the right wing of the Liberals that Senor Moret's catering for the support of the Republicans tended to imperil the monarchy.

The climax was reached when the executive committee of the Liberal party, headed by Count Romanones, resigned, and a majority of the Liberal ex-Ministers advised the King that if a radical change in the policies were imposed, Premier Moret should be superseded in the interests of harmony, and the Cabinet reorganized.

RAILWAY MEN EXONERATED AT INQUEST

Ingersoll, Feb. 10.—The inquest into the death of Gordon Clark, the young surveyor who was killed by falling off a freight train between Woodstock and Ingersoll last Thursday night, was resumed yesterday evening before Coroner Coleridge.

Fred. Biette of Toronto, a member of the same surveying party, was with young Clark from the time they left Ingersoll to go to the hockey match at Woodstock until they parted about 1.30 a.m. Friday morning, Clark catching a freight train bound for Ingersoll. He admitted that they had been drinking, but said they were not intoxicated.

The baggageman at Woodstock G.T.R. station swore that young Clark was drunk and fell off the seat as he sat in the station.

Several other witnesses, including the operator at Ingersoll, the G.T.R constable and Dr. Neff of Ingersoll, who performed the post mortem examination, gave evidence.

After being out for some minutes the jury returned a verdict saying "We fully exonerate the G.T.R. from any blame whatever."

NEW GERMAN NAVAL BASE

Berlin, Feb. 10.—Plans for the new great naval base of the German empire at the western end of the Kaiser-Wilhelm Canal at Bruensbuttel, have been finished and work will begin immediately. The total cost will be in the neighborhood of $7,500,000.

The harbor will extend from Bruensbuttel northeastward to a small lake, which connects with the canal. It will be divided into harbors for the largest warships and for merchant vessels.

LOUIS LAVERGE FOR THE SENATE

Montreal, Feb. 10.—It looks as if Louis Laverge, M.P. for Drummond and Arthabaska, would succeed Sir George Drummond in the Senate.

Sir George succeeded Senator Cormier, and as he had rendered eminent service to the party in power, the French Conservatives of the day waived their right, so it is understood that the appointment will now revert to the French, and that Mr. Laverge will be the man.

BILL IS INTRODUCED FOR REGULATION OF TELEPHONES

New Measure is Designed to Put the Systems Throughout the Province Under the Railway and Municipal Board—People Will be Supreme in the Making of Contracts.

Toronto, Feb. 10.—Sam Charters, M.P.P. for Peel, is on the trail of the telephone monopoly. He will give notice of a bill by which it is hoped to chain up the forces which for so long have had control, though by no means an undisputed control, of the situation. The public will watch the outcome with interest.

The act will be known as the Ontario Telephone Act. It places the control of the telephone systems of the province under the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board. Under the bill the board will have jurisdiction to enquire into, hear and determine all complaints and matters, whether of law or of fact, affecting the local and municipal telephone systems act, of 1908, or this act, or of any special act; to make orders and regulations, to prescribe penalties for violation of the provisions of any of these acts.

The board shall also have power and right to approve of all tolls to be charged by any company or person. Every company shall file with the board tariffs of any telephone tolls to be charged, and the board may determine the manner and form in which any tariff or tariffs of telephone tolls shall be published or kept open for public inspection.

Subject to the approval of the board, every company shall have power to enter into an agreement with any other company to provide for connection, joint operation or interchange and transmission of business between the systems owned or operated by such companies and make arrangements for the proper apportionment of expenditures, commissions, receipts and profits or other arrangements which may be necessary under any such agreement.

Where telephone systems or lines are adjacent to those of another company which refuses to enter into agreement the board has power to issue order providing for connection, joint operation or such other transmission of business upon such terms as it may deem advisable.

All contracts, agreements and arrangements between companies, and other companies having authority to construct or no matter whence their authority is derived, operate a telephone system or line, for the regulation and interchange of messages and lines or division of tolls, or in relation to the management, or operation of the systems or lines shall be subject to the approval of the board and shall be submitted to them before such contracts or agreements shall have any force or effect.

No company or person shall have power to enter into any contract or agreement with any other company or person having authority to construct or operate a telephone system or line, no matter whence the authority was derived, which shall increase the cost of telephone service to the public or restrict competition unless or until a bylaw setting forth the terms of such contract or agreement has been submitted to and received the assent of the electors of the municipalities as required by the consolidated municipal act of 1903.

On receipt of application from any person for telephone service, the company or person shall furnish same within a reasonable period of time upon the applicant complying with such terms and conditions as the company or person is authorized by law to require from such applicant; and no company or person shall be required to furnish telephone service in cases where the cost of installing the same exceeds $50.

TARIFF REFORMERS TO TEST THE LIBERAL AND NATIONALIST ALLIANCE

London, Feb. 10.—The tariff reformers are determined to put the alliance of the Liberals and Nationalists to the test at the earliest opportunity. They believe that the Irish electors are overwhelmingly in favor of tariff reform, and that the Redmondites cannot be depended upon to support a free trade Government.

Accordingly, Austen Chamberlain will move an amendment to the address in Parliament, raising the whole question of the existing fiscal system, in the hope that the Nationalists will either vote against the Government or abstain from voting.

Premier Asquith returned to London Tuesday night. He has called meetings of the Cabinet for both Thursday and Friday, and it is expected that he will go to Brighton on Friday to confer with the King. It is practically certain that the first business of Parliament will be the reintroduction of the budget, which the chief Liberal whip now predicts will be passed within a fortnight.

The two sections of the Irish party are already coming to grips. John W. Redmond, leader of the Nationalists, having called a party meeting at Dublin for yesterday, Timothy Healey, M.P. for the North Division of Louth, wrote a letter to Mr. Redmond, challenging his action and claiming that every member elected, including himself, was entitled to be invited to the meeting; that Mr. Redmond had no right to discriminate between the members, and that his action nullified the party pledge.

Redmond was yesterday re-elected leader of the party.

Resolutions were also adopted yesterday which will give new power to discipline refractory members. Heretofore a defiant Nationalist could be dealt with only by a two-thirds majority, and if he refused to resign, he still would claim membership and share in the party fund. Now the party is empowered to expel a member by a bare majority, and this excludes him from the benefits of the fund.

No anti-Redmondites recently elected to Parliament will be admitted to the party without a special vote.

The meeting adopted a resolution thanking friends in America for their splendid contribution to the party fund.

Laborites' Policy.

Newport, Eng., Feb. 10.—In his address opening the tenth annual meeting of the Independent Labor party yesterday, President James Keir Hardie threw cold water upon all suggestions that the Laborites in the forthcoming Parliament should be the blind followers of the Government.

Hardie declared that the policy of the Liberals towards the peers, as outlined, did not inspire the Laborites with confidence. He said that the policy of the Labor party remained unchanged, and was to sweep the House of Lords into oblivion. The same unsullied independence which had produced so many labor measures in the past must continue to work for ends yet to be won.

BRITISH COLUMBIA RAILWAY CHARTERS

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 10.—In the Legislature yesterday announcement was made by Premier McBride, after this session, the Government will refuse renewal of any railway charters except for special cause.

Hayward withdrew his resolution to invoke Dominion legislation prohibiting Asiatics from becoming property owners in Canada. This resolution has not been abandoned, but will be brought forward later in another form.

ENGINE DERAILED NEAR TRENTON

Trenton, Feb. 10.—A broken side rod was the cause of a bad accident to train No. 2, of the Central Ontario Railway, yesterday. When going down grade, about a mile east of Bloomfield, one side rod of the engine broke, derailing the engine, mail and baggage car, and passenger coach. Engineer George Neun was only slightly hurt by a piece of the rod coming through the bottom of the cab and striking him on the foot.

Almost Another Horror.

Zanesville, O., Feb. 10.—Another mine disaster was narrowly averted when 150 miners in King's Colliery, warned through electric signals of fire which poured down the main shaft, made their way to a specially constructed manhole and escaped.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Ellis Wallace, son of J. M. Wallace, D.D.M.G., of Elmwood avenue, London, was badly bitten by a dog Tuesday. The youth was sent to the Pasteur Institute.

Edgar Dudley, an old and much trusted employe of Henry Morgan & Co., Montreal, who put a bullet in his brain, died yesterday. His accounts are straight.

James Gallagher, an aged employe on the Welland Canal, heroically rescued from drowning yesterday, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. Toms, a tailor, of St. Catharines.

A consignment of 6,000 dozen eggs has just been received in Montreal from Riga, Russia. These eggs were brought approximately 5,000 miles at a price to compete with the local hens.

A feud among Italian miners which has for months terrorized the residents of Midway, a mining town near Pittsburg, culminated yesterday in the killing of three men, who were shot down in their own homes.

There is a good deal of banter in Montreal over the anti-Hebrew campaign started by Cure Belanger in St. Louis Ward. At the very hour the parish priest was testifying against the Jews, one of his wardens, Alphonse Valiquette, was selling a fine property to a member of the Hebrew congregation.

ONTARIO TO ASK FOR FACTS ON THE LONG SAULT POWER

Chairman Gibbons of the International Waterways Commission Says That Plans Will Not be Submitted Until a Report is Made to the Government.

Toronto, Feb. 10.—It became apparent at the sitting of the International Waterways Commission at the Queen's Hotel yesterday morning that the Long Sault Development Co. will not be able to put through its power scheme without first satisfying the Provincial Government on a number of important points.

By skilful questioning Irwin Hilliard, appearing on behalf of the Ontario Government, drew from Chairman Gibbons the admission that there was no intention of submitting complete plans and details to the opponents of the scheme until a report had been made by the commission to the two Governments, concerning the feasibility of the plans.

"At a previous meeting of the commission," said Mr. Hilliard, "it was announced that full and complete details would be demanded. I view with great alarm the change of front, speaking for the Provincial Government. It is evident that if the commission submits to the Governments an interim report approving the general scheme, I do not know what objection can be then offered to the carrying out of the work. The damage will be done, and the details will come too late to be of any use to the people whose interests are in jeopardy.

"If the chairman will only let us know?" inquired Mr. Hilliard.

"I am not the whole commission," said Chairman Gibbons, "but my impression is that the details should not be considered now. If we decide that the scheme is feasible without hindrance to navigation we will then take the public into our confidence regarding the plans, providing the Governments give the commission the privilege of approving or disapproving of those plans."

"But will you not take the public into your confidence before making your recommendation to the Government of the general feasibility of the scheme," asked Mr. Hilliard.

"That is a question that I am not going to answer," replied Chairman Gibbons.

"How can you report on the feasibility of the scheme without full details?" again asked Mr. Hilliard.

"The Government and the commission have engineers who seem to think they have information," retorted Chairman Gibbons.

"The public have been led to believe that they would have access to those plans and details which apparently have been so convincing to the commission's engineers," continued Mr. Hilliard, "before the commission reports on the feasibility. It is, I think, very discourteous to the people here that one side is given information which is withheld from the other side. All details should be submitted before any report whatever is sent to either Government, and speaking for the Provincial Government, if the commission refuses to allay the feeling, I might also say suspicion, we will take the issue some other place."

The entire session was taken up with the submission of evidence in opposition to the approval of the plans of the Long Sault Development Co., the meeting coming to a close about 1.30 p.m. The navigation interests of the lake and the River St. Lawrence were largely represented, as well as the commercial interests of Toronto, Montreal, and intermediate cities.

Sir James Whitney, Premier of Ontario, has strong views on the proposal of the Long Sault Development Co., to dam the St. Lawrence near Cornwall for the purpose of power production.

"I have spent the greater part of my life along the St. Lawrence River," he said, yesterday, "and I am personally quite familiar with the situation at the Long Sault. It is out of the question that I should be able at this moment to give a detailed exposition of my views in this matter. Of course, as representing the province, we will have to see to it that all provincial rights are protected.

"If this scheme is allowed to be put into operation, I suppose similar schemes will at once be attempted at the rapids of the St. Lawrence lower down. In this way the Province of Quebec will become an interested party.

"It is necessary for us to see to it that the rights of the province, whatever they may be, with regard to the bed of the stream and in other respects are carefully guarded. Further than that I do not see how I can say more on this point at present."

Costly Road-Making.

Woodstock, Feb. 10.—As indicating the dissatisfaction that exists with the road improvement work that is going on in the county, a resolution was introduced into the Council yesterday providing for the discontinuance of the work. The representatives from East Nissouri said that $25,000 had been spent in that township and there were not three miles of good roads to show for it. The resolution was defeated.

T. & N. O. Express Left Rails.

About 50 yards of roadbed was torn up by the plunging cars, which fortunately remained on the right of way

OPENING OF THE ALBERTA HOUSE

Many Important Bills Will Come up in Present Session.

Edmonton, Alta., Feb. 10.—The speech from the throne, at the opening of the Legislature yesterday, referred to impending legislation as follows:

"There will be submitted to your consideration a large number of important measures. First among these are four bills for the better management of municipal affairs in cities, towns, villages and local improvement districts. The work of governing and directing the affairs of the provincial university has rendered necessary the introduction of a university bill for further regulation.

"Bills will also be introduced looking to the prevention of corruption at municipal elections, the regulation of traffic on highways, which has hitherto been a matter of custom, the securing of a fair share in their deceased husband's estate to married women, the systemization of the law in regard to the reception of evidence in courts of law, the protection of public officers in their discharge of duties, along the lines of common law in England, and the relief of creditors in regard to the estate of absconding debtors. A uniform system of dealing with loans authorized by the Legislature will also be submitted which propose to create a permanent provincial stock.

"Various important and necessary amendments to and modifications of the statute law of the province will also be submitted."

B.C. UNIVERSITY COMMISSION SITE

Victoria, B.C., Feb. 10.—The university commission bill, providing for the appointment of a commission of not less than three nor more than five disinterested educationists from other Canadian provinces, to select a site for the provincial university was introduced in the Legislature. Full power is placed in hands of those to be appointed Liquor Monopoly In Sweden.

Stockholm, Feb. 10.—A liquor monopoly for the exclusive monopoly in Sweden for spirits was organized yesterday with a capital approximating $4,000,000.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

PRES. PLUMMER WOULDN'T CONFER

Montreal, Feb. 10.—The last hope of the U.M.W. of America was shattered yesterday when President Plummer, of the Dominion Coal Co., refused to meet a delegation of high officials from that order to discuss the Glace Bay strike.

The delegation was composed of R. Nicholson, treasurer; Peter Patterson, international organizer, Dan MacDougall, president of the district, and Jas. D. MacLennan, of District No. 26, and member of the international executive board of the U.M.W. of America.

Mr. Plummer absolutely declined seeing the delegates, sending Hector McInnes, K.C., the company's solicitor, to tell them that such a conference would be useless, and would give rise to misconception and misunderstanding; and also for the reason that his policy had already been announced, and that there was no possibility of a change.

THE NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Small Boy Loses a Leg.

Woodstock, Feb. 10—Albert Arthurs, six years of age, jumped on a sleigh containing two tons of brick, after school yesterday afternoon and getting under the runners, his leg was cut off just below the knee. His recovery is expected.

Cardinals at Congress.

Ottawa, Feb. 10.—Cardinal Vannutelli of Rome, the Pope's legate, will preside at the great Eucharistic Congress to be held at Montreal in September. Cardinal Gibbons has written that despite his great age he will attend.

The Power of the Press.

St. John, Feb. 10.—The editors of all newspapers in New Brunswick will be invited by the Board of Trade to meet in St. John the first week in March to discuss a forward movement for the whole province.

Guelph Jail Unfit For Humans.

Guelph, Feb. 10.—According to Inspector Dr. Bruce Smith, the Wellington County jail here is not a fit abode for human beings. He suggests alterations which would leave only 15 of the existing cells.

Three Die In Fire.

Jersey Shore, Pa., Feb. 10.—A fire in the First National Building in this city early yesterday caused the death of three persons, the injury of two others and the complete destruction of the building. The fire was caused by crossed electric wires.

Ex-Prize Fighter In Trouble.

Chatham, Feb. 10.—Dannie McMahon, an ex-prize fighter, is wanted here for threatening to shoot William Brown of Tupperville, yesterday. He is said to have trained with Jeffries, and he once fought an eight-round battle with Battling Nelson.

Fatal Fire In Nicolet.

Montreal, Feb. 10.—The Hotel Robelette and a restaurant kept by one Lepage, in Nicolet, were burned last evening, the loss being $30,000. A brother of the proprietor, Edmund Robelette, was burned to death.

Fire at Boston Stock Yards.

Boston, Feb. 10.—Boston's beef supply was nearly "cornered" by a fire which destroyed approximately half a million dollars' worth of property at the Brighton stock yards, early yesterday.

SENATOR BAKER PASSES AWAY

Noted Conservative Campaigner Dies Suddenly in Montreal.

Montreal, Feb. 10.—Senator George Baker of Sweetsburg, dropped dead yesterday in the Edinburgh cafe.

He was one of the fighters of the old Conservative party in this province, and was one of the best stump speakers. Last year during the Borden tour, old man as he was, he made one of the speeches of the day at the big gathering at Cowansville, and could be heard half a mile away.

Hon. George Barnard Baker, M.A., K.C., was born at Durham, Que., in 1834. From 1876-8 he was Solicitor-General for Quebec, and from 1870-4; 1878-87, and 1891-96 was a member of Parliament. In 1896 he was appointed to the Senate.

Mr. Borden's Tribute.

Ottawa, Feb. 10.—When apprised of the sudden death of Senator Baker, R. L. Borden said: "He was a man of great ability, an excellent speaker, and from his earliest advent to public life, he took a keen interest in all matters affecting the welfare of the country, and was especially well informed upon all public questions."

NOTABLE DAY FOR AUSTRALIA

London, Feb. 10.—The first unit of the Australian navy was launched at Govan, Scotland, yesterday, Mrs. Asquith doing the honors. In christening the ship the Premier's wife said:

"First-born of the Commonwealth of Australia, I name you 'Parramatta. God bless you. May you uphold the glorious traditions of the British navy in the dominions overseas."

The Parramatta is a torpedo boat-destroyer of the improved river class and registers 700 tons.

ONE KILLED IN RAILWAY TROLLEY CRASH

Pittsfield, Mass., Feb. 10.—Miss Bessie Ryan of Hinsdale was killed and a score of other persons injured early yesterday in a trolley car accident at Hinsdale, 12 miles from this city. The rails were slippery with frost and when the car struck the grade, the brakes failed to hold. When it reached a curve at the foot of the hill, it jumped the track and smashed into the abutments of a bridge.

Fritch to Prove Alibi.

Detroit, Feb. 10.—The defence of Dr. George A. Fritch, the surgeon charged with murder of a young woman, will be an alibi. The doctor will endeavor to show that at the time Jos. Leach, the chauffeur, alleges that he drove him and the ghastly load to Ecorse Creek, he (the doctor) was with friends in the city.

TOOK UNTO HIMSELF ANOTHER'S WIFE

Cannington, Feb. 10.—Tuesday afternoon, Rowland Dagan, a young farmer of Thorah Township, who has a wife and four small children, told his wife he was going to Beaverton. Shortly after leaving his home he overtook Mrs. Joseph Shepley, and it is claimed that the two drove to Cannington and put up at the Bennett House, where his horse and rig was left. The couple then took the evening train for Toronto.

Yesterday morning Joseph Shepley came to Cannington and swore out a warrant, charging Rowland Dagan with abducting his wife.

J. J. Scott, K.C., has secured an option on the Hamilton Gas Light Co.

Orangeville is likely to soon have a modern, well-equipped hospital.

CAT TRIES TO HATCH EGGS

Shelbyville, Ind.—A rooster, owned by Mrs. John Leech, drove a sitting hen from her nest and tried the job himself. A cat ousted the rooster and is now taking the hen's place on the eggs.

The substitution of the rooster for the hen, and cat for rooster, will probably not affect the eggs.

Substitution, however, is dangerous where our health is concerned. There can be no excuse for a dealer offering something which is said to be "just as good" when "Fruit-a-tives" are asked for.

"Fruit-a-tives" have proved their great value in all cases of Indigestion and Dyspepsia, Constipation and Biliousness, and in troubles arising from disorders of the Liver, Bowels, Kidneys and skin.

They are the only remedy made of ripe fruit juices, and they tone up Liver and Kidneys, and regulate the Bowels, even more effectively than fruit itself. Thousands swear by them.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c.—At dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

THE POSITION IN ENGLAND

As the Liberals will not have a clear majority over the Unionists in the British House of Commons, and will have to depend upon their allies for a working majority, the political prophet has a fertile field to work upon in trying to foretell what will happen. At the same time we are given what is said to be the intention of the Premier and others in view of the circumstances the elections have brought about. Those speculations are not checked, but rather quickened by the assurances of leaders of the Labor party that their's is a distinct organization, and that their members must not be counted as Liberals. That the Premier's position is not an enviable one can easily be understood, for even among the Liberals there is not accord as to the policy to be pursued on important matters. The ebullient utterances of Mr. Lloyd-George and the socialistic tendencies of the section of the party which he leads, are not approved of by the more moderate Liberals who look to the Premier as their actual as well as nominal leader. This latent division in the party itself might at any time bring about open discord, but if party considerations succeed in holding the members of the Government together it still has to depend on the Laborites as active supporters and upon the Nationalists as at least not active opponents in order to hold office. For should the Nationalists vote against the Government their votes combined with the Unionists would overthrow it. To still further complicate matters, there is a division among the Nationalists, and an active section, not to be despised in numbers, follows the lead of Mr. William O'Brien and will not act with Mr. Redmond.

There are undoubtedly the elements of uncertainty in the situation, but what will happen, whether the various elements that the Government looks to for support can be conciliated and held together or not, time alone will tell. It would not be surprising, however, if the developments when Parliament meets should soon lead to another election, and in that case the Unionists would have another opportunity of endeavoring to convince the electors that tariff reform would stimulate manufacturing, benefit agriculture, and solve the problem of unemployment.

ANOTHER SUBSIDIARY COMPANY

It will be remembered that when the Laurier Government wished to make a deal with the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada for the building of a Transcontinental Railway, instead of contracting with that company and holding it responsible for carrying out the agreement, a subsidiary company known as the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company, was formed, so that the Grand Trunk Railway Company would not be in any way responsible. It now appears that a similar arrangement was made with the company that built that stupendous failure, the Quebec bridge. The Government made arrangements for the building of the bridge with the Quebec Bridge Company, an organization of Liberals, who put no capital into the company. The Quebec Bridge Company contracted with the Phoenix Bridge Company, a subsidiary company of the wealthy Phoenix Iron Company, of Philadelphia. Over three million dollars of money belonging to the Canadian people was paid to this Philadelphia Company, but when the Opposition members at Ottawa ask why the wealthy Philadelphia concern is not compelled to pay back the money received for building a worthless bridge that fell down before it was completed, the reply of the Laurier Government is that the contract was made with a subsidiary company which has only a capital of fifty thousand dollars, and that therefore it is impossible to recover the money.

POWER DEVELOPMENT

With the new city dam being constructed by the Water Commissioners nearing completion, the question of what use will be made of the power the dam is capable of furnishing beyond the needs of the waterworks department has arisen naturally. It would not be good business to spend the large sum of money upon the dam which has been required to build it and then only utilize a portion—and the smaller portion—of the value thus created. After the power required for the waterworks is taken there will be a comparatively large quantity left, and if this can be made use of and turned to good account it certainly should be done.

The City Council has taken up this matter in a sensible way. What can be done with this power can only be decided after information is obtained as to the quantity that will be available for electrical development and the cost of turning the water power thus available into electrical power. By requesting the Water Commissioners, who have constructed the dam and are familiar with the situation, to procure this information, the Council has taken the best means of obtaining what it and the citizens desire, and it can be taken for granted that no time will be lost and at the earliest moment the necessary information will be ready for the next step of deciding as to whether the power will be electrically developed and what use will be made of it if it is.

The street lighting contract has about four years yet to run, and while the lighting of the streets would be a rational way to use this power, it would seem a pity to allow the waste of so much power, which means so much money, for three or four years. The necessary building could probably be erected and equipped with the machinery in six months, if the order for the machinery were placed promptly, and in that case for about three years and a half this power would have to be used for other than street lighting purposes or lie idle. If it is not developed it will run to waste over the dam, and if it is developed it must be put to serviceable use. Perhaps the Council by giving this phase of the matter attention while the Water Commissioners are dealing with the cost of the development might have a plan ready, so that the development could be proceeded with without permitting either a wasteful delay or a further expenditure without a certainty of an adequate return for it. This question may be under consideration by the Council, and if so it should be pressed forward so that the scheme when matured may be presented to the people at an early date, in order that the whole benefit of the work that has been done on the city power property may be reaped.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"We are taking no chances," said the Provincial Secretary, in discussing the order that all dogs in the district in Western Ontario affected by the mad dog scare must be tied up or muzzled. This is a good policy in any time of danger, or of seeming danger.

Parliament votes $1,750,000 for the Trent Valley Canal this year, and it is announced that the sections of the work required to complete the connection between Lake Simcoe and Lake Ontario will be under contract this year. We hope the work will be vigorously prosecuted.

Liberal newspapers are now complaining that the Conservatives in the House of Commons at Ottawa sang "God Save the King" after Mr. Borden's speech on the naval question. They say that this was making a partisan use of the National Anthem. All the Liberal members might have joined in singing it if they had pleased to do so. Then there would have been nothing partisan about it.

The Commander, Mr. Robert L. Borden, believes in a Canadian unit of the Imperial navy to be built in Canada, but he recognized that it will take time to get the Canadian shipyard ready, time to build the ships, and time to train officers and men to take charge of them; while there is a possibility of a war with Germany in two or three years. So he says, in effect: "Let us first contribute enough money to immediately build two Dreadnoughts in England, and then carefully prepare plans for the establishment of a Canadian navy as a unit of the Imperial navy."

The funny thing about the Liberal objection that the Conservative members of Parliament should not have sung "God Save the King" after Mr. Borden's speech, is that in the first place the Toronto Globe stated that it was sung after Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech. The next day it corrected its report. "God Save the King" is a hymn of Empire. It was quite appropriate to sing it after a speech urging that Canada should immediately do something to show its loyalty to the Empire. It would have seemed somewhat out of place if sung after Sir Wilfrid Laurier's speech, and might have been regarded as a reply to his speech.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Feb. 9.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market this morning receipts were 650 cattle, 100 sheep and lambs, 400 hogs and 150 calves. Supplies were comparatively small, demand good at firm prices.

There were really no choice beeves on the market and the top figure realized was 4c for best steers, while good sold at 3½c to 3¾c; fairly good, at 3c to 3½c; fair, at 2½c to 2¾c, and common, at 2c to 2½c per lb. There were some extra choice cows, with a good demand at 3c, while the lower grades brought from 2c to 2½c per lb. Bulls of a good quality were in demand at 2c per lb.

The market for small meats was quiet, with continued small supplies coming. A firm feeling prevails. Lambs sold at 6½c to 7c, and sheep at 4½c per lb. Calves brought from $3 to $8.10 each, as to quality, but there was no choice stock on the market. In hogs the feeling was easier, and sales of selected lots were made at $9.25 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"Ah," said Ballio, with a cunning smile, "our man is also a great American. He can command the gunboats, too, sahib. We have told him that you have the great power. He shows us that he can call upon the English ships as well, for he comes last from London. He can have both, while you have only one. Besides, he says you cannot send a message in the air without the wire unless he give permission. He have a little machine that catch all the lightning in the air and hold it till he reads the message. Our man is a great man—next to Mohammed."

"Our man is a great man—next to Mohammed."

Britt passed his hand over his brow, staggered by these statements.

"Say, he's smoother than I thought. Most men would have been, —— fools enough to say that it was all poppycock about me sending wireless messages and calling out navies, but not he! And that machine for tapping the air! Say, we'd better go slow with that fellow. Shall I call him up on the phone and head off the strike?"

"Anything," Mr. Britt, to get back our servants," said Lady Deppingham who had come up with Mrs. Browne.

When Britt reappeared after a brief stay in the telephone booth he was perspiring freely, and his face was redder, if possible, than ever before.

"He was very peremptory at first and very agreeable in the end. I said we'd come down at 4:30. He asked me to bring some cigarettes. Say, he's a strenuous chap. He wouldn't haggle for a second."

Britt and Saunders found the enemy waiting for them under the awning in front of the bank. He looked a man from the top of his head to the tips of his canvas shoes. Every line of his long body indicated power, vitality, health. Both men were surprised by the eager, sincere manner in which he greeted them.

"Glad to see you, gentlemen," he said. He was a head taller than either, coatless and hatless, a lean but brawny figure in white crash trousers. "It's very good of you to come down. If you'll come to my shack I'll mix you a real American cocktail, a mint julep, a brandy smash or anything you like in season. There's a fine mint bed up my way, just back of the bungalow. It's more precious than a ruby mine, let me tell you. And yet I'll gladly exchange 200 carats of mint, Mr. Britt, for a dozen boxes of your cigarettes. Do you know, gentlemen, I made the greatest mistake of my life in failing to bring a ton of these little white sticks out with me. I thought of Gordon gin, both kinds of vermuth, brandy, and all that sort of thing, and completely forgot the staff of life. I happen to know that you have a million packages of them, more or less, up at the chateau. My spies told me. I dare say you know that I have spies up there all the time. Don't pay any attention to them. You're at liberty to set spies on my trail at any time. Here we are. This is the headquarters for the Mine Owners' Association of Japat."

He led them down a flight of steps and into a long, cool looking room some distance below the level of the street.

"The Mine Owners' association, gentlemen, comprises the entire population of Japat. Here is where I receive my clients. Here is where they receive their daily loaf, if you will pardon the simile. I sit in the chairs, they squat on the rugs. We talk about rubies and sapphires as if they were peanuts. Occasionally we talk about our neighbors. Shall I make three mint juleps? Here, Selim! The ice, the mint and the straws—and the bottles. Sit down, gentlemen." This is the American bar that Baedeker tells you about—the one you've searched all over Europe for, I dare say."

"Reminds me of home, just a little bit," said Britt as the tall glasses were set before them. The Englishman was still clothed in reticence. "They shan't catch me napping," was the sober reflection of Thomas Saunders.

The enemy planted the mint in its bed of chipped ice. "The sagacity that Taswell Skaggs displayed in erecting an ice plant and cold storage house here is equaled only by John Wyckholme's foresightedness in maintaining a contemporaneous mint bed. I imagine that you, gentlemen, are hoping to prove the old codgers insane. Between the three of us, and man to man, how can you have the heart to propose anything so unkind when we look, as we now do, upon the result of their extreme soundness of mind? Here's how!"

Selim passed the straws, and the three men took a long and simultaneous "pull" at the refreshing julep. Mr. Saunders felt something melt as he drew the subsequent long and satisfying breath. It was the outer rim of his cautious reserve.

"I think we'll take you up on that proposition to trade mint for cigarettes," said Mr. Britt. "Mr. Browne, my client, for one, will sanction the deal. How about your client, Saunders?"

"I can't say as to Lady Deppingham, but I'm quite sure his lordship will make no objection."

"Then we'll consider the deal closed. I'll send one of my boys over tomorrow with a bunch of mint. Telephone up to the bungalow when you need more. By the way," dropping into a curiously reflective air, "may I ask why Lady Deppingham is permitted to ride alone through the unfrequented and perilous parts of the island?" The question was directed to her solicitor.

"Perilous? What do you mean?"

"Just this, Mr Saunders," said the enemy, leaning forward earnestly. "I'm not responsible for the acts of these islanders. There are men among them who would not hesitate to dispose of one or both of the heirs if they could do it without danger to their interests. What could be more simple, Mr. Saunders, than the death of Lady Deppingham if her horse should stumble and precipitate her to the bottom of one of those deep ravines? She wouldn't be alive to tell how it really happened."

"My word!" was all that Saunders could say, forgetting his julep in contemplation of the catastrophe.

"He's right," said Britt promptly. "I'll keep my own client on the straight and public path. He's liable to tip over too."

"Deuce take your Browne," said Saunders, with mild asperity. "He never rides alone."

STIR AMONG THE DAILY PAPERS

New Conditions of Cost of Telegraph News—Bombshell From Railway Commission

Ottawa, Feb. 9.—A curious situation, which threatens to become a very expensive one to the Canadian daily papers, has developed in connection with telegraph rates for press news.

Hitherto, both the C.P.R. and the Great Northwestern Telegraph Companies—the only two in Canada—have carried at what is called a "flat rate" the greater part of the telegraphic news used in the press. In other words, the companies have charged so much per week for most of their service, regardless of the exact number of words sent. A rate per word has been applied only to exclusive messages sent specially to some particular paper.

In Ontario and Quebec the rate for special messages is 25 cents per one hundred words.

If this word rate were to apply to all the telegraphic service of Ontario and Quebec papers, instead of the flat rate which covers most of the service, the cost to the daily papers would be something like five times what it is now.

And this is what is threatened owing to a recent judgment of the Dominion Railway Commission that the telegraphic companies must cease giving any flat rate.

CAUSE OF THE RULING

The origin of the trouble was in the west. Winnipeg and other western papers, dissatisfied by some friction with the C. P. R. Telegraph Co., formed the "W. A. P." (Western Associated Press), to secure the distri- sociated Press), to secure and distribute news for themselves, instead of relying on the C. P. R. service. The C. P. R. charged this association a word rate, while supplying some western papers not in the new association at the old flat rate, which was cheaper. The W. A. P. consequently applied to the Railway Commission, which has supervision not only over railways but telegraphs, to have the C. P. R. stopped from giving a flat rate, claiming that it was a case of injurious discrimination. The Railway Commission ruled that it was against the law and ordered it to stop.

APPLIES EVERYWHERE

Of course, such an order could not have a partial application, so it is coming in force east as well as west. The telegraph companies are required to file with the Railway Commission by March 1 a schedule of rates per word to apply to everybody impartially throughout the Dominion.

This was a bombshell for the newspapers of Eastern Canada. If the C. P. R. were to file a word rate of 25 cents per 100 words for all press service, the combined daily papers of Ontario and Quebec if getting as much telegraphic news as now would have to pay from $50,000 to $100,000 a year more than they have been paying.

A meeting of the newspaper publishers of eastern Canada will be held in Montreal to-morrow to discuss the situation. The majority of the publishers of Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick dailies will attend. Every Ottawa newspaper is sending a representative. The dailies will endeavor to get the C. P. R. to file a schedule of less than 25 cents per 100 words, or failing that will apply to the Railway Commission to compel the telegraph companies to do so. Also it is tolerably certain that an Eastern Canada Press Association will be formed to handle telegraph news.

WEDDING BELLS

MAGEE—METCALFE

Norwood, Feb. 9.—A pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, January 26, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Wm. Metcalfe, Norwood, when her daughter Nettie was united in marriage to Mr. Edward Magee of Asphodel, in the presence of about seventy-five guests. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. W. Barret, of Hastings, and Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Clara Metcalfe, youngest sister of the bride. The ceremony took place under an arch of evergreens, prettily decorated with stars and white bells. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Alfred Metcalfe, wore the customary bridal veil and orange blossoms, and was attired in a dress of white satin dechine. She carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations.

Among the many beautiful presents received by the bride were a sable muff and pearl brooch, the gifts of the groom, and a Karn organ from her mother.

NO USE FOR BANKS; MICE ATE HER MONEY

The Collingwood Enterprise tells the following tale, which is not calculated to encourage people to be their own bankers;—

"Mrs. Madill, who lives near Collingwood, has worked very hard in her life time, and by honest efforts had accumulated about $600 from the sale of butter, poultry, etc. The old lady did not believe in banks nor in any of the various methods provided for the investment of money, so she stowed away her carefully earned pile in a spot known only to herself. Wishing to add to it she paid the hidden place a visit recently, but found that her wealth had melted away like the Simcoe hotel men before the Scott Act vote and only fragments of paper were left to show that the mice had destroyed the whole of the money to build themselves a nest, which might just as well have been built from a one-cent copy of an out-of-date daily paper.

Hon. Charles Langelier, sheriff of Quebec, is now judge of the sessions.

THE BEST REMEDY

For Women—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Belleville, Ont.—"I was so weak and worn out from a female weakness that I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took several bottles of it, and I gained strength so rapidly that it seemed to make a new woman of me. I can do as good a day's work as I ever did. I sincerely bless the day that I made up my mind to take your medicine for female weakness, and I am exceedingly grateful to you for your kind letters, as I certainly profited by them. I give you permission to publish this any time you wish."—Mrs. ALBERT WICKETT, Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will cure female weakness and so successfully carry women through the Change of Life as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs.

For 30 years it has been curing women from the worst forms of female ills—inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, and nervous prostration.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

GOOD ROADS CONVENTION

Will be Held in Toronto, March 2, 3 and 4—Experts Will Give Addresses

Nineteen counties in the province have adopted the Good Roads system and planned the improvement of three thousand miles of their leading highways.

The Good Roads Association of Ontario consider the time favorable for a general advance in the construction of good roads throughout the whole province. With this in view they are arranging for a widely representative convention to be held in Toronto on March 2nd, 3rd, and 4th. Efforts are being made to secure the attendance of members not only of County Councils, but from the township bodies, and all other associations that are interested in improving the roads of the country, such as the Farmers' Institutes, Agricultural Societies, Fair Associations, the various live stock associations, fruit growers, and others. The movement is spreading also to the towns and cities.

The programme will provide for a valuable series of addresses from superintendents of county road systems already in operation, explaining the method of designating roads, the machinery and material used, the cost, and how the money is raised.

Experts in addition, are being secured from New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and other states where the finest roads in America have been built up.

After a thorough discussion, it is proposed to decide upon some policy that will include the most valuable points of all these systems. During the convention a huge deputation will wait on Provincial Government to consult with it as to future assistance.

As over five hundred delegates are expected to attend, single fare rates will probably be secured. Communications should be sent to the secretary of the Ontario Good Roads Association, at Whitby.

HOME WORK IS LIGHT IN THE PETERBORO' PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Public School Inspector Mowat Approves of Present System of Home Study in City Schools — The Situation in Toronto and Ottawa.

The reducing of home work of public school pupils is being discussed throughout the province and in Toronto the Board of Education announces the abolition of home work.

Mr. Mowat, inspector of public schools for this city, when questioned by the Review to-day, said that the home work in the public schools here was very light, and, with the exception of spelling, there is practically none required of the pupils in the forms below the third book. After this they are required to do some home work to make progress in their work, and in order that the parents may be kept in touch with what they are doing.

Asked concerning his attitude on home study of the school lessons, Mr. Mowat expressed the opinion that he was in favor of the light home work given the pupils now, and apparently would not favor any radical deviation from the present plan.

An Ottawa clipping reads: Dr. Glasham, local public school inspector here, was to-day asked by the Journal had he noticed the following Toronto despatch, published in last night's Journal—"Toronto, Feb. 8.—The Board of Education announced the abolition of home work for scholars."

The inspector recalled that this was a matter that he had been interested in for several years. He intimated that he was opposed to having home work in the schools, especially for the pupils in the junior classes. He had intimated this some years ago, but recalled that the Journal had taken a vote of the parents and ratepayers on this matter, when "the majority declared in favor of the home work. "Of course," said Mr. Glasham, "the parents, and not the trustees or anyone else own the schools, and on such a question as that the majority rules."

MORE REGULAR WORK.

The inspector gave it as his personal opinion that he would favor no home work; but at the same time, if that was the regulation, he would perhaps expect better work in some of the classes. He seemed of the opinion that a question of this kind could hardly be left optional, so if the parents of some children wanted them to take the home work and others did not, many of the pupils would get the idea that they were not being treated fairly.

Mr. Fairbairn, chairman of the Public School Board, intimated that he had not looked into this matter and so did not care, at present, to express any opinion for publication.

A PROGRESSIVE YEAR AT GEORGE STREET CHURCH

Annual Congregational Meeting Last Night — Statement of Total Amount Contributed and Moneys Raised for Missions — Interesting Programme.

The reports presented at the annual congregational meeting of the George street Methodist church showed that splendid progress had been made during the year. Rev. E. A. Pearson presided at the meeting and there was an excellent attendance. All the yearly reports of the various societies of the church were given.

An interesting feature of the meeting was an entertaining programme. It consisted of selections by the Sunday school orchestra, solo by Miss Reesor, duet by Misses Josie Thornton and C. Thornton, duet by Miss Reesor and Mr. Myles, and recitation by Mr. R. J. Winch. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the programme.

WHAT MEANS THE SNEER?
La Presse says: "The "Chronicle," of London, consecrates an editorial to the next Governor-General of Canada and says that in this position it is necessary to strike the imagination of the people through the prestige of the appointee. Does England think to fascinate us and why?"

How things have changed! So long as Britain served the purposes of her French Canadians she was admirable in every way. A sympathetic article, not a sneer, would have been the comment of La Presse in the old days before the Admiralty suggested the contribution of a fleet-unit to the cause of empire.

Le Canada, day after day in long editorials citing the law and the precedents, shows how thoroughly Sir Wilfrid's bill will preserve the independence of Canada, the freedom from imperial obligations. It rejoices in that clause of the bill which requires the calling of parliament and its consent before "our navy" can join the imperial navy. Why is this fear of empire so apparent? Because the French are determined to stand out of the empire at all hazards. When Sir Wilfrid boldly announced that if another Crimean war arose Canada would not join in, but would stand aloof, he announced the independence of Canada—so far as he can announce it.

CO. ORANGE LODGE OF EAST PETERBORO

The annual meeting of the County Orange Lodge of East Peterborough was held in the Orange Hall, Norwood, on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 1. There was a large attendance from all the primary lodges of the districts of Norwood and Blairton. After the regular routine of business the secretary reported a marked increase in membership. The election and installation of officers for 1910 resulted as follows:—

County Master—Bro. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., L.O.L. No. 326, Havelock.
D.C.M.—Bro. F. A. Robertson, L.O.L. 34, Norwood.
Co. Chaplain—Bro. Sam Ivey, L.O.L. 277, Belmont.
Co. Rec.-Sec.—Bro. H. A. Thistlewaite, L.O.L. 277, Belmont.
Co. Fin. Sec.—Bro. Robert Martin, L.O.L. 34, Norwood.
Co. Treas.—Bro. W. R. Parker, L.O.L. 522, South Dummer.
Co. D. of C.—Bro. Thomas Sexsmith, 326, Havelock.
Co. Lecturers—Bro. T. J. Graham, L.O.L. 326, Havelock; Bro. S. M. Howse, L.O.L. 2062, Westwood.

The newly elected officers were installed by P. County Master Moore, of North Dummer, after which the meeting closed in due form.

East Peterborough will this year visit on July 12, it being decided to have no county celebration, with Campbellford and Lakefield, so close where celebrations are being held.

PRESENTATION AT PARK ST. CHURCH

Mr. Stanley Gillespie Honored at Close of Quarterly Business Meeting

Mr. Stanley Gillespie, who has been secretary of the Sunday school of Park street Baptist church for the past six years, was presented with a handsome Bible at the close of the quarterly business meeting last night. The presentation was made by Messrs. Herb Reid and Douglas Loomis, and an address was read expressing regret at Mr. Gillespie's departure from the city and wishing him success in his new position at Picton. Mr. Gillespie made a neat reply.

Mr. Gillespie, who has been connected with the carpet department of the J. C. Turnbull Co., is leaving for Picton to accept a good position in a similar line of work.

OBITUARY

JAMES ROBB

Norwood, Feb. 9.—The death occurred at Norwood on Monday, January 31st, of James Robb, aged 81 years. The deceased was born in Glasgow, Scotland. Surviving him are four sons Messrs. John A. and Hugh of Norwood, J. D. of Westwood, William of Stoney Lake, and four daughters, Mrs. Robt. Rutherford, Mrs. A. McCullough of Seymour, Mrs. J. Nixon and Mrs. J. Grant of Stoney Lake.

The funeral took place on Wednesday, Feb. 2, from the homestead at Stoney Lake to the Norwood cemetery. Rev. Mr. Marvin of Warsaw conducted the service.

MRS. J. H. BROWN.

There passed away in North Monaghan yesterday a highly esteemed young woman in the person of Mrs. J. H. Brown. She was twenty-seven years of age and her maiden name was Mary Ellen Armstrong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong, of North Monaghan. She had been in poor health since April. Deceased was only married a year ago last September and she is survived by her husband, one daughter, two brothers, Stanley and Sidney, one sister, Bertha, and father and mother. They will have the deepest sympathy of many friends.

Mrs. Brown was a member of the Methodist church at Fraserville. The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at two o'clock to Little Lake cemetery. The service will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Weatherill of the Fraserville Methodist church at the family residence, lot 6, concession 9.

Mrs. M. Baird, of the Mount Pleasant Hotel, Brantford, was fined $35 for selling liquor on election day.

ANNUAL MISSION REPORT

The 26th annual report of the Algoma and Northwest Evangelical and Colportage Mission has been published, showing approximately work done, and moneys received and paid out from November 15th, 1908, to November 15th, 1909.

Donations from 85 towns and villages were $1,631.60, receipts from sales $186.12.

The supplies have been in twelve languages, and 815 copies have been taken account of. The journeys have been west of Sudbury and Copper Cliff funds being too limited to go further.

There still remains an indebtedness of about $4,000.

Much time and material have been spent in vain in endeavoring to obtain $500 from the Legislature of Ontario towards the $1,200 costs incurred in publishing the Ojibway Indian and English dictionaries.

The depot is still at 202 King street east, Toronto, but better premises are necessary.

The donations of Peterborough in aid of work last year were $29.25, which is gratefully acknowledged.

NEW YEAR FOR CHINESE WAS COMMENCED

Yesterday was the Chinese New Year—the first day of the first moon of the reconstituted Great Pure Dynasty, Emperor Hsuan Tung. The Celestial residents of Peterborough celebrated the day quietly, calling on each other, exchanging presents and greeting each other with "Gun Hsi Fah," which freely translated means "Happy New Year."

In China the celebration of the New Year is kept up for several days.

NEXT MONDAY IS VALENTINE DAY

Monday, February 14th, is St. Valentine's Day, and the bookstores in Peterborough have prepared for the annual exchange of pictorial greetings, complimentary and otherwise. Some very pretty valentines are displayed, and there are some that are far from being things of beauty from an artistic standpoint.

GRAIN INSPECTOR IS APPOINTED

Mr. Francis Hurley, son of the late inspector, Mr. John Hurley, of Peterborough, has been appointed grain inspector for the Midland district. Mr. Hurley has assisted his father for some years, and his appointment as guaranteeing effective service, will meet with general approval.

G. P. HUNTLEY KNOWN IN TWO CONTINENTS

Mr. G. P. Huntley, who will be seen at the Grand next Saturday evening only, February 12th, in "Kitty Grey," comes from a theatrical family, his mother, father, grandmother and grandfather having preceded him in his profession. Mr. Huntley was born in Fermoy, County Cork, Ireland. He is known both in America and England. His latest triumph, previous to appearing in "Kitty Grey," was made in "The Hon'ble Phil," in which he was the chief comedian.

The name of G. P. Huntley is a familiar one in the racing world of England. Where the actor is the possessor of many race horses. Mr. Huntley's record on the turf was an exceptional one at the start, as he won eleven races out of fourteen. Two days before Mr. Huntley sailed for America he won a race. His stable includes both flat racers and steeplechase horses. Mr. Huntley is in partnership with one of the cleverest trainers in England, Mr. John E. Hallick. As a horse-breeder, the actor's colors are claret and apple-green, sleeves and claret-cap. He admits that he selected claret and apple-green because he "thought it was a combination calculated to give the bookmakers a pain in their little-marys."

Mr. Huntley first visited America when he was about fifteen, not theatrically, but in search of the romantic, being an ardent admirer of the North-west American Indian. While in the west he visited many reservations, and made a very fine collection of Indian trophies, which adorn the walls in his home in England. Mr. Huntley has also painted many chiefs, such as Red Cloud, John Grass and others of the Sioux nation.

The part Mr. Huntley is going to play here, that of Lord Duleton in "Kitty Grey," is probably the biggest success he has achieved. It was in this par t that he first made his name in England. It was also in this play that Mr. Huntley first met Mrs. Huntley, Miss Eva Kelly, who was an American, and who will also play her original part in the forthcoming production of "Kitty Grey."

Mr. Huntley has played a variety of parts since he last visited America. He was the original Mr. Hook in "Miss Hook of Holland," the Prince of Wales Theatre production in London, which ran for fifteen months.

WEST ENDS AND THE STRATHCONAS TIED

For City League Honors—Strathconas After Leading at Half Time by 2-1 Went Down Before the Superior Work of the West Ends—Final Score Was 6-4—Keene Won From T.A.S. by 3-2.

Well, look whose here—Strathconas for the championship—nix—the West Ends. How did it happen? West Ends played the better game, and on the showing of last night look good for the bun feed and the silver mug that goes with it at the close of the season. The next game will tell the tale and it will be either Jack Oldham or Bill Metheral for the bughouse.

Last night's city league bill-of-fare was the choicest of the season. Keene and T.A.S. held down the boards for forty minutes, by way of a curtain raiser, and the bouquets went to McDougall and Co. by a majority of one, with Bill Rose handling the chimes. The big squeeze, with Conductor Whitehead on the job, came next, and it was some attraction. The Strathconas took the leading role for thirty minutes, and then something happened. For the first time this season, they took a back seat, and while the Hunter street club aggregation were putting it all over them, their chances of selling their outfits and retiring for the remainder of the season went all to the bad. The game to decide the championship between these two teams should and will no doubt be one fine big struggle, and the occasion will be one to be remembered.

The attendance was large, and any fan who thinks he or she did not get their money's worth, will on application to the West End manager, receive their admittance fee back. He is just in the frame of mind to give away a million.

KEENE 3—T. A. S. 2.

The village team had the better of the play and deserved the win, which, by the way, was a popular one. For their first season with the city league, the players have done well. The material in Keene for a team has been limited, and it has meant no small amount of time and expense to have seven men at Brock street rink without an exception, every Wednesday night before the referee blew his whistle or rang his bell for the start.

T. A. S. did not have on the regular line-up. McNicholl and Morin were missing and the team did not put up the same kind of a game as in previous contests. There was even a sign of "I don't care if you do score spirit" on the part of several of the players.

Both teams are now tied for the cellar position, but it is not likely that there will be a play-off.

The teams were—

Keene.		T. A. S.
	Goal
Dinsdale		Giroux
	Point
McCarthy		Heffernan
	Cover
McDougall		Cahill
	Rover
Lewis		Quigley
	Centre
Weir		T. Sabitino
	Ring wing
Dickson		Kenealley
	Left wing
Wedlock		Coughlin

THE SCORING

Keene drew the puck and Wedlock started the penalty list. In four minuted Weir beat Giroux for the first counter of the evening. The clever centre man, for the visitors, looked good to go one better five minutes from the face-off, but Cahill stopped him. In eleven minutes Quigley evened up on a rink end rush.

In two minutes, Sabitino put his team ahead, but McDougall lifted a fooler past Giroux and made the figures stand 2—2. Coughlin went off for loafing, and the score remained unchanged when the bell sounded for the rest.

McDougall proceeded to the fence for tripping Cahill shortly after the return of the players to the ice, and Coughlin took a second trip for getting Wedlock. It took ten minutes for Weir to place his team in the lead again. Dickson was hurt in the face. No more scoring was done, although both goals had close shaves.

SCORING SUMMARY

First Half.

1—Keene, Weir, 4.00 min.
2—T. A. S., Quigley, 11.00.
3—T. A. S., Sabitino, 2.00.
4—Keene, McDougall, 1.30

Second Half

5—Keene, Weir, 10.00.

Penalties—

Timers—Keene, Hall; T. A. S., Hickey; penalty, Deannard.

WEST ENDS—6.
STRATHCONAS—4.

The go between the West Ends and Strathconas was fast and exciting, but contrary to their usual custom, the latter team fell down in the second half, and the Jack-on-Park septette showed a superiority in all departments of the game. Had it no been for the splendid work of Derocher in goal, the score would have ascended much higher. On the other hand, Halpin had an easy night, owing to the effective work of Seymour and McWilliams. As usual, Crane started the scoring in the first half, but the Commissioners evened up and were one to the good when the breathing spell arrived. On play being resumed, Crane tied up the teams, and Burritt put the Strathconas ahead for the second time. Then Dobson won the game for the West Ends by putting three past Derocher in quick order. Weatherstone and McMillan counted for the Straths, and it looked for a few minutes as tho the score might be tied again, but Crane destroyed the hopes of the supporters of the red and white seven by beating Derocher, with only a few minutes to play.

The absence of Ben Dusty was felt by the Jowns, and the team work was not as noticeable as in other games. Burritt was off color and looked considerable shy. He was closely watched all through the game, and while he invariably drew the face-off, Dobson had it on him. McMillan and Weatherstone had it on their cheeks in the first half, but took the count for the greater part of the second period. Each got away with some good work at times, but neither could keep it up.

Ray, as usual, worked hard and steadily to win the game, and had the team been working together his work would have been more effective. Dennison plays the best game for his team, but he, like Ray, lost the puck when a helping hand would have made it extremely dangerous for the West Ends.

Ken Crane for the West Ends was the star of the game. He was there with the stick handling, passes and scores, and on numerous occasions broke away for lone shots. Captain Dobson contributed three of the tallies and practically put the game on ice for his team by his fast work. Shortt and Giroux were always fighting, and the former's work, especially in the second half, showed great improvement.

The West Ends were strong on the defence. Seymour and McWilliams worked well together and time and time again blocked the assaults of the Strathconas. The team played up to form last night and look good for the championship.

The teams were:—

WEST ENDS.

Halpin.
McWilliams.
Seymour.
Crane.
Shortt — Dobson — Giroux
Weatherston — Burritt — McMillan
Ray
Denison
Campbell
Derocher.

STRATHCONAS.

From the face off the puck went down to the Straths' goal, and the play remained in the vicinity of the nets for a minute. Burritt got away, but the pass was too wild for McMillan to handle. The Straths pressed, but there was nothing doing in the way of a score. Crane broke away and shot wild. Derocher was called upon to block a couple and Giroux drew the first penalty of the game. Captain Ray got well away, but was easy for the West End defence. Burritt secured from a scrimmage and shot wild. Weatherston beat it to the penalty man for getting McWilliams on the boards. Crane looked good to beat Derocher, but he missed the nets with no defence to bother him. Giroux was banished again for tripping Ray. The latter zig-zagged and lifted wild. Shortt came along with a funny one, securing the puck after Ray's lift and with both forward lines tearing down the ice, he took the rubber the whole length of the rink along the boards and went right in on Derocher without an attempt being made to check him. Derocher, however, was on the job and cleared, and performed likewise on a deadly lift from Seymour. Ray went off for tripping Dobson, and a few seconds later Burritt took to the fence for loafing. With these two players off Derocher cleared to the spectators and was warned. The West Ends with the advantage of two men could not connect. Halpin stopped one from Burritt and Seymour captured the puck from the same player a minute later as he rushed. The teams were playing with honors equal. The checking was hard and close. Crane and Denison were doing some great work, but the scores refused to come.

Denison stopped McWilliams and lost to Shortt. McWilliams was ordered to the fence and Crane took a term. With matters reversed, the Straths could not score. Ray sailed off a nice rush, but was sidetracked to the boards by Seymour. On the return Derocher handled a shot from Crane, and Weatherston was penalized. In twelve minutes West Ends broke into the scoring on a shot from Crane.

West Ends 1, Strathconas 0.

In on minute Strathconas evened up, Burritt doing the trick after Weatherston had carried the puck up the ice.

West Ends 1, Strathconas 1.

Burritt was injured in the face on the faceoff, and the game was stopped. On resuming the Straths pressed and kept Seymour and McWilliams working overtime. A long lift relieved the situation and Derocher blocked Dobson's head on the net shot. A few seconds later he blocked one from Crane, who had rushed the boards and shot one of those quick ones. Ray rushed, and Burritt fell down on the pass. Seymour returned and was worked into the corner. The West End cover, after the Straths had worked the rubber up again, was benched for getting Ray. Finally after seven minutes McMillan put his team ahead on a scoop from his position.

West Ends 2, Strathconas 2.

After the faceoff Weatherston broke away and lost to McWilliams, who was penalized. Crane rushed, passed to Dobson, but Campbell spoiled the play. Ray and Burritt were rolled back on a likely looking one. The West End line combined and Denison blocked the pass and returned.

Half time score—West Ends 2, Strathconas 2.

SECOND HALF.

Securing the puck from the faceoff, Crane evened up again in 30 seconds, and the West End rooters pulled off a noisy one.

The play went down to the West End goal, and on the return Derocher got in front of two hard ones. Ray's rush was wasted, but in 2 1-2 minutes Burritt put the Straths ahead again.

West Ends 2, Strathconas 3.

Derocher cleared on Crane's fine shot. Giroux succumbed to a cramp in the leg. West Ends were showing up well and had the better of the play. Derocher left his net and met Seymour's shot. Weatherston drew a third penalty for getting Crane on the boards, but a minute later the West End rover broke away, only to lose the puck at the Straths' goal. After eight minutes Dobson accepted a pass from Shortt and made the score stand

West Ends 3, Strathconas 3.

Weatherston returned to the fee, and the puck went up to the Straths' territory. Denison took a rest for using McWilliams too roughly. On a faceoff from in front of him Derocher stopped and relieved to the side. Denison, who was doing heroic work at his position, secured and rushed, but Halpin blocked his shot and handled two more. The play went up the ice again and in 4 minutes West Ends shot out in front by a lift from Dobson.

West Ends 4, Strathconas 3.

That the Commissioners were having the worst of the argument was plain to be seen. Their opponents were checking them to a standstill and were getting away with combination plays. In two minutes Dobson again scored.

West Ends 5, Strathconas 3.

The play alternated between the two nets for the next two minutes. Seymour was given a rest for getting McMillan as he was about to shoot, but Weatherston came along with one that beat Halpin.

West Ends 5, Strathconas 4.

The Straths took a momentary brace. Denison went down the boards, but there was no one in centre to take the pass. McWilliams was hurt. Crane got away and with no defence could not score. Denison secured and returned, but shot wild. McMillan pulled off a similar stunt. Burritt and Crane sat down together. The Straths kept the play around the West End goal, but could not work the rubber in. In six minutes Crane put his team on easy street and scored the last goal of the game.

West Ends 6, Strathconas 4.

Scoring summary:—

FIRST HALF.

1. West Ends—Crane—12.00.
2. Strathconas—Burritt—1.00.
3. Strathconas—McMillan—7.00.

SECOND HALF.

9. Strathconas—Weatherston—2.00.
10. West Ends—Crane—6.00.

Penalties—West Ends—Giroux 2, Seymour 2, McWilliams 2, Crane. Strathconas—Weatherston 3, Denison, Ray 2, Burritt.

Timers—Carr and Staunton.

Penalty—Wasson.

OUT AFTER HURTUBISE

Charlie Fraser, the wrestler, who issued a general challenge to middleweights while he was training near this city, has written the sporting editor from Sydney, N.S., where he is at present. Fraser states he has had some good bouts with clever men in Sydney, and out of six matches only lost one, being handicapped by reason of a sore hand.

Fraser says he will be in this part of the country soon and wants to meet Hurtubise.

George Street Methodist Church—Downing, rf; Miller, lf; Greesman, c; McCarron, rg; Payne, lg.

C.G.E.—Cunniff, rf; Elliott, lf; Turner, c; Armstrong, rg; Fleming, lg.

Referee—H. McLaughlin. Time Scorer, Martin.

The game was the best this season and good and clean and there was'nt a mixup in the whole game, and not a bit of hard feeling between the players, and talk about fast, the winning team played this fast short passing and the C.G.E. didn't know where to look for the ball half of the time, this is the first real team the C.G.E. lghts have played and when the game ended they were somewhat surprised to find the score was so close.

Of course the referee was to blame, but as all has been know by this time that the referee has no friends, it is only natural that he should get something. The C.G.E. players blame their misfortune on the referee, but those that saw the game will agree that the C.G.E. team made a whole lot more fouls than were called, and that they were beaten fair and square.

If Stan. Caniff would learn to play the game square, and Ford Turner learn to play just a trifle cleaner, and Fleming just a little more basket ball and less talking to the referee, Elliott just played about the game that any one of the George street men play you would have a basket ball team. Out side of that your team is all right.

I have nothing against these basketball players. I am only giving them some valuable points, that might help them to play a little better game.

Trusting that the men whose names are mentioned above will gather the fine points that they are very badly in need to play the game.

I am,
Very sincerely yours,
H. A. McLAUGHLIN.
Physical Director.

WRESTLING

Winnipeg, Feb. 9.—Charles Gustafson, of Winnipeg, defeated Jack Sheppard, of Minneapolis, to-night for the middleweight championship of America, capturing the honors from Sheppard in two straight falls. Both were gained by a half chancery and arm hold. It was one of the greatest bout ever seen in the west, the first fall taking 44 minutes and the latter 20.

CHURCH LEAGUE GAMES TO-NIGHT

George St. and Knox Meet in First Game-St. Andrew's and All Saint's Take Next

At the Auditorium rink to-night two more Church League games will be played, and there promises to be a large crowd on hand to witness the contests, which should be the most interesting yet played. In the first game George St. and Knox come together. At the last meeting the Methodists carried off the honors, and will make a big effort to-night to repeat their performance. The Knox team have two losses marked against them, but are hopeful of breaking into the win column.

St. Andrew's and All Saints' meet in the second game, and the Anglicans will endeavor to record the first defeat against the Presbyterians.

The ice is in splendid condition, and the teams for the first game are asked to be on hand early.

REFEREE'S REPORT ON THE PETERBORO'-MARKHAM GAME

Refree Angus D. Campbell, of Varsity, who handled the Markham-Peterborough Collegiate game at Peterborough, made the following report to the O.H.A.

"In the second half of the Markham-Peterborough Collegiate game the score being 3 to 2 in favor of Peterborough, a scrimmage occurred near the Peterborough goal, the puck came out, and a rush was made on the Markham goal, resulting in a score for Peterborough. As I turned back to face the puck at centre, the Markham captain made the claim that a goal had been scored by Markham during the afore-mentioned scrimmage, and that the umpire had held up his hand.

"This umpire, a Markham man, stoutly asserted that a goal had been scored by Markham, and, although I did not see the goal scored, yet it might have been a goal, so I allowed the goal for Markham, disallowing the goal for Peterborough.

"The Peterborough people claimed that the Markham umpire was drunk, but he was apparently sober when the game started, and no protest was made to me re his state until after the dispute. On account of the crowd coming over the fence and hustling the unpire I was unable to get his name or to see whether he was in a proper state to act as umpire.

"Soon afterwards the Peterborough umpire claimed a goal for Peterborough, but as I plainly saw that it was no score I did not allow, it, the game thus ending; 3 to 3.

In my opinion the dispute would not have arisen had proper boxes and flags been provided for the umpires."

The Dominion Government is being urged to create more Liberal K.C.'s.

W. H. HILL, ESQ.,

Manager Sun Life Assurance Co., of Canada,

Peterborough, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—About five years ago my late husband took out $1,000.00 insurance in The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, on which he only paid the first three premiums. Shortly after his death, which occurred on the 6th inst., although I was under the impression that his policy had lapsed, I called at your office to inquire if anything could be done whereby we might get something out of it. You can imagine my surprise and genuine gratitude to learn that, owing to your non-forfeiture privilege, the policy was still in force at his death and that I was entitled to the full thousand dollars, less only the two unpaid premiums and interest.

This seems to me such extraordinary and generous treatment that I wish to add my expression of most sincere thanks and appreciation to the many others your company must receive.

I also wish to acknowledge and thank you for your courtesy and promptness in procuring for me a cheque to-day covering the policy, and to state that if my endorsation of the already mentioned feature of your policies is of value you are quite at liberty to use it.

Gratefully yours,
MARGARET LONG,

A goodly number of ladies responded to the kindly invitations issued by the Mission Circle of the Baptist church Thursday afternoon, Feb. 3rd. A short programme was rendered and the pastor, Mr. Jones, who occupied the chair, gave a very interesting and helpful address on the Spirit of Missions.

They adjourned to the schoolroom, where a most enjoyable tea was served. Surely a larger membership will be the outcome.

A very pleasant event took place on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Coleman Blewett, North Smith, when about fifty of the members of the congregation of the Presbyterian church assembled to express to Mrs. Blewett their appreciation of her services as organist of the church.

The following address was read by Mr. James Isbister, chairman of the Board of Managers and the presentation was made by Mr. Walter Preston.

Dear Mrs. Blewett,—We the members and adherents of the North Smith Presbyterian church desire to express to you in a small way our appreciation of your faithful and efficient service as organist, which has been so freely given, often at a considerable sacrifice to yourself.

We therefore beg your acceptance of this watch, as a recognition of your untiring zeal in the Master's service, and may it also serve as a happy reminder of the love and appreciation of your many friends in the congregation and our sincere wish is that your devoted life may be spared many years to your home and for the Master's work. Signed on behalf of the congregation, James Isbister, chairman; Robert Borland, secretary.

Mrs. Blewett was completely taken by surprise, but replied in well chosen words, thanking them for their kind thoughtfulness and the beautiful gift and expressing her joy in being able to use her talent for the Master. A very pleasant social evening was then spent, during which refreshments were served by the ladies of the congregation.

Mr. Burns, the pastor, was present and added his words of appreciation to Mrs. Blewett's faithful and efficient service and expressed his pleasure in meeting with the people of the congregation in the home of Mrs. Blewett. The company broke up all expressing their wish that Mrs. Blewett and her family might be spared for many years to the North Smith Presbyterian church.

SAVED HER HAIR

Zam-Buk Cured Scalp Eczema

If you have eczema, ringworm or any scalp sore, do not permit your hair to be cut off without first trying Zam-Buk. Mrs. David Monteith, of 93 Bertraud street, Norwood, Winnipeg, says:—"My daughter contracted eczema of the scalp, and this broke out regularly for three years in succession. It would probably have been recurring yet each season had it not been for Zam-Buk. The eczema first started with an outbreak of little red, watery pimples, which turned into large sores. We consulted a medical man, and tried lotions, powders, salves and all kinds of things, but in vain.

"Each time the disease appeared her hair had to be cut off. When this had been done three times a friend suggested that, as other things had failed, I should try Zam-Buk, instead of again consulting a doctor and going through the old and ineffective programme. I acted on the advice, and obtained some Zam-Buk. Almost as soon as this was applied the child experienced relief. The itching and irritation seemed to be soothed, and in several places, after some days' treatment, there appeared signs of improvement, so we thought we would not this time cut off the hair.

"We kept on applying the Zam-Buk, until in a few weeks it was very evident a complete cure was being effected. In the end all the sores were healed, the hair over the affected parts had grown again, and at the present time her scalp is healthy and quite free from every trace of sore or eczema." This same healing virtue is responsible for cures of ulcers, abscesses, running sores, cuts, cracks, scalds, burns, piles, abrasions, etc. For children's rashes there is nothing to equal Zam-Buk, as it is so pure. All druggists and stores at 50 cents box, or post free from Zam-Buk Company, Toronto, for price.

Horses are in good demand. It is reported that John Delany was offered $300 for his brown mare. Her weight is 1800 and about seven years of age.

The weather is fine, the sleighing good, business brisk, everybody is happy. What more do we need.

The rink is quite an attraction and is kept in good shape by the manager and is enjoyed by the young folks of the village and the country around. In fact some of the old people enjoyed it too.

ASK WM. MADILL

Parisian Sage, the Hair Grower, is Now Sold in Canada on Money Back Plan

It's a mighty good thing for the women of Canada that Parisian Sage can now be obtained in every town of consequence.

No preparation for the hair has done so much to stop falling hair and eradicate dandruff and make women's hair beautiful as Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is the only certain destroyer of the dandruff microbe which is the cause of 97 per cent. of hair troubles.

These pernicious, persistent and destructive little devils thrive on the ordinary hair tonics.

Parisian Sage is such an extraordinary and quick acting rejuvenator that Wm. Madill, who is the agent in Peterborough, guarantees it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

It is a magnificent dressing for women who desire luxuriant, lustrous hair that compels admiration.

And a large bottle of Parisian Sage costs only 50 cents at Wm. Madill's and all over Canada.

The ease with which corns and warts can be removed by Holloway's Corn Cure is its strongest recommendation. It seldom fails.

APSLEY NEWS

Special to Review.

Apsley, Feb. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Dean of "Riverdene," were were guests at Mr. Norman Dean's on Sunday of last week.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wilson of Anstruther on the birth of a daughter.

Mrs. Simon Windsor of the village has returned from a week's visit with her mother, Mrs. John Lean, Burleigh.

Mr. Wilbert Lean, who has been working for Mr. A. Smith for some time, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Hales and children of Anstruther visited friends in Burleigh on Sunday last.

Mr. Cyrus McFadden, who is working in the camp, spent Sunday last at his home in Burleigh.

Mr. William Earnshaw, who has been engaged hauling logs to Eel's Creek for Mr. Almond Harris, completed his work on Friday.

Rev. T. Lord attended the basket social under Church of England management in South Burleigh on last Thursday.

A number of the "gritty" people are busily engaged at Jack's Lake getting things in readiness for the building of a cement dam.

We hope the Truancy Act in regard to schools, brought up at the meeting of the county council, will be rigidly enforced in this part of the county on account of the indifference of many in regard to education.

Miss Ella Brown visited friends in Burleigh last week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Staples were guests at Mr. Benjamin Coones one day recently.

The men who have been hauling logs from "Watson's camp" to Eel's Creek, have ceased operations for a short time until another supply is ready.

As brush was unable to see his shadow on Candlemas Day an early spring is looked forward to.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. Allan Coones is still confined to the house owing to ill health.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Lean entertained a few of their friends at a fowl supper on Monday evening of last week. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Snelgrove and Master Graham of Manitoba.

Mrs. W. Lean and Miss Mildred Hales were guests at Eelsview Villa one day recently.

Reeves Hales and Tucker have returned from attending the meeting of the county council at Peterborough.

A yearling calf belonging to Mr. I. Lean, while taking a drink from a creek, fell in and would have succumbed to a watery grave, but for the timely assistance of Messrs W. Lean and W. Staples.

Mr. Allen Coons had his hand badly bitten by a dog belonging to Mr. E. McFadden. He was examining some hay at Mr. McFadden's and it being dark he put his hand into the mow and did not know that the canine used the place as a kennel, who considering it his own personal property at once made use of his ivories.

Mrs. Norman Wilson is the guest of friends in Toronto.

From Another Correspondent.

The weather has been extremely fine the last few days.

Miss M. Watson, who has been teaching school for the summer, is assisting Mrs. Wm. Masters this winter.

Mrs. R. Hall, of Apsley, left a few days ago for Campbellford, where she will remain for about a month.

Miss Nellie Gilroy, of Coe Hill, is staying with her aunt, Mrs. Albert Hall, this winter.

Mrs. Harry Wilson is spending a month with her sisters, Misses Lydia and Susie Hall, of Apsley.

Mr. Harry E. Grieves, of Saskatchewan, has opened up a photograph gallery at Apsley, where he intends to do business for a short time.

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Gravel Easily and Naturally Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Joseph Pelrine who Suffered the Tortures of this Terrible Complaint for Nine Months Tells How the Old Reliable Kidney Remedy Cured Him.

Port Felix East, Guysboro Co., N.S., Feb 9.—Special.—That you need no longer fear the knife if troubled with gravel or other urinary troubles is the glad news that Joseph Pelrine, a well-known young fisherman here is telling his friends.

"I suffered intense pain from gravel and other urinary troubles for nine months," Mr. Pelrine says, "but seven boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me completely. I heartily recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone who is suffering from gravel or urinary troubles."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure gravel by curing the kidneys. The urinary organs are entirely dependent on the kidneys. If the kidneys are not in good working order they cannot filter out the uric acid and it combines with other products of the body and causes gravel. Healthy kidneys dissolve the stones and they pass off in the urine. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure gravel.

THINK WELL OF REV. MR. PEARSON

At a meeting of the quarterly official board of the Central Methodist church, held last night, a unanimous call was extended to Rev. Edwin A. Pearson, of Peterborough, to become pastor of the church at the end of the conference year. Rev. Mr. Pearson is a son of Rev. Marmaduke Pearson, one of the oldest and best known ministers in Canadian Methodism. He is a graduate of Toronto University in arts and of Victoria University in theology, and is an able preacher and a scholar of no mean attainments.

Among the charges which Rev. Mr. Pearson has held is the Centennial Methodist church, Toronto, for which he built a new church home at a cost of $45,000. He is an active Sunday school worker and at the present time in Peterborough has a men's Bible class with a membership of 300. Rev. Mr. Pearson is highly recommended and will receive a hearty welcome from not only the members of Central Methodist Church, but the members and adherents of the denomination in Hamilton.—Hamilton Spectator.

SPORTING

GALT DID NOT GO ON THE ICE

Galt, Feb. 9—The pro. game between Galt and Brantford, scheduled for to-night, did not materialize for reasons which are not yet very plain. The Brantford team was here and a fairly large crowd had gathered at the rink when the announcement was made that there would be no game and that the admissions would be refunded.

"Buck" Irving says that the game was called off owing to the fact that the crowd was not large enough to meet expenses. He said that if the Galt people wouldn't turn out simply because the team had lost a couple of games he would leave it alone in Galt. "We will not drop out of the league, however," he added. "We will play all our scheduled games, but they will be played in Guelph." The players state that they will get together and make an effort to keep the team in Galt. If they are given any financial backing this will probably be the result.

The five hundred people who had gathered to witness the game did not know what to make of the sudden change in arrangements, and the farce pulled off this evening cannot result in anything in favor of the game in Galt. Other than the reason stated above nothing definite is known. The Galt team has not been receiving large gates of late, and the lack of finances undoubtedly caused the trouble.

SHOTS ON GOAL

Milton juniors defeated Cobourg in Milton last night by 8—7 in the first home and home game.

Berlin was defeated in Waterloo by 6—5. The return game will be played in Berlin, Monday night.

Ottawa won from Haileybury on the latter's ice by 8—4.

Lack of finances was the cause of no game at Galt last night. Brantford was on hand, but the Galt manager didn't put his team on the ice.

Referee Whitehead has been secured to handle the play-off between the Strathconas and West Ends.

Auburns and Quakers meet to-night at Brock street rink.

CURLING

Only one game was played at the curling rink last night. Skip D. Hall's rink won by one point from Skip Davidson's rink. The score was 13—12.

Peterborough curlers are competing for the President's Cup, at Toronto, to-day.

The Fitzgerald Hattum Shield is on exhibition at the rink. The annual games for its possession may be played next week.

FEDERAL BOOK SKIPS ONTARIO

A claim that other provinces of the Dominion are being exploited by the Federal Government to the disadvantage of Ontario, has been made by Mr. Donald Sutherland, Provincial Director of Immigration, and before the end of the present session something may be heard of the matter in the House. Under the arrangement now existing between the Government at Ottawa and the Provincial Governments a certain sum for colonization and immigration is paid by each province to the Dominion Government. Ontario's share of that amount is almost half the total amount spent each year.

The Department of the Interior at Ottawa recently issued a series of descriptive booklets, describing the opportunities offered to immigrants in each of the provinces. On behalf of the eight provinces outside of Ontario there have been issued very handsome booklets, well bound, illustrated with colored plates and other attractive features. Those which have been issued for the Province of Ontario are small, insignificant booklets, without binding or good illustrations, and resembling good printers' proofs, according to Mr. Sutherland. The booklet which has been issued for Ontario deals only with the Thunder Bay and Rainy River districts. As the Ontario Department of Immigration and Colonization is besieged with requests for farm help from the older districts of the province, especially from dairy farms, it is thought by Mr. Sutherland that something about them should have been contained in the booklet. Immigration for that purpose, it is said, has practically ceased, and the province needs aid along that line. This is entirely ignored by the Federal booklet, and some steps may be taken to bring the matter to the attenion of the Federal Government.—The Mail and Empire.

CHEAP TRANSPORTATION VS. TRADE COMMISSIONER

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I notice in your issue of the 3rd inst. that you have given what I presume is an authoritative estimate of the amount of horse power used, and the output of the Quaker Oats Co.

In my letter of the 31st January it could be inferred that my figures were not authoritative, as I said a very small estimate of the output would be one hundred tons per day. I am glad to know the proper figures, as they are, prove to a very much greater extent the contention, namely, that we should strive for the greater advantage, namely, cheap transportation and the cheap power and manufacturers will soon follow.

According to the figures you give, the Quaker Oats Company only use 1,800 horse power, and their output is 700 tons per day, or over half a million tons per year. A rate of ten cents per hundred pounds is a fair average freight rate at the present time by railroads. If we had water rates, such as are obtained along the Erie Canal, the rate would be reduced to five cents per hundred pounds, or a difference of five cents per hundred pounds, or $1 per ton. So that with the authoritative figures for the Quaker Oats Company we find that a saving of $5 per horse power for 1,800 horse power used at present, would give a saving of $9,000 per annum, while a saving of $1 per ton on 500,000 tons would be a saving of $500,000 per annum; a difference of $491,000 in favor of cheap transportation over cheap power, a truly astonishing figure.

A question that will at once present itself to any one is, with such a saving in transportation why does not this company, and not only this company, but every company that does business along the whole length of the canal and the cities, towns and villages and farmers as well, not agitate and move Heaven and earth to bring about such a saving to this city and district? It can only be that the people don't know or, if they do, they have not got enough energy to insist that we get cheap transportation at once.

We have a splendid scheme that has stood any amount of investigations by Royal Commissions who have all reported most favorably on it, and we have the power behind, namely, fifteen members of Parliament along the line of the canal. Then, why don't we get a move on and go ahead? Oh! that there might arise in our midst a public man big enough to grapple with this matter, and who will devote himself to bring about such magnificent results that the early completion of the Trent Canal will accomplish.

Talk about the appointment of a Trade Commissioner is mere child's play compared to the results that will follow the early completion of the canal.

The sooner we recognize the fact that we are terribly handicapped in comparison to dozens of other places that have cheap water transportation, as well as cheap power to offer, the better. This is the real secret why we are not getting our share of new manufacturing, which are starting by the dozens in those more favorable places.

As I said in my last letter, the money necessary for the employment of a Trade Commissioner for this city would bring a hundred-fold more benefit to this city and the district as well, if devoted to the early completion of the Trent Canal. We may get the canal if we live long enough, but most of us will be in our graves before this is accomplished. Get it now!

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

WATERWORKS SYSTEM PAID WELL DURING PAST YEAR

Profit to the City Was $9,705.70 as Shown in Statement Submitted to Commissioners — Large Amount of Construction Work.

The financial condition of the Waterworks Department is shown in a statement submitted to the commissioners by the secretary-treasurer, S. R. Armstrong. It is as follows:—

Peterborough, Feb. 3, 1910.

To the Peterborough Water Commissioners:

Gentlemen,—

I hereby submit the Financial Statements of the Waterworks Department for the year 1909.

The amount expended during the year in laying mains and setting hydrants was $16,799.90, and in laying service pipes $4,866.65, making a total of $21,666.55 expended in ordinary construction work.

In addition to this there was expended on the construction of the new dam and pumping station, including the purchase of land, after deducting certain receipts in connection with that work, $89,167.36, making a grand total of $110,833.93 expended on construction work during the year.

A balance of $9,259.13 which was at the credit of profit and loss account on January 1st, 1909, has been transferred to the Contingent Fund, bringing the amount at the credit of that fund up to $33,649.63.

The net water rates for the year amounted to $38,634.78, including the special frontage rates. The expense accounts, including interest on debentures, sinking funds and amount written off tools and plant for depreciation, amounted to $28,979.08, showing the profits on the operation of the works during the year to have been $9,705.70, which amount is at the credit of profit and loss account.

Respectfully submitted,
S. R. ARMSTRONG,
Secretary-Treasurer.

SUPERINTENDENT'S STATEMENT.

The following interesting information is taken from Superintendent Hedderson's statement:—

A total of 15,992 lin. feet of mains and hydrant connections were laid during the season of 1909, an increase over previous year of 6,624 lin. feet.

The number of new services laid were 322. The total services on lines of distribution were 2,785, and the amount of water pumped during the year amounted to 606,325,120 gallons.

PERSONAL

SIR FRED BORDEN DESERTED BY LIBERALS DURING SPEECH

Ministerial Speech is Witnessed by a Slim Gathering of Government Supporters—Western Members May Not Toe Mark.

Ottawa, Feb. 11.—The murmurings which are heard in the lobbies, the occasional outburst of independence of Liberal members when no responsible Minister is around, the current gossip that the Government's representatives from western Ontario in particular will falter when put to the test upon the naval bill, would seem to have found expression in the appearance of the House of Commons yesterday.

Sir Frederick Borden resumed the navy debate soon after the opening of the sitting, and although his speech was of a high order of Parliamentary merit, most of the members of the Government side were conspicuous by their absence. No Minister of the Crown, heard in recent years on any momentous question, has had so few supporters present on his side of the House.

Sir Frederick announced that an immediate start would be made to provide the personnel of the navy by the purchase of two training ships. The Rainbow, which has already been arranged for, will be placed in Pacific coast waters. A far larger vessel will be obtained for the Atlantitic isaiP be obtained for the Atlantic, either the Niobe or a sister ship, the Sparliete.

Negotiations are now under way and the choice is likely to be the Niobe. This is a protected cruiser of eleven thousand tons, with a speed of over twenty knots and carrying sixteen six-inch and sixteen three-inch guns.

The Niobe, in addition as a training srip for seamen, naval cadets, etc., will serve as a barracks, until shore accommodation is provided.

Asked as to how the fleet would be divided, Sir Frederick said that it was proposed to place two Bristol type cruisers on the Pacific coast and two Bristols and six destroyers on the Atlantic coast, with one training ship on each coast.

The consruction of the ships will cost $11,015,000, as compared with $11,670,000 under the plan which included the Boadicea. These estimates are based on British figures, and the cost will be greater if the vessels are constructed in Canada.

The estimated cost of the proposed naval college is $715,000.

The annual cost of upkeep at Canadian rates after the fleet is completed will be $3,690,000.

The estimated expenditure for the next four years is (1) $1,250,000; (2) $1,447,000; (3) $1,704,000; (4) $2,254,000.

Sir Frederick closed at 9 o'clock, having spoken for three hours and a half.

Describing Sir Frederick's speech as "Not very illuminating," Hon. Geo. E. Foster, passed on to a criticism of the Premier. He thought Sir Wilfrid's speech, after all, an apology, addressed to the two wings in this country. It bore the semblance of the speech made by a man who feared, on the one hand, that he was offering too much, and on the other hand, that he was offering too little, a man who tried the shifty waves of compromise.

Whatever he might have tried to persuade others to believe, the Premier himself knew, that he was standing in an epochal period in Canada's history. Yet no great question has been less discussed, canvassed or understood by the intelligent electorate of this country than this. But the people were to get no opportunity to understand it.

Mr. Foster then drew attention to the fact that there was an unusual number of vacant seats on the Government side during Sir Frederick Borden's speech, and declared it showed either a total lack of heart or else a very deep disagreement.

Mr. Foster analyzed the resolution of March last and said that it left Canada perfectly free in case of an emergency to respond to it in an adequate manner. The Premier would meet such an emergency by "stumping" the Province of Quebec. If faith had been broken in respect to the resolution of last session, it had been broken by the leader of the Government.

Dealing with the attitude of Canadian representatives at the last three colonial conferences, Mr. Foster said that Canada ought to feel ashamed. They displayed lack of enthusiasm and interest in imperial concerns as compared with Australia and New Zealand. With defence was under consideration, they had given as the excuse for non-participation the reason that the Dominion was fully occupied with public works, railway building and internal development. The other colonies, he said, had also such works in progress and on hand.

School Teacher Found Drowned.

Brockville, Feb. 11.—The body of Robert Brown, the school teacher, who mysteriously disappeared in Okanagan Valley, B.C., some weeks ago, has been found on the banks of that river. He was formerly an Ottawa school teacher. His wife and family are here.

Visits Brother After Sixty Years.

Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 11.—John Clough, Vancouver's oldest policeman, has returned from New Zealand, where he has been visiting his brother, whom he had not seen for sixty years. Clough is aged 80, and his brother in New Zealand 84.

Another Unionist Wins.

London, Feb. 11.—The result of the election for the Edinburgh and St. Andrew's Universities' seat was Sir Robert Finlay, Unionist, 5,205; Simpson, Liberal, 2,693. The Unionist majority in 1906 was 2,583.

ONSLOUGHT ON THE HYDRO; HARPING ON THE FELKER CASE

J. A. Ross, New Member for Monck, in Maiden Speech Tells the Truth About Mrs. Felker's Suit, and Mr. Proudfoot Gets Into a Hot Tilt With the Premier and Hon. Mr. Beck.

Toronto, Feb. 11.—Hydro-electric power and the development of New Ontario had the call in the discussion on the budget debate, which was resumed in the Legislature yesterday afternoon. In regard to the former question, J. A. Ross, the member for Monck, gave some pretty straight talk on the details of the Felker case, which aroused the wrath of W. Proudfoot (Centre Huron). The latter gentleman's fulminations drew forth a lively series of interjections from the Premier and Hon. Adam Beck. The air was quite charged with electricity at times, so to speak.

J. R. McCormick (E. Lambton), who took up the debate on behalf of the Opposition, declared his willingness to hold up both hands in favor of the increase of $30,000 in the grant asked by the deputation of the Ontario Fairs Association on Wednesday afternoon.

He renwed his plea of last session for the restoration of the old model schools system. The present system, which compelled attendance at the larger centres favored the richer classes at the expense of the poorer.

T. R. Shillington (Temiskaming), said that the T. & N. O. should not be looked on primarily as a money-making proposition, but as a colonization road. He would build that spur line right through from Charlton to Sudbury. He believed also that running rights should be given to both the G. T. R. and the C. P. R. over the line to the Grand Trunk Pacific.

In regard to the Department of Lands, he was sorry to say it had suffered from incompetent fire-rangers. He hoped this would be remedied.

Roads and bridges were needed in the north country. If a comprehensive drainage system were inaugurated, thousands of acres of land could be put in condition in a very short space of time.

J. G. Elliott (W. Middlesex), concurred in the remarks of the previous speaker in praise of the development of New Ontario. Mining should not, however, be so treated as industry of any country.

He was in favor of cheap power, but the hydro-electric would be of no benefit to the great mass of the people of the province for many years to come, and should not, therefore, be burdened or taxed for its support.

J. R. Ross (Monck), who delivered his maiden speech in the House, made a distinctly favorable impression with a vindication of the Hydro-Electric Commission against the Opposition cries of confiscation. A certain electric ring, certain legal luminaries, looking for a job and certain grit politicians were the leaders of the pitchfork brigade, which incited the farmers against the commission.

Much had been said about the oppression of the poor farmer, but some of the farmers were actually getting rich out of the power policy. Even Liberals in the section through which the transmission line passed had told him that they had been paid more for easements than their lands were worth.

Honorable gentlemen opposite would surely pay some respect to the words of Hon. Clifford Sifton, who declared at Ottawa that the hydro-electric scheme was one of the greatest undertakings ever entered upon in Canada.

He then quoted from The Buffalo Courier which pointed out that Buffalo, right at Niagara Falls, paid $25 per h.p. because it was bled by an electric ring, and complimented Ontario on its progressive power policy.

Reverting to the easement question, he drew the attention of the House to the fact that in the Township of Gainsboro, from $150 to $1,500 had been paid for the privilege of erecting towers.

The necessity for a fiat was criticised. But it was required in the case of the T. & N. O., and of the Intercolonial Railway. Why not then for the hydro. The commission would be responsible in case of accident. He knew all about the Felker case. Mrs. Felker had paid $1,000 for her 50-acre farm. For the privilege of erecting two towers, occupying about 19 square feet of land on a strip of the property across the road from the house, and on which there was no building, the commission had offered $500. And the owner had actually accepted the offer once, and had it not been for the legal luminaries referred to she would have had her $500 long ago.

W. Proudfoot (Centre Huron), had a little tilt with the Government about the new school books. The primer was no good. Forty schools in Lambton had thrown it out. It would have to be called in. The people wouldn't stand for it.

To repeated calls for "reason," "have you read it," "read us a chapter," from all over the House, Mr. Proudfoot reiterated that the book was "no good."

"Other provinces are about to issue the same books after negotiation with us," retorted the Premier.

He was not attacking the hydro electric policy, Mr. Proudfoot said, because he was strongly in favor of public ownership, but the Government should amend its method of dealing with easements.

The statement of the member for Monck that Grit politicians were inciting the farmers against the work of the commission was the most untruthful statement that had even been made in the House.

"It is the most truthful statement," retorted the Premier.

"The chairman of the commission knows that some of their own political friends are opposing the scheme," Mr. Proudfoot came back with.

"And so was the leader of the Opposition at the last election," put in Hon. Adam Beck, to which Sir James added, "The whole Opposition is lying awake at night trying to think up some way to ruin the scheme."

DR. HYDE IS ARRESTED WITH MURDER CHARGE AGAINST HIM

Sensational Case in Which Young Medico is Said to Have Caused a Typhoid Epidemic in a Family to Get the Estate.

Kansas City, Md., Feb. 11.—As a climax to the lengthy investigation of the mysterious death of Col. Thomas H. Swope in Oct. 3, 1909, Dr. B. C. Hyde, husband of the late millionaire's niece, was arrested here yesterday charged with his murder in the first degree. The warrant charges that Hyde, with felonious intent, administered strychnine to Swope on the day of his death.

Hyde surrendered quietly. He learned that a warrant was being sought, and with his attorneys, went to the prosecutor's office to await the return of Mr. Conkling. He submitted to arrest without demanding to hear the warrant read. From here the party went to Independence, Mo., where Dr. Hyde was arraigned. He pleaded not guilty, and was released on a bond of $50,000. His preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 17.

Prosecutor Conkling originally planned $25,000 bail, but Hyde's attorney had arraigned for a $50,000 surety, and it was accepted.

The calmest man in the justice's office in Independence was Hyde. While attorneys busied themselves in making out papers, he sat near County Attorney Hayes, reading a paper that told of the developments in the Swope investigation.

"By the way, Mr. Hayes," he said, folding up the paper, "I wish you would call up my house and have my wife informed that I will be home for dinner. She will be worrying about me."

Just as soon as the bond was accepted, Dr. Hyde hurried to his home in an automobile.

The bodies of Col. Swope and Christian Swope then were disinterred. An analysis of the organs is said to have disclosed poison.

Dr. Hyde had prescribed for Col. Swope during the latter's illness. The patient was given a digestive capsule on Oct. 3. Twenty minutes later, while reading a newspaper, he went into convulsion and died a few minutes later.

On Dec. 2, the nurse attending Christian Swope, who was being treated for typhoid fever, were surprised when he also had convulsions and became unconscious, exactly as his uncle had done two months before, and died Dec. 6.

Miss Margaret Swope, Christian's sister, also had convulsions in a mild-er form. Her illness was diagnosed as typhoid fever.

On Dec. 4, Miss Cora Dixon, governess in the Swope house, and Miss Coppege, a negro servant, were both stricken with typhoid fever and successively, on Dec. 5, Stewart S. Fleming, nephew of Col. Swope; Dec. 9, Miss Sarah Swope, 14 years old, a niece of Col. Swope; Dec. 11, Miss Stella Swope, another niece, and Dec. 18, Miss Lucy Lee, daughter of Mrs. Logan Swope, all were afflicted with typhoid. Shortly thereafter Dr. Hyde himself was stricken.

When the bodies of Col. Swope and Christian Swope were exhumed for examination, Dr. Hyde, in a statment said: "Col. Swope died of apoplexy. There is no doubt about it. It was as plain a case of apoplexy as I have ever seen. Col. Swope was getting old and feeble. He had been sick for more than three months of old age, lack of appetite and senility. Only a few weeks before his death he had had a severe fall."

Dr. Bennett Clarke Hyde is the son of Rev. Dr. G. W. Hyde, a retired Baptist minister of Lexington, Missouri. He is 40 years old.

In August, 1897, Dr. Hyde, then police surgeon of Kansas City, was ousted from office because of alleged inhuman treatment of Anne Clements, a negress, who had attempted to commit suicide and who had come under his care at the police station.

Dr. Hyde's name was even more conspicuously in the newspapers in the winter of 1898-9, when he was charged with grave-robbing. At that time Dr. Hyde was demonstrator of anatomy at the University Medical College.

In 1905, Dr. Hyde clandestinely married Miss Frances Swope, a niece of Col. Thomas H. Swope, against the wishes of her mother, Mrs. Logan U. Swope. As a result of the marriage Dr. Hyde and his wife's family were alienated until a short time ago, when a reconciliation was brought about.

Dr. and Mrs. Hyde have a modest home in a fashionable part of the city and moved in the best circles. They have no children.

The estate of Col Thomas H. Swope was valued at $3,000,000. Ten nephews and nieces survived Col. Swope at the time his will was filed. Seven were in the family of Mrs. Logan U. Swope, his sister-in-law.

COULD NOT BEAR BRIDE'S INDIFFERENCE

Huntington, W.Va., Feb. 11.—Frank Hartsough, 40 years old, a prominent oil operator, committed suicide yesterday afternoon at his home near the city, by firing a bullet into his brain. He had been married only a month, and left a note saying that the indifference manifested toward him by his bride was responsible for his despondency.

A FRENCH NOBLE WEDS STENOGRAPHER

Montreal, Feb. 11.—Edmond Ratisbonne de Ravenel, only son and heir of Comte de Ravenel, of ancient nobility of France, was discovered here yesterday, after search had been made for him all over the city, quietly settled in a small apartment with a young stenographer whom he said he had married in New York on Saturday. His father is one of the richest men in France.

Killed by Live Wire.

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 11.—Lee Weaver, aged 20, unmarried, was instantly killed, and J. Dempster and H. Smith were badly injured, when a live wire, carrying 30,000 volts of electricity to Vancouver, from the Lake Burteen Hydro-Electric plant, broke.

Kindergarten Demonstration

A Kindergarten demonstration will be held at the Conservatory Hall tonight. Those interested are invited to attend.

PULLED OUT HIS MOUSTACHE HAIR BY HAIR

New York, Feb. 11.—When Bennet G. Silver, accused of attempting to extort $3,000 by Black Hand methods from Harry Cohen, was lined up yesterday for identification, it was discovered that his long drooping moustache was strangely missing.

Silver had sat up all night pulling out his moustache hair by hair. Silver's painful expedient proved vain and futile, for, lined up with ten other men, a keen-eyed cabman quickly picked Silver as the man to whom he had delivered the money which Cohen alleges was extorted from him.

TOWN COUNCIL HAS RESIGNED

Vankleek Hill, Feb. 11.—The Town Council resigned yesterday afternoon, as a result of quo warranto proceedings launched against them at Osgoode Hall. The question of costs alone remains for the courts to decide.

It was charged that the mayor, reeve and councillors had not made proper statutory declarations before the official clerk. It was also alleged that two of them had outstanding accounts against the municipality.

WANTS TO HAVE LORDS CURBED

Dublin, Feb. 11.—John E. Redmond, who yesterday was re-elected president of the national directory of the United Irish League, made an important pronouncement of his policy at a banquet given in his honor last evening.

The leader of the Nationalists plainly outlined his intentions at the coming session of Parliament, where he virtually holds the balance between the two great English parties.

In a word, his intention is to put out the Government unless it has both the will and the power to deal with the question of the House of Lords' veto, but he is ready to vote for the budget, provided Premier Asquith sticks to his pledge to resign office unless he gets the power to deal with the Lords.

Two or three times during the course of his speech, which was received with great enthusiasm, Mr. Redmond referred to another general election as probably near at hand.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Fire did $400,000 damage in the business section of Lancaster, Pa., yesterday.

A high-level bridge will be built over the old canal at St. Catharines this year.

Andrew A. Allan, authorizes an emphatic denial to yesterday's cable from London saying that the C.P.R. had acquired 70 per cent. of the Allan Line Co.'s stock.

A fire broke out yesterday afternoon in Miss L. A. Rabbe' millinery store, New Hamburg. The building was frame, situated between two large brick buildings, and was entirely destroyed.

At Seattle, Wash., Dr. Mary E. Green, widely known as a physician and lecturer on foods, and whose fight for the privilege of entering the medical profession won her fame 45 years ago, died aged 86.

Inspector A. Asquith of Auburn, paid an official visit to Seaforth yesterday and the proprietor of the Brick House was fined $40 for selling after hours, during which time, in a brawl, a resident had his leg fractured.

The Quebec Legislature will open March 15. A short session is expected.

Oxford County Council has awarded $1,500 to the family of Isaac Battler, killed by the collapse of a bridge under the weight of a threshing machine.

A stray Scotch terrier, frothing at the mouth, suffering from frequent convulsions and evidently affected with rabies, invaded the Pere Marquette shops yesterday, and created a panic among the employes, until one of the men killed the beast with a crow-bar.

James Stats is in the hospital at Niagara Falls, N.Y., with a self-inflicted bullet wound in his right breast, and a bullet in his left arm from the revolver of Patrolman Peter O'Dea. The policeman was shot in the right cheek by Stats, who opened fire when O'Dea entered his house to stop a fight between Stats and his brother-in-law.

Jap Won English Bride by Letter.

St. John, N.B., Feb. 11.—Miss Annie Croddock of Grantham, Lincolnshire, England, came here to meet N. Nakane, a Japanese from Moose Jaw, and they will be married to-day. The wedding follows a romantic courtship by correspondence.

CHARCOT, FRENCH ANTARCTIC EXPLORER, ON WAY HOME AND TURNS DOWN INTERVIEWERS

Buenos Ayres, Feb. 11.—The captain of the steamer Sud, which arrived at Punta Arena yesterday, reports that he spoke the Antarctic exploring steamer Pourquoi Pas, anchored at Port Gallant, in the Strait of Magellan.

Dr. J. M. Charcot refused any information concerning the results of the French south polar expediton.

It is nearly two years since Dr. Jean Charcot left on his expedition.

Early in May of last year word came from him to Paris, giving the news that his ship, the Pourquoi Pas, left Deception Island, a small body of land on the south side of the South Shetland group, lying in latitude 63 south, on Christmas Day, 1908, and that he expected to pass the winter, which would be the time of our last summer, on Alexander Land, which lies to the south of Graham Land, in latitude 70 south, and on the side of the world reached from the tip of South America.

Charcot is a rich French scientist. He went into the ice-locked country with everything that money could buy to help him find the Pole. His ship, the Pourquoi Pas ("why not?") a three-masted vessel, is the most perfectly appointed yet for the hunt for the pole. He had motor sleds of his own invention to carry his supplies.

There are no intelligent Eskimos in the Antarctic; no hardy dogs like the Eskimos have. There is little land that is not black and desolate. Walrus, polar bear and smaller game like eider duck, ptarmigan and hare, are scarce at the South Pole.

In fact, explorers find that Peary's work in the north is like child's play beside some of the difficulties farthest south. As opposed to the leads of water, which baffle north polar travelers, there is the huge majestic ice barrier of the southermost ocean. Sheer and sharp it rises out of the ocean 300 feet high, its walls as smooth and as level as glass.

Lieut. Shackleton found that after evading this ice wall by a wide detour his troubles had just begun.

SWALLOWED TEETH; DENTIST MUST PAY

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 11.—R. W. Pell has secured a judgment for $2,000 against Dr. A. A. Shaw, a dentist, on the allegation that the dentist, in extracting three teeth, had let one of them slip down into his lung. For two years thereafter Pell was treated for tuberculosis, but the real cause of his shattered health was revealed when a paroxysm of coughing ejected the tooth.

SETTLERS MULCTED HEAVY FINES

North Bay, Feb. 11.—A number of prosecutions of settlers in the townships adjacent to North Bay have taken place for violation of the game laws.

Fines of $20 and costs were imposed on four men who had deer meat illegally in their possession, or had killed deers. "Josh" Green of Phelps Township pleaded that beef was so high in price that it was beyond his means.

All pleaded that they thought they had settlers' rights.

YOUNG WOMAN ENDS HER LIFE

Philadelphia, Feb. 11.—After calling her guardian on the telephone and telling him of her intentions, Frances Hopkey, aged 23 years, committed suicide by shooting herself through the heart.

Six years ago her father, a veteran of the civil war, in which he commanded a Missouri regiment, killed his wife and himself. It was the anniversary of this tragedy, and she seemed much depressed all day.

YOUNG MAN'S FEET HAD TO BE AMPUTATED

North Bay, Feb. 11.—George Nelson English, aged 17, must have both feet amputated, the result of frostbite.

Three weeks ago he left Ottawa for Winnipeg, but could get little work there and started back east again walking part of the way. Sunday he arrived in North Bay, after being exposed to the bitter cold of Saturday night out in the open country with the thermometer 25 below zero.

Nelson says he did no know what was the matter with his feet. He made enquiries in North Bay and some man told him that the hospital was full and he need not apply there, so he hung arodnd several days, until his feet were past saving. Nelson has no money or friends.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

GIRL WAS SHOT BY HER LOVER

Watertown, N.Y., Feb. 11.—Albert Leeson, a New York Central brakeman, shot and fatally wounded Gladys Chargo, a stenographer, on the streets of Watertown last night, then turned the weapon on himself, sending a bullet through his heart and falling dead beside her. He was 23 years old; she was 19.

Leeson, whose home is in Antwerp, N.Y., had been jilted by the girl. Last night he attempted to bring about a reconciliation and telephoned her to meet him at a corner near her home. Evidently fearing trouble, the girl asked her 15-year-old brother to accompany her.

When they met Leeson, after a few words, shot Miss Chargo three times, the bullets taking effect in the arm, the breast and the abdomen. Little hope is expressed for her recovery.

MAYOR GAYNOR IS STILL BUSY

New York, Feb. 11.—Mayor Gaynor appointed a committee to enquire into the management of the city record, the official bulletin of the administration, and to report on the "abuses, extravagance and dishonesties" which have grown up in connection with the contracts for furnishing the city with stationery, etc.

Lightning Struck Ship's Mast.

Boston, Feb. 11.—The steamer Devonian, which arrived yesterday from Liverpool, was dismasted by a bolt of lightning off the entrance of Massachusetts Bay late Wednesday night.

The mainmast was split in halves and a big piece struck the deck, nearly demolishing the captain's cabin. No one was injured.

FOUND CHILDREN IN PITIFUL STATE

St. Catharines, Feb. 11.—Agent Boyle of the Children's Aid Society found a family of seven young girls living in a log shanty in the woods near Grimsby, in a shocking state of neglect. There was hardly anything to eat in the place, or any fire, and the poor children, in rags and half dead from starvation and exposure to the cold, were in a pitiful state.

Their father was sentenced to penitentiary this week for crimes against his 16-year-old daughter.

Prince Edward Island Legislature.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Feb. 11.—The Prince Edward Island Legislature opens next Tuesday. Changes in the educational system and the repeal of last year's drastic Automobile Act are expected. The House is now composed of 13 Conservatives and 16 Liberals.

THE MUZZLING PROCESS

It has been decreed by those in authority that all dogs running at large in certain sections of the province must be muzzled. Looking at it from one standpoint this is a wise move because the muzzling process has all sorts of possibilities and no end of good may result now that a start has been made.

If the dogs are to be muzzled, what about the cats? A State measure might be passed requiring all felines to be muzzled at night. The man who has listened to a cat concert in his back yard at 2 a.m. and who has cast his boots at the choristers and broken a twenty dollar plate glass in the process will appreciate the pressing necessity of such a law.

Then there are the knockers. They knock everything, everywhere, all the time. They are hurting the town. Why not have them muzzled? To keep up the good work we would suggest that the steel bands be placed on the jaws of those who are inclined to hiss the referee at hockey matches. The man and the woman who talk through the entire performance at the theatre should also be muzzled. They are the cause of many strong words.

And last, but not least, the muzzles should be placed on the gossipers and scandal mongers. Their jaws should be securely locked for all time. They are the worst in the whole category of subjects fit for the muzzle.

THE FIRE INSURANCE RATE

In his letter to Chief Howard of the Fire Department, the secretary of the Fire Underwriters' Association points out that the association has given a reduction of twenty-five cents in the key rate for Peterborough, upon which the premiums for fire insurance are based, but that in certain cases the benefit of this reduction may not have been received owing to circumstances connected with the particular risks. The key rate or a municipality is based upon the means for fighting fire, which it possesses. If the appliances are up to the standard which the insurance companies require, the municipality is given the benefit of the lowest key rate, but if there are deficiencies in the appliances, judged by the standard set up by the companies, then additions are made to the key rate to make up for the extra risk. The improvements which Peterborough made in its Fire Department supplied a number of these deficiencies, and consequently the key rate was reduced. But before the insurance rate for any particular business property is decided upon an inspection of the property is made. The key rate is taken as the basis, and if the building and its surroundings show that it is a "standard" building, then the key rate—in the case of Peterborough sixty cents—is the rate of insurance for the property. If, however, the building does not comply with the standard, additions are made to the key rate for every deficiency found, which increases the fire hazard. This is what, so the secretary intimates, accounts for the complaint that in some cases there has not been a reduction in the premium paid. His suggestion, and it seems to be a good one, is that occupants of business places who have not received the reduction which they expected, should bring their complaint to the attention of the chief of the department or the city clerk and have it forwarded to the association, when the reason for the non-reduction of the premium will be given. This puts the insurer in the position of knowing the defects which prevented his property from being rated as standard, and probably enable him to remedy the defects and share in the reduction of the insurance rates. Such a course would benefit others as well as the insured persons who have these grounds for complaint, for if there are in any buildings in the business district circumstances which increase the fire hazard, it will be for the general good to have them removed.

There has been another point raised that might receive attention. The reduction in insurance rates which has been made applies to certain classes of residences, but not to all. It would seem reasonable that if the improvements in the Fire Department enabled the insurance companies to make a reduction which would apply to some classes of residences, the same improvements should enable them to make some reduction applicable to all, and this would allow all who have to share the expenses of the improvements to share also in the benefits.

GERMANY AND HOLLAND

There is significance in the statement which was made, according to a despatch from The Hague, in the States General of Holland, that a neighboring sovereign had intimated a few years ago that he would be obliged to have Dutch territory occupied if Holland did not place herself in a state of defence against England. The statement was taken seriously in the States General. Such an intimation could only mean that the neighboring sovereign, who is understood to have been the Emperor of Germany, contemplated war with England, and looked upon Holland as a possible ground of conflict or ally in the struggle. If the German Emperor looked upon such a war as so probable that steps of this kind should be taken, there is justification for those who advocate having every precaution taken by Britain to be in readiness, and to not be caught in a state of unpreparedness. There is justification, too, for those who believe that as every part of the Empire is vitally interested, the various portions of it should assist in maintaining the defences in such a condition that there will be no doubt of the ability of the Empire to thoroughly protect itself from attack. A scheme which contemplates the construction of vessels that will not give efficient aid, and that will only form a nucleus of a navy that will be effective at some distant date, is of no value in view of the possibilities. Aid to be of service must be of such a character as to give effective assistance within a reasonable period, and the weight of competent opinion shows that the contribution of Dreadnoughts to the British navy is the one way in which, at present, Canada can contribute towards the defence of the Empire in a serviceable way, and at the least expense to itself.

THE MINER'S DANGER

During the past ten days the newspapers have contained reports of appalling mining disasters at several places in the United States. Many lives have been lost, and, while the world has many hazardous occupations, it begins to look as if the men who go down into the earth to seek the riches laid up in nature's storehouse have work that entails greater peril than almost any other sphere of human activity. Whether every precaution with man's knowledge was taken to reduce the danger at the mines where the disasters have just taken place we did not know. There is a lesson to be learned, however. Ontario is becoming, in fact, already is, a great mining province. Hundreds of miners are at work in the new and northern part of the province, where the riches of the silver mines have astonished the world. Is every precaution being taken there to lessen the danger? Could something more be done to reduce the peril of the men who are labouring far below the surface of the earth? If anything can be done now is the time to do it.

The Examiner calls attention to the increased expenditure of the Province of Ontario under the Whitney Government. The question, however, does not hinge so much on the largeness of the expenditure as on the way in which the money has been spent. Has it been well invested? Was the expenditure necessary? These are the questions to be considered. We believe that the people of the province are of the opinion that the Whitney Government is spending the money wisely, that it is not going into the pockets of the "grafters." Too bad the same thing cannot be said of the government at Ottawa, which holds all records for making the money fly.

OPINIONS OF THE CANADIAN PRESS

THE ETERNAL QUESTION

Ottawa Free Press—It is reported that there are 36,000,000 eggs in a single cold storage plant in New Jersey. Now we know what becomes of the eggs. But the old question, "What becomes of the pins?" remains unanswered.

NO DANGER YET.

Galt Reformer—Alas and alack a great comet with a poisonous tail 50 million miles long is heading for the earth. Seeing that the wanderer will not come nearer than 1 billion miles the inhabitants of this old earth may continue to make engagements for the rest of the year.

EASY PICKINGS.

Stratford Herald—Sir William Willcocks, British adviser to the Turkish ministry of public works announces that a narrow guage railway will be constructed in the Garden of Eden, north of Bagdad. What a splendid opportunity this will be for the tourist to view the apple tree from a Pullman and pluck Adam's pajamas from the fig tree as souvenirs.

JOHN REDMOND'S RULE.

Sarnia Canadian—Some of our Canadian editors keep on talking about the "victory" of the British Liberals in the late elections. Rather a peculiar style of victory, seeing that the British Liberals went into the contest asking for a majority big enough to enable them to abolish the house of lords, and to come out of it to find themselves depending for office upon the favor of John Redmond.

DIFFERENT STYLE OUT WEST

Vancouver Sunset—In England a former member of Parliament and a newspaper man have been committed for trial in the Old Bailey for forging telegrams to the Daily Mail in the recent elections. Over in Victoria, British Columbia, we have a more modern method and one not so embarrassing for the forger. In Victoria the forger goes to the parson, confesses up, gets absolution and the Attorney General forgets about it. When the next session of the Legislature is held the Premier gets up in his place and says the forging newspaper stands higher in public estimation than ever before.

TREATING CANCER BY FREEZING SKIN

Philadelphia and Chicago Doctors Both Discover New Remedy for Skin Diseases.

Philadelphia, February 11.—A new method of treating cancer of the skin by freezing was demonstrated to Philadelphia physicians yesterday by Dr. Ralph Bernstein, who has been practising for two years what he asserts is an original method of treatment. Liquid air has been used for experimentation before, but Dr. Bernstein's method of using solidified carbon dioxide is said to be unique. He introduced at the meeting of the Tri-county Medical Society a number of cases and made clinical demonstrations with the freezing mixture. The parts were frozen from three to five minutes. This process, it is asserted, kills the cancer germs. At intervals of three weeks the operation is repeated.

Chicago, February 11.—A special cable from London says that Dr. Wm. A. Pusey, a Chicago dermatologist, has successfully demonstrated a new cure for skin diseases. Five years ago the idea occurred to Dr. Pusey that the intense cold produced when carbonic acid gas is solidified might be used in the treatment of skin troubles. The frozen gas is applied only a few seconds, the operator wearing thick leather gloves. As no scars are produced, it is asserted that this method has the advantage of radium, which is also open to the objection of its great cost.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"I've noticed that," said the enemy coolly. "He's usually with Lady Deppingham. It's lucky that Japat is free from gossips, gentlemen."

"Oh, I say," said Saunders, "none of that talk, you know."

"There's another thing I want to speak of," said the enemy, arising to prepare the second round of juleps. "I hear that your clients and their partners for life are in the habit of gambling like fury up there."

"Gambling?" said Britt. "What rot!"

"The servants say that they play bridge every night for vast piles of rubies and turn the wheel daily for sapphires uncountable. Oh, I get it straight."

"Why, man, it's all a joke. They use gun wads and simply play that they are rubies."

"My word," said Saunders, "there isn't a ruby or sapphire in the party."

"That's all right," said the enemy, standing before them with a bunch of mint in one hand and the bowl of ice in the other. "Every man in Japat thinks that your people are gambling with jewels that belong to the corporation. They think there's something crooked, d'ye see? My advice to you is, Stop that sort of joking."

"By Jove," said Saunders, taking a straw and at the same time staring in open mouthed wonder at the tall host, "you appall me! It's most extraordinary."

"This is all offered in a kindly spirit, you understand," said the magnanimous enemy. "We might as well live comfortably as to die unseasonably here. Another little suggestion, Mr. Saunders. Please tell Lord Deppingham that if he persists in snooping about the ravines in search of rubies he'll get an unmanageable bullet in the back of his head some day soon. He has no right to a single ruby, even if he should see one and know what it was. Just tell him that, please, Mr Saunders."

"I shall, confound him," exploded Saunders, smiting the table mightily. "He's too uppish anyhow. He needs taking down."

"Ah, Selim," interrupted the enemy as the native boy entered. "no mail, eh?"

"No, excellency, the ship is not due to arrive for two weeks."

"Ah, but, Selim, you forget that I am expecting a letter from Von Blitz's wives. They promised to let me know how soon he is able to resume work at the mines."

"I hear you polished him off neatly," said Britt, with a grin.

"Just the rough edges, Mr. Britt. He is now a gem of purest ray serene. By the way, I hope you'll not take my mild suggestions amiss."

"There's nothing I object to except your power to call strikes among our servants. That seems to me to be rather nigh unto . . . said Britt good naturedly.

"No doubt you're right," agreed the other, "but you must remember that I needed the cigarettes."

"My word!" muttered Saunders admiringly.

"Look here, old man," said Britt, his cheeks glowing; "it's mighty good of you to take this trouble for"—

"Don't mention it. I'd only ask in return that we three be a little more sociable hereafter. We're not here to cut each other's throat, you know, and we've got a deadly half year ahead of us. What say?"

For answer the two lawyers arose and shook hands with the excellent enemy. When they started for the chateau at 7 o'clock, each with six mint juleps about his person, they were too mellow for analysis. The enemy, who had drunk but little, took an arm of each and piloted them sturdily through the town.

CHAPTER X.

THE SLOUGH OF TRANQUILLITY.

THREE months stole by with the talking slowness. The autumn passed on into winter without a change of expression in the benign face of nature. Christmas day was as hot as if it had come in mid summer; the natives were as naked the trees as fully clad. The six months were passing away in spite of themselves. Ten weeks were left before the worn but determined heirs could cast off their bonds and rush away to other climes. It mattered little whether they went away rich or poor. They were to go! Go! That was the rich est thing the future held out to them.

True, they rode and played and swam and romped without restraint, but beneath all of their abandon there lurked the ever present pathos of the jail, the asylum, the detention ward.

Not until the end of January was there a sign of revolt against the ever growing, insidious condition of melancholy. As they turned into the last third of their exile they found heart to rejoice in the thought that release was coming nearer and nearer. The end of March—eight weeks off! Soon there would be but seven weeks, then six!

And all this time the islanders toiled as they had toiled for years. They reckoned in years, while the strangers cast up time's account in weeks and called them years. Each day the brown men worked in the mines piling gems into the vaults with a resoluteness that never faltered.

From London came disquieting news for all sides to the controversy. The struggle promised to be drawn out for years, perhaps. The lonely legatees, marooned in the far south sea, began to realize that even after they had spent their six months of probation they would still have months, even years, of waiting before they could touch the fortune they laid claim to. The islanders also were vaguely awake to the fact that everything might be tied up for years despite the provisions of the will. A restless, stubborn feeling of alarm spread among them. This feeling gradually developed itself into bitter resentment. Hatred for the people who were causing this delay was growing deeper and fiercer.

Their counselor, the complacent enemy, held himself aloof from the men and women that his charges were fighting. He met the two lawyers often, but nothing passed between them that could have been regarded as the slightest breach of trust. He lived like a rajah in his shady bungalow, surrounded by the luxuries of one to whom all things are brought indivisible. If he had any longing for the society of women of his own race and kind, he carefully concealed it. His indifference to the subtle though unmistakable appeals of the two gentlewomen in the chateau was irritating in the extreme. When he deliberately, though politely, declined their invitation to tea one afternoon their humiliation knew no bounds.

Lady Deppingham and Mrs. Browne should not be misunderstood by the reader. They loved their husbands—I am quite sure of that—but they were tired of seeing no one else, tired of talking to no one else. Moreover, in support of this one sided assertion, they experienced from time to time the most melancholy attacks of jealousy. If Mrs. Browne in plain despair went off for a day's ride with Lord Deppingham, that gentleman's wife was sick with jealousy. If Lady Agnes strolled in the moonlit gardens with Mr. Browne, the former Miss Bate of Boston could scarcely control her emotions. They shed many tears of anguish over the faithlessness of husbands, tears of hatred over the viciousness of temptresses. Their quarrels were fierce, their upbraidings characteristic, but in the end they cried and kissed and "made up."

They did not know, of course, that the wily Britt, despite his own depression, was all the while accumulating the most astounding lot of evidence to show that a decided streak of insanity existed in the two heirs.

"If they could only be married in some way," was Britt's private lament to Saunders from time to time when despair overcame confidence.

"I've got a ripping idea," Saunders said one day.

"Let's have it. You've always got 'em. Why not divide with me?"

"Can't do it just yet. I've been looking up a little matter. I'll spring it soon."

DANGER IN DELAY

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Peterboro People to Neglect

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, sorenes, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which have cured people right here in Peterborough.

Mrs. M. J. Cook, of 494 Aylmer St., Peterborough, Ont., says:—"I always find quick relief in Doan's Kidney Pills. They strengthen and relieve my back of a dull heavy pain that settles in the small of it and extends into my shoulders. For years I had suffered with these symptoms of kidney trouble and could find no relief. I had frequent spells of dizziness and headaches. I was restless and weak and would often awake more tired than on going to bed. I never found relief for these painful and weakening symptoms of kidney trouble until I used Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally and they keep me in the best of health." Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. HOUSEHOLD NOTES

A delicious little appetiser for the supper table consists of large queen olives, an tin half, and with the stones replaced with anvaire paste. One is served to each person on a lettuce leaf, garnished with narrow sections of lemon.

Dried wormwood, which may be had at the drug stores, is an excellent protection against moths when putting winter clothing away. It should be scattered lavishly between the folds and each article wrapped separately in a newspaper before packing.

A kitchen bouquet for flavoring soups can easily be made. Take a few sprigs of parsley and wrap them around peppercorns, whole cloves, a bay leaf and other herbs that are at hand. Tie up tightly. This can be removed from the soup without trouble.

To remove wall paper, take warm water that is softened with borax or ammonia and apply with a sponge. The paper will soon become soaked and blistered and may be easily stripped off. It is well to do this a day or so before the new paper is put on.

For whitening boards or cleaning marble, take half a pound each of soda, powdered chalk and powdered pumice stone, stir together in a small quantity of water and then add half a pound of soft soap. Mix it as a paste and apply with a scrubbing brush.

Pea or bean flour, found at the grocer's, may be used for a quick vegetable soup. Half a cupful of the flour, three pints of boiling water, a tablespoonful of beef juice, a small onion and two or three slices of bacon cut into tiny cubes is an easy recipe.

THE STAFF OF LIFE

Mr. F. W. Thompson Says That People Should Eat More Bread

"Eat more bread and less of the luxuries, and the health of the nation will be improved both physically and financially," declared Mr. F. W. Thompson, vice-president and managing director of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., in an interview to-day.

"There is no question but that the farmers have been benefitting by the high prices of all agricultural products, and personally I feel that this is well for our country. Agriculture is the fundamental basis of our commercial prosperity. In order for the business interests of Canada to prosper, agriculture must be prosperous, and the greater the prosperity of our farmers the greater will be the development of our commercial and manufacturing interests and the maintenance of good wages.

"From time immemorial bread has been recognized as the staff of life, and when the question of the cost of food is discussed anywhere, the subject of bread is always paramount. Yet how few people there are who realize the astounding fact that in the average family the consumption of bread forms less than five per cent of the total food supplies. Let every housekeeper analyze their monthly bills, and they will find the small proportion that the consumption of bread bears to the whole. As a matter of fact, the average family spends more in reading matter and amusements in two months than their entire cost of breadstuffs for a whole year.

"It is quite true, generally speaking, that foodstuffs are higher because of the great commercial development which is taking place on this continent, resulting in migration by the younger generation to the industrial centres of population, causing a more closely balanced condition of supply and demand, and which can only be remedied by the greater development of the land.

"When considering the cost of the loaf of bread delivered into the home by the baker in our cities, as compared with foreign markets, it must be borne in mind that the wages in the manufacturing of bread in a city like ours averages from 60 to 70 per cent. higher than abroad.

"In proportion to population, London buys more low grade flour than any other bread eating city in the world. There is no high grade flour exported from Canada to London, at least the proportion is so small as to be a negligible quantity.

"So far as my investigation goes, the butter bill in the average family in its relation to the cost of bread is double, and in the case of milk nearly treble. Meat, of course, bears a higher relative cost than any of these four items. Examine your home expenditure, and you will find that bread is the cheapest article of food, and always has been. In this connection it must be considered that feeding stuffs of all kinds have been relatively higher during the past three years because of the fact that consumption has closely overtaken production. There never has been a time in the history of our country, when the opportunities afforded for the development of our farming lands were more favorable, when we consider that in our three prairie provinces there are over 250 million acres of areable land, of which over 100 million acres are suitable for wheat production and less than seven million acres at present under cultivation.

"The trouble is not that of the high cost of living, but high and extravagant living and the over-indulgence in expensive luxuries.

"The per capita consumption per annum of wheat flour is a little over a barrel per year, and the average per capita consumption of bread per day in Canada is less than three cents.—From the Montreal Gazette of Jan. 28, 1910.

FARM LABORERS FOR ONTARIO

Provincial Officials Expect Supply of Experienced Men

The Provincial Department of Agriculture, in order to supply the pressing demand in Ontario for competent farm laborers and domestic servants, have, in addition to their regular staff of emigration agents in Great Britain, secured the services of a number of special representatives in England, Ireland, Scotland and the Channel Islands, who are now actively engaged in the work of promoting emigration of these classes to Ontario.

The Department have now definite assurance that there will be a very large number of men accustomed to farm work arrive here during the next few months.

Farmers wishing to engage any of these should forward their applications to the Director of Colonization, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, who will endeavor to see that their requirements are supplied.

St. Luke's Church

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt will give tonight a lecture on Napoleon. During the Lenten season the Friday evenings will be devoted to literary and historical lectures, under the auspices of the A. Y. P. A. The first part of the evening will be devotional followed by the respective lectures given by prominent clergymen and laymen. The public is cordially invited.

MEETING WILL BE HELD IN LINDSAY

To Organize a District Library Association—Ontario Government Behind it.

The Ontario Government is interested in the formation of district public library associations throughout the province, and with a view to organizing an association for this district a meeting of librarians and others will be held in Lindsay on the 25th of the month. It would be a good thing for Peterborough if it could be made the permanent home of this organization. All these things count in making an important centre, and Peterborough, with its new public library and Historical Society museum, ought to appeal to those behind the movement as an excellent place for future meetings.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, of this city, has been requested to deliver an address on "The Place of Canadian Literature in the Libraries of Canada." The programme is a long one, and indicates the intention of the government to develop the idea of libraries to a much greater and more profitable extent than heretofore.

WAS VERY SORRY AFTERWARDS

In a town not fifty miles from here a lady went into a store and asked for a box of Zam-Buk. She was told that it would cost fifty cents, and that a larger box of another ointment could be bought cheaper. In a moment of weakness she took the cheaper box. When she had used it she still needed the Zam-Buk as badly as before, and bought a box.

The Zam-Buk did what she needed, but as she had bought the useless ointment, too, she paid just as much again for the benefit she derived as if she had bought Zam-Buk in the first instance. Strange kind of economy, isn't it? She was sorry—afterwards.

Zam-Buk has years of honest recommendation behind it. People have proved that it cures. Imitation food contains no nourishment, and imitations of Zam-Buk fail in the one essential feature—they never work Zam-Buk cures. When you ask for Zam-Buk don't take anything else. The name is protected by law, and is clearly shown on each package. It may cost you a little extra, but the benefit derived amounts to a great deal more.

TRENT CANAL IN THE COMMONS

Looks Like Early Completion of the Southern Outlet

It would appear from the discussion on the estimates in the House of Commons last week that the Department has decided to press forward the construction of the southern outlet, and to leave the northern entrance in abeyance for the present. At the same time another $150,000 is to be thrown into the ditch at Newmarket.

In committee of supply in the House on Friday, on the item of $1,750,000 for construction on the Trent canal, Mr. Graham explained that this was to construct two more sections, to complete the canal from Lake Simcoe to Lake Ontario. "We expect to have that all under contract this year," said Mr. Graham. "My trip through the various canals of the old country last year convinced me that this is absolutely useful, and will be a very valuable work in Canada in years to come. I look for a good deal of development of traffic. I look to this canal to make that part of Canada one of the paradises of Canada for summer tourists."

Answering a question, Mr. Graham said not much had been spent on the Newmarket canal last year. His engineer, Mr. Grant, had given him every assurance there would be plenty of water for that canal, and he had confirmation of that in his observations in Germany of a canal twenty-six miles long, supplied with water entirely by drainage. This year he proposed to spend $150,000 on the Holland river canal in the vicinity of Newmarket.

"Is there any water in the canal now?" asked Mr. Wallace.

"Yes, I am told they are skating on it," replied Mr. Graham, amid laughter.

Mr. Gordon, Nipissing, questioned the wisdom of the Newmarket canal to which Mr. Emerson replied that a few years ago, when he was Minister of Railways and Canals, a very large and representative delegation of business people, headed by Mr. Herbert Lennox, Conservative M.P.P., came to him and urged the construction of that work, even as far as Aurora.

Mr. Henderson wanted to know where the water for the Newmarket canal was to come from.

Mr. Graham replied that reservoirs would be provided, and that there would be an ample water supply.

Mr. Gordon, Nipissing, declared that the canal was utterly unworthy of completion.

Several other members of the Opposition condemned the Newmarket canal, and Capt. Wallace moved that the vote for the Trent canal be reduced by $150,000, the amount proposed to be expended on the Newmarket branch.

The motion was defeated by 35 to 16, and the item passed.

INFORMATION WANTED ABOUT A MISSING HEIR

Circular Received by Chief Roszel Says Thomas Casey, Who is Wanted in Chillicothe, Mo., is in This City.

Chief Roszel has received the following circular from the Chief of Police in Chillicothe, Mo.:

Chillicothe, Mo.,
Jan. 15th, 1910.

I am in search of information that may lead to locating a man by the name of Thomas Casey. Casey left here about 1901 and the only information that we are able to learn is that he is now in your city working at the plumbers' trade or possibly construction work, etc.

Casey is an Irish American 39 years old, and about five feet 11 inches in height, weight 150 lbs., slender build, hair dark, but streaked with grey, always went smooth shaved while here, high cheek bones and slim face.

When living here he was a man that drank freely, and spent much of his time in such places. Casey was born and raised in Chillicothe.

Please make thorough investigation in your city and county records and places where some trace may be found of him.

It is very important that we find him if living, on account of being an heir to a settlement in an estate.

Please search your county hospitals, jails, etc. Kindly advise me at once.

MAURICE DORNEY,
Chief of Police.

FAMILY WITH EXCEPTION OF FATHER WAS STRICKEN

Mother and Three Daughters Brought From Hastings Last Night and Taken to Hospital — Suffering From Typhoid Fever—One Boy Dead and Other Not Expected to Live.

Four patients suffering from typhoid fever were brought to this city from Hastings last night, and are now in Nicholls Hospital under the care of Dr. Leach. They are Mrs. Sidney Sharp and her three daughters, aged three, nine and eleven years, of age, respectively. The family, which was composed of the father and mother, two sons and three daughters, was with the exception of Mr. Sharp, stricken with typhoid fever, about two weeks ago. One son, aged eighteen, died, and the family physician last night had given up all hope for the recovery of the other boy. The case is a particularly sad one. The condition of the patients brought here last night was this morning as satisfactory as might be expected, all being very ill on entering the hospital.

PICTURE SHOWS WILL THRIVE

Mr. A. L. Golden, representing the Electrical Fixtures Company, New York, is in the city to-day on business. Mr. Golden was formerly connected with the Lubin Film Co., of New York and says the local picture shows put on excellent programmes and the theatoriums are superior in the matter of appearance and attention to patrons.

"The moving picture business is here to stay," said Mr. Golden this morning to the Review. "For a while the theatrical magnates simply laughed at it and characterized it as a fad that would go the way of other fads and die out. But now they realize it is a strong factor in the amusement field and is offering such serious opposition to the stage that the theatrical promoters are racking their brains to find some means of adequate opposition. In New York playhouses in many instances are being converted into picture shows and the majority of the popular priced road attractions have been killed off entirely owing to the interesting and low priced programmes put on by the picture houses. And the opposition of the picture shows is becoming more formidable every day with the constant improvements and the ingenuity of the writers and producers of the canned drama.

57TH BAND PLEASED AT HAVELOCK

The concert in the Opera House on Monday night by the 57th Regt. Band of Peterborough, under the auspices of the Amity Club was a great treat to our citizens, and the club is to be commended for their enterprise in bringing to Havelock such a splendid organization as the 57th. Under the direction of Mr. Gliddon, the band delighted the crowded house with a lengthy but well balanced programme, of which a descriptive number, "The Forge in the Forest," probably was the favorite with the large audience. Mr. Jos. Halpany sang a humorous song and was recalled several times. Master Mowat Garratt, of town, gave a cornet solo, which was exceptionally well rendered for a youngster of his age, and he pleased the audience very much indeed.—Havelock Standard.

HIGH SCHOOL HAD AN ENTERTAINMENT AT CAMPBELLFORD

The High school entertainment on Friday night was a decided success, all the numbers of the program being highly appreciated by the large audience. Dr. Park of the Peterborough Normal School, gave several excellections on the violin and in each case lent selections on the violin and in each case elicited great applause from all present. The debate, "Resolved that women should have equal rights in parliamentary elections with men," was decide din favor of the affirmative. Misses Gibson and Stevenson upheld women's rights, while Mr. Harry Smith and R. Jones opposed them. The proceeds, which amounted to $60 clear of expenses, will be spent on the library.—Campbellford Herald.

Had Enjoyable Time

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fife, 597 Harvey street, entertained the employees of the Peterborough Light and Power Company last night, and those in attendance spent a most enjoyable time. About a dozen were present, and the host and hostess did everything in their power to give their guests a good time. Mr. Fife showed stereopticon views of Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific along the line of the C.P.R. Afterwards an oyster supper was partaken of, and a social time spent. Scottish, English and Irish selections on Mr. Joe Daigneault's gramaphone added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

A Musical Cat

The house wasn't haunted and the cat performed in exactly the same way as many other pussies have on different occasions, but its efforts at the pianoforte were as unlooked for as its presence in the house was unsuspected. To come to the point a Charlotte street resident had some coal put in his cellar. The coal man left the cellar window open and the cat stole in unknown to the occupants of the house. Last night when the ticking of the clock was the only sound in the house, a few syncopated notes on the piano gave alarm to the people upstairs, who were very much startled and greatly puzzled as to the origin of the disconnected selection. After some hesitation the householder called upon the maid of the house to make an investigation, urging that as he was a married man it would not do for him to expose himself to any unnecessary danger. The maid was prevailed upon to peep into the parlor and on the strength of the discovery it was decided not to wake up the police.

OBITUARY

MRS. ROBT. N. JONES.

The death occurred last night at 11 o'clock of Lizzie Flack, wife of Mr. Robert N. Jones, 568 Charlotte street, after an illness of eight weeks, from heart trouble. The deceased was 39 years of age and was a daughter of Mr. David Flack, of Manvers. She was married fifteen years ago and her husband, with two sons, Arthur and Earl, are left to mourn her loss.

Mrs. G. Wilson, of Yellverton, is a sister and one brother, Arthur, resides in Manvers. The late Mrs. Jones had possessed many estimable qualities and her demise will be sincerely regretted. She was a member of All Saints' church.

The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery.

Band to-night at Street Railway Rink.

KNOX AND ST. ANDREW'S TEAMS WERE THE WINNERS

St. Andrew's secured a firmer hold on the Church League championship last night by defeating All Saints by 5—2, and Knox broke into the win column by taking the measure of the George street seven to the tune of 5—3, after being behind at half-time by one goal. Both games were interesting and well contested. Each of the four teams played with six men and an improvement in the class of hockey was noticeable. Manager Hurtubise had a fine sheet of ice for the players and referee Quigley had little trouble keeping them in hand. There was some tripping, but it was rather due to the close checking which marked both contests.

In the first contest, St. Andrew's fairly earned the honors. They led at half-time by 2—1. The defence was strong and the forward line fast. All Saints tried hard to turn the game in their favor and put up a plucky fight. The teams were;

St. Andrew's 5—Goal, Staunton; point, Clarke; cover, Currie; centre, Rae; right, Leitch; left, Sills.

George street looked good for the big end of the score until the second half when they faded away, and Knox won out. It was easily the better game of the two, there being some good combination plays and individual work on the part of both teams. For Knox, Bartley and Hillier were the main performers and Wilson, Sanderson and Davidson were conspicuous for the losers.

The teams:

CHALLENGE FOR NORMAL TEAM

The players of the Brinton Carpet Company hockey team are indignant at what they claim to be poor sportsmanship on the part of the Normal School team, who reported the result of the game at the Auditorium rink to be 7—5 in their favor, while the correct score was 5—5.

The Brintons challenge the students to another game at the same rink.

QUAKERS OUT OF THE RUNNING

Auburns Took Clean and Interesting Game by 3-1—Half Time Score Was 1-1

PAT McDONOUGH IS IN TROUBLE

Port Arthur, Ont., Feb. 9.—Paddy McDonough, captain of the Port Arthur hockey team, has been summoned to appear in police court to-morrow morning on an information sworn to by John Fern, a spectator at last night's game, who alleges McDonough hit him. The story is that at full time, when the players gathered around the time-keeper's box discussing a play-off on account of a tie score, Feren called McDonough a sorehead. McDonough then reached into the stand and hit Feren with his stick, though without doing any serious injury.

Band to-night at Street Railway Rink.

HOCKEY

The Lindsay intermediates will go to Trenton for the return game to-morrow night in the very best of condition. They received practically no injuries in the game last Tuesday night, and are ready for the fray. It is expected that the game in the eastern town will be one of the stiffest kind, and as goals count, the bonebrews will be right on the job. If they can hold the Trenton seven down on their own large sheet of ice they will win the round, and this is just what their many supporters expect them to do. The Lindsay players have demonstrated ere this that they are just as fast and faster on larger ice. When they played in Stratford there was no holding them on the ice. The same order of things was demonstrated at Peterborough this year and at Toronto last year. So, keep your eyes on the blue and white. They are out to win and can be depended on to play their hardest.—Lindsay Warder.

Tommy Smith of the Brantford pros., who has been playing centre, has decided to leave for his home in Ottawa. Smith has found it too difficult to overcome the weakness left by his recent attack of typhoid, and asked the management to be relieved of his contract.—Brantford Expositor.

Ottawa, Feb. 11.—The betting on the street this morning was 4 to 3 Ottawa would beat Renfrew here Saturday. Ottawa spectators are offering 5 to 3 the champions will double the score.

The interest in the contest is without doubt the greatest since Wanderers came here for the second game of the series last winter, which it is estimated 7,500 people were inside the Arena. Renfrew's all-star seven will likewise be the hardest proposition the champions have been up against this season, and to win Stuart's men will have to travel with the throttle wide open. There is no doubt about Renfrew's condition, and they will come down here Saturday prepared to skate Ottawa right off their feet. Bearing in mind the champions will be something train tired after the long trip from the north, the Creamery seven may prove a very difficult obstacle to surmount.

Renfrew's line-up will be the same as that which beat Haileybury last Friday.

D. E. Jones, of Markham, who was in Peterborough with the Markham juniors Monday night, when the dispute arose over the scoring of a goal, when Referee A. D. Campbell did not see the goal umpire put up his hand, says that the goal umpire was not drunk, as some Peterborough people charged.

"The umpire was young Wilmott Reesor, and he does not touch liquor," said Mr. Jones to-day. "I was there and saw him both before and after the incident."—Toronto Star.

It is expected that 7,500 people will witness the Ottawa-Renfrew game on the former's ice Saturday night.

The receipts for the Ottawa Club to date this season amount to $20,000.

PETERBORO' WINS CUP

Defeated Toronto Granites This Morning in Final Game 38-20

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Feb. 11. — Peterborough rinks, skipped by J. E. A. Fitzgerald and H. F. Foote, won the President's Cup and district championship this morning by defeating two rinks of Toronto Granites, 38—20.

WILL WELCOME THE CURLERS

Arrangements are being made to give a rousing reception to the Peterborough curlers, who to-day won the President's Cup at Toronto. Skips Foote and Fitzgerald, with their trusty men, will arrive home this evening, and they will be given a hearty welcome. All members of the Curling Club and others interested are requested to meet at the rink at 7.30 o'clock. Everybody turn out!

GOSSIP OF THE SQUARE CIRCLE

Los Angeles, Feb. 9.—Jim Flynn won a ten round battle from Sam Langford here last night. According to Charles Eyton, who was the referee of the contest, Flynn had the best of the fight from start to finish. Flynn went after Langford like a demon in the first round, and had him backing up until pressed against the ropes. Langford fought back to the centre of the ring, and squaring himself, put a right on Flynn's cheek and brought blood. Flynn crouched low throughout the fight, and repeatedly rushed into clinches.

In the second round Flynn caught Langford in the centre of the ring, and wrestled him to the floor. Langford was up instantly fighting back, but in this exchange at close quarters, as in all others which followed, Flynn seemed to have the better of it. In the third round Flynn opened a gash over Langford's right eye with a straight left.

The fourth, fifth and sixth rounds were all Flynn's. In the ninth round Flynn, after receiving a hard right on the neck, retaliated with a right straight from the shoulder, which landed on Langford's sore eye. Langford's long arms were going like flails, but he did not land. They rushed together furiously at the beginning of the tenth, but Langford was forced to break ground. The round ended without Langford having had an opportunity to land any of his famous right swings. Throughout the fight Referee Eyton was repeatedly forced to separate them.

WILL KNOW FEB. 20TH.

Salt Lake City, Feb. 9.—Tex Rickard and Jack Gleason, promoters of the Jeffries-Johnson fight, joined in the following statement last night: "The location of the battleground for the Jeffries-Jhnson contest is still unsettled. We will meet in conference at San Francisco next week, and positive announcement of the location will be made not later than Feb. 20th. It is purely a matter of business with us. We both know now what Salt Lake City has to offer, and we will meet in San Francisco to look over the different sites there."

San Francisco, Feb. 9.—For the first time in the history of the prize fight, the life of a man selected to referee a fight will be insured to protect the fighters against loss. According to Battling Nelson's manager, a policy calling for the payment of $10,000 to Battling Nelson and Ad. Wolgast in the event of the death of Eddie Smith, of Oakland, who will referee the lightweight championship battle between the two pugilists on Washington's birthday, will be written to-day. Five thousand dollars will go to each boxer should Smith die.

Smith was the only man out of seven whose names were suggested upon whom all parties concerned could agree.

LANG IS COACHING.

Hillard Lang, who is standing down for the month's boxing tournament, will, instead of training himself, act as honorary coach to his own school of half a dozen boys, ranging from the lightest to the heaviest classes. Hillard has candidates in the 105, 112, 118, 135, 160 pounds and heavyweight classes.

Norman Lang is also training one of the East End clubs.

The British United are entering boxers in every class, doubling up and trebling in some.

Detroit, Feb. 9.—Jack Johnson, the champion pugilist, must appear before Judge Connelly this morning. Johnson's latest bout with the law is over the possession of one of his fine bull dogs.

Sam Lewis came into the recorder's court yesterday with his right arm bleeding, and his coat sleeve torn to ribbons. He declared that he was walking on Madison street when Johnson's dog, which was being given an airing by the champion himself, leaped on him and buried its teeth in his arm. Johnson pulled the dog off and went on his way, while Lewis hurried to the municipal buildings to make a complaint. Johnson was served with a summons last night.

ANNUAL MEETING AT SPRINGVILLE

Presbyterian Church, Under the Pastorate of Rev. Dr. Marsh Has Made Much Progress

The annual meeting of the Springville Presbyterian church was held on Monday night and the occasion was one of much interest to the congregation. The various reports were very encouraging, they showing progress in each of the departments of the church. The contributions for missions for the past year have been four times as much as the previous year. A large number have been added to the church membership, which is now three times greater than the pastorage was when assumed by the present pastor, Rev. Dr. Marsh, and his salary has been increased by $100.

The meeting was well attended, and even more success is looked forward to this year.

CASTAWAYS ON DESERT ISLAND

Shipwrecked Mariners Live on Mosses and Shellfish

London, Feb. 10.—An extraordinary series of misfortunes ending in shipwreck was told Thursday when the survivors of the London sailing vessel Deccan were landed at Liverpool by the Pacific liner Oroona.

The Deccan, a ship of 1,836 tons, left Port Talbot with a cargo of coal last August. She was bound for South America, and had on board a crew of twenty-seven.

Not many weeks had passed before the first of a series of misfortunes overtook the vessel, for when she was near Cape Horn the master, Captain Parnell, was taken ill. His symptoms developed, and he was put ashore at Port Stanley, subsequently returning to his home at Port Madoc, where shortly after arriving he died.

When the vessel was preparing to put out to sea again fire broke out, and the greatest difficulty was experienced in subduing it. When at last the ship was able to proceed on her voyage she encountered seas of tremendous violence, and was driven ashore on Mes Island. When the Deccan struck her mainmast fell overboard, and being badly holed she filled rapidly. The men took to the boats, but there was no time for the men properly to provision them, a few biscuits and some tinned meat being all they managed to get together before getting clear of the sinking ship.

Fifteen minutes after the vessel struck she went down, and the crew in their open boats were left at the mercy of the breakers. After a long spell of laborious rowing a small sandy beach was discovered, and a landing was effected on one of the islands of Tierra del Fuego.

Although safe from the peril by sea, the men were now exposed to fresh dangers. Their provisions soon gave out, and this wretchedness was added to by torrents of rain and sleet, which fell practically the whole of the time they were on the island, their only protection being afforded by a rough tent made from a strip of sailcloth.

With the last of the tinned meat and biscuits gone the marooned sailors had perforce to rely for food on what could be found on the island, and in this way they managed to subsist on mosses and shellfish.

On one occasion when in search of of food a member of the party chanced upon a number of human skeletons lying beside a pile of mussel shells, indicating only too plainly the fate of some luckless crew who had been shipwrecked before them.

Thirteen days after the loss of the Deccan a whaler was sighted. She was promptly signalled, and came to anchor off the shore and took on board the survivors, who were again landed at Punta Arenas, from which port they sailed for Liverpool by the Oroona.

A BOOST FOR THE OLD RELIABLE HEN

At Central Smith Farmers' Club—Much Interest in Discussion

"Poultry on the Farm" was the subject at the regular meeting of the Central Smith Farmers' Club on Tuesday night. An instructive paper was read by Mr. Wilbur Bennett, of Monaghan. Among other things Mr. Bennett recommended sticking with one breed instead of keeping fowls of several breeds, or mongrels. For producing birds for breeding stock he considered the old reliable hen superior to the incubator.

The paper was followed by an animated discussion in which a large number took part. About fifty were in attendance, including a large number of ladies. Reeve Graham presided.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday evening, Feb. 24th, when "The Horse" will be the subject. "Light vs. Heavy Horses on the Farm" will be the subject. One member will champion the cause of the light horses and another will take up the case for the heavy breed.

PETERBOROUGH, January 29th, 1910

W. H. HILL, ESQ.,

Manager Sun Life Assurance Co., of Canada,

Peterborough, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—About five years ago my late husband took out $1,000.00 insurance in The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, on which he only paid the first three premiums. Shortly after his death, which occurred on the 6th inst., although I was under the impression that his policy had lapsed, I called at your office to inquire if anything could be done whereby we might get something out of it. You can imagine my surprise and genuine gratitude to learn that, owing to your non-forfeiture privilege, the policy was still in force at his death and that I was entitled to the full thousand dollars, less only the two unpaid premiums and interest.

This seems to me such extraordinary and generous treatment that I wish to add my expression of most sincere thanks and appreciation to the many others your company must receive.

I also wish to acknowledge and thank you for your courtesy and promptness in procuring for me a cheque to-day covering the policy, and to state that if my endorsation of the already mentioned feature of your policies is of value you are quite at liberty to use it.

Gratefully yours,

MARGARET LONG,

PREFERRED METHODISTS TO THE POPE

What Happened Fairbanks in Rome and Why He Missed a Visit to Vatican

Rome, Feb. 10.—Ex-Vice-President Fairbanks has received many cablegrams from the United States, congratulating him on his attitude towards the Vatican. One says:

"Your dignified vindication of American toleration is heartily endorsed."

Another says:—"The entire Protestant world congratulates you."

Other messages have been received from various places in Italy, among them one saying:—"Greatly admire your attitude in preferring to speak to the evangelical people of Rome rather than submit to Vatican intolerances."

The Tribune in commenting on the incident says:—"Ex-President Roosevelt is expected here soon. He also has been invited to speak before the Methodists. We shall see if he prefers the Methodists or the Pope.

Several versions of the incident are in circulation, but Mr. Fairbanks himself gives the following:

"When on Sunday I reached the American College, Mr. Kennedy said that he had been advised from the Vatican that it would be impossible for me to have a papal audience if I delivered my contemplated address at the American Methodist church. I replied that I had agreed to make an address and was obliged to keep the agreement; that I had always exerted the privilege to speak to Catholics and Protestants alike, whenever they desired and whenever it was possible, and therefore the arrangement for the audience I regarded as ended.

"I spoke to the students of the American College along patriotic and moral lines, giving the Catholic Church a full share of the credit for the great work accomplished by all the Christian churches.

"The subject of the papal audience was suggested again by Monsignor Kennedy, a little later. He had received further instructions in the mean time and said that if I did not speak at the Methodist church the audience would hold good. I replied that I appreciated the intended courtesy, but the alternative was impossible. I would speak as announced, and thus would be obliged to forego the audience with the Pope.

"When I advised Dr. Tipple, the pastor of the Methodist church, he said that he was ready to release me from the engagement, but I answered that that was impossible. Under the circumstances, I felt obliged to speak in fulfilment of a promise made before the papal audience was suggested."

W. A. BUCHANAN'S APPOINTMENT

Will be Given Charge of Roads and Bridges of Alberta Province

Edmonton, July 11.—Following the increase in the cabinet representation of October last by which two ministers were formed without portfolios comes the appointment yesterday of Hon. W. A. Buchanan as Minister of Municipalities.

The new minister, who is the member for Lethbridge, will be given charge of the roads and bridges of the province and will have under his direction the new Local Improvement Act, which is now being framed for the legislature. This has hitherto been a branch of the public works department.

The creation of the new department will be submitted for ratification at the session of the legislature which opens next week.

COMMON SENSE ABOUT THE VOTES FOR THE WOMEN

Haiwaii's Ex-Queen Has Some Sound Comments to Make on This Fad

Boston, February 10.—Ex-Queen Liliokalani does not favor woman suffrage. She said in her apartments at the Vendome:—

"I have been told that a woman in the Hub has serious intentions of obtaining a place in the State Legislature. Isn't it absurd? The time is coming when woman will forget these little fads of hers to-day and return to her household duties and sympathies, which have been ordained for her from the world's beginning. Women should have no public place in conducting the affairs of state.

"What would men do if deprived of political activities? They cannot gainsay a woman. Imagine a lady getting up in the Legislature and informing a chivalrous old law-maker that he was mistaken in his views. He would sink back at a loss for words. If she says sit down he must comply. In fact, in an argument with a woman, man has no show. Out of common courtesy he cannot oppose the wishes of a lady even in politics. If a female legislator proposes a law it is as good as passed unless there is another legislator of the fair sex against it.

"And woman should not take such advantage of man. Her place is in the household looking after the children, baking bread and making pies and cakes. Even if a queen should allow the affairs of a nation to rest in the hands of her Ministers. She should be, however, thoroughly versed in the affairs of her nation, but this is no argument in favor of woman's suffrage. Statecraft is a far different thing from politics."

LOST HIS TEMPER, THEN A GOOD JOB

French General Made a Scene and Had to Quit Government

Paris, Feb. 10.—Brig.-Gen. Toutee, chief secretary to the Minister of War, after the Minister himself, the highest official in the War Office, lost his temper, and his job as well yesterday.

While the Chamber of Deputies was debating the military budget to-day, Capt. Savoreau, the Parliamentary attache of the War Department, handed to GGen Brun the War Minister, certain papers without going through the ordinary formality of first giving them to Toutee.

The latter heard of it almost at once, and, meeting Savoureau in the corridor shortly after, hardly upbraided him. He was ordered out of the chamber, but refused to go. Several of the deputies saw Toutee gesticulating wildly and in passing asked Savoureau for an explanation. He explained on when Toutee followed and renewed his tirade.

Again he was warned to clear out quickly, and the admonition was accompanied by a shove by one of those in attendance. The deputies were greatly excited over the matter, and Gen. Brun was interpolated later in the day.

In reply to a question, he gravely said:—"I regret to announce that Gen. Toutee is no longer attached to my department."

The announcement was greeted with loud applause, and a vote of confidence in the administration of the office of Gen. Brun was expressed by a show of hands.

MEAT PRICES IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 11.—There is every indication that the price of meats will reach the highest point ever known in the course of the next week or so.

The wholesale cost steadily increases. Lamb to-day is quoted wholesale at 15 1-2 and 16 cents a pound, an unprecedented price, the regular price being 12 or 12 1-2 cents. Consequently, the retail price for lamb goes up likewise, lamb chops selling for 30 cents per pound and leg of lamb for 20 and 21 cents a pound. Last week chops were 24 and 28 cents and the leg 16 and 18 cents.

The price of beef has been forced up to thirteen and a half, fourteen and even fifteen cents a pound wholesale for the best cuts. This will necessitate an advance of two cents a pound retail.

Veal is selling at sixteen and sixteen and one-half cents, a jump of two cents a pound wholesale. Pork at fourteen and a half cents shows an increase of a cent and a half. Mutton a week ago sold at ten cents. To-day it sells at twelve cents. The retail price of pork, mutton, beef and veal has advanced anywhere from a cent to a cent and a half and two cents a pound.

Butter and eggs remain the same, 38 cents for the best butter and 36, 38 and 40 cents for eggs.

Butchers declare that meat becomes scarcer every day, and that unless things take a change for the better there will soon be none at all.

Even at the prices quoted there is very little meat to be had. Retailers who tried to buy at the prevailing rate found that the wholesale dealers were not ready to bargain and said emphatically that the so-called Meat Trust had the situation absolutely in its own hands and had cut down production to the point where nothing could happen but a further increase in the cost of foodstuffs.

The sudden demand for more meat is laid by retailers to the cold weather.

Wholesale and retail dealers are agreed that there will be no decline, and that the rise will go on for at least another week, bringing a scale of prices which may break the records of years.

TO THE WOMEN OF PETERBOROUGH

PANTRY TALKS

I am the Queen of the Flour Bin, the lady-in-chief of the Royal Pantry, the oracle of the Royal Household.

I want the attention of Big Folks and Little Folks, of Experienced housewives and Inexperienced—of Rich housewives and Poor—Young housewives and Old.

For I have stories to tell.

Secrets—flour secrets—to unfold.

And these secrets have come by Experience—by actual knowledge of flour, actual study of different grades of flour.

So I will ask your close and careful attention to my little stories about flour and bread and cakes and pies and things.

And I will promise you Profit as well as Pleasure from them.

If I can tell you the secret of making better Bread and Cakes and Pies and Pastry, that will be profitable to you.

And if I can tell you why one flour is more economical as well as more wholesome than another, that, too, will be profitable.

For I mean to go into the flour question deeply, giving Whys and Wherefores, Facts and Figures.

I hope to instruct and edify at the same time.

So if you follow my little stories from time to time, as they appear, you will learn lots of things about flour that nobody has told you before. These Pantry Talks of mine will be chiefly about so named because it was the flour selected for use in the Royal Household of Great Britain. It is the one flour in Canada which stands out head and shoulders above all the rest. It is made in Canada by the largest millers in the British Empire—The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Limited, Montreal, and, because of its high quality and absolute uniformity, has given the greatest satisfaction both for Bread and for Pastry.

Royal Household Flour

OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD

CONVICT KILLS HIS WIFE AND THEN SHOOTS HIMSELF

New York, Feb. 10.—In a dark, ill furnished room in the ramshackle tenement at No. 204 East Twenty-first street, Herman Strauss, twenty-four years old, the wayward son of a respectable, well-to-do family, ended this morning a career of crime and dissipation which has lasted 10 years. He shot and killed his young wife as she slept and then blew out his own brains.

Strauss was an ex-convict. He completed a sentence of eighteen months for larceny in Sing Sing last week and Saturday arrived at his wife's rooms.

His wife, Annie, eighteen years old, was living on the third floor. She had been having a hard time since her husband was sent away and three times was arrested for loitering on the streets. Nevertheless she was not glad to see Strauss and they quarrelled.

According to other tenants Strauss wanted her to support him. He filled out a check and wanted her to take it to his parents, who own a small hotel, and ask them to cash it. The girl refused to give Strauss any money and also refused to take the check to his parents.

Strauss left her Saturday night, and after he had gone his wife became very much frightened. She told Mrs English, who has a flat on the top floor, that she feared her husband would return and kill her, and asked Mrs. English if she might sleep in the English apartment. Mrs. English told her she might have a cot in a small room and there the girl slept.

This morning at about 7 o'clock Strauss returned to the house. He entered his wife's room and slipped a letter under the oilcloth covering of a table. Then he shot his wife in the base of her brain and killed himself.

The letter Strauss left was addressed to his parents. It told them that he was tired of the life he had been living, that he knew, and regretted that he had given them so much trouble and asked their forgiveness. He said his wife had broken his heart.

WHOLESALE CLEARING OF BRUTAL NEW YORK "COPS"

Mayor Gaynor Clearing the Force of Undesirables—Not Trusting Police to Investigate Police—The Captains Are Coming Next.

New York, Feb. 10.—The cleansing of the police force from hoodlumism was carried further to-day by the dismissal by Commissioner Baker of Frederick C. Gebhardt, Jr., of the West Forty-seventh street station; Frederick Mons and John Groth, of the Fourth avenue station, Brooklyn, and Thomas Agnew, of the Flushing station.

Gebhardt went into a saloon on New Year's night and attacked a bartender who was insufficiently hospitable. He used a blackjack to illustrate his views of what the entertainment of a policeman should be on a night of general hilarity.

Mons and Groth were plain-clothes detectives. They went to a ball in Williamsburg a month ago. After it was over they followed two women who had attended the ball to their lodgings and broke into their rooms, beating the women's husbands. This case was aggravated by the spiriting away of all the witnesses against the two detectives, except one policeman, who was apparently treated to aid in covering up the case.

Agnew was dropped for being in the police-room of a Flushing power-house, with his coat and waistcoat off, when he should have been on patrol.

Above anything else pertinent to city government, it is declared that Mayor Gaynor is devoting himself to the police situation. When he has finished his plans it is expected that "something is going to drop," and drop hard.

Mayor Gaynor is making a thorough investigation, but according to reports, he is not trusting the police to investigate the police.

It has been brought home to him that there are wheels within wheels in the Police Department, and that if he is to get at the rock bottom of the situation he must discover it for himself.

Along the lines of his personal investigation the Mayor has already personally question and cross-questioned several inspectors. Other inspectors are to be put through the paces in the Mayor's office, with no one present but the Mayor and the one who is being questioned.

Inspector Flood was summoned by the Mayor this afternoon for a conference on the police situation.

GAYNOR'S TALK WITH FLOOD.

Inspector Flood spent half an hour in the Mayor's office. Mayor Gaynor questioned the inspector regarding the transfer of the two Bronx policemen, and asked him concerning police situations in the Bronx and generally.

When he emerged Inspector Flood refused to talk. When asked if his call resulted from the transfer of the two policemen the inspector answered: "You must draw your own conclusions."

CAPTAINS COME NEXT.

Police captains are to come next. It is known that several complaints against at least one captain have been lodged with the Mayor, irrespective of the powers that be at Police Headquarters. This morning of executive police heads has, it is asserted, given the Mayor a new line of thought.

But Mayor Gaynor does not want to be cross-examined on the police situation. He said so to-day. He has certain lines mentally mapped out which he will not discuss with reporter or other inquisitors. He said that also to-day.

He added that he would continue to refrain from saying one word about police matters to tell what he is going to do with reference to the recent transfer of the two Westchester policemen. It was inferred from what the Mayor said to-day when he has concluded his investigation important changes will be made in the Police Department, but that these will come gradually. He is in favor of violent shake-ups.

Cut His Foot

Mr. Gordon Girven, youngest son of Mr. Richard Girven, of this place, had the misfortune to give his foot a bad cut a few days ago. He was working with his brother-in-law, Mr. Andrew Knox, about two miles west of the village, chopping wood in the bush, on Wednesday afternoon of last week, when the axe glanced and struck the ball of the big toe on his left foot, cutting right in to the bone. Dr. Ford was called and fixed up the wound, and the patient is said to be getting along nicely.—Norwood Register.

THE COLDEST NIGHT IN TWO WINTERS

Government Thermoneter at Peterborough Registered Twenty Six Below Early This Morning—Fraserville Man Says it Was Thirty Three Below At That Place

Peterborough went to work this morning with quick steps and hands to ears, and no wonder. For it was twenty-six below in the early morning, and the mercury had climbed very little by the time eight o'clock was reached. It is said that the bottom dropped out of some of the thermometers in the city, but this is not confirmed. The Government thermometer, which is in the keeping of Mr. Walter Peters, registered twenty-six below zero, and this should settle all disputes as to how cold it really was. This is lower than the mercury has gone either this winter or last, Mr. Peters states. The thermometer started to go down about six o'clock last evening and kept falling like the stock of the Strathcona hockey team at Wednesday night's game.

A gentleman from Fraserville, who was in the city this morning stated that it was thirty-three below there this morning. If this is true Dr. Cook might have been able to discover the north pole in that vicinity. Word was received here from Port Hope that it was only eight below there. If it was eight below in Port Hope and twenty-six below at Peterborough the question is how cold would it be at Apsley? Probably about fifty under the zero mark.

Ears and noses were nipped by the frost last night and this morning. Several persons were seen applying the old-fashioned snow cure to the frozen parts.

The lowest the thermometer went last year was 18 below. The winter before that it dropped to 29 one night.

DRIVEN FIFTY MILES WITH RIGHT LEG BROKEN

Ned Keating, an Employee of Cavendish Company, Met With Painful Accident on Tuesday—Did Not Receive Treatment Until Last Night.

Ned Keating, who resides near Camp bellford, but who has been employed by the Cavendish Lumber Company, about fifty miles north of here, met with a painful accident on Tuesday and was brought to this city last evening and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where the fracture was set by Dr. McNulty, and the injured man is now in much more pleasanter circumstances than has been the case from the time of the accident up to last evening.

The accident took place about three miles from the camp and was caused by a big log rolling off a sleigh, which had just been loaded. Keating was on one side of the sleigh and as the log became dislodged his leg was slightly bent forward. One end caught him across the back of the leg and broke it. He was taken to the camp by his fellow workmen, and remained there, suffering great pain, until yesterday morning when Hanlon Howard and Buck McManus, two employes of the company, hitched up a team and brought him the whole distance from the camp to this city, only stopping once at Bancroft for dinner. The start was made at eight o'clock in the morning and the long trip was completed about nine o'clock last night. "We didn't lose any time on the road" said Mr. Howard to a Review reporter to-day, "and it was a painful ordeal for Keating, but he stood it pluckily."

The victim of the accident was first taken to the Grand Hotel and afterwards removed to St. Joseph's Hospital in the Dan Spence ambulance.

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC

Among Horses of This District is Assuming Very Serious Proportions

A very serious epidemic of influenza is prevalent among the horses of this district. Dr. Johnston stated to the Review to-day that the epidemic was assuming alarming proportions, and said a large number of horses were affected by it.

So far he has had no cases attended with fatal results.

The building will likely be occupied by the first of April.

GUS EDWARDS'S CREDITORS PUT HIM IN BANKRUPTCY

New York, Feb. 9.—Gus Edwards, composer of "School Days" and other other popular songs, and also a theatrical producer of No. 1531 Broadway, has been put into bankruptcy on a petition signed by Augustus, J. Powers, Harry Rapp and the White studio, whose claim for money loaned and for photographs furnished aggregate $700. They allege in their petition that Edwards has admitted his insolvency.

A petition has also been filed against Lillian A. Edwards, theatrical manager at No. 1531 Broadway, by Emanuel Weingreen, Manuel Chappelle and Harry Rapp, with claims for money loaned, commissions and for merchandise furnished, amounting to $761. Admission of insolvency is alleged in this case also.

Another petition was filed against the Gus Edwards Music Publishing Company at No. 1531 Broadway by Augustin J. Powers, Lee Edwards and Alfred Simpson, with claims for royalties on musical publications, photographs and merchandise furnished aggregating $3,447.39. Admission of insolvency is alleged again.

Theron R. Strong was appointed receiver of the Edwards company, with a bond of $1,000. The company has on hand 150,000 copies of music worth $1,500, fixtures worth $500 and several pianos.

BANQUET GIVEN BY BOYS' CABINET

Pleasant Evening Enjoyed at the Y. M. C. A.

Last night at 6 o'clock in the Board room at the Y. M. C. A. about twenty boys and a few senior members who are actively interested in boys' work, attended a banquet tendered by the Boys' Cabinet to those who participated in raising the funds to re-decorate and furnish the Department.

Mrs. S. R. Armstrong, Mrs. J. J. Howden very kindly supervised preparations of the tea, which was served by several of the young ladies.

The toast list was as follows:

The King, Boys' Cabinet, proposed by Mr. S. R. Hall and responded to and honored by singing of National Anthem.

Boys' Department, by Dr. Middleton and responded to by the Boys' Secretary.

The Ladies, by Wallace Armstrong and responded to on behalf of the ladies by Mr. Hassard.

The speeches were such as to inspire enthusiasm and fresh efforts on the part of the boys. These combined with the tea constituted a pleasant event.

At Gospel Hall

Evangelist E. Roughly, who has for many years been preaching in the far north, with headquarters at Bancroft, arrived in the city Wednesday night. Arrangements have been made for a public meeting to-night at eight o'clock in Gospel Hall, and Mr. Roughly will be in charge. He will also speak at the evangelistic meeting in the hall on Sunday night at seven o'clock. A hearty invitation is given to all to hear this old veteran preacher.

TO STRIKE THE RATE

Meeting Will be Held To-night—May be Twenty Three Mills

The tax rate for 1910 will likely be settled to-night. The Finance committee will meet at 7.30 and go into the estimates and the committee of the whole council will meet at eight to take up the report of the Finance committee.

It is understood that the estimates prepared will make a twenty-three mill rate necessary, but it is a question whether this will be satisfactory to a majority of the aldermen. It is learned that one section will hold out for twenty-two mills. What the rate will be depends a good deal on the act on of the council in regard to the industrial commissioner. If nothing is put in the estimates for that prospective department the rate can be put nearly a mill lower than it otherwise would be.

BAND TO MEET THE CURLERS

The full band of the 57th Regiment is requested to meet at the armories to-night at 7.30 sharp to go to the C. P. R. station to meet the victorious Peterborough curlers on their return from Toronto.

HARNESS AND SLEIGH DAMAGED

Consil's delivery outfit figured in a runaway about 12.30 to-day, and the harness and sleigh were somewhat damaged. The horse, which is a lively one, started on McDonnel street and ran west, turning the corner at George street and going south. Near the corner of Murray street the sleigh collided with a post, the horse breaking away, but it was caught soon after.

MAN'S FEARS GROUNDLESS

Halley's Comet not Going to Hit The Earth—Celestial Wonder Simply a Gaseous Body

What would happen if the earth and Halley's comet came into collision?

Some people are already beginning to have fears on this point, but these fears are groundless for the comet is nothing but a mass of gaseous materials and not solids.

And the earth, while not coming into direct contact with the comet, is going to pass through the huge tail of the visitor. But there will be no sudden shock and no special effect upon the earth. Around the earth there is an atmospheric shell which is estimated by scientists to be about 45 miles thick. Scientists claim that the gases of the comet will not be able to penetrate the shell.

The comet will pass very close to Venus, and when they are close enough together for observation the common people—by which is meant those who are not learned in astronomy—will have a chance to get an idea of the size of the comet as compared with the earth. Venus is about the same size as the earth, and the comet will be about one million times the size of Venus.

Just imagine, if possible, a huge ball 7,500,000,000 miles in diameter. On May 4 it will be very close to Venus, and it will be about the 18th or 19th of May that the earth will take a whirl through the long tail of the comet. From about April 20 to June 10 the comet should be plainly visible to the naked eye, and about May 15 to May 20 it will take up most of the sky.

A fairly good telescope should be able to pick out the comet about the first of March, according to Prof. C. A. Chant, a celebrated astronomical writer. At that time it will be, after sunset, in the western sky in the constellation Pisces. Towards the end of March, after passing the sun, it will be seen in the morning before sunrise and it will reach its greatest apparent distance from the sun early in May. Toward the middle of May it will again pass the sun and be visible in the evening sky.

The comet will be closest to the earth about May 18 or 19. The proximity of the comet to the sun may make the former invisible about that time. The distance from the earth is then estimated at about fourteen million miles. If it is visible to the eye at that time, some idea of the space that will be taken up by the huge ball of gases may be gathered from the fact that its diameter will be about 500 times the distance between the comet and the earth.

Prof. Frost, of Yerkes observatory, was recently asked if the near approach of the comet to the earth and Venus would affect these planets and replied that it would not. "It won't affect the orbit of Venus or of the earth, but it is likely to affect the comet's orbit," he said.

It was the Yerkes observatory that discovered that the comet is surrounded by bands of cyanogen gas, the deadliest of poisons, and scientists are now searching records of the visit of the famous comet in centuries past to find out if these gases existed then or if the earth had never before passed through the tail of the comet.

A great deal will depend, of course, on whether or not these deadly gas bands extend to the limit of the huge tail. They are now visible at the head of the comet, but a close study of the tail is not yet possible owing to the position, which is head on towards the earth. And study at 120,000,000 miles is rather difficult at any time.

Band to-night at Street Railway Rink.

At Mark Street Church

The concluding meeting of the special evangelatic services at Mark St. church will be held to-night. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt and Rev. E. A. Pearson will give short addresses. At last night's meeting Rev. R. Pogue spoke before an unusually large attendance.

THAW AGAIN IN THE LIMELIGHT

Says He is Not Being Properly Treated in Asylum

Nyack, N.Y., Feb. 9.—Harry K. Thaw is to be permitted to show that he is not properly treated as an inmate of the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan. Justice A. S. Tompkins, in the Supreme Court, to-day handed down a decision appointing William VanAinee, of Orange county, referee to hear evidence on Thaw's behalf, and to decide for the court if a transfer from the Matteawan institution to some other asylum is necessary to preserve Thaw's health.

Justice Tompkins, however, denied the request of Thaw's attorneys that their client be discharged from custody on the ground that he is held in Matteawan under an improper commitment. In his decision Justice Tompkins holds that Justice Dowling acted in perfect accord with the law when he directed Thaw's commitment to Matteawan after the jury found him not guilty of the murder of Stanford White "on the grounds of insanity."

Referring to the affidavits filed by Thaw and his mother, in which it is declared that despite an order of the court, Thaw is denied certain privileges in the insane asylum, the court holds that the affidavits filed are not convincing and fail to explain many things that naturally arise when they are considered. The result is the appointment of the referee, who is directed to hold all of his hearings in the village of Matteawan, so that Thaw need not be taken from place to place to attend the hearings.

The expenses of the referee are to be paid by Thaw, according to the decision of the court.

N. B. LIBERALS DO JUST ABOUT WHAT THEY LIKE

Mr. Crocket Brings in an Official Report at Meeting of Committee to Show That Albert Manufacturing Co. Built Itself a Wharf Costing $25,000, at the Country's Expense.

Ottawa, Feb 12.—The New Brunswick folk in Parliament have matters pretty much all to themselves yesterday on public works estimates, and it would seem, to the uninitiated Ontario man, at least, that the political game as played down by the sea requires some purifying influences.

O. S. Crocket (York, N.B.), brought out from an official return that C. J. Osman of the Albert Manufacturing Co., had built an addition to the Pink Rock Wharf in Westmoreland County, but had handed the accounts over to the Public Works Department, which paid them. The foreman of the work was appointed by Osman.

The accounts were not even certified by the Government's resident engineer. He did not see them. Yet the cost to the Government was from $20,000 to $25,000. Over $2,000 worth of goods had been supplied by Osman himself, entered in the Auditor-General's reports as an expenditure made under the direction of the Department.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley, replying to Mr. Crocket's charge, said the wharf had been transferred to the crown with the exception of one right, that of the Albert Manufacturing Co. to tie its boats to the wharf.

Mr. Crocket declared the wharf was not the property of the crown, but of the Albert Company.

Commenting upon the use of pubhc money for private enterprise, he said this kind of thing was going on all over this country. For instance, the improvement of the wharf of the Dalhousie Lumber Co., of which Mr. Pugsley was a stockholder, had been made with the use of a Government dredge.

The Sawdust wharf at Richibucto caused a lively passage between the Minister and Mr. Crocket. This is the case which has occupied the attention of the public acounts committee. Murray, manager of the Kent Northern Railway, purchased this wharf for $700, and turned it over to the Public Works Department for $5,000. Murray was appointed foreman of the wharf, but Mr. Pugsley stated that he was not now in the employ of the Government.

Mr. Crocket suggested that criminal proceedings ought to be taken against Murray. If employes of the Government were to be allowed to commit criminal offences with impunity, the Minister would have to take the responsibility.

The House rose at midnight after passing $1,810,000 for public works in New Brunswick and Ontario.

Despite the expressed fear of Dr. Schaffner and others that they were creating a combine to boost the price of flour, the private bills committee passed a bill giving the Dominion Millers' Association power to do a general milling and grain buying business with a capital limited to $250,000. Secretary Watts of Toronto told the committee that the claim of the association was to protect the small millers against the big milling companies.

The banking and commerce committee passed a bill to incorporate the pension fund of the Merchants' Bank of Canada, after Dr. Sproule had demanded that the Bank Act be altered so as to compel the banks to make annual returns; and also a bill to incorporate the Independent Order of Rechabites, with head office at Bedford Park, Ont.

Mr. Monk's bill respecting co-operative societies was before the banking and commerce committee of the Commons, and it was evident that the sentiment was favorable. It must, however, be redrafted.

The bill to incorporate the St. Lawrence Power Transmission Co., which the promoter said was independent from the Long Sault scheme, but "would procure power from that source if it were developed," caused a fight in the private bills committee yesterday.

The company proposes to build a line from Cornwall east to Montreal and west to Brockville. Authority is sought to acquire and develop powers, enter upon private property between Brockville and Montreal and in the City of Montreal, export power to the United States, construct transmission lines, issue securities.

Mr. Broder of Dundas objected to the bill as over-riding private and municipal rights.

R. A. Pringle, K.C., argued that only a transmission line was proposed. It had nothing to do with the Long Sault scheme.

"But are not all the incorporators the same?" asked Mr. Broder.

"Some of them are," admitted Mr. Pringle. The company had developed some power, and there were others along the line which could not be utilized save by a transmission line. He added that the Hydro-Electric Commission had declined to build lines in the district because of expense.

Leighton McCarthy, K.C., expressed willingness to accept an amendment making municipal consent necessary to enter a municipality, and Government assent to power export. He objected to the conservation commission being consulted on a matter of transmission lines, but an amendment to refer the bill to the conservation commission was declared carried after Messrs. Sharpe, Middleboro, Boyce, Reid and Magrath had voiced opposition to the company's proposals.

The Senate Banking Committee yesterday morning heard R. C. Smith, K.C., of Montreal, on behalf of the manufacturers of Montreal. He claimed that insurance was not a commodity, but a contract of indemnity and that the question of protecting home industry was not involved in the question. The amendment of the fire underwriters for the regulation of unlicensed companies, would result in the complete prohibition of reciprocal mutuals, a most desirable form of insurance. He contended there was an undoubted combination among the insurance companies in Canada, and that it exercised arbitrary power.

Senator Cox said that while favoring cheap insurance, and in favor of mutuals and reciprocals, he did not see why they should not be subject to the jurisdiction of the Canadian Insurance Department.

Wm. Laidlaw, for the insurance associations, said they were considering the amendment and that they were willing to let the sound companies come in if the wildcats could be kept out. He insisted that the cancellation of insurance in Montreal had been due to bad conditions there, the reservoir being empty and the pressure inadequate.

LIBERAL CABINET WILL PASS THE BUDGET AND THEN ATTEND TO LORDS

Authorized Statement is Given Out in London to the Effect That the Limitation of the Hereditary Body's Veto Will be Proceeded With.

London, Feb. 12. (Associated Press.)—According to an authorized statement given out last night, the Cabinet Council arrived at an absolutely unanimous decision of the course of procedure early in the week.

It is confirmed that after the passage of the budget, a bill limiting the veto of the Lords will be announced as the chief legislative work of the year.

Mr Redmond has received a joint telegram signed by three radical journals, The Nation, The Daily News and The Morning Leader. The message says:

"Congratulations to you on your magnificent stand. The whole fighting force of Liberalism is behind you."

Some of the Unionist newspapers see the possibility of a bargain with the Government to get rid of obnoxious parts of the budget.

Situation Tangled.

London, Feb. 12.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The political situation is much complicated by Redmond's speech in Dublin.

The Mail declares the King's Government must be carried on and presumes that Balfour would not refuse assistance to Premier Asquith against the Nationalists.

"Lloyd-George's budget is a bad one, but it is already," says The Mail, and so the Unionists might assist its passage, possibly with modifications, to avert financial breakdown.

The Liberals are, admittedly, greatly exercised by Redmond's declaration.

The Chronicle says that if Redmond thinks he can advance the interests of Ireland better by turning the Government out, either on a point of procedure or the budget, then it is his duty to do so, and the sooner he does it the better; but it declares that he is laboring under a misapprehension when imagining that the Government is wishful to postpone the veto question to some more convenient future time.

The speech is attributed by Liberals and Conservatives to the activities of William O'Brien, leader of the Independent Nationalists, who declared the other day that assistance in passing the budget would be the blackest of treason to Ireland.

Reports of Cabinet dissension are emphatically denied.

The Nation says no understanding exists between the King and the Ministers, and warns the latter that if the active veto policy is dropped and a policy of a reformed second Chamber substituted, a debacle will be inevitable, immediate and overwhelming.

The Times says the Unionists would stultify themselves if they neglected to vote against the budget at the first opportunity. It would be the height of folly not to throw it out if they could.

BIG STEAMER IS WRECKED AND MANY ARE DROWNED

French Transatlantic Company's Vessel "General Chanzy" Crashes into Reefs on Island of Minorca—Only One Man, Named Marcel Rodel, is Picked up Alive.

Palma, Island of Majorca, Feb 12.—Swept helplessly from her course in one of the wildest storms that has swept the Mediterranean Sea in 40 years, the French Trans-Atlantic Steamship Co.'s steamer "General Chanzy," crashed at full speed, in the dead of night, on the treacherous reefs near the Island of Minorca, and all but one of the 157 souls on board perished.

The sole survivor is an Algerian customs officer, Marcel Rodel, who was rescued by a fisherman, and who lies in the hospital at Ciudadela, raving as a result of the tortures through which he passed, and unable to give an account of the disaster.

Of the ship's company there were 87 passengers, of whom 30 were in the first cabin. The crew numbered 70.

The ship was in command of Captain Cayol, one of the most careful officers of the line. He never before had met with an accident. He soon was to have retired from the service.

The passengers of the Chanzy were mostly French officials and officials returning to their posts in Algeria, accompanied by their wives and children; a few soldiers, some Italians and Turks, and one priest.

The only Anglo-Saxon names on the passenger list were Green and Stakely. They were members of an opera troupe of eleven, which had been engaged to sing at the Casino in Algiers.

The "Chanzy" sailed from Marseilles Wednesday at noon, and was due to arrive at Algiers Thursday afternoon.

The steamer was of 2,357 gross tonnage, and her engines had a horsepower of 678.

The Chanzy is a total wreck. Steamers have been despatched from Spain and from points in the Balearic Islands to the scene of the catastrophe.

Among the victims was the celebrated Parisian music hall singer, Francis Dufor, as well as other prominent music hall favorites.

The General Chanzy struck at 2 o'clock Thursday night. Other ships in the neighborhood had safely outridden the storm, but the Chanzy was lifted off her course through the Balearic Archipelago and brought up on the coast of Minorca, in the vicinity of Ciudadela.

Mediterranean Is Swept by Storm.

Algiers, Feb. 12.—Ships arriving here yesterday report that a wild tempest is raging in the Mediterranean.

The steamer Charles Roux, which came into port yesterday, was forced temporarily to take refuge in the harbor of Barcelona. Her captain declared that the storm was the severest that he had seen in the Mediterranean in many years. The gale suddenly swept from the northeast to the northwest, and his steamer was nearly engulfed.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The latest statement is that the Allans of Montreal intend to build two 20-knot steamers.

Rats gnawed through a lead water pipe in the Newcombe Rand Co., London, and caused a bad flood.

Municipal elections at Elk Lake yesterday resulted as follows: Reeve, Dr. Harcourt; councillors, Collorette, High, Jodouin and Sterling.

Judge Madden of Napanee has finally decided that local option in Ernestown Township has been sustained by a majority of 18 instead of 29.

Chicago is threatened with a milk famine unless the big companies meet the demand of the Producers' Association for an increase in the price.

A report that Phillipe H. Roy, former president of the Banque St. Jean, is dying in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, is denied by the prison officials.

The French Antarctic expedition steamer Pouquoi Pas, with Dr. J. M. Charcot on board, has arrived at Punto Arenas, Chile. The Frenchman did not reach the South Pole.

The C.P.R. gave out their plans for western extensions yesterday, which comprise 174 miles up the Columbia and Kootenay extension, from Elcho on the Crow's Nest line to Fort Steele, and then branches to the extent of 250 miles will be built in Saskatchewan, and about one hundred in Alberta.

MURDERED SIX; PAYS PENALTY

Richmond, Va., Feb. 12—Howard Little, who murdered Mrs. Betsey Justis, her son-in-law, George Meadows, and his wife and three children, was executed yesterday.

Little bore an excellent reputation and some friends still believe in his innocence. He is described as one of the handsomest men in the state; over six feet in height and weighing 236 pounds. Except for his association with women, he carried himself generally without reproach.

While holding the position of U. S. marshal in Kentucky, he shot and killed a man and was sentenced to a life term in penitentiary. He was pardoned after a short period, and moved back to Virginia, where he lived with the family of George Meadows. Mrs. Little and her children lived in the same house. Robbery was established as the direct motive for the sextuple homicide.

CO-OPERATION IN SEARCH OF POLE

London, Feb. 12.—Co-operation in certain directions between the American and British Antarctic expeditions was suggested in correspondence between Commander Peary and Captain Robert F. Scott, which was given here yesterday.

With reference to the American expedition, Captain Scott said: "I think it would be advisable that there should be co-operation between the expeditions in the matter of meterology and magnetism. A program might be drawn up to provide for simultaneous observations."

Lieut. Shackleton, the South Pole explorer, will sail for the United States on March 19, and give a lecture tour, and afterwards will make an extensive hunting trip in northern Alaska.

FRENCH CANAL TO MEDITERRANEAN

Paris, Feb. 12.—In connection with the discussion in the Chamber of Deputies on the re-organization of the navy, M. Senac, deputy from Tarn and Garonne, introduced amendments to the finance bill, with the object of reviving the deep waterway canal project to connect the Atlantic with the Mediterranean. The plan calls for the construction of a canal 160 feet wide by 35 feet deep, capable of accommodating the largest merchant steamers and battleships.

Deputy Senac declared that such a canal would be worth a squadron of battleships to France, and in addition, would be very profitable commercially. He estimated that it would cost $150,000,000.

WOULD CONTROL THE CATHOLIC SCHOOLS

Paris, Feb. 12.—The Government's bill to bring private Catholic schools under a species of state control—one of the measures designed to meet the French Episcopate's agitation against the public schools—was introduced in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday.

While the bill leaves the private schools free to choose their own methods or curricula, it subjects them to the condition that teaching shall be in French and shall include all the studies provided by the public school laws, and requires that the text books of the schools shall be submitted to the inspection of the academy, authorizing the interdiction of books against morals, the constitution and the laws of the country.

The bill also exacts teachers' certificates, but it allows two years within which teachers without certificates can qualify for them. The bill requires secularized monks and nuns, many of whom are now in private schools, to furnish written certificates that they do not belong to unauthorized teaching orders.

WILL OPPOSE SEWAGE BILL

Kingston, Feb. 12.—The corporation will ask Hon. W. Harty to oppose the bill of Senator Belcourt to prohibit sewage being emptied into navigable streams. Were it to pass Kingston would be up against a tough proposition, and so would other towns and cities bordering on navigable waters. The original object of Senator Belcourt was to protect Ottawa and Hull.

Oxygen Plant at Welland.

Welland, Feb. 12.—An American company, the General Air Product Co., a subsidiary of the Electro-Steel Co. of Canada, which started a factory here last year, will erect a plant here for the manufacture of oxygen, now being largely used in aiding the welding of steel.

Technical Education at Montreal.

Montreal, Feb. 12.—That technical schools would be built as fast as they were filled by students, was the announcement of Secretary of Public Instruction G. W. Parmelee at the opening of the Verdun common school.

Prohibition In Hawaiian Islands.

Washington, D.C., Feb. 12.—The Senate committee on Pacific Islands has reported in favor of submitting the Hawaiian prohibition question to a popular vote of the people of the islands.

Coldest Yet at Galt.

Galt, Feb. 12.—At 7 a.m. the mercury was 21 below zero, the coldest snap yet.

AN INSURGENT GENERAL KILLED

Bluefields, Nicaragua, Feb. 12.—In a desperate battle on Feb. 4 between the Government and insurgent troops at Santa Clara, resulted in heavy losses, including the death of Gen. Blanzon (insurgent). This was followed by the retreat of the insurgents to Mogan.

It is explained that Gen. Mena had not expected to defeat the enemy with his small force, but planned to keep the Government forces engaged, with the idea that the enemy would draw reinforcements from Acoyapa, only ten miles distant, and so be able to send an augmented army against Gen. Chamorro in the Province of Matagalpa.

MONTREAL SCULPTOR WILL DO THE WORK

Ottawa, Feb. 12.—The award in the competition among Canadian sculptors for the statues of George Brown and D'Arcy McGee, to be erected in Ottawa, was made yesterday. In each case the decision was in favor of G. W. Hill of Montreal. Special prizes were awarded to Hamilton McCarthy and Coeur de Lion McCarthy of Ottawa for the excellence of their designs. The award was made by Hon. Arthur Boyer and Byron E. Walker, the members of the art commission.

HOW TO DEAL WITH MAD DOG

Toronto, Feb. 12.—The Ontario Board of Health has issued the following directions to all health officers throughout the province, to be followed where an animal is suspected of being affected with rabies:

"It should, if possible, be captured alive, placed in a cage where it can do no harm, and be carefully watched for at least ten days. If affected with rabies, symptoms may appear within 48 hours, and death, as a rule, occur within a few days. Affected animals are scarcely ever known to recover.

"In order that other causes of death may be excluded, material should be forwarded to the laboratory for confirmatory diagnosis.

"The head may be severed from the body and forwarded by express, packed in sufficient ice, surrounded by straw or sawdust.

"Full information as to history, clinical symptoms, etc., should also be furnished.

"Specimens should be addressed to The Laboratory, Provincial Board of Health, Toronto."

YOUNG MAN MAY LOSE HIS HANDS AND FEET

St. Thomas, Feb. 12.—Thos. Courtenay, a young Scotchman of Avon, was brought to the hospital last night with both hands and feet frozen. He was working in Aylmer Thursday, and early yesterday morning started to drive home. At 5 o'clock yesterday morning he was found in his cutter unconscious, the horses having reached Lyons.

The doctors are not certain yet whether they can save either his hands or feet.

His Majesty Grieved.

London, Feb. 11.

"Grieved to hear of my old friend Goldwin Smith's serious accident. Pray give me news, and offer him my sympathy.

(Signed) "Edward R."

COMMANDER PEARY IS TURNED DOWN

Washington, Feb. 12.—Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the North Pole, will not be given the rank of rear admiral in the navy, as proposed, in recognition of his services as an explorer, if Congress approves the action of the sub-committee of the House committee on naval affairs, who voted yesterday to report adversely the bill offered by Senator Hale and Representative Allen. The committee of six members voted unanimously against bestowing the honor upon Mr. Peary.

PORT HOPE BARS THE CANADIAN NORTHERN

Port Hope, Feb. 12.—At a public meeting last night the request of the C.N.R. that the town buy the 1 1-2 mile right of way into the business part of the town, at a cost of $75,000, and turn it over to the railway, was refused.

As a result, the C.N.R. officials say the railway will not come into Port Hope. Engineers McLeod, Armstrong and Mr. Ingram of Toronto represented the company.

Consul Assassinated.

Algiers, Feb. 12.—L. Dachot, the Bolivian consul here, was shot and killed yesterday by an unidentified man as he was entering his automobile.

M. Dachot was on his way to make enquiries concerning the wrecked steamer General Chanzy, on which he had two friends.

Cattle With Rabies.

Welland, Feb. 12.—One cow has died at Attercliffe from rabies and another one is infected. They are supposed to have been bitten by a dog some time ago, but the dog has not been found.

NO SMOKING WHILE ON DUTY

Altoona, Penn., Feb. 12.—The use of tobacco in any form while on duty is forbidden all employes of passenger and freight stations and on passenger trains on the lines east of Pittsburg and Erie, by new regulations promulgated by the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. The new rules became effective Thursday night.

Can't Get Leprosy In America.

New York, Feb. 12.—"Leprosy can't be contracted in this climate," declared Health Commissioner Lederle of New York yesterday, when shown a despatch from Detroit saying that a young woman of that city contracted the disease from wearing hair imported from Europe.

"Blind Pigs" at Elk Lake.

Elk Lake, Feb. 12.—Arrested on charges of keeping "blind pigs" for the illegal sale of liquor, Dan Reavey was fined $250, or nine months' hard labor in North Bay jail. Tom Doherty was fined $250 or six months, and Joseph Brier $150 or three months. A. Lagonier was fined $200, and $100 for permitting gambling. All went down.

Quebec Printers Postpone Strike.

Quebec, Feb. 12.—The local members of the International Typographical Union, have postponed their strike to the 17th instant, hoping to come to an understanding with the Master Printers, concerning their wages.

King Edward May Meet Czar.

London, Feb. 12.—A despatch to The Daily Chronicle from Helsingfors says it is understood that King Edward will meet the Emperor of Russia the coming summer in the Finnish Gulf.

'TWAS QUIET DAY IN THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

Toronto, Feb 12.—Very few members in their places and very little work done was the record of the Legislature yesterday afternoon. Sir James Whitney, however, announced that he hoped on Wednesday next in addition to what little they might be able to accomplish on Monday, to have "a good long session" and clear off a lot of the order paper.

J. J. Craig (East Wellington) presented a petition from the Mount Forest Board of Trade praying for favorable consideration of the bill to incorporate a college of osteopathy.

H. R. McElroy (Carleton) introduced a bill to amend the Municipal Act. T. H. Lennox (North York) gave notice of a bill to amend the same act. Mr. McElroy's bill provided for another application to the county judge after five years in the case of bridges over 300 feet long used by the people of other municipalities than that in which it is situated, so that, if conditions have changed in the meantime, it may be declared a county bridge, and the other municipalities made responsible for part of its maintenance. The judge's decision at present is final.

Hon. J. J. Foy's bill "for quieting titles to real estate" was referred back to the committee of the whole House, and some amendments added. Its third reading is set down for Tuesday.

Mr Foy's bill "respecting the county courts and districts courts" was put through committee without amendment.

"The woodmen's lien for wages act" (Hon. Frank Cochrane), was amended in committee and the amendments concurred in.

Hon. A. G. MacKay has given notice that he will, on Tuesday next, enquire of the Government if any survey has been made or enquiry instituted as to the practicability of a general drainage scheme for the Fort Francis and Rainy River district, and if so, when, and by whom. He will ask also whether any survey has been made or enquiry instituted as to the practicability of constructing a through trunk colonization road from Port Arthur to Fort Francis and Rainy River; if so, when and by whom.

DEPARTMENTAL PROMOTIONS

Toronto, Feb. 12.—The following promotions, carrying with them increases in salary, have been made in the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines: Chester Dies succeeds Harry Cartwright as assistant registrar of the Department; Harry Gillard, formerly clerk of fire-ranging, succeeds the late Kenneth Miller as accountant of the woods and forest branch; John Houser succeeds Mr. Gillard as head of the fire-ranging section. Geo. Harris is made Mr. Houser's assistant, and Stanley Meeking, a new appointee, becomes junior clerk of the Department.

HON. SIDNEY FISHER FOR THE SENATE?

Montreal, Feb. 12.—There are some people in the eastern townships who think that, as Hon. Sydney Fisher has tired of fighting elections in Brome, the Minister of Agriculture will take his portfolio to the Senate, in place of the late Hon. George B. Baker.

This would not be the first time that same portfolio would be in the Upper House, for when the present Lieutenant-Governor, Sir A. P. Pelletier, was Minister under Mackenzie, he sat in the Senate as Minister of Agriculture

A LIVE BOARD OF TRADE

The Peterborough Board of Trade is dead in earnest as regards having an industrial commissioner for the city. It has faith in the scheme and intends doing everything in its power to demonstrate that its faith is fully justified. The Board had asked the city to make an appropriation of $4,300 in the estimates for an industrial and publicity commissioner, and to appoint an official to take charge of the work. This would have mean 1-2 mill more on the tax rate. The Council did not wish to add this extra 1-2 mill as the rate without it will be high enough, the aldermen say. Last night it was arranged that if the Board of Trade raise $2,000 by public subscription the Council will make a grant of $2,000 towards the scheme. There seems little doubt but that the Board of Trade will be able to raise the required sum, but it means a lot of work for those who are going to take charge of the campaign to get the money. The men who are undertaking it show the spirit of true citizenship and should meet with every support and encouragement.

AID TO MANUFACTURERS

Mr. Bradburn has introduced into the Ontario Legislature a bill to amend the law in regard to municipal aid to manufacturers that a favorable vote of three-fifths of the electors voting upon such a by-law will be sufficient authority for it to be passed by the council. At present a favorable vote of two-thirds of all entitled to vote is required unless the number voting against the by-law does not exceed one-fifth of the total number entitled to vote, when the assent of three-fifths of all the ratepayers is necessary. This law makes it practically impossible for some of the larger municipalities to pass such a by-law. There are always a number of electors temporarily absent, some sick or otherwise prevented from voting, in addition to those property owners who are non-resident. There are owners of Peterborough property scattered in almost all parts of Canada, and not a few in the United States. It has been found impracticable here to get three-fifths of the votes polled, so that if every elector who marked his ballot did so in favor of a by-law to aid manufacturers it would not be carried. Last year there were 1,239 votes polled in favor of a by-law to 84 against it, a majority of 1155, and yet it was lost. Supporters of local option thought they were badly handicapped when a majority of 507 was not sufficient to carry that by-law but what would they think if they had polled a majority of 1155 and still been defeated?

The law in regard to aid to manufacturers certainly needs changing. If municipalities should be prevented from giving such aid at all, the law should so provide, but if it is not intended to prohibit them from doing so the law should not be allowed to remain as it is. Some municipalities, especially the smaller ones, can poll the votes of three-fifths of all those entitled to vote, while in others it is practically impossible, and the law as it stands discriminates against the latter, among them this city.

Mr. Bradburn's bill provides a sufficient safeguard when it proposes to require the assent of three-fifths of the electors who vote. The majority required under this provision would not be a small one, and unless there was a large preponderance of opinion in favor of a by-law it could not be carried even with the amendment proposed. That the law in this respect should be amended seems clear, and the amendment proposed is such a reasonable one that it should receive the approval of the Legislature.

ON GETTING UP EARLY

In those days, when, for those of us who have to work for a living, getting up in the dark is a necessity, the invention of an ingenious Parisian mechanic should be of interest. On view at a furniture dealer's in Paris is what is to all appearances an ordinary bed; but the weight of the body upon it sets a clockwork in motion which operates a musical box, thus lulling the happy occupier to the arms of Morpheus with soothing ditties. A dial is set, however, for the time we wish to arise—and at the hour set, we are awakened by discordant noises. This is not all, for if we turn over for another snooze, in five minutes the bed which soothed us so kindly to sleep the night before, lets us through to the floor. This arrangement is kinder than another fiendish invention we read of recently, which, if the unwilling sleeper did not answer a second summons, tipped him into a bath of cold water built into the floor.

There was recently found dead in his bed in New York a motorman on the elevated railway who was noted for his punctuality. The secret was revealed, however, when one morning he was found to have died in his sleep surrounded by thirty alarm clocks, all going, and all set for six o'clock. The monomania which led to such an atrocious arrangement was, we would think, worse than an occasional fine for being late, and one is curious to know if the man was married, and if so, what his wife thought of it!

"Early to bed, early to rise," it is said, "makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise." That early rising conduces to health we are willing to believe (on the testimony of those who have tried it), that it leads to wisdom is doubtful, but that it leads to wealth we must very positively deny. Else, why do all men who carry dinner pails get up with the lark, while those who wear broadcloth and silk hats remain between the sheets until the streets are aired? We have heard that the early bird catches the worm, but the point of view of the early worm interests us far more.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Bro. Joe Clarke, of the Toronto Star, discusses the Atlantic Ocean, and says the scenery needs improving. He points out that there ought to be more whales where there is so much room. Why does not Bro. Clarke advertise and offer inducements for the propagation of the species, or for a wholesale immigration of fish from some other waters?

$100 REWARD $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address:

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"How long have you been working on the idea?"

"Nearly four months," said Saunders, yawning.

"Gad, this climate is enervating!" was Britt's caustic comment.

Saunders was heels over head in love with Miss Pelham at this time, so it is not surprising that he had some sort of an idea about marriage, no matter whom it concerned.

Night after night the Deppinghams and Brownes gave dinners, balls, musicales, "bridges," masks and theater suppers at the chateau. First one would invite the other to a great ball, then the other would respond by giving a sumptuous dinner.

One morning during the first week in February the steamer from Aden brought stacks of mail—the customary newspapers, magazines, novels, telegrams and letters. It was noticed that her ladyship had several hundred letters, many bearing crests or coats of arms.

At last she came to a letter of many pages covered with a scrawl that looked preposterously fashionable. Lady Agnes gave a sudden shriek and, leaping to her feet, performed a dance that set her husband and Bobby Browne to gaping.

"She's coming!" she cried ecstatically, repeating herself a dozen times.

"Who's coming, Aggy?" roared her husband for the sixth time.

"The princess! Deppy, I'm going to squeeze you! I must squeeze somebody! Isn't it glorious? Now—now—now life will be worth living in this beastly place."

Her dearest friend, the princess, had written to say that she was coming to spend a month with her.

"In her uncle's yacht, Deppy—the big one that came to Cowes last year, don't you know? Of course you do. Don't look so dazed. He's cruising for a couple of months and is to set her down here until the yacht returns from Borneo and the Philippines. She says she hopes it will be quiet here. Quiet! She hopes it will be quiet!"

"I say, Deppingham, you can take her out walking and pick up a crownful of fresh rubies every day or so," said Browne.

"Hang it all, Browne, I'm afraid to pluck a violet these days. Every time I stoop over I feel that somebody's going to take a shot at me. I wonder why the beggars select me to shoot at. They're not always popping away at you, Browne. Why is it?"

"It's all right so long as they don't kill you," was Browne's consoling remark.

"By Jove!" said Deppingham, starting up with a look of horror in his eyes, sudden comprehension rushing down upon him. "I wonder if they think I am you, Browne! Horrible!"

The enemy's office hours were from 3 to 5 in the afternoon. Twice a week Miss Pelham came down from the chateau in a gayly bedecked jinrikisha to sit opposite to him in his stuffy corner of the banking house, his desk between them, her notebook trembling with propinquity. Mr. Britt generously lent the pert lady to the enemy in exchange for what he catalogued as "happy days."

Miss Pelham made it a point to look as fascinating as possible on the occasion of these interesting trips into the enemy's territory.

The enemy, doing his duty by his clients with a determination that seemed incontestable, was the last to realize that an intrigue was shaping itself to combat his endeavors. Von Blitz, openly his friend and ally, despite their sad encounter, was the thorn which pricked the natives into a state of uneasiness and doubt as to their agent's sincerity.

They began to believe that no good could come out of the daily meetings of the three lawyers.

It was Von Blitz who told the leading men of the island that their wives—the Persians, the Circassians, the Egyptians and the Turkish houris—were in love with the tall stranger. It was he who advised them to observe the actions, to study the moods of their women.

The German knew the condition of affairs in his own household. His overthrow at the hands of the American had cost him more than physical ignominy; his wives openly expressed an admiration for their champion. Every eye in Japat was upon him; every hand was turning against him.

It was Miss Pelham who finally took it upon herself to warn the lonely American. The look of surprise and disgust that came into his face brought her up sharply.

"Miss Pelham," he said coldly, "will you be kind enough to carry my condolences to the ladies at court and say that I recommend reading as an antidote for the poison which idleness produces. Neither my home nor my barroom is open to ladies. If you don't mind we'll go on with this report."

Miss Pelham flushed and looked very uncomfortable.

"You're wrong about Lady Deppingham and Mrs. Browne," she began hurriedly. "They've never said anything mean about you. It was just my miserable way of putting it. The talk comes from the islanders. Mr. Bowles has told Mr. Britt and Mr. Saunders. He thinks Von Blitz is working against you, and he is sure that all of the men are furiously jealous."

The directorate of the Northern Crown Bank has been increased to 8.

WHAT PETERBOROUGH IS REQUESTING THE LEGISLATURE TO DO

The Review has received a copy of the legislation Peterborough is asking from the Legislature at Toronto. The following amendments are asked for:

1 In case of any election by general vote, it appears upon the casting up of the votes by the Clerk of the Municipality, that two or more candidates, who have a sufficient number of votes to be elected, have an equal number of votes, the candidate who is assessed the higher on the assessment roll for the year of such election shall be elected and hold office for the term for which he would be elected if he had received more votes than the other candidate who received an equal number of votes.

2 In case at the first election by wards, it appears at the casting up of the votes by the clerk of the municipality that the two aldermen who are elected for any ward have received an equal number of votes, the alderman who is assessed the higher of the two on the assessment roll for the year of such election shall be elected and hold office for two years and the other alderman elected shall be elected and hold office for one year.

3 In case at any election by wards, after the first election, it appears, upon the casting up of the votes by the clerk of the municipality, that two or more candidates in any ward or wards, who have a sufficient number of votes to be elected, have an equal number of votes, the clerk of the municipality, or other person appointed by by-law to discharge the duties of clerk, in case of his absence or incapacity, whether otherwise qualified or not, shall at the time he declares the result of the poll give a vote for one of such candidates, so as to decide the election of aldermen for such ward or wards.

4 While aldermen are elected by general vote in the said city, if the office of any alderman becomes vacant from any cause before the expiration of the term for which he was elected, the Council shall, at a regular meeting held after the vacancy occurs, elect some duly qualified person to fill such vacancy and the person so elected shall hold office for the remainder of the term for which his predecessor was elected.

5 While the aldermen are elected by wards in the said city, the provisions of section 212, 213, 214 and 215, of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, as to non-election, neglect or refusal to accept office and vacancies or the similar section of any act amending or repealing the same, shall apply to new elections of members of the Council of the said city.

6 If a by-law is passed under the provisions of this section, providing for the election of aldermen by wards instead of by general vote, the Council may by by-law, to be thereafter passed, repeal the same, but such repealing by-law shall not be finally passed or become operative until it shall have been submitted to and received the assent of a majority of the electors of the said city voting thereon, and upon a petition signed by at least twenty per cent. of the electors of the said city being presented to the Council on or before the first day of November in any year, asking for the submission of such repealing by-law, it shall be the duty of the Council to pass such by-law and to submit it to the electors of the said city at the then next annual municipal election, and provided the said by-law receives the assent of the majority of the electors voting thereon, to finally pass the same and at the next annual municipal election, after the final passing of the said repealing by-law, members of the Council shall be elected by general vote, as provided by this section, as if the said by-law providing for the election of aldermen by wards had not been passed, and all members of the Council who have been elected by wards shall cease to hold office from and after the first meeting of the Council, whose members shall have been elected by general vote.

7 In the event of a by-law being passed under the provisions of this section, providing for the election of aldermen by wards instead of by general vote, all members of the Council who have been elected by general vote shall cease to hold office from and after the first meeting of the Council, whose members have been elected by wards, and this provision shall be retroactive and shall be read, taken and considered as if originally enacted as part of this section.

2. The Council of the city of Peterborough may appoint an officer, to be called, "Commissioner of Industries" and may define his duties and authority and fix and pay his salary and the expenses and disbursements of and incidental to his office.

3. The Council of such City may by By-law, to be passed without submitting the same to or receiving the assent of the electors, take over the assets and property of the Peterborough Mechanics' Institute and establish the library of the said Institute as a Public Library under the provisions of The Public Libraries Act, and on the passing of the said By-law all the provisions of the Public Libraries Act, applicable thereto, save as herein otherwise expressly provided, shall apply to such Public Library as the Board of Management thereof, and the appointment, manner of appointment, term of office, duties, authorities and other matters of, relating to or exercisable by the said board of management in as full and ample a manner as if said by-law had been passed under section 4 of said Act, and said Board shall be a body corporate by the name of The Peterborough Public Library Board.

4. On the appointment of the said Board, all the assets and property of the Peterborough Mechanics' Institute shall vest in the said Peterborough Public Library Board.

5. The Council of such City may finally pass the By-law, intituled, "A By-law to aid Purity Ware (Limited)," set out as Schedule "A" hereto, and may amend clauses 1, 2, 3, 4 (v) and 8 thereof before the final passing thereof by extending the time therein mentioned for one year from the dates in said clauses mentioned and also by changing the name Purity Ware (Limited) wherever it occurs in such By-law to such other name as may be adopted by the said proposed Company and from and after the final passing thereof, and on the delivery by said Purity Ware (Limited) to the Corporation of a duly executed agreement and undertaking to carry out on its part the provisions of the said By-law to be performed, observed and kept by it, in such form as may be satisfactory to the said Council, such By-law, shall be legal, valid and binding, according to the true intent and meaning thereof.

6. By-law Number 1482 of the City of Peterborough, passed on the 4th day of October, 1909, intituled, "A By-law to amend the By-law to aid The Colonial Weaving Company (Limited)," and set out as Schedule "B" hereto, is confirmed and declared legal, valid and binding, according to the true intent and meaning thereof.

7. By-law Number 1491, of the City of Peterborough, passed on the 6th day of December, 1909, intituled, "A By-law to fix the assessment of The William Hamilton Company (Limited)," and set out as Schedule "C" hereto, is confirmed and declared legal, valid and binding, according to the true intent and meaning thereof.

Stop Women And Consider

This Fact—that in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers twenty-five years.

The present Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, was for years under her direction, and has ever since her decease continued to advise women.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty causes them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. Such questioning and examination is unnecessary. Without cost you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

MRS. PINKHAM'S STANDING INVITATION:

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

LIVE NOTES FROM LAKEFIELD

Special to the Review.

Lakefield, Feb. 11.—The Park street Baptist choir, of Peterborough, drove to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Perry on Feb. 10th. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

The business men and clerks will play a return game at the rink on Monday night, the game commencing hard at seven o'clock. An admission fee will be charged at this game, the proceeds to go to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto. The game promises to be a good one and a good crowd should be present. Admission 10 cents, children 5 cents.

Mr. Fred Norush's house had a narrow escape from being destroyed by fire on Saturday last. A spark from the stove pipe ignited a corner of the roof of the building, and when discovered quite a little blaze had started. A few pails of water quickly extinguished the fire, the damage being very slight.

A hockey match was played between the Bosses and their Employees, the Bosses winning out by 6—3. The game was exciting.

A hockey match was played between the Farmers and All Stars, the Stars winning out by 6—3.

A number of Lakefield citizens went to Lindsay to take in the hockey match between Trenton and Lindsay.

Mr. Waldon has returned home after a lengthy visit in the States.

On Wednesday a hockey match was played between the canoe factory and firemen, the canoe factory winning out by 4—0. Also a match between Warsaw and Buckhorn, Buckhorn winning out by 9—4. There was a good turnout from Buckhorn and the game was exciting.

A Valentine Social will be held at Mr. H. J. Baptie's Monday, Feb. 14th

REV. ARMSTRONG AT KNOX CHURCH

Will Preach at the Evening Service and Address Men's Class in Afternoon.

Rev. A. E. Armstrong, of Toronto, Association Secretary of the Foreign Missionary Board of the Presbyterian Church, will occupy the pulpit at Knox church to-morrow. He has travelled extensively, east and west in the interests of the Laymen's Missionary Movement and has a strong optimistic message for the congregation of Knox church, particularly for the men. Mr. Armstrong has appeared in Peterborough before, having been one of the prominent men in connection with the Missionary Institute held here two years ago. There will no doubt be a large gathering especially of men, to hear him on Sunday evening at Knox church.

Edmond Rochette was burned to death at Nicolet, Que., in a fire which destroyed the Hotel Rochette.

HAPPY DAYS FOR BABY

The healthy child is always a happy child. All its little troubles vanish when its food digests properly and it is free from childish ailments. Most of these ailments come from stomach or bowel troubles, colds, feverishness, teething and worms. Baby's Own Tablets promptly cure all these troubles and keep little ones well. Mrs. W. G. Martin, Ravenscliffe, Que., says, "I have used Baby's Own Tablets in my home for the past four years, and since using them my little ones have enjoyed the best of health. I can recommend them to every mother as a sure cure for the little troubles of childhood." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHILDREN GAVE EVIDENCE OF THOROUGH TRAINING

At Kindergarten Demonstration at Conservatory Hall Last Night—Interesting Exercises by the Classes and Splendidly Executed Special Numbers.

As much as was expected of them by their parents and friends the work of the pupils of Miss Estelle Foy in the kindergarten department of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music proved a revelation to the auditors and was most encouraging to their teacher and Mr. Gliddon. The exercises in connection with the kindergarten demonstration were held at the Conservatory Hall last night before an audience of five hundred and it was a thoroughly delighted and appreciative one. Thirty-five children took part in the programme and their work gave gratifying evidence of the effective method employed by the teacher and also of the intelligence of the pupils and of the interest they take in their work. One of the outstanding benefits of the method used—the Westman—is that the children acquire the first essential to playing—to keep time very accurately—as was very convincingly shown in the sextette arrangement of the Faust waltz, the different parts for the pupils being composed by Miss Foy.

A particularly entertaining number was the fifth one on the programme in which the clarionette and cornet were played by little performers whose technique and tone were excellent in spite of their tender years. The young musicians played with perfect ease and great precision.

The concerted theoretical work of the classes was done admirably.

During the intermission between the first and second parts Miss Pearle Foy sang very sweetly "Love's Old Sweet Song," and was presented with a beautiful bouquet. Miss Julia Choate also played a violin solo with fine expression, both soloists receiving encores.

The programme was:

1. Staff Exercise.....
   (a) Treble Staff Board

COMMITTEE TO TAKE UP MATTER OF C.P.R. GRAIN ROUTE AND CITY

At the meeting of the City Council in committee of the whole last night the Mayor and Ald. Phelan and Ald. Bradburn were appointed a committee to take up the matter of the entrance into the city of the proposed grain route of the C.P.R. This question was up last fall, but nothing has been done since that time. Ald. Butler stated that he understood the railway company were waiting for a proposition from the city. The C.P.R. had asked for certain things last fall, but had not offered anything in return. It would be well for the city to make a proposition to the railway people.

The mayor thought some action should be taken by the city, as nothing more had been heard from the company since they had submitted plans to the city last fall.

Ald. Butler said it was possible that Peterborough might be a divisional point on the new road.

Reference was made to the new survey of the C.P.R. with a view to joining the main line about two miles east of Keeley siding. As far as was known, the company had not yet decided on this route.

On motion of Ald. Butler and Ald. Batten, the committee mentioned above was appointed to take up the matter. It was suggested that the city might sell the company a portion of the water front, the city to retain that portion lying east of the present C.P.R. siding.

Mr. R. C. Bruund waited on the committee in reference to the company's plans to enter the city at the western boundary. If certain streets were closed, as proposed, and a subway built, his business would be seriously affected, as the traffic would be diverted and a roundabout way would have to be taken to reach his store. He wanted to see the city get the railway, but he had to consider his business interests.

The mayor stated that the council would remember Mr. Bruund's claims in entering into an agreement with the railway company.

A FEATURE OF THE DRAMATIC SEASON

The Astor Theatre Success, "The Man From Home," is Secured by the Management of the Grand.

It is with pleasure that the management of "The Grand" announce that they have been successful in making arrangements for the appearance here of Liebler & Co.' production of "The Man From Home." This play has enjoyed a run of 70 solid weeks at the Astor Theatre, New York, and also played for 342 consecutive performances in Chicago. No other play ever did this. "The Man From Home," fortified by one of the strongest acting companies Liebler & Co. have ever placed in the field and flanked by one of the most imposing stage productions of the season will appear here next Friday evening, Feb. 18th. The play is clean, wholesome, witty and dramatic and no doubt will draw capacity business to the local theatre.

BOARD OF TRADE AGREES TO TAKE UP THE WORK

Will Look After the Promotion of the City Industrially—City to Grant Board $2,000 and Board to Raise Equal Amount by Subscription—Council Met in Committee of the Whole.

If the resolution passed by the committee of the whole council last night is confirmed by the council in regular session the Board of Trade will take charge of the scheme to develop the city industrially. The Board of Trade will take charge of the work, on the condition that the city will grant them $2,000, the Board agreeing to raise $2,000, or more if possible, by public subscription.

The Board of Trade wanted the council to add 1-2 mill to the tax rate for the purpose of raising money to carry on the work of the industrial and publicity commissioner's department. This would raise $4,300. The aldermen did not care to add one mill to the rate in view of the fact that the lowest they could get the rate, leaving out an appropriation for the industrial commissioner, was twenty-two mills. It was nineteen and a half mills last year. Mayor Morrow and Ald. Bradburn suggested that the council grant the Board of Trade $1,000, and that the latter go out and see how much they could raise in a week. Then they could report to the council, and perhaps the council could increase the grant, if it were found advisable.

The council met in committee of the whole, along with a deputation from the Board of Trade. The deputation consisted of Messrs. D. O'Connell, W. H. Denham, D. Hughes Charles and J. H. Larmonth.

The members of the council present were: Mayor Morrow, Ald. Phelan, Ald. Batten, Ald. Turner, Ald. Gillespie, Ald. Buller, Ald. Metheral and Ald. Bradburn.

After an hour's discussion Ald. Turner moved that the council grant the Board of Trade $2,000, on condition that they raise $2,000 by subscription from the manufacturers, merchants and others who would contribute. Ald. Gillespie seconded the motion, and it carried. Aldermen Turner, Gillespie, Phelan and Bradburn voted for it and Aldermen Metheral and Batten against it. Ald. Buller did not vote.

The mayor stated some of the aldermen were of the opinion that the city was going to be too hard up this year to spend any large amount of money for this purpose. Before striking the rate it would be necessary to decide what amount, if any, was going to be placed for this work.

Mr. O'Connell stated that the Board of Trade had figured out that one-half mill on the assessment would be sufficient to provide funds for the industrial and publicity department.

"That would be $4,300," said the mayor.

"There is no use going about the matter in a piecemeal method," said Mr. O'Connell. "That would do more harm than good. The trouble is if the question is allowed to drift, Peterborough may lose the opportunity it has now, owing to the present state of affairs in Ontario."

Mr. W. H. Denham stated that he had just received a letter from the industrial commissioner at Port Arthur, offering the company certain inducements to locate there. He mentioned this just to show that other cities had industrial commissioners who apparently were on a sharp lookout for industries.

"It's a serious proposition," said Ald. Metheral, "when you get the rate up to 23 mills. There is a lot of talk among the working classes now about the high taxes, and if they keep going up these will be empty houses in the city."

Ald. Bradburn—"The principle is bad, but how are we going to get over it unless some law is passed making bonusing illegal?"

Mayor Morrow—"Every company that is now looking for a location is wanting to know what the cities will give them."

Mr. O'Connell said that bonuses and concessions were small matters compared with other advantages. If the city had a man who was an expert on these matters who could point out the marked advantages of the city there would be very little need for bonuses and exemptions.

Mr. D. Hughes Charles said it would be necessary for the city to spend some money if it wanted to go ahead. More factories meant more dwelling houses, and that all meant increased assessment. A lower tax rate would then be possible.

Mr. Denham argued strongly in favor of a commissioner. He could not see why an appropriation for the work should have been left to the last in preparing the estimates.

Mr. O'Connell referred to the meeting called by the Board of Trade in the Collegiate Institute last fall. It was largely attended and representative and unanimous for a commissioner. Their mandate to the council was clearly defined.

Mr. Larmonth stated that in Ottawa the city was giving $5,000 if the Board of Trade could raise another $5,000.

Ald. Buller was doubtful of the benefits to be derived from spending money for an industrial commissioner.

Mr. Denham said that on the basis that the property of the average workingman was worth $2,000, a mill more on the rate would only mean an increase of one dollar in the taxes for each one. It was not such a serious matter.

There was a vigorous debate as to whether it was necessary to bonus industries. Mr. O'Connell claimed that the city could be put on such a condition that manufacturers would come here without bonuses and exemptions.

The Mayor suggested that the council make a thousand dollar grant, and perhaps increase it at the end of a week after it was seen what the Board of Trade could do towards raising money by subscription.

Mr. O'Connell said that the Board of Trade would not care to take up the proposition unless the Council did not do something more substantial.

Ald. Bradburn considered the Mayor's suggestion a good one.

Ald. Turner came out strongly in favor of granting $2,000. He had been in favor of giving $4,300 and would support the $2,000 proposition more heartily than the other. A commissioner could do a great deal towards securing industries.

Ald. Bradburn had faith in the scheme, but he could not see where the money was going to come from.

Ald. Turner moved that $2,000 be granted.

Ald. Gillespie seconded the motion and it carried as stated above.

"We'll try and get the money somewhere," Ald. Bradburn said.

DECISION WAS GIVEN TO COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

Last evening the Literary Society of the Normal School held an open meeting in the Assembly Hall at eight o'clock. A large number was present, the Normal School and Collegiate Institute being well represented as well as a number of their friends. The President of the Society, Mr. C. A. Lapp, presided over the meeting. The programme opened with an instrumental solo by Miss Kingsley, and the chief feature of the evening was a debate between the Normal School and the Collegiate Institute. The subject was, "Resolved, that Military Training should be Compulsory in the Public Schools." The affirmative was taken by the Normal, represented by Miss Toole and Mr. Pengelly, while the negative was taken by the Collegiate Institute, and represented by Miss McCoy and Mr. Hall. While waiting for the decision of the judges, Rev. Mr. Keigh, Dr. McCullough and Judge Huycke, the following programme was rendered:—

Vocal Duet—Misses Welsh and MacKenzie.
Reading—Mr. Callahan.
Vocal Solo—Miss Heenan.

Judge Huycke in a short address gave the decision of the judges, which was in favor of the negative, and complimented both sides on the able way in which they had taken part. An address was then given by the critic, Mr. Walker and the pleasant and profitable evening was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

ALDERMEN WOULD REVISE THE AMBULANCE CONTRACT

The aldermen intend to have the contract governing the Dan Spence ambulance amended, so that it will not be necessary to take outside patients from the railway stations to the hospitals. It was discovered at the meeting of the council in committee of the whole last night that Mr. Belleghem's contract with the city required him to go to the stations and take patients from outside points to the hospitals. This phase of the question was discussed at some length, and the aldermen were agreed that the city should not provide for looking after ambulance cases from outside the city limits. This is one of the things Mr. Comstock objects to, and the committee decided that there was reason for him doing so.

Mr. Belleghem appeared before the committee and explained some matters in reference to the ambulance. If anyone wanted the ambulance for the finals it brought to the undertaking department they could have it.

The minutes of past years were looked up by the clerk, and it was found that on December 27, 1906, a resolution had been passed recommending that the ambulance alternate each year between Mr. Belleghem and Mr. Comstock. When the year expired at that time it was apparent that the Property Committee had not dealt with the question, and the ambulance had remained with Mr. Belleghem.

It was pointed out that Mr. Belleghem desired to have the clause in the contract, making it necessary to make trips to the stations done away with. It was not fair to private ambulances.

It was decided to send the question back to the Property Committee, with instructions to have the contract revised.

The ceremony takes place at two o'clock in Cambridge St. Methodist church, Lindsay.

Newspaper Troubles

The newspapers of the district appear to be having their troubles. Peterborough papers are temporarily suspended. One blessing, potatoes are plentiful and not expensive, and should the worst come, both counties, most fortunately, possess extremely comfortable Houses of Refuge, or County Homes. — Bobcaygeon Independent.

Prices Were High

When G. P. Huntley in "Kitty Grey" appeared at the Star Theatre, Buffalo, the management put on a raised scale of prices, charging fifty cents for the gallery—the lowest price—and from this the tickets for the balcony and pit ran to $2.50.

The Peterborough theatregoers are more fortunate in the matter of admission prices.

Too Many Dogs

Many complaints are being made about the number of dogs untagged, and perhaps untaxed, running about the city. A Hunter street citizen told the Review to-day that he found nine dogs having a bow-wow in his yard this morning. There was not a collar or tag on any one of them.

"I wish Ald. Turner would hurry along the dog by-law," he said.

"THE QUILL" A BRIGHT PAPER

Newspaper of Porcupine is a Healthy Journal for Its Age

Considering its very new field the "Porcupine Quill" may be said to be fairly bristling with interesting news. The Quill is a self styled "journal of the wilderness" and is the paper that gives the news of the district to the inhabitants of the newly found Porcupine field in the northern part of the province. Everything grows up over night, broadly speaking, in a progressive mining section and the Quill may be included in this mushroom category. It certainly shows a commendable enterprise on the part of the founders of the Quill to establish a newspaper in an infant town that only saw the light fo day a few short months ago. This enterprise is a good omen that if the town grows the managers of the Quill will see to it that the Quill grows with it.

As would be expected the Quill gives the mining news principally, as that is the greatest interest to its subscribers and the paper is after a local rather than a cosmopilitan circulation. The sheet is freely patronized by the advertisers of Porcupine and vicinity.

SUMMARY OF WORK OF CITY LEAGUE PLAYERS

Strathconas Lead in Scoring Column With Total of 51—West Ends Lead the Penalty List—Keene and T.A.S. Equal in Counters.

Below is a summary of the work of the players who have performed in the Peterborough city hockey league. The league schedule has been played off and the season will end when the Strathconas and West Ends meet on Wednesday night for the championship, each having won five games. The Strathconas have scored the greatest number of goals and Burritt of the team leads in goal-getting, his number of counters being 24. Ken Crane of the West Ends is next with 20. Keene and T. A. S. have scored an equal number of goals but the former team has had the largest number marked up against them. Keene has had the least number of penalties and West Ends head the list with 24.

COBOURG WON

Cobourg, Feb. 11.—In the return game here to-night in the second round of the intermediate, Cobourg defeated Milton before an attendance of 1,500 people by 17 to 2, thereby winning the round by the score of 24 to 10. F. C. Waghorne refereed very strict and made the game clean.

The line-up:

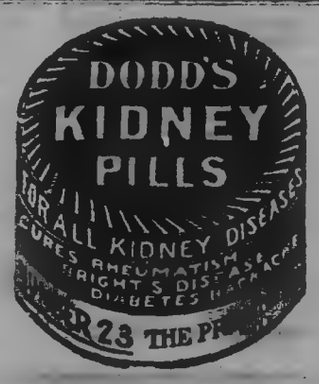
Referee—F. C. Waghorne, Toronto.

Penalties imposed were:—Milton, Tunstal 1, Lott 1, Saunders 2, Searles 1, Telfer 1, Abbot 1; Cobourg, Crossen 1, Moffatt 2, Doheny 1, Payne 2, Bentley 2.



ART EDMUNDS WAS HISSED

Popular Ontario Wrestler Didn't Make a Hit in Winnipeg.

The Winnipeg Free Press in reporting the Edmunds-Sunberg match says:

It took Ernie Sunberg of Winnipeg just thirteen minutes of actual wrestling to win from Art Edmunds of Toronto in straight falls at the Walker theatre last night. The match was announced by Referee Larry Piper to be for the featherweight championship of America and, while it is hardly likely that it can be regarded in that light, the fact remains that Sunberg showed enough class to be considered a real contender for the title. Incidentally it may be recorded that Edmunds made anything but a good impression with Winnipeg wrestling enthusiasts. He was booted and hissed for minutes on end when he came out for the second bout. There was a fair-sized house, but apparently there was not the same interest taken in this match as in that scheduled for to-night between Gustafson and Sheppard.

EDMUNDS WAS WEAK.

The match was exciting enough while it lasted, but cannot be considered as a satisfactory test of the two men. Edmunds stated freely during the day that he was in no shape to do his best, having been so weakened in making the weight, 124 pounds. On Monday night he weighed 132 1-2 when he entered a Turkish bath establishment. He stayed there all night and part of yesterday morning and made the weight at three o'clock, just tipping the bar. During the afternoon and again just before he went on the mat he admitted that he had no chance to win if Sunberg showed any class. After the match he announced to the crowd that Sunberg was the best little man he had ever met, and probably he now has a different idea about his offer to throw Sunberg twice in an hour at catch weights.

Edmunds got in wrong with the crowd at the very start. He rushed Sunberg about the ring, apparently jabbing and goughing at his face, and within a few seconds had Sunberg's left eye closed. Referee Piper hauled them onto the mat three or four times before they went to the canvas, Sunberg behind. Just before this Sunberg got rolled and heaved the Toronto boy away from him, Edmunds landing on his shoulder on the hard floor. He went down with so little attempt to save himself that it was plain that he was not in his usual shape.

FIRST FALL, EIGHT MINUTES

Sunberg worked fast when he got the position, trying for some time for the hammer, but Edmunds flattened out and hugged the mat. Then Sunberg got a crotch and arm hold and lifted Edmunds clear of the mat and settled him gently on his head and held him there for most of a minute, putting the weight on all the time. Finally he slipped to the mat with an arm lock and Edmunds had no chance to get away. He struggled feebly, using his hands freely on Sunberg's face, his fingers getting into his eyes and mouth. The crowd yelled lustily, the seconds of the two men were both in the ring, claiming a foul and a miniature riot was threatened when Edmunds finally sank from a bridge and Piper slapped Sunberg.

GROANS AND HISSES

The uproar from the audience lasted for minutes and Piper had a hard time getting a hearing to announce the fall in eight minutes. The roar was greater than ever when Edmunds came out for the second bout. He was greeted with a storm of groans and hisses, to which he responded with elaborate bows. They went right to wrestling this time and Sunberg took the position again with ridiculous ease, although he landed on the mat in bad shape. The second fall came in almost exactly the same style as the first, Sunberg getting a crotch hold and lifting Edmunds again to his head. They went to the mat this time quicker, Sunberg with a half nelson, from which Edmunds wriggled only to fall into a bar that pinned him. He rolled several times and tried to bridge, but apparently had no strength and went down for the decoding fall in five minutes.

In justice to Edmunds it is only fair to say that he seemed utterly unfit and without an ounce of ginger. He did not make and offensive move when on the mat. Sunberg, on the other hand, seemed to know just where he was at and took his time. Every move was clean and clever and he showed great strength.

The preliminaries were quite good. Billy Nutt and George O'Malley boxed four rounds that afforded all sorts of fun and excitement. There was no decision and they will go on again to-night for five rounds. Billy Richmond made short work of Harry Coles, putting him away in less than two minutes with a heavy body punch and a couple of jolts to the jaw. The wrestling preliminary between Halfidsson and Logan went to the former after Logan had taken the first fall. It was a good bout, the sympathies of the crowd being with the smaller man, who won.

THE RING

San Francisco, Feb. 12th.—Battling Nelson is one of the hardest problems the Queensberry nuts have ever been given to solve. Every fight he puts up looks like his last. His style of milling is anything but pleasing to the eye and is apt to deceive one who is not familiar with the Dane's wonderful ring achievements.

On the afternoon of Washington's birthday, in Alameda, Cal., Nelson will again put up his title for inspection, and Ad Wolgast will be the principal inspector. Again the followers of the fistic pastime will await final downfall. Again they might be forced to utter a cry of astonishment and exclaim, "There is no use in talking, that Dane can't be knocked out!"

WOLGAST NOT EASY

Nelson has done no active work for many months, excepting his short bout with Lang in Memphis. He has been working the theatrical game for all it is worth and has had much of his time taken up in advertising his book. It remains to be seen whether his continual sidetracking of the real fighting game for the limelight article has interfered in any way with his ability as a fighter.

In Wolgast he meets a man who threatens to prove much tougher than Dick Hyland. Wolgast has already one ten-round decision over Nelson.

ARE YOU GOING?

All the natives of 'Frisco who are now thriving on the bounties afforded by the New York money market are laying the wires for the big trip out to the coast to see the Jeffries-Johnson fight next July. The first thing we know when two former westerners meet on Broadway is, "Are you going to the fight?" They all say they are going if they have to do the western act. San Francisco will see an array of wandering sons such as no city in the world ever gathered together before.

A peculiar thing about the natives of 'Frisco is that no matter how successful or how long they have been away from the coast, they always feel that their real home is 'Frisco, and their stay in foreign lands is really only a visit of indefinite length. We know one 'Frisco man who has been visiting New York for 68 years and he is still here.

February Rod and Gun

The best side of the Canadian winter, the side that appeals to every inhabitant of our Dominion and countless numbers of our visitors—the snow shoeing trips of the North, receives prominence in the February issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont. A Canadian Snow-shoe Song and A Winter Hunt emphasize the glories of a season in which all Canadians rejoice. There is plenty of variety in the number in addition to these articles including big game stories, duck and goose shooting, camping, protective work, work, fishing, etc., and no sportsman, whatever may be his particular inclination, can feel himself neglected. An endeavor is made to cover the whole Dominion in the best possible way and that a large measure of success is achieved is shown by this issue of the Magazine. In addition to winter outings, spring, summer and fall expeditions are now planned and the experiences of others, given in the most pleasant manner in these pages is not merely interesting, but most helpful and of considerable advantage to all who seek to know more of the wonderful sporting advantages of our broad Dominion.

TRENTON PUT IT ON LINDSAY

Trenton, Ont., Feb. 11.—Over 1,000 people saw Lindsay and Trenton battle in an O.H.A. intermediate game here to-night for district honors.

It was the best game of the season. Both teams put up a fine game. The penalties were very few. Lindsay came here with a lead of 2 goals, but Trenton soon overcame it and won by 6 to 2. This gives Trenton the district by 2 goals.

The score at half time was 2 to 1 in favor of Trenton.

Referee—Whitehead, of Toronto.

Line up:—

Lindsay—Gamble, goal; Cote, point; Green, cover; Stoddard, rover; McDougall, centre; Cain, right; Blomfield, left.

Trenton—McGiffin, goal; Croft, point; McGaw, cover; H. Armstrong, rover; Cummings, centre; Powers, right; A. Armstrong, left.

SHOTS ON GOAL

Referee Whitehead's work with the bell is earning for him much favorable comment.

Ruck Irving has parted company with the Galt team.

Randall played with Brantford last night.

There was no band waiting at the Lindsay station when the ex-championship blew in last night from Trenton, with the small end of the 6—2 score.

Cobourg intermediates won from Milton by 17—2 in the return game of the second round. Every man on the winning team is a home-brew.

WALTER MILLER CAUSES PROTEST

Mr. F. W. Miller, received a letter from his son, Walter, to-day and he states that he played his first game with Grand Forks last Thursday. The team won by 5—1, but the game was protested on the ground that Grand Forks had violated the fifteen days' residence rule, in playing Miller.

W. H. HILL, ESQ.,

Manager Sun Life Assurance Co., of Canada,

Peterborough, Ont.

DEAR SIR,—About five years ago my late husband took out $1,000.00 insurance in The Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, on which he only paid the first three premiums. Shortly after his death, which occurred on the 6th inst., although I was under the impression that his policy had lapsed, I called at your office to inquire if anything could be done whereby we might get something out of it. You can imagine my surprise and genuine gratitude to learn that, owing to your non-forfeiture privilege, the policy was still in force at his death and that I was entitled to the full thousand dollars, less only the two unpaid premiums and interest.

This seems to me such extraordinary and generous treatment that I wish to add my expression of most sincere thanks and appreciation to the many others your company must receive.

I also wish to acknowledge and thank you for your courtesy and promptness in procuring for me a cheque to-day covering the policy, and to state that if my endorsation of the already mentioned feature of your policies is of value you are quite at liberty to use it.

Gratefully yours,

MARGARET LONG,

TWO YEARS LESS ONE DAY

Harold Mills Arrested Here on on Charge of Shopbreaking at Midland Sentenced to Central—His Pal Given Eighteen Months

Harold Mills, the young man arrested last Saturday, at noon, at the home of his father on Williams street, by P. C. Meharry, has been sentenced to two years less one day in the Central prison and a pal of his named Clarke received a term of eighteen months. Chief Reazel received word this morning to this effect from the Chief of Police at Midland. Clarke and Mills were charged with breaking into a store at Midland, on the night of Thursday, January 27. Both made good their escape, Mills coming to this city. Constable Ruff came here and took the prisoner back to stand his trial and it was during the trip that Clarke boarded the train and gave himself up. Mills had but recently escaped from the Mimico Reformatory.

CIVIC SERMON AT ALL SAINTS'

The annual municipal sermon will be preached at All Saints' church on Sunday evening, February 20th, by Rev. H. R. Trumpour. On motion of Ald. Batten and Ald. Metherall, it was decided to accept the invitation from the Ministerial Association at the meeting of the Council in Committee of the Whole last night.

MAY BE CHANGES IN CANADIAN PACIFIC

Winnipeg, Feb. 9.—During the past ten days there have been many rumors in Canadian Pacific circles with reference to changes in the operating department of that company. These suggest the possible rearrangement of the work of supervision of the service in various respects.

One of the statements which has been repeatedly made is to the effect that General Manager Bury might leave the city either for Montreal or the South. It is not believed probable that Mr. Bury will leave the Canadian Pacific, but should he do so it will be to accept the general management of one of the larger systems of the United States, where important positions have been offered to him on more than one occasion.

Another rumor, which has found some credence, was that owing to the great increase in mileage of the Canadian Pacific, the system, which has for many years been administered in two sections, an Eastern and a Western, would in future be administered in three sections. The Eastern and Western divisions would disappear and instead there would be an Eastern, Western and Central division. Under this arrangement there would be three general managers, and the third was to be F. F. Busteed, now general superintendent of the Pacific division. The other two general managers would presumably be Messrs. Bury and Leonard.

Another rumor which has all the appearance of truth is that J. J. Scully, now district superintendent at Kenora, and formerly at Brandon as superintendent, will be made general superintendent within a few weeks and that he will have Saskatoon as his headquarters.

Mr. Scully made a name for himself in connection with the double-tracking of the line from Winnipeg to the head of the lakes and it appears probable that he is to have the pleasure of adding to his reputation by doing some more construction work in the Further West. He is known to enjoy in a marked manner the esteem of his associates in the railway world. He is a young man of great energy, quick in decision and personally popular. He is at present on a vacation, visiting the railways of the United States.

A Fine Large Dance

The Millbrook Mirror says:—The Bachelors and Benedicts dance in the town hall on Thursday evening last drew the cream of beauty of fair women and noble men from town and district, and those in charge of the pleasureable evening have the thanks of all those who took part in the enjoyment. The evening was all that could be desired and the crowd large enough to keep the floor well patronized in every way. The gowns worn by the ladies were chaste in conception and handsome in appearance, with none of the extremes of so-called high society. The music was not up to some former occasions, yet served the purpose fairly well. The refreshments served at the midnight hour were unusually appetising and abundant. We understand that the management intend putting on another after Easter.

AT QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY

Special Correspondence of Peterborough Review

Queen's University, Kingston, Feb. 8. On Friday evening, Feb. 4th, several of the faculty societies were treated to very interesting meetings. Each had a master in his own work giving the benefit of his experience and his thought. In the Engineering Society Prof. Warren, Professor of Mineralogy, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, gave a comprehensive lecture on "Calcium Carbide." In the Aesculapean Society the medical students were treated to a lecture by Dr. Ryan, head of the Rockwood Hospital for the Insane. The subject of his address was "Mental Troubles." In the Theological Society Prof. Scott treated the students to a lucid and extensive treatment of the subject of "Count Tolstoi's Theology."

The medical students and all others interested had the privilege of listening to a couple of illustrated lectures on Monday, Feb. 7th, and on Tuesday, the 8th, by Dr. Park, Director of the Research Laboratories of New York City Board of Health. On Monday afternoon Dr. Park, before a large audience in Convocation Hall lectured on the subject "The Relation of Bovine to Human Tuberculosis," and on Tuesday morning, "The Relation of Milk to Public Health." These lectures came at a very opportune time since it is understood that the commission lately appointed by the Ontario Legislature to inquire into the milk supply as soon to make its report.

A very short time ago those in the University who are most interested and closely connected with the study of classics, organized a society known as the Classical Society in which they take up subjects peculiar to that branch. At its meeting last week Prof. Bain, the last addition to the Classical staff, made his first appearance, outside of his class room work. Prof. Bain showed that he had undoubted talent, not only in the narrow sphere of the class room, but also in the wider area of the public platform.

On Wednesday evening, Feb. 9th, the Arts students held the annual session of the Arts Concursus. The court this year had nothing of a very serious nature to investigate. There were a couple of convictions, only one of which had any appearance of seriousness. For some time some of the magazines in the students' reading room have been mutilated at times. The offence tried this year was slight but its punishment will doubtless serve to show that the reading room supplies are public property.

Saturday evening saw the Mock Parliament at the Alma Mater Society started on its winter session. The [illegible] from the throne was read after which some good discussion and flashes of wit followed. The first division of the House came when the motion of adjournment was introduced. The Government sustained itself by a majority of one vote. At this meeting of the Alma Mater Society the winners in the track sports last autumn were awarded their medals and prizes.

The curators of the University Library have made a move which we believe is in the right direction. Up to the present time those who wished to use the library books were asked to make the deposit of the nominal fee of $1 per book, which was returned at the end of the session. The curators are desirous that the library should be of the greatest service to the student body, so beginning with February they have removed this fee and are trusting the students not to abuse this trust. It is to be hoped that it will meet the desired end and that the students in College will prize the honor conferred upon them and so make the experiment a success.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Y.M.C.A. last Thursday evening the adjourned annual meeting was held. Some important matters were dealt with and in part settled. The Y.M.C.A. recommended the appointment of a permanent general secretary who is to give his time to the interests of the Y.M.C.A. work in the College. A man to take this position has not yet been found, but it is expected the announcement will be made soon. The regular officers for the ensuing year elected which resulted in President, Mr. H. M. Stewart; Vice-President, Mr. N. B. McKinnie; Rec. Sec., Mr. B. C. Patterson; Fin. Sec., Mr. W. P. Alderson; Librarian, Mr. R. B. Whitehead.

The sermon in Convocation Hall on Sunday afternoon was delivered by Canon Tucker, of Toronto, secretary of the Missionary Society of the Anglican Church of Canada. The Baccalaureate sermon on April 24th is to be taken by another well known Anglican divine in the person of Rev. Dr. Symonds, of Montreal.

The 19th Alumni Conference of Queen's is announced to open in October. The complete programme is not yet to hand, but so far as has been made known it promises to be not in the least inferior to any of its predecessors. Sir Sandfore Fleming, Chancellor of the University, some years ago instituted a course of lectures at these conferences known as the Chancellor's Lectureship. For the next two years this honor goes to Dean Lappon, Dean of the Arts of Faculty. The opening lecture of the conference will be given by President Falconer, of Toronto University, on the evening of October 28th. The evening lectures for the rest of the conference will be by Dr. A. MacPhail, of McGill, Dr. Bonar, Master of the Mint at Ottawa, and Dr. A. H. U. Colquhoun, Deputy Minister of Education, Toronto. Besides these evening lectures there will be a lecture by Dr. Clark, of Westmount on the training for the ministry, besides other papers and discussions which are not yet announced.

Another Modern Miracle
Paralysis Permanently Cured

The Sufferer Paralysed From Waist to Feet—Encased in Plaster of Paris for Nine Months—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cure After Four Doctors Had Failed—The Cure Vouched for by a Well Known Clergyman.

Paralysis, no matter how slight, is a terrible affliction, but to be paralyzed from waist to the feet, to be a helpless cripple, totally dependent upon what others do for you, is a condition as wretched as man could possibly bear. Such was the state of Mr. Allan J. McDonald, of Rice Point, P.E.I. For over a year he was a helpless invalid. He was paralyzed from waist to his feet and for nine months lay in bed encased in a plaster of paris cast. Four of the best doctors in Prince Edward Island were unable to help him and he seemed doomed for a life of misery and despair. But hope came to him when he read of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done for other sufferers paralysis. He procured a supply of the pills and began taking them. Gradually they broke the chains of disease that bound him, and filled his whole body with new blood, life and vigor. Mr. McDonald says:—"I am a farmer and in consequence have a great deal of hard work to do. One day while about my work I injured my back, but at the time I paid little attention to the injury and continued my work. As time went on, though, the pain became more severe, and I soon found myself unable to lift anything no matter how light. It was not long before I had to stop work altogether and consult a doctor. He treated me, but his treatment did not help me, and I rapidly grew worse. I had to take to my bed, and in the hope that my spine might receive strength I was encased in a plaster of paris cast. This did not help me and I could feel the paralysis slowly creeping over me till I was totally paralysed from my waist to my feet. I lost all control over my bowels, and my bladder, and my legs had no more feeling than if they were made of wood. Three other doctors strived to cure me, but their treatment also was a failure, and for eleven months I lay in bed unable to move. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were then advised, and I was shown testimonials of others who had been cured of paralysis through them. I bought a supply and in less than three months they made a remarkable change in me. I was able to get out of bed and crawl along the floor on my hands and knees. Gradually my limbs became stronger. Soon I could walk with the aid of a cane and inside of nine months after I had begun the use of the Pills I was totally cured, and once more able to do light work. Now I am as strong as ever I was and can do my work about the farm without the least trouble. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are without an equal, for, besides my own case, I know of two other cases of paralysis cured by them. Two young girls who had been cripples and whom I advised to try the Pills."

In corroboration of what Mr. McDonald says, the Rev. D. MacLean, of Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes:—"I visited Mr. McDonald many times during his illness. He was attended by three or more doctors and put in plaster paris, and everything imaginable which might be of benefit was done for him without success. He had lost all power of his body from his waist down, and I think he was nearly a year under treatment before he began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was with him the first day he moved his big toe, and from that time on he gradually improved, and for the last few years he has been perfectly well. I can vouch for the cure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills effected in his case."

If you are sick and the treatment you are taking does not help you give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. They have cured thousands after doctors and other medical treatment had hopelessly failed. These Pills actually make new, rich, red blood, feed the starved nerves, and bring health and strength to every part of the body. This is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such apparently hopeless cases as Mr. McDonald's, and it is why they have cured thousands and thousands of sick, discouraged people in every part of the world. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The 57th Regiment Band, of Peterborough, under the auspices of the Amity Club, gave a splendid programme at their concert on Monday evening last, at which there was a large attendance. The programme rendered was a large one, the audience being especially delighted with the descriptive number "Forge in the Forest." The following were the other numbers:

March—57th Regiment ..... Gliddon
Overture—Poet and Peasant ..... Von Suppe
American Sketch—Down South ..... Myddleton
Fantasia—My Old Kentucky Home ..... D. Albert
Intermezzo—Cherry ..... Dalley
Descriptive—Hunting Scene ..... Buculossi
Medley—Popular Songs ..... Lampe
Humorous Song—Mr. J. Halpany.

Master Mowat Garret, of town, pleased the audience very much by the rendering of a cornet solo.

The Amity Club held a dance after the concert, at which a large number enjoyed themselves until the small hours of the morning, supper being served in the lunch room at twelve o'clock.

A MIRACLE IN MANITOBA

CAPTAIN BANISTER STRICKEN WHILE IN CAMP

HAD TO BE CARRIED TO TRAIN. HELPLESS IN BED FOR SIX WEEKS

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" COMPLETELY CURED HIM AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Captain Banister's letter reads like a page from the History of Miracles. It is one of the strongest endorsements ever given to any medicine in the world.

Captain Nelson Banister of Oak Lake is known from one end of Manitoba to the other—in fact, throughout Western Canada. Naturally, the letter of such a prominent citizen and officer is bound to carry convincing weight with all thinking people.

OAK LAKE, MAN., June 15th, 1909.

"Fully appreciating the great benefits that I have derived from using your wonderful remedy, I feel it is my duty to write you a little history of my case and ask you to publish it, for the good of some others that may be today suffering from the complaint that I am happy to say, "Fruit-a-tives" completely cured me of.

About two years ago, while in Camp at Brandon with "A" squadron, 12th, Manitoba Dragoons, I was stricken with Sciatica and Neuralgia of the muscles of the heart. I was so bad that I had to be carried to the train and sent home, and after being again carried from the train to my bed on arrival at Oak Lake, I was forced to stay there six weeks. Doctoring and nursing in time enabled me to get on my feet, but I could do no work, and was almost as helpless as when confined to bed. A sample of "Fruit-a-tives" came to our house about that time and I tried them. Believe me—that from the first dose I experienced great relief and continued taking them until I was as well and strong as ever. This satisfactory change and restoration to health, I attribute wholly to "Fruit-a-tives", and I never miss a chance to recommend them to my friends and neighbors.

Previous to taking "Fruit-a-tives", my heart was examined by doctors and found to be so weak that it was considered unsafe for me to take chloroform, or any anæsthetic, but since taking "Fruit-a-tives", the heart has become so strong that I was able to have a minor operation on one of my hands and took chloroform without any ill effects. Today the whole family uses "Fruit-a-tives", we purchase them from Mr. Graham, our local druggist, keep them in the house all the time, and just simply could not get along without them. They are the best medicine in the world."

NELSON BANISTER, (Capt. "A" Squadron, 12th Manitoba Dragoons.)

Truly, the days of the miracle have not passed way. When these small fruit tablets can do what physicians, with all their skill, cannot do, it does seem almost miraculous. Yet nothing is more logical and scientific than the medicinal action of "Fruit-a-tives".

Sciatica, Rheumatism and Neuralgia in any form are caused by poisoned blood.

It is the duty of the Bowels, Kidneys and Skin to rid the system of waste matter, or urea. If any of these organs are weak, the waste matter stays in the system and is converted into uric acid.

It is uric acid which poisons the blood and inflames the delicate nerves, membranes and muscles, causing what is known as Rheumatism, Sciatica or Neuralgia.

"Fruit-a-tives" promptly cures these troubles because "Fruit-a-tives" cures the Bowels, Kidneys and Skin. "Fruit-a-tives" makes these three great eliminating organs well and strong. And when the waste of the body is regularly disposed of, there can be no excess of uric acid.

"Fruit-a-tives", as Captain Banister says, "is the best medicine in the world." It is made of fruit juices and valuable nerve and heart tonics, and is pleasant to take.

TERRIFIC GALE IS SWEEPING THE ATLANTIC COAST

Special to the Review.

Pittsburg, Pa., Feb. 12.—The heaviest February snow fall recorded since the weather bureau was established in 1880, prevails in this city, and reports from surrounding towns show three states are snowbound. In Pittsburg nearly twelve inches fell within ten hours, and the weather man predicts the storm will continue throughout the day. All freight traffic on the Middle and Pittsburg divisions of the Pennsylvania Railway was abandoned early this morning and passenger trains are running very late.

New York, Feb. 12.—A terrific gale is sweeping the whole eastern coast and reports of shipping disasters are coming in frequently to-day. During the night snow fell heavily in this vicinity, but early in the morning this changed to rain, developing later into a miniature thunderstorm with heavy lightning at times. The heavy blizzard that obscured lights of the coast was responsible for most of the disasters at sea. The chief sufferers were small fishing vessels. The fishing schooners the Franklin B. Nelson and the Libby, both of New York, were driven ashore off Sandy Hook early to-day. Their crews, seventeen men in all, were rescued by life savers with the breeches buoy after a heroic fight of several hours. The Nelson was declared a total loss, but there is hope of saving the Libby in the event of the winds falling.

TO THOROUGHLY TEST DISTRICT

Mr. C. E. Dettman Says He Will Resume Gas Locating in This Section in the Spring

Mr. C. E. Dettman writing from Waynesburg, Pa., to Mr. R. H. Leary says he will be here to meet the farmers of this district on the first of March in connection with the gas leases. At a meeting held in this city a short time ago the farmers agreed to extend the leases a year.

Mr. Dettman has faith in the possibilities of this section of the country and says he will thoroughly test it when drilling operations are resumed.

Speculators hold land in Hamilton annex, and factories are asked high prices for sites.

ALDERMEN DISCUSS HOUSE OF REFUGE

The Committee of the Whole Council last night discussed the House of Refuge question and decided to leave it over for another meeting at which it is the intention to have Rev. Father McColl and Rev. H. J. Keith present in order to go into the matter fully. It affects both Catholics and Protestant ratepayers and it is the intention to secure the views of both bodies on the subject.

Ald. Buller suggested that the Catholics and Protestants each have an institution and that they notify the city of the amount of money they would require each year. It could then be put in the estimates and the Protestant ratepayers taxed for the Protestant home and the Catholic ratepayers taxed for the Catholic one.

MOST ENJOYABLE ENTERTAINMENT

At Murray St. Baptist Church—The Programme

The A. to H. section of the Ladies' Aid gave their entertainment last evening to an appreciative audience. Mrs. V. Eastwood presided in a most pleasing manner. A piano solo by Miss Bessie Elcome, of the Conservatory, was the first, and an excellent number, which was well received. Miss Hill gave an excellent recitation. Mr. F. Whitehouse, the skilled tuner of the Nordheimer Piano Co., Toronto, gave a most delightfully rendered violin solo, which was vigorously encored. As an encore he gave a most perfect bagpipe selection on the violin and his two other numbers during the evening were accompanied by Mrs. Greenslade. Mrs. Rehill and Mrs. Greenslade sang a beautifully rendered duet, and was accompanied by Mr. Whitehouse on the violin and Miss Goodenough on the piano.

Mr. Johns contributed two recitations very acceptably, and Miss Walton a well rendered piano solo.

Mr. Whitehouse is a stranger to a Peterborough audience, but is well known in the best musical circles in England and Toronto as an expert upon the violin, and his performance upon this instrument simply wonderful and charming.

After the concert the audience retired to the basement and sat down to beautifully decorated tables of dainty refreshments.

CUP WINNERS WERE HONORED

Peterborough Rinks Who Were Victorious in Toronto Given Great Reception on Arrival Home Last Evening

The two Peterborough rinks of curlers who were successful in winning the district cup at Toronto yesterday were given a great welcome on their arrival home last evening on the C. P. R. local. A big delegation of curlers and many of their friends were present at the station as well as a detachment of the 57th band. A procession was formed and the victors driven to the National Hotel where an excellent spread had been prepared. Short speeches were made in which the winners were complimented on the honor they had brought to the city.

HAVE ARRANGED FOR MEETING

In Memory of the Late Francis C. Willard Founder of the W. C. T. U.

At the last regular meeting of the W.C.T.U. arrangements were made to hold cottage prayer meetings during the coming week, in memory of Frances E. Willard, the founder of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

The Christian women of Peterborough are invited to attend all or either of these meetings as may be convenient to themselves at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The places of meeting are as follows:

Feb. 15—Mrs. Speer, 173 Hunter st., east.

Feb. 16—Mrs. Martin, 694 Water st.

Feb. 17—Mrs. Campbell, 421 Stewart street.

Feb. 18—Mrs. Ruth, 208 Lake street.

PITTSBURG WILL NOT GIVE UP ITS PAPERS IN LENT

A Pittsburg despatch says.—Abstinence from newspaper reading will not be a popular Lenten penance, according to an expression of opinion by Pittsburg ministers of various denominations. Bishop Cortlandt Whitehead, of the Pittsburg Episcopal Diocese, was quoted as saying in a sermon in Grace Church, New York, on Sunday:

"I would advise you all to do without the newspapers during the Lenten period, and to replace their scandals and masses of ill-assorted information with more edifying works."

The Rev. Dr. E. H. Ward, rector of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church: "That is something that hardly would be fair to the intelligent men and women of to-day. I would not for one moment consider asking my parishioners to abstain from the reading of newspapers for several weeks."

The Rev. Dr. A. W. Arundel, Trinity church: "I certainly would not advise my parishioners not to read newspapers during Lent. Reading newspapers is like eating—we cannot do without either."

The Rev. Dr. T. M. Thompson, Moderator of the Pittsburg Presbytery: "I think the newspapers, in recording passing events of life, are recording the purposes of God."

The Rev. Dr. W. A. Jones, Knoxville Presbyterian church: "I think the good Bishop has gone too far. He strikes at the very purpose of Lent if he advises his people to abstain from reading newspapers during that period."

The Rev. David Ferris, Calvary church: "It's all rot. I cannot believe the Bishop said it. I am sure no other Episcopalian clergyman of this city would hold such an opinion."

What a Circus Pays

Springfield Republican.

The Ringling Bros., dominant in the circus arena, are reported in Baraboo, Wis., to have divided $1,000,000 as profits of the season of 1909, $600,000 of which represented the profits of the Barnum and Bailey show, and the balance the net earnings of the Ringling Bros. show. This year the Adam Forepaugh-Sells Bros. show will be added, making the record circus combination in this country.

Hon. Robert Rogers will lead the Manitoba Legislature in the absence of Hon. R. P. Roblin.

HE'S YOUR BRITHER

Mr. D. D. Gallet'y, who has charge of the springs at Banff, and is at present visiting old friends in Peterborough, will sing in St. Andrew's church to-morrow night. Besides singing the always acceptable solo "Come Unto Me," Mr. Gallet'y will sing a new song entitled "He's Yer Brither." The words and music are of Mr. Gallet'y's own composition, and will be dictated to the fraternal societies of Canada, and arrangements for publication will be made in Toronto.

When'er your neibour suffer sair,
Frae bodily pain or worldly care,
O, dinna pass him heedless by, for you
Can help him if you try.
Don't talk time away and wonder
Help him freely, he's yer brither.

When trudging on life's weary road,
We see some sink beneath their load,
Those, helpless in the debts they owe,
While priest and Levite pass them by,
Till some Samaritan or ither
Kindly lifts his weary brither.

Life's road is rough, its guid bits few,
We a' need help tae wrestle thro',
An' should some helpless night doon fa',
We shouldna turn our heads awa',
An' let him perish a' thegither,
Nature's law says: he's yer brither.

A kindly word to ane in grief, oft soothes the heart, an' brings relief.
When Jesus's love fills, we've still eneither.
The blessed Savior—He's yer brither.

A loving glance for ane astray, may help bring back the narrow way.
A warm clasping o' the hand may mak' a brither stan'
Firm on' true, without a swither,
Realizing Christ as Brither.

SLOT MACHINES FOR EATABLES

Edison Hopes to Benefit Poor by Lessening the Cost of Foodstuffs and Necessities of Life.

Thomas A. Edison, the electrical wizard, declared at his home recently that he is preparing to match his intelligence against the cost of production generally for the benefit of the poor. The present meat strike, according to the inventor is one way of calling attention to the problem the poor face in the present day, the proposition for assessing the cost of production on them having made living conditions intolerable. Incidentally Edison declared that he was working on several inventions which he hoped would help a little.

"I am trying to design a nickeling-the-slot machine," he declared, "which can be made available for supplying coal in the tenement districts. With my machine in operation only the same handling would be necessary as it is now required to furnish the rich man with coal in carload lots while the poor man could get his scuttle or possibly two scuttles for his nickel.

"And this plan might be worked out at very great length. For instance, it might be applied to the produce marketing. I believe that some day I will be able to place on the market a machine whereby groceries and vegetables can be sold in this manner.

"Purchasers would be their own clerks; we could have the machines in certain sections, all could reach them, and we could save clerk hire, shop rent and many other incidentals.

"This in my opinion would reduce the cost materially and the ultimate consumer would benefit. This boycott on meat is the best thing that ever struck this country. We all eat too much meat. Much of the disease the human family suffers from at the present time comes from over indulgence in meat.

"If this boycott on meat is genuine and the people keep their promise to abstain in one year the death rate of the country would be reduced 15 per cent."

IT IS NO TROUBLE TO WORK NOW

So Says Miss Elsie J. Allen After Using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

She Suffered from Weakness and Kidney Trouble, but the Old Reliable Kidney Remedy Cured her Completely.

St. Croix, N. B., Feb. 11.—(Special)—That the pains and weakness which make life almost unbearable to so many women are easily and completely cured by using Dodd's Kidney Pills is once more shown in the case of Miss Elsie J. Allen of this place:

"I suffered greatly from kidney trouble and weakness before I began taking Dodd's Kidney Pills," Miss Allen says. "I was so weak I could hardly get around, and work was almost impossible. Life was a struggle till I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I began taking them and soon felt better. I took seven boxes in all and they cured me.

"I can now do my work the year round and do not feel it. My back, which used to trouble me so much, is well and strong and I don't feel any pains at all."

The root of women's troubles is in the kidneys. There is not a weak, suffering woman in Canada that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not help, and in nearly every case Dodd's Kidney Pills will work a complete cure.

THE SECRET OF OUR SUCCESS

In suiting the demands of exacting wearers of Glasses is that we not only use the best qualities of Lenses and Frames, but our examination of the eyes is so thorough as to investigate the irregularities and peculiarities of each case and give the greatest possible help by powers specially made to fully correct and relieve all these irregularities. There is usually more help possible than would be supposed, and those who put up merely with what they can manage to see with, endanger the eyes and miss much comfort and pleasure. We please particular people.

ALASKAN EATS HIS OWN DOGS

Miner Had to Kill Them to Get Food in Wilderness.

Vancouver, Feb. 11.—Lost for 16 days in the Koyukuk valley, Alaska, with the temperature 51 to 60 degrees below zero, without food matches, axe or knife, Vernon Brewster, an old time prospector and miner, was forced to kill three of his dogs in order to escape destruction in the frozen wilderness.

Recently Brewster reached Nome, where he told of his terrible experience.

His journey down the Koyukuk river was beset with terrible privation and hardship. He was making his way from the Chandlar to Beetles, and had food for only three days. In taking a short cut he missed Beetles and struck the river below, the point where the store is located. On the sixth day out his condition became desperate. He feared that if he slept he would freeze to death in the extreme cold.

Almost overcome with hunger he killed one of his dogs for food.

For the next few days he went without food. Then, weak from hunger and realizing that his team could not hold out much longer, he again sacrificed one of the dogs to appease his own craving for food and the ravenous appetite of his team. Five days later, with death stalking at his elbow, he found it necessary once more to kill one of his dogs.

On the sixteenth day he staggered into the telegraph station at the mouth of the river where he was immediately given medical attention and nursed back into normal health. One of his hands was frozen, though not badly enough to necessitate amputation, and his face was scarred in many places by the arctic cold.

A burglar who attempted to break into A. Frank's house in Hamilton, was chased by Louis Frank, who fired three shots after him.

$3.50 Recipe Cures Weak Kidneys, Free

Relieves Urinary and Kidney Troubles, Backache, Straining, Swelling, Etc.

Stop Pain in the Bladdder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine, the forehead and the back of the neck, the aching and pains in the back, the growing muscle weakness, spots before the eyes, yellow skin, sluggish bowels, swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps, unnatural short breath, sleeplessness and the despondency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, K. 1911, Leck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies but it has great healing and pain-conquering power.

It will quickly show its power once you use it, and I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

LITTLE LONDON HAS BIG SCANDAL

London, Ont., Feb. 12.—If reports of extensive thievery at fashionable "at homes" in London are correct, society has need of a female Sherlock Holmes.

Although the notoriety which would follow the notification of the police has prevented official investigation, it is known that a number of thefts have taken place within the last few weeks. The authorities have learned of the matter in an informal manner, but have been unable to take action.

At one of the largest receptions of the season, held at one of the largest residences on Queen's avenue recently, it is said that one lady lost a mink muff and that some of the silverware provided for the tables by the hostess was missing after the guests had gone.

At this function it was said that one of the guests dropped a silver spoon as she was about to leave the house. The matter was reported to the hostess, who would give no credence to the matter until several persons corroborated her informant.

Another incident being discussed over the tea cups corners the visit of a lady who had entertained to the home of one of her erstwhile guests. On being taken upstairs she identified several silver-mounted toilet articles as the pieces she had missed.

Rather than cause a most embarrassing situation she withheld her claim, and the articles were returned within a few days.

"Some of the ladies of London are deeply distressed over these occurrences," said a woman prominent in social circles. "There have been a number of humiliating discoveries this winter, and some of the thefts have been very serious. Kleptomania? Well, that has been given in several instances, but there is evidence that some people are not as scrupulous when they fancy nice things as they might be."

EXTREMISTS ARE WINNING

Asquith Said to Have Yielded to the Radicals—Condition of Chaos.

London, Feb. 14.—Rumor is busy with the Prime Minister's visit to the King at Brighton on Saturday, but Mr. Asquith went immediately for the week-end into the country, and neither the names of the new Ministers nor anything authentic regarding the Government's policy has been allowed to leak out. It is believed that a final decision will be taken when the Premier communicates the King's views to the Cabinet Council to-day.

It is said, however, that at the last moment Mr. Asquith yielded to the extremists and the Redmondites, and, on the ground that discussion of the address of the budget would postpone the question of the veto of the House of Lords until after Easter, had consented to introduce the veto bill before the budget, even though this course endangers the budget and may bring about another general election in a few months.

According to the latest report, Winstone Spencer Churchill will succeed Mr. Gladstone at the Home Office, Augustine Birrell and John Burns retaining their present posts as Chief Secretary for Ireland and President of the Local Government Board respectively.

The writers on the Conservative side exaggerate the evidence of discord in the Cabinet itself and in the Nationalist and Labor factions, on which the Government must depend for a trustworthy coalition majority. They easily convince themselves that Premier Asquith's downfall is inevitable in the course of a few weeks, that both the budget and the veto bill will fail, and that the restoration of A. J. Balfour to power is indispensable if the disordered finances are to be straightened out this year.

CAPTAIN OF CORINTHIAN VINDICATED

Halifax, N.S., Feb. 14.—The wreck commissioners, Captains Lugar, Hall and Cole, gave a decision in the stranding of the steamer Corinthian on George's Island in December last. The decision, in part, states:

The stranding was caused by an error of judgment on the part of the master in estimating his distance from a schooner showing no lights and also from the shoal on the northwest point of George's Island.

A correct judgment of distance was probably prevented by the strong glare from electric lights on the wharves.

We are of the opinion the master, Captain Alex. Rennie, was fully justified in manoeuvring the Corinthian in the manner he did, and, therefore, should be exonerated from all blame for the stranding of his vessel.

WRECKAGE WAS LIKE KINDLING

Palma, Island of Majorca, Feb. 14.—The supposition that the steamer General Chanzy's boilers exploded after she struck on the reefs, near the Island of Minorca, Thursday night, is based largely on the character of the wreckage of the ship, which was reduced almost to kindling.

The sole survivor, as far as is known was Marcel Rodel, and his mind is still far from clear after his terrible experiences. He remembers little of the disaster except that he was washed off the deck. Then he lost consciousness.

The work of salvage and recovery of the bodies continues, but is greatly retarded by the big seas. Among those washed ashore was a woman with a baby clasped in her arms.

Paris, Feb. 14.—Although a special despatch from Toulon to The Journal des Debats says it is reported that some survivors from the steamer General Chanzy were landed on a neighboring island, no confirmation of this can be obtained.

On the contrary, investigation indicates that Rodel alone escaped. The loss of life is given officially as 158.

LEONCAVELLO, THE COMPOSER, SERIOUSLY ILL

Milan, Italy, Feb. 14.—Ruggiere Leoncavallo, the composer, is seriously ill from heart disease, and his death is feared. His brother has been summoned to Milan by telegraph.

Leoncavallo is best known by his opera "Il Pagliacci." He was born in Naples in 1856. He was trained to music in the Conservatory at Naples, and made a tour as a pianist at the age of 16. He is a man of letters, as well as a musician, and is a Wagner enthusiast, having done much to make that composer popular in Italy.

Others of his operas was "Medici," "Savonarola," "Cesare Borgia," "Trilby," and "Zaza." He first visited this country in 1906.

Arrested for Forgery.

Wigham, Feb. 14.—Otto Weber, alias John Halter, supposed to reside in Walkerton, has been arrested here on a charge of fraudulently obtaining $300 from the Bank of Commerce on Jan. 29. Weber procured the money by forging a check.

NEW SPANISH PREMIER'S PLANS

Madrid, Feb. 14.—Premier Jose Canalejas y Mendes, who heads the new Cabinet, in a statement yesterday declared that not only will he remain the most radical of monarchists, but that the King fully understands his views and program.

The Premier said that it was unfortunate that he had not a sufficient majority behind him, and consequently the country at the coming elections, in which all the old electoral machinery would be discarded, must decide whether his program was to be carried out.

He considered that his reputation would be bankrupt if he did not settle the religious questions, and he proposed to begin by Government action in the form of decrees to be followed by legislation.

Negotiations with the vatican begun by his predecessors, Senor Canalejas said, would be continued, but if they failed, he would proceed regardless of the wishes of Rome. The second great problem, he added, to be advanced would be the cause of public education, in which Spain was so backward. He also intended to press other social reforms and obligatory military service.

"I served in the Cuban campaign," he said, "therefore I understand the inequity of the present system."

MORE POISON IS DISCOVERED

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 14.—That strychnine was also found by Dr. Hoxtoen and Dr. Haines in the contents of the stomach of Miss Margaret Swope, a niece of the late Col. T. H. Swope, and was revealed in a recent report from the two Chicago chemists, was brought out here in a deposition filed by Attorney John G. Paxton. The deposition was in connection with the $100,000 slander suit begun against him by Dr. B. C. Hyde, who is under arrest on the charge of murdering Col. Swope by administering strychnine.

BARONETS WIN CASE

London, Feb. 14.—The grievances of the British baronets have been frequently aired in recent years. At last something has been done to restore a little tranquility in the bosoms of these not quite nobles ones, who owe their status and dignity to the financial embarrassments of King James I.

A commission of enquiry was appointed some time ago to investigate the abuses of the baronetage and it has suddenly and unexpectedly borne fruit in the shape of a royal proclamation. An official roll is to be prepared and kept at the home office under the care of a special registrar. Only those on the list may use the title. Apparently there is no provision for a penalty for usurpers of the "Sir" prefix, of whom a great many exist, but the bona fide baronets will have the right to be registered at the home office, and of course this will result in the ready exposure of fakers.

18 CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED MURDER

Walkerton, Feb. 14.—Ernest Spencer, who was arrested here for shooting Harry Wong Feb. 28, has been committed to trial for attempted murder. A bullet fired through the laundry window hit Wong in the arm. Spencer, who was arrested in Chatham the day after he had been married, appeared before A. W. Robb, J.P., on Saturday. Provincial Inspector Reburn has been working on the case.

Newfoundland to Build Railways.

St. John's, Nfld., Feb. 14.—The construction of 250 miles of branch railways as an extension of the present system in Newfoundland has been authorized by the Colonial Assembly.

TERRIBLE DEATH OF THREE CHILDREN

Parry Sound, Feb. 14.—Word has just been received that the home of Freeman Carpenter, who lives at Shawanga, about eighteen miles north of here on the C.P.R. was totally destroyed by fire Friday night about 12 o'clock.

The father and mother, the five children, and a young lady who was visiting at the home retired to rest about 10.30 leaving a good fire in the stove.

Mrs. Carpenter was awakened by the flare of light and roused her husband, and the young woman who slept in an adjoining room.

All the children were asleep upstairs.

The father rushed up the stairs and succeeded in getting three out, but one of them died four hours later. The other two boys were burned to a crisp.

J. W. LEONARD MAY RESIGN

Montreal, Feb. 14.—There is a report going the rounds of the railway world to the effect that J. W. Leonard, general manager of the C.P.R.'s eastern lines, will soon resign and will be replaced by George Bury, who is now general manager of the company's western lines, while the Winnipeg position will be filled, so it is said, by F. F. Busteed, now general superintendent of the Pacific division.

TWO CLERGYMEN IN BATTLE; WINDSOR MAN DEFENDS FAITH

He Declares That Rev. Dr. Stewart of the Bible Training School Maligned Him in Order to Secure a Pulpit For a Favorite.

Windsor, Feb. 14.—Rev. L. S. Hughson, pastor of Bruce avenue Baptist Church, made a public statement from the pulpit at the service last night in which he replied to recent criticism from Dr. William Stewart of the Toronto Bible Training School. Dr. Stewart had declared that Mr. Hughson was not straight on the Bible.

Mr. Hughson declared in his statement that Dr. Stewart made these criticisms because of his (Stewart's) zeal in trying to get a student of his school into the position as pastor of Ossington avenue Baptist Church, Toronto. Mr. Hughson declared he was not an applicant for the pastorate of the Toronto church.

If his view of God's word were ever brought into question, he held the historic Baptist position on that matter, while recognizing the possibility, but not the belief, that subsequently the views of all may be modified.

Mr. Hughson was on the senate of McMaster University and signed the report of the McMaster senate committee of seven, countenancing the views of Prof. I. G. Matthews. This is the alleged cause of trouble with Dr. Stewart, and Mr. Hughson said that, as a result of his signing the report, that efforts had been made to prevent the church in Toronto and St. Thomas from extending a call to him, on account of his alleged unsound views on the Bible.

Such people, he said, had been guilty of bearing false witness against a brother in the faith, in addition to whatever other wrong they may have done.

He also read a letter to his congregation, which he had sent to Dr. Stewart.

Mr. Hughson's statement was well received by his congregation, and they will undoubtedly stand loyal with him in the affair. Mr. Hughson himself feels the matter keenly.

The letter to Dr. Stewart follows:

"When in Toronto last week, I was credibly informed that you had voluntarily gone to a prominent member of Ossington avenue Baptist Church and told him that I was not sound concerning the Scriptures. Mindful of the fact that you do not know me, have never to my knowledge seen me, certainly have never conversed with me and, in this case, have never sought to know where I stand concerning that or any other matter, I will not, in view of your age and my desire to speak evil of no man, characterize your conduct. I have no doubt that you were sincere and zealous for the eternal truth of God, and thus far I pardon you.

"What I do regret is that, in this day when all who value the Scriptures, as the word of God should strengthen one another, some people have, by you, been lead to believe that I have very loose views concerning the Bible, and, insofar as they respect my views of things, may be led to positions which it is one of the great purposes of my ministry to move men from.

"I regard all Scripture as it came originally, to be inspired of God and given for our sufficient guidance and understanding in His things. If you had enquired of any one who sits under my ministry, or ever had sat under my ministry, you would not have made the error you have.

"I fear lest, in the suddenness with which you reached out to steady the ark of God which you fancied to be trembling, you unwittingly smote a servent of God, and that the heaviest weight of the blow fell on the Lord Jesus Himself."

STEAMER WRECKED

S. S. Lima Caught in Straits of Magellan—Many Lives Likely Lost.

Valparaiso, Chile, Feb. 14.—Immediately on receipt of the news that the Pacific Navigation Co.'s steamer Lima had been wrecked on a reef in the Huamblad Passage, in the Straits of Magellan, and that 88 persons had been left aboard, the Chilean Government despatched the protected cruiser Ministro Zenteno to the rescue.

Following quickly in the wake of the cruiser are five steamers, which the navigation company ordered to proceed at top speed to Magellan. The fate of those who were left behind by the British steamer Hatumet, which rescued 205 of the passengers and crew, will not be known until the Ministro Zenteno, which carries wireless, arrives there.

No further word was received from Aneud, where the Hatumet put in with the survivors. According to late despatches there is some hope that the remainder of the passengers and crew on the Lima may be able to hold out if aid reaches them quickly.

The Hatumet, after taking off 205 persons, was compelled to proceed on account of the danger of being swept upon the rocks by the storm that prevailed at the time.

The Lima was a British steamer, 401 feet long, registers 1,115 tons and was built in Glasgow in 1907.

The place where the steamer was wrecked is probably Huamblad Passage, located between the south shore of San Pedro Island and Chiloe. It is a narrow passage, full of dangers and very difficult of navigation. Huamblin Rocks, two in number and 65 feet high, mark the entrance to this passage.

ELEANOR ROBSON LEAVES THE STAGE

New York, Feb. 14.—Formal announcement of the engagement of Miss Eleanor Robson to August Belmont was made Friday night. Miss Robson closed her season in Brooklyn Friday night, passing with the fall of the curtain from professional to private life. She will return to her home in this city, where she will remain until her marriage.

Mr. Belmont is a widower, 57 years old. His wife died in Paris in September, 1886. He has three sons. The wedding will take place some time in March.

Despondence Leads to Suicide.

Toronto, Feb. 14.—Despondent owing to drink Thomas W. Kay was found in his room, 15 Peter street late Saturday afternoon by Miss Jessie Fletcher, when he was attempting to commit suicide by slashing his throat. He was taken to St. Michael's Hospital, where he died that evening.

Won't Prevent "Tipping."

Washington, Feb. 14.—The inherent right of a man to give away his own money is the rock upon which the newest anti-tipping bill has again been split and broken by the district commissioners to whom Congressman Murphy's bill, applicable to Columbia district, was referred.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

A workable airship has been launched at Farnborough for the use of the British army.

Capt. John Kennedy, Provincial Registrar of Manitoba, died at Winnipeg yesterday.

President Taft urged the New York Republicans to probe the charges of corruption in the party to the bottom.

Mrs. Willoughby Cummings has been appointed field secretary of the women's department of the annuities branch at Ottawa.

Mr. William Mackenzie announced at Montreal that the Canadian Northern would build five or six hundred miles of railway in the west this year.

PARIS SUFFRAGETTES START A CAMPAIGN

Paris, Feb. 14.—The French suffragettes promise to enliven the general elections in May. Mlle. Durand, their leader, who is the editor of Les Nouvelles, has issued a plan of campaign.

There will be a woman candidate in every constituency in Paris, each belonging to a profession or possessing a degree of some sort. Mlle. Durand herself will oppose Deputy Paul Escudier, who is strong opponent of woman suffrage.

That it will be impossible to vote for these ladies does not deter them. The campaign is intended to call attention to the cause.

BIG NIAGARA POWER MERGER

Albany, N.Y., Feb. 14.—Application has been made to the public service commission by the Niagara and Erie Power Co. for authority to issue its stock and $1,250,000 five per cent. 30-year gold bonds, the authorized capital stock of the company being $100,000. The company also asks for permission to have transferred to it, certain property and franchises of the Niagara, Lockport & Ontario Power Co., and the Buffalo & Lake Erie Traction Co., and to begin construction. The latter companies have also applied for permission to make such transfer.

OTTAWA SCENE OF BAD FIRE

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—A fire which broke out in Hugh Carson's saddlery store on Rideau street shortly after noon yesterday did damage to the extent of $75,000. The buildings were completely gutted. The firm carried insurance to the extent of half the loss.

Shore's hardware establishment, in the same block, was damaged to the extent of $6,000; insurance $5,000. The stock in Lord's furniture store was damaged to the extent of $1,500 by water. The loss on the buildings, owned by W. G. Charleson, and J. B. Duford, was $410,000, fully covered by insurance.

No chief has yet been appointed to succeed the late Chief Prevost, who died several weeks ago, and the authorities are being urged to fill the vacancy. An outside man may be chosen.

IS DR. COOK IN SOUTH AMERICA?

Valdivia, Chile, Feb. 14.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the explorer, and his wife, arrived here yesterday on board the German steamer Osiris, having taken a cabin at Montevideo. Dr. Cook traveled under the name of J. Craig. He and his wife sailed north yesterday. He declined to be interviewed.

The steamer Osiris sailed from Hamburg Jan. 1, and from Antwerp Jan. 8 for Callao. Presumably she touched at Montevideo, where Dr. Cook is said to have boarded her, but her call there has not been reported.

A TRIBUTE TO GOLDWIN SMITH

Buffalo, N.Y., Feb. 14.—Dr. J. G. Schurman, president of Cornell University, was the guest of honor at the first banquet of the Phi Beta Kappa ever held in Buffalo.

In his introductory remarks Dr. Schurman paid a tribute to Dr. Goldwin Smith, who recently met with an accident. In Dr. Smith, President Schurman said, Phi Beta Kappa found its greatest living exemplar and he expressed the hope that his many sided powers would be saved to the world for many years and that he would continue to illuminate the themes of history, politics, letters, ethics and religion.

THE C. N. R. MAY SIDETRACK THE CAPITAL

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—"Why should we try to put Ottawa on the main line of the C.N.R. when we are not even allowed to cross Hurdman's road?" demanded D. D. Mann of the Canadian Northern Railway to an interviewer in discussing the company's plans as concerning the capital.

"I myself would like to have Ottawa on our main line, but I may say we have been treated very unfairly by the Railway Commission. The alternative route by way of Kingston, Gananoque, and so on, looks very attractive."

In the event of Ottawa being shunted from the main line, the main line route would likely touch Kingston and Gananoque, and would run up to connect at Hawkesbury. Ottawa would remain just as it is now, on the Quebec line.

Mr. Mann, discussing the question of level crossings in general, said: "The problem should be dealt with gradually. Some arrangement might be entered into by which the railways, the Government and the municipalities would divide the cost of doing away with level crossings."

DID CLUBBING CAUSE MANIA?

New York, Feb. 14.—The death of Hermann Straus, ex-convict, who on last Tuesday murdered his wife and then committed suicide, is being investigated to determine whether there was a lesion in the man's brain which would produce homicidal mania. This disorder could be directly traceable to a clubbing, which, it is intimated, Straus received in the Blackwell's Island penitentiary.

The information given to Judge Rosalsky that caused him to take this action came from an official who has an intimate knowledge of the inner administration of the penitentiary.

DEATH SENTENCE CAUSES CHEERS

London, Feb. 14.—Vehement yells of execration from spectators followed a sentence of death passed upon William Murphy, laborer of Leigh, Lancashire, for the murder of Gwen Ellen Jones at Holyhead on Christmas Day.

"Have you no decency among you?" sternly asked Judge Pickford; but the crowd, ignoring him, burst into another chorus of indignation as Murphy left the dock.

Throughout the hearing of the case he had worn a supercilious look, and after the judge had passed sentence he said, "Thank you, sir."

ARE NOW SPYING OUT AUSTRIA

London, Feb. 14.—A Vienna despatch says Mr. Bosworth of the C.P.R. was interviewed there. He said the principal object of his journey to Austria was the creation of commercial relations between Canada and Austria. For the purposes of realising this scheme he will study the industrial situation here and discuss important questions with representatives of the Government. If he is satisfied, the Trieste harbor scheme for a direct line to Canada will be immediately realised.

Vaccine for Pneumonia.

Boston, Feb. 14.—By using a new vaccine discovered by Dr. Timothy Leary of Tufts Medical School, a seven-year-old Revere boy has been cured of lepto-meningitis, the most fatal form of pneumonia. The vaccine serum was tried when all the other remedies had failed and when the patient was dying. Now he is able to sit up in bed.

JNO. CHARLTON PASSES AWAY

Canadian Statesman Dies at Delhi at Age of 81—Was Widely Known.

Delhi, Feb. 14.—Mr. John Charlton, a former member of the House of Commons and one of the best known men in Canada, passed away Saturday night at his home in Lynedoch. He was eighty-one years of age, but, although forced to retire from public life six years ago on account of ill-health, he was able to get about until the day before his death. On Thursday he was out for an hour, but following that became seriously ill, and sank rapidly. On Friday night it was seen that the end was near, and a telegram was sent to his brother, Mr. W. A. Charlton, in Toronto, but death came to the veteran statesman before the summons could be answered. The funeral will be held at Lynedoch on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m.

Mr. Charlton's name will long stand as that of a man apart in the history of the Dominion's statesmen. He was a rugged man, turned from a large mould. His eyes were bright, alert and active; his speech was forceful and his principles strong. For thirty-two successive years, until 1904, he sat in the Dominion House as a member for North Norfolk, working hard in all that time, and when he retired it was only because physical necessity demanded rest. As a public man he was famous, now for his tariff policy toward the United States, now as a moral reformer, and again as a leading lumberman of the Ontario woods.

He was the eldest son of Adam Charlton, from Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, and was born at Garbuttsville, New York, on Feb. 3, 1829. His education he found in New York state.

WANT TO DISCUSS NAVY QUESTION

Montreal, Feb. 14.—The Nationalists announce a demonstration at Longueil, over the river from Montreal, to give the politicians an opportunity of discussing the naval bill before the electors. They have invited Hon. R. Lemieux and Victor Geoffrion, M.P., on the Government side, with R. L. Borden and T. D. Monk, M.P., of the Opposition, but it is not at all probable that these gentlemen will take the affair seriously.

The man who is organising the demonstration is Tancrede Marcel, who unsuccessfully contested the County of Chambly at a bye-election for the Quebec Legislature a few months ago, in the Opposition interest.

MONTREAL REAL ESTATE DEAL

Montreal, Feb. 14.—The biggest real estate deal yet heard of in this city was concluded Saturday.

The property is at the southeast corner of St. Catharines and Peel streets. A syndicate of Montreal and Toronto men, backed by a number of New York people, have purchased the property for about $660,000. This price will give the Simpson Co. of Toronto a return of over $30 per square foot. It is said the purchasers intend to construct a magnificent uptown hotel, and in consequence the tenants have been notified to vacate by May 1, 1912.

Will be "At Home."

The members of Queen Alexandra Circle, A. O. F., will be "At Home" on Wednesday evening, Feb. 16. There will be a good programme and refreshments.

WAS KILLED BY CUTTING TEETH

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 14.—Cutting seven teeth in one day, Richard Stevenson, 10-months-old son of Rev. W. C. Stevenson, died yesterday after an illness of two days.

The boy had at different times cut teeth, having five in all, when, on Friday last, he cut seven in a few hours. The brain was affected.

Smallpox in Hastings County.

Belleville, Feb. 14.—There is an outbreak of smallpox in Monteagle Township, Hastings County, and a number of families in the vicinity of No. 9 school house are infected.

FATALLY HURT BY SNOWPLOW

North Bay, Feb. 14.—Frederick Hartley, who lived 12 miles north of this town, died Saturday morning from injuries received by being struck by a snowplow while walking along the T. & N. O. tracks Friday night.

Hartley stepped from the rails to allow the train a pass, but not knowing that it was a snowplow, did not move far enough away, and the flanges struck him, fracturing two ribs and inflicting internal injuries.

Not realizing the seriousness of his condition, Hartley walked two miles to his cabin, on a veteran land grant, which he was working with his daughter of 15 and son of 8. Medical aid was not summoned until the morning, on account of the distance.

Hartley was 45 years of age and came from Brantford, where his father resides.

OUR WATERWAYS

Our correspondent, "Citizen," who has urged the pushing forward of the work on the Trent waterway and the advantages of cheap power, is right in the main on both points. The opening of navigation from the Georian Bay to Lake Ontario would confer a benefit on the whole district that cannot be obtained in any other way. The waterway would be a national benefit, in providing another and a cheap outlet for the grain of western Canada. In this we are interested, but we are also deeply interested in the advantages we would obtain in the Midland district. Heavy freights could then be brought in by water and could be returned the same way, and the completion of the undertaking at the earliest moment cannot be too strongly urged. The work that has been done has been owing to persistent agitation in the past by those who recognized the benefits it would confer, and persistent agitation will hasten the work that is yet to be done. The promise has been given that the sections necessary to open the outlet to Lake Ontario will be placed under contract this year. It should be seen that this promise is not only kept, but that the contracts yet to be let for this purpose should be got under way at once. Every month of delay means loss to this district particularly and to the country at large, and this loss should not be suffered any longer than can possibly be helped. The northern section from Lake Simcoe to the Georgian Bay, should also be pushed, so that the two ends of the waterway will be made available for navigation. It looks as though the farce which was played at this end, of investigation as to the route to be followed, is to be played at the northern end and used as an excuse for delay. The "two months" question should not be permitted to again prolong the delay that has already become aggravating. If the Government does not know which route should be followed from Lake Simcoe is should know, and the people should not and will not put up with another alternative route farce. What we need, merely need and must have, is no more excuses, no further delay, but vigorous action in the completion of the waterway, which will mean increased profits on farm produce and manufactured products and an impetus to production and trade in this whole district, which is as large as some of the provinces, and a large benefit to the whole Dominion.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT

The revolution in the municipal government in Montreal has awakened interest in the Board of Control system, first adopted in Toronto, and since by Winnipeg and Ottawa, and now by Montreal and Hamilton. In these cities the Controllers are elected by a general vote of the electors and the Aldermen by Wards. The Ontario law, after which the Winnipeg and Montreal systems are modelled, provides the Board of Control, consisting of the Mayor and four Controllers who are also members of the Council, shall prepare the estimates of expenditures, and no expenditure shall be made that is not so provided for; it shall prepare specifications for and award all contracts; inspect and report to the Council upon all municipal work being carried on; nominate all officers required to be appointed by the Council; dismiss or suspend any head of department and report the same to the Council; direct by whom and in what manner subordinate officers and employees shall be appointed and employed; submit by-laws to the Council, and amalgamate departments and sub-departments, and such other duties as may be imposed upon it by the Council. The duties assigned to the Board shall be discharged exclusively by it, except the submission of by-laws to the Council and the amalgamation of departments.

This would seem to give the Board of Control large powers, but in respect to most of these matters the Council can set aside or vary the action of the Board by a vote of two-thirds of the members present, or it may by a majority vote refer back to the Board any matter for consideration. In Toronto and Hamilton the committees of Council are retained, so that to some extent there are two bodies giving consideration to the same matters and making recommendations regarding them. The members of the Board of Control are expected to give more time and attention to the municipal business, but their decisions may be reversed by the Council by the two-thirds vote, or they may be referred back by a majority vote, and, if the two bodies cannot agree, by this power to refer back, matters may be brought to a standstill. In Montreal it is said the Council will drop the committee system, as Ottawa has done, so that in these cities more fully than in Toronto the Board of Control will be the initiating body and also to a greater extent the administering body.

It will be seen that this system differs widely from the commission system that has been advocated here by Mr. W. H. Moore, by which the Council would retain its full legislative powers and full control of appropriations and the levying of taxes, with a commission composed of a smaller number, and not members of the Council, who would do the whole work of administration—that is, the Council would make the municipal laws and levy the funds while the commissioners would do the rest.

This system of government by commission differs again from what has become known as municipal government by commission in the United States. It was introduced in Galveston, Texas, to try to bring order out of chaos and it did it. There the commissioners were appointed by the Governor of the State, a method of method of selection which has not been followed. In a number of cities across the line, and in different States, the Commission system has been adopted, but the commissioners are elected by the ratepayers of the municipality. This would be very much like placing in the hands of a body elected as our Water Commissioners are now elected, the whole business of the municipality—the making of by-laws, the levying of taxes and the management and control of all public services. In some of the United States cities provision is made for the "recall," by which, as a commissioner may be compelled by a recall from a percentage of the electors to again submit to a vote before his time has expired, and some have made provision for initiative by and referendum to the electors of measures which electors desire or upon which the voice of the electorate is desired. The idea of government by commissioners is gaining ground in the United States and every year more cities are adopting this method.

A RAILWAY AND FARMING

President Brown of the New York Central Railroad, follows up his academic addresses upon the cost of living problem with the practical announcement of three experimental farms along the lines of his company. With matter of fact agricultural methods he proposes to show how average land can be made to yield much more than it generally does yield. As an indication of what may be expected, the farm superintendent who is to be in charge of the work has the record of having, "by common sense methods," increased the yield of his farm in Genesee Valley from sixty bushels of potatoes to the acre to more than three hundred bushels to the acre.

Mr. Brown is frank to say that anything which can multiply the products of the agricultural territory served by his railroad will be of the greatest importance to that great transportation system. It is for this reason that the railroad begins the experiment, intending to bring these and other farms up to a high productive capacity, and then, showing what can be done with them, sell them to those who wish to make their livings out of the soil. If he can do what he anticipates, and if the results are emulated in all the agricultural States and districts of the country, the people of the United States will be the gainers both by the increased wealth of the nation and and by the partial solution of the cost of living problem.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The thermometer that registered fifty degrees below on Friday morning was evidently manufactured for D. Cook.

Mr. J. H. Burnham is retiring from the editorship of the Peterborough Review to enter the practice of law. Another good man gone wrong.—Brantford Expositor.

For two or three days Peterborough was without its daily papers as a result of the printers' strike. They say life for the natives was scarcely worth living.—Brantford Expositor.

A deputation from the Commercial Travellers' Association waited on Sir James Whitney and asked the Government to require hotelkeepers to make certain improvements, principally as regards fire escapes. If the travellers have a real grievance, there is no doubt but that it will be remedied by the Whitney Government.

It is going to take a good deal of time and hard work on the part of the City Council to deal with the problems that will arise in connection with the entrance into the city of the grain route of the C.P.R. It is one of the biggest questions that have come up in years. There are so many sides to it, and so many interests to be considered that great study will have to be given the subject.

Toronto people don't know how to buy food, how to keep it, how to prepare it, or how to use it. There is more food going to waste in that city than would feed a whole city in Denmark, Germany, France and other European countries, was a statement made by Mr. C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, during the deliberations of the Ontario Association of Fairs and Exhibitions, at Toronto last week. How about Peterborough? Householders might look into the matter.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

OPINIONS OF CANADIANS

Brantford Expositor.—In the Toronto police court Magistrate Denison has called attention to the danger resulting from the sale of diseased in that city. In a lesser degree the same conditions prevail in many centres in this province and the only system which can successfully cope with them is that by which meat for local consumption is slaughtered under competent inspection in municipal abattoirs.

Montreal Star.—Burglars have been operating as openly and as successfully within a stone's throw of the City Hall as in the remote suburbs. In fact, the closer criminals get to our police force, as at present constituted, the less they seem to fear it.

Ottawa Journal.—On Thursday last at Govan, Scotland, was launched the first vessel of Australia's naval unit. Canada has become so accustomed to believing it leads the Empire, that this concrete example of how another portion of outer Britain has far outran Canada in a vital Imperial matter, will not be welcome news to Canadians.

Ottawa Citizen.—Voting $50,000 to France, through this country is not represented in the chamber of deputies, does not cause parliament to turn a hair. But if we voted two Dreadnoughts to Great Britain, we would be violating the sacred principles of taxation without representation, the statute of limitations, the most sacred liberties of two millions of our population would be hopelessly infringed, and our autonomy, whatever that is, would be busted higher than Gilderoy's kite. Helas!

A GENEROUS OFFER

Wm. Madill Will Refund Your Money if Parisian Sage Does Not Banish Dandruff

Pretty strong talk, perhaps you'll say, but its honest talk, every word of it, because if Wm. Madill was not absolutely certain, if he did not know from actual results obtained, he could not make such a generous offer.

Parisian Sage, which can not be obtained in every town in Canada, is also guaranteed to stop falling hair and itching scalp.

It is the ideal, delightful, rejuvenating hair dressing that makes hair grow in abundance. Parisian Sage is a prime favorite with women, because it leaves the hair beautifully perfumed and is not sticky or greasy.

The price for a large bottle is only 50 cents at Wm. Madill's, who guarantees it. Sold everywhere, or direct, all charges prepaid, by the Canadian makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont.

The Man From Brodney's

By GEORGE BARR M'CUTCHEON

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"Perhaps there is something in what you say. I'm grateful to you for preparing me." It had suddenly come to mind that the night before he had seen a man skulking in the vicinity of the bungalow.

"I just thought I'd tell you," murmured Miss Pelham nervously. "I—we don't want to see you get into trouble—none of us."

"Thank you." After a long pause he went on, lowering his voice: "Miss Pelham, I have had a hard time here in more ways than I care to speak of. It may interest you to know that I had decided to resign next month and go home. I'm a living man, and a living man objects to a living death. But I've changed my mind. I'll stick my time out. I've got three months longer to stay, and I'll stay. If Von Blitz thinks he can drive me out, he's mistaken. I'll be here after you and your friends up there have sailed away, Miss Pelham—God bless you, you're all white—and I'll be here when Von Blitz and his wives are dancing to the tunes I play. Now let's get back to work. If Von Blitz is working in the dark, I'll compel him to show his hand. And, Miss Pelham," he concluded very slowly, "I'll promise to use a club, if necessary, to drive the Persian ladies away. So please rest easy on my account."

The next morning the town bustled with a new excitement. A trim, beautiful yacht, flying strange colors, steamed into the little harbor of Aratat. Every one knew that the yacht brought the princess who was to visit her ladyship.

The enemy came down from his bungalow, attracted by the unusual and inspiring spectacle of a ship at anchor. A line of anxiety marked his brow. Two figures had watched his windows all night long, sinister shadows that always met his eye when it penetrated the gloom of the moonlit forest.

Lord and Lady Deppingham were on the pier before him. Excitement and joy illumined her face. Her eyes were sparkling with anticipation. He could almost see that she trembled in her eagerness. He came quite close to them before they saw him. Exhilaration no doubt was responsible for the very agreeable smile of recognition that she bestowed upon him. The enemy could do no less than go to them with his pleasantest acknowledgment. His rugged face relaxed into a most charming, winsome smile, half diffident, half assured.

He passed among the wives of his clients without so much as a sign of recognition, coolly indifferent to the admiring glances that sought his face. The dark, languorous eyes that flashed eager admiration a moment before now turned sullen with disappointment. He had ignored their owners.

"I have heard that you expect a visitor," said the enemy in his most agreeable manner.

"Won't you go aboard with us?" asked Deppingham, at a loss for anything better to say. The enemy shook his head and smiled.

"You are very good, but I believe my place is here."

"The princess is to be with me for a month. We expect more sunshine than ever at the chateau," ventured her ladyship.

"I sincerely hope you may be disappointed," said he commiseratingly, fanning himself with his hat. She laughed and understood, but Deppingham was halfway out to the yacht before it became clear to him that the enemy hoped literally, not figuratively.

The enemy sauntered back to the American bar, lonelier than ever before in his life. He now knew what it was that he had missed more than all else—woman.

Britt and Saunders were waiting for him under the awning outside.

"Hello!" called Britt. "We saw you down there, but couldn't get near. By ginger, old man, I had no idea your Persians were so beautiful. They are oriental gems of"—

"My Persians? What the devil do you mean, Britt? Come in and sit down; I want to talk to you fellows. See here, this talk about these women has got to be stopped. It's dangerous for you, and it's dangerous for me. It is so full of peril that I don't care to look at them, handsome as you say they are. Do you know what I was thinking of as I came over here after leaving one of the most charming of women—your Lady Deppingham? I was thinking what a wretched famine there is in women. I'm speaking of women like Lady Deppingham and Mrs Browne, neither of whom I know, and yet I've known them all my life—the kind of women we love, not the kind we despise or pity. Don't you see? I'm hungry for the very sight of a woman."

"You see Miss Pelham often enough," said Saunders surlily. The enemy was making a pitcher of lemonade.

"My dear Saunders, you are quite right. I do see Miss Pelham often enough. In my present frame of mind I'd fall desperately in love with her if I saw her oftener." Saunders blinked and glared at him through his pale eyes.

"My word!" he said. Then he got up abruptly and stalked out of the room. Britt laughed immoderately.

"He's a lucky dog," reflected the enemy. "You see, he loves her, Britt—he loves little Miss Pelham. Do you know what that means? It means everything is worth while. Hello! Here he is back! Come in, Saunders. Here's your lemo?"

Saunders was excited. He stopped in the doorway, but looked over his shoulder into the street.

"Come along!" he exclaimed. "They are going up to the chateau—the princess and her party. My word, she's ripping!"

At the corner they stopped to await the procession of palanquins and jinrikishas which had started from the pier. The smart English victoria from the chateau, drawn by Wyckholme's thoroughbreds, was coming on in advance of the foot brigade, in the rear seat of the victoria sat Lady Deppingham and one who evidently was the princess. Opposite to them sat two older but no less smart looking women.

His helmet came off with a rush; a dazed smile of recognition lighted his face.

"A gala day in Aratat," observed the stubby Mr. Britt. "We are to have the whole party overnight up at the chateau. Hello! By thunder, old man, she's—she's speaking to you!" He turned in astonishment to look at his companion's face.

The enemy was staring, transfixed, at the young woman in white who sat beside Lady Deppingham. He seemed paralyzed for the moment. Then his helmet came off with a rush; a dazed smile of recognition lighted his face. The very pretty young woman in the wide hat was leaning forward and smiling at him, a startled, uncertain look in her eyes. Lady Deppingham was glancing open mouthed from one to the other.

"I must be dreaming," murmured the enemy.

Britt took him by the arm. "Do you know her?" he asked. The enemy turned upon him with a radiant gleam in his once somber, disconsolate eyes.

"Do you think I'd be grinning at her like a fool if I didn't? Why the dickens didn't you tell me that it was the Princess Genevra of Rapp-Thorberg who was coming?"

CHAPTER XI.

CHASE PERFORMS A MIRACLE.

HOLLINGSWORTH CHASE now felt that he was on neutral ground with the Princess Genevra. His strange connection with the Skaggs will case is easily explained. After leaving Thorberg he went directly to Paris; thence, after ten days, to London, where he hoped to get on as a staff correspondent for one of the big dailies. One day at the Savage club he listened to a recital of the amazing conditions which attended the execution of Skaggs' will. He had shot wild game in South Africa with Sir John Brodney, chief counselor for the islanders, and when Sir John suddenly proposed that he go out to Japat as the firm's representative he leaped at the chance.

In truth Rasula was more than glad to have the services of an American. He had heard Wyckholme talk of the manner in which civil causes were tried in the United States, and he felt that one Yankee on the scene was worth ten Englishmen at home.

The good looking Mr. Chase, writhing under the dread of exposure as an international jackass, welcomed the opportunity to get as far away from civilization as possible. He knew that the Prince Karl story would not lie dormant, but he could not banish the fair face of the Princess Genevra from his thoughts during the long voyage, nor would it be stretching the point to say that his day dreams were of her as he sat and smoked in his bungalow porch.

"She won't leave you a peg to stand on, Chase, if you seek an encounter," he said. "She's pretty and she's clever, and she's made fools of better men than you, my boy. I don't say she's a bad lot, because she's too smart for that. Remember, my boy, you are going out there to offset, not to beset, Lady Deppingham."

Chase was not in love with the proud Princess Genevra. He denied that to himself a hundred times a day as he sat in his bungalow and smoked the situation over.

He had proved to himself quite beyond a doubt that he was not in love, when, like a bolt from a clear sky, she stepped out of the oblivion into which he had cast her to smile upon him without warning. It was most unfair. Her smile had been one of the most difficult obstacles to overcome in the effort to return a fair and final verdict.

Could anything be more miraculous than that she should come to the unheard of island of Japat, unless, possibly, that he should be there when she came? She was there for him to look upon and love and lose, just as he had dreamed all these months. It mattered little that she was now the wife of Prince Karl of Brabeta. To him she was still the Princess Genevra of Rapp-Thorberg.

In his leather pocketbook lay the ever present reminder that she could be no more than a dream to him. It was the clipping from a Paris newspaper announcing that the Princess Genevra was to wed Prince Karl during the Christmas holidays.

He had seen the Christmas holidays come and go with the certain knowledge in his heart that they had given her to Brabeta as the most glorious present that man had ever received.

Now she was come to the island, and, so far as he had been able to see, there was no sign of the Prince Brabeta in attendance. Her uncle by marriage, an English nobleman of high degree, in gathering his friends for the long cruise evidently had left the prince out of his party, for what reason Chase could not imagine. To say that the omission was gratifying to the tall American would be too simple a statement. There is no telling to what heights his thoughts might have carried him on that sultry afternoon if they had not been harshly checked by the arrival of a messenger from the chateau. His blood leaped with anticipation.

Could it be possible? But, no, she would not be writing to him. What a ridiculous thought! His hopes fell flat as the note was put into his eager hand. It was from Britt.

Still he broke the seal with considerable eagerness. As he perused the somewhat lengthy message his disappointment gave way to a no uncertain form of excitement. With its conclusion he was on his feet, his eyes gleaming with enthusiasm.

"By George!" he exclaimed. "What luck! Things are coming my way with a vengeance. I'll do it this very night, thanks to Britt. And I must not forget Browne. Ah, what a consolation it is to know that there are Americans wherever one goes! Selim! Selim!"

Gas companies at Chatham are putting [illegible]

THE VALUE OF THE DAILY PAPER

Most Effective Way of Reaching the Public Mind.

John Sparrow, well known in advertising circles, believes that newspaper advertising is the highest and most effective form of publicity, and that the advertising columns of a newspaper create public spirit and sustain confidence, just as effectively as do the editorial columns. All newspaper advertisements, whether large or small, in Mr. Sparrow's opinion, make for optimism and enterprise.

"My reason," he said recently, "for valuing the newspaper advertisement more highly than other forms of publicity, is not because it is unquestionably the least expensive method of reaching the customer, all things considered, but because it is the most natural, and, therefore, the most effectual.

"And newspaper advertisements are read. They are live news, as much so as the 'stories' which sprinkle the other columns. For real human interest the 'want' page easily leads all others, and the display ads, by their contrast with solid matter, are restful and attractive to the eye. Just fancy a newspaper without a line of display in it. But that would be impossible—it wouldn't be a newspaper, for, no matter how much good reading it carried, it would fail to reflect the life of the town.

"While everybody admits that women read the advertisements in the papers—almost religiously, as it were—occasionally some skepticism as to the men is expressed. This is an erroneous idea. I firmly believe that men are approached more easily through the newspaper ad than by booklet or circular, or even by personal letter, unless that is exceptionally well written. Man is aggressive and combative by nature, and dislikes to have things thrust upon him. But you can troll him on all right, as his wife will tell you. The newspaper ad doesn't chase him down or rub him the wrong way. It stands and invites him when he is in the mood to be invited.

"I do not mean to decry any of the other schemes of publicity. They are all effective in proportion to the elements of their get up, but their relation to newspaper advertising is the same which the artillery and cavalry hold to the infantry of an army. The infantry is depended upon to do the hard fighting. It is a good idea to think of advertising in military terms, for advertising is campaigning or it is nothing.

"The 'enemy' is the composite public mind, and the grand point of attack is its memory, which is uncertain and elusive. An impression may be made, but it will not hold unless hammered in. The minute you cease to hammer the public begins to forget. The newspaper, published every day, is the only logical arm of assault. It may be good tactics to shell the woods occasionally and to keep the cavalry scouting, but 'the works' will have to be carried, after all, by those bristling bayonets, the printed lines in the daily paper.

"The value of newspaper advertising is not confined to the benefits received by the advertisers. Economically, it is much more important than that. The advertising columns of a newspaper create public spirit and sustain confidence just as effectively as the editorial columns do, though in a different manner. The page ads make the town loom up. They feed our civic pride; they give us a touch of the metropolitan feeling. And all the ads, whether large or small, make for optimism and enterprise. Things can't be bad,' says the reader to himself, 'when merchants are using so much printers' ink.'"—Newspaperdom.

IRON BOXES FOR PICTURE SHOWS

New Regulations Being Sent to Every Proprietor, Who Must Swear to Observe Them.

Violation of any of the new provincial regulations for moving picture regulations shall cause a forfeiture of the Provincial Treasurer's license to the proprietor.

Copies of the new regulations prepared by Superintendent J. E. Rogers, of the provincial police, are being forwarded to every moving picture machine operator in the province. On the back of each copy is an application for a license "for exhibition of moving pictures." Each application takes the form of a sworn declaration by the applicant that all the regulations have been complied with. All owners of moving picture machines must be licensed by March 1st. Provincial inspectors will visit every moving picture theatre, and where it has been found that the regulations have been ignored in spite of the applicant's sworn declaration to observe them, prosecutions for perjury will follow. A fee of $25 has to be paid for each machine.

In addition to the old regulations which are still in force, it is specified that all films must be kept in an iron box, and all films shall be transferred from one spindle to another in a metal re-winding box.

Ontario's regulations for the protection of the public in moving picture places have been adopted in England.

HASN'T SLEPT MUCH FOR FIFTEEN YEARS

This Man's Job is That of Night Watchman, So He Finds His Insomnia a Help.

New York World: That a man can survive and enjoy good health without sleep is demonstrated in the case of Alonzo Wire, who declares he has not slept for fifteen years. He dates the time by his connection with the police force of Hackettstown, N. J., of which he was chief. For a quarter of a century his sleep has not been normal. Insomnia grew upon him since thirty years ago, when he was severely shocked by lightning.

For weeks he was deafened, and he suffered a nerve shock and that time which eventually produced sleeplessness.

During all of the time that he was chief of the Hackettstown police it mattered not what hours he was required to serve, sleep never interfered. Since leaving the police department he has been chiefly employed as a night watchman for the Lackawanna Railroad at Hackettstown. Mr. Wire says:

"Bethuel Hubert, a local policeman, has endeavored to catch me asleep while night watchman, disbelieving my statement, but he finally gave up and said; 'Wire I am now satisfied that you never do sleep.'

"I further assured him that $10 would be his if he should ever find me sleeping, though I would be glad to give many times that amount if I could once more enjoy the long sleeps I had when I was a young man."

Mr. Wire is sixty-three years old, stands over six feet tall and weighs more than 200 pounds. When younger he weighed 280 pounds and was a man of great physique and strength. His health is normal.

PARENTS SPEND MOST OF THEIR MONEY IN DRINK

And the Home of a South End Family is Not a Happy One — Children Have Been Neglected But Were Sent to School This Morning.

A deplorable state of affairs existing in the home of an English family residing in the south end of the city has come under the notice of the police and they are now taking steps to remedy the conditions. It is stated that the father and mother are both addicted to the drink habit, and their small children suffer as a result. They have not been sent to school and the eldest of the boys has to remain at home to prepare the meals for his parents, both of whom work in a factory not a great distance from their home. The father earns about $40 a day and the mother draws fair wages, but very little of the money finds its way into the home. The neighbors residing nearby are very indignant at the actions of both who, on almost every pay-day, come home at night intoxicated and make a disgraceful scene with their singing and loud talk. It is reported that the father while intoxicated went into his place of employment recently and threatened to use a knife on one of the employees. This morning two of the children were taken to school by the mother and it is to be hoped that a change for the better will take place in the home.

THE SERIOUSNESS OF THE MAD DOG SITUATION

The mad dog scare in western Ontario is a live and serious issue. At the present time no less than forty people in and about the western peninsula are at the Pasteur Institute in New York undergoing treatment, not for bites from supposed mad dogs, but from bites of dogs that have been proven to have rabies. The full seriousness of this question has not yet impressed the people of this locality, but when a dog goes mad and tears through the country for miles, biting people and cattle indiscriminately and spreading the deadliest of infections, measures will be taken which ought to be taken now, namely, muzzling or chaining up. In addition to the large number of people bitten, over 200 head of cattle have already died, and it is a matter of general suspicion that mad dogs and their damage of victims have by no means reached the limit.

No one can tell where this business will end, and while the government has taken the quickest and firmest measures in the matter, it is open to the local authorities to do so before some further damage is done. The expense of treatment averages $200 per person, and for poor people it is of course so serious that the public is called upon to bear the expense.

A FRAUD UPON THE EMPIRE

The Imperial authorities asked us to help them on the ocean in the hour of need.

Our Government responds with a scheme to build a flotilla of small ships that will be useless for defence purposes.

Is that the way to answer the call of the Empire?

For this nonsense we are to pay $16,000,000 down and $7,000,000 a year forever.

Is this common sense?

Why not set aside this expensive and unnecessary project and do something that is real for the Empire to which we belong?

Two Dreadnoughts for the Royal Navy would be a gift worthy of the great Dominion.—Mail and Empire.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOSEPH CROCKER

The many friends of Mary Jane Jackson, beloved wife of Joseph Crocker, will regret to learn that she passed away yesterday. The deceased had been ailing for some time. She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her sorrowing husband, one son, Willis, and two daughters, Misses Mabel and Annie, all at home, and three brothers and one sister residing in Port Hope.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon from the family residence, 303 King street. Interment will take place in Little Lake cemetery. Port Hope papers please copy.

JOHN DINSDALE, OTONABEE.

Special to the Review.

Keene, Feb. 12.—The death occurred Saturday morning, from pneumonia, after an illness of only a few days' duration, of Mr. John Dinsdale, of Lang. The deceased was born in England sixty-nine years ago, and came to this country about 1870 and has lived in this vicinity ever since. He was a mason by trade and was well and favorably known throughout this district. A wife and nine children survive him—five sons—John, Lang; George, Keene; Jeffrey and Harry Peterborough, and Stanley, at home, and four daughters, Ellen and Victoria, Toronto; Annie, New Jersey, U.S.A., and Olga, at home.

The funeral will be held from the late residence of the deceased, Monday afternoon, and interment will take place in Fife cemetery.

MRS. WM. O'CONNOR.

A life-long resident of Douro, in the person of Mrs. Wm. O'Connor, passed away at three o'clock this morning, at her late residence, lot 5, in the 3rd concession. The late Mrs O'Connor was 70 years of age and her death resulted from a complication of diseases. Her maiden name was Jane Hogan, she being a daughter of the late Jas. Hogan, of Douro. Her husband predeceased her a number of years ago. To mourn her loss she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Dennis O'Toole, of Keene, and Mrs. Thomas J. Whibbs, of Douro, and six sons, Messrs. Joseph, at home; Wm., of Greenwood, B.C.; James, of Cobalt; Gregory, of Rochester; Richard, of this city, and Frank, of Douro.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning at nine o'clock, to St. Joseph's church, Douro, and thence to St. Joseph's cemetery.

RICHARD A. O'CONNOR.

At St. Joseph's Hospital this morning, the young son of Mr. Richard A. O'Connor, 217 Stewart street, passed away. He was two years and six months of age. The funeral took place this morning to St. Joseph's cemetery, Douro.

THE DEATH OF CAPT. KENNEDY

Winnipeg, Feb. 13.—Captain John Kennedy, Provincial Registrar, and a member of the Nile Voyageurs, and one of the most active members of the western militia for many years, died yesterday. His former home was in Peterborough, wher ehe was born in 1835, and he came west when 46 years of age, in 1881. He was connected with the 57th Regiment, when that battalion was a rural regiment.

LAID AT REST

The funeral of the late Mrs R. N. Jones took place on Saturday afternoon and was largely attended. The service at All Saints' church, conducted by the Rev. H. R. Trumpour, was a solemn and impressive one and many of the friends of deceased were present. The pallbearers were Messrs. R. E. Layfield, W. S. Merrel, W. H. Wilson, W. J. Hickey, W. J. Young and W. T. Carruthers. Interment was held at Little Lake cemetery.

Water Commissioners

The water commissioners are holding a meeting this afternoon.

TORONTO GOT TEN FACTORIES LAST YEAR

Toronto, Feb. 12.—Mr. Joseph E. Thompson, the retiring commissioner of Industries and Publicity, has prepared his report for last year. The year 1909 was one of the best in the city's history, from an industrial standpoint. Mr. Thompson reported. Of the American industries in Canada, one-third are in Toronto. Ten concerns located in the city last year, and other concerns will likely come in the spring.

"Within a year from now," Mr. Thompson reported, "these companies will have a capital of $2,000,000 invested, and will give employment to more than 2,000 men. Including additions to industries already located in the city, $1,500,000 was spent in the erection of new factories. The year's expenses were $7,650.78, and there was a surplus of $349.22 out of the appropriation, $7,800.

HORSE DIED AFTER BEING LEFT OUT FOR WHOLE NIGHT

It is reported that a man from Smith, who became intoxicated while in the city a few days ago, left his horse on the road after getting stuck in a snow drift. The animal remained out all night, being almost exhausted, and died a short time after some persons living in the vicinity had dug the poor brute out and taken it to a place of shelter. When the outfit got stalled in the snow the driver went home and left it there.

LT. COL. SOUTHALL AT S. A. TEMPLE

Lieut.-Col. Southall spoke at all three meetings at the Salvation Army Temple yesterday. In the afternoon he gave a very able address on the responsibility of parents to their children. In the morning and evening he also preached interesting sermons.

A feature of the afternoon meeting was the work in the service of the children who took the platform. Staff-Capt. Bloss, chancellor for the Salvation Army in Ontario, assisted at all the services. He will be present at the junior entertainment this evening.

COMPLIMENTED THE ORCHESTRA

At a supper given in his honor after the presentation of "Kitty Grey" at the Grand on Saturday night, Mr. G. R. Huntley expressed himself as delighted with the way in which the Opera House orchestra played the score. He said they handled the music more readily and with greater accuracy than any orchestra he had come in contact with on his Canadian tour.

Such a compliment from Mr. Huntley is sincerely appreciated by Mr. Devey and the members of the orchestra.

FORGERY CHARGE

Young Man Changed His Cheque From $8.65 to $18.65 — Remanded For One Week.

Charged with forgery, Frederick Palmetier, was arrested in the Brass Department of the Canadian General Electric Company this morning by P. C. Meagher, and when he appeared before Magistrate Dumble, elected to a summary trial and pleaded guilty.

County Crown Attorney Wood asked that the prisoner be remanded for one week, and this was done.

Palmetier, on receiving his cheque last week, changed the amount of $8.65 so that it read $18.65. He is an orphan, and came to this city from Campbellford, about three months ago.

ABOUT CHICKENS

Killing the hen that lays the golden egg is a pastime adopted too frequently by too many farmers. Speaking locally, for that is the only way in which much good can be accomplished for the citizens of Peterborough, too many hens filled with golden eggs are killed by the farmers of the neighborhood. Take, for instance on the Saturday market, eggs sold at 30c or more per dozen. Hens, dead and supposed to be chickens, sold for 50c each. A hen will cost only $1.00 a year to feed. She will lay in two weeks enough eggs to equal the price her carcass brings on the market. or in other words it will only cost 4c to feed a hen long enough to get 50c worth of eggs. That may sound impossible. Nevertheless, it is a fact. The wonder is that the farmers have not figured it out for themselves. Where the kick comes in is in the fact that the farmers on the Peterborough market are killing their hens and selling them on the market for 50c each. Those same hens are filled with eggs, and so far advanced are some of the eggs that the soft shell has formed. If the hen has not yet laid she would in a very few days, and she would continue to produce "cobalt" right through to the setting season. It is safe to say that 100 hens at least were sold on Saturday's market. It is just as safe to say that 90 of those hens were either laying or would have laid in a few days.

The ill effect of such reckless butchering of hens is two-fold. First, it reduces the stock of egg producers. Second, it immediately reduces the number of eggs. Consequently the price of eggs goes away beyond the reach of the average person, and those who do buy hens for the table are disappointed and disgruntled. It would be far better if the farmer saved his hens for eggs and let the people go without fowl for the table for a few weeks. The farmers would make much more money and the people would pay less for their eggs and chickens and be better satisfied.

CANADIAN FORESTRY CONVENTION

Matters are rapidly progressing in regard to the Canadian Forestry Association Convention at Fredericton on Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 23rd and 24th. Among those who are expected to attend in addition to the President, Mr. Thomas Southworth of Toronto, and the Vice-President, Hon. MUSIC AND DRAMA

"The Man From Home"

The story of the new Booth Tarkington-Harry Leon Wilson play, "The Man From Home," which is to be seen for the first time at the "Grand" next Friday, Feb. 18, is a distinctly novel and peculiarly attractive one, dealing as it does with a curious admixture of American plainness and European high life. The story runs briefly thus;

Horace and Ethel Simpson, natives of Kokomo, Ind., having been left orphans and (with a comparatively large sum of money at their individual commands, decide to live in Europe. There they are taken up by a certain European class who use them for their own ends, flatter them and otherwise cater to their vanity. Both these young people become Anglomaniacs of the most impossible order. Their affairs are left in the hands of Daniel Voorhees Pike, a lawyer of Kokomo. He hears that Ethel has decided to marry the Hon. Almeric St. Aubyn, the eldest son of an impecunious British Peer, the Earl of Hawcastle, and he immediately takes ship to Italy, where the young people are living, with the idea of looking into the matter. He arrives at a crucial moment. Ethel has promised to marry the young man, and the father demands the settlement of three-quarters of a million in payment for the "honor" his son is about to do her. She believes the young man loves her for herself. It becomes Pike's business to show the precious pair up in their true colors, and this he proceeds to do.

Henry Hull, who has played the chief part, that of Daniel Voorhees Pike, at the Astor Theatre, New York, will be seen in the same part here. All the action of the piece takes place within a period of twenty-four hours, and the four scenes are laid in the grounds and apartments of the Hotel Regina Margherita, Southern Italy.

"Kitty Grey"

The quality of the music and the quality of the presenting company is what makes "Kitty Grey" a musical comedy of distinction. The book of the piece is neither clever nor very original and it is the inimitably funny way of G. P. Huntley in the "silly ass" part of Earl Dulston that it makes the part so amusing. As in all characterizations of this kind, even the most ordinary common sense under the most ordinary conditions would be philosophy too deep to be successfully grappled with by the English scion of limited means and less brains. Mr. Huntley proved a comedian of superior attainments and was very brilliant and finished in his work. After seeing him in "Kitty Grey" it is very easy to appreciate the fact that he is so popular in England and enjoys an international reputation as an exponent of his favorite type of comedy. Miss Gladys Claire as "Kitty Grey" was delightfully clever and entertaining. She is a magnetic actress and sings with excellent expression and dances cleverly and gracefully. Miss Eva Kelly did some real acting as Lady Binfield and has a most attractive personality. Leslie Blaze as Sir John Binfield, revealed a pleasing singing voice and Charles Angelo as Ernest III. of the mythical kingdom of Illyria gave a realistic picture of the royal roue. James McElhern made the typical polished and attentive butler and provided a generous portion of the comedy. In fact it may be said that all members of the cast took their respective parts in a most acceptable way. The chorus was large and well balanced and the stage settings supplied a pleasing background.

Exclusive of the ensembles there were ten musical numbers all of a much higher lyrical and musical standard than those generally found in American musical plays. This is a comparison that may seem threadbare by reason of its frequent reiteration, but it nevertheless is a most notable fact in comparing English and American musical comedies and comic operas. In the first act the duet "The Tract" and "Have You Got Another Girl Like Mary" met with the largest measure of approval and "King Olaf's Gals" and "Mr. Soldier" in Act II. were both repeatedly encored. In the first number the King and the butler gave some excellent comedy effects and in "Mr Soldier," one of the most tuneful songs of the play, Miss Claire and Mr. Huntley did a dance that captivated the audience.

The story of the piece deals with the pursuit of a husband by his wife the husband having gone to London to see Kitty Grey, a musical ball actress, and the wife suspecting that his visit was not as he would have her believe, an important business trip. Incidental to this plot and all happening in the same atmosphere the rest of the play is worked out.

SOMETHING NOT ON PROGRAMME

While out driving yesterday afternoon a couple of actresses and an actor of the "Kitty Grey" company had an exciting upset at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets. The cutter got caught between the double rails on the street car track and tipped over throwing all three occupants of the sleigh out on to the road.

The horse ran at top speed to the Monaghan boundary line before it was caught.

At the point where the accident occurred the snow is sloped up from the track causing the sleigh to swerve and no less than two upsets on Sunday and three on Saturday occurred there.

Saturday Drunks

Two Saturday drunks were assessed $2.00 and $5.75 respectively at the police court this morning. One was given ten days in which to make his contribution good, but the other did not care so well, he being requested to turn over the amount at once.
